Big Victory For Loyal Force

1,000 Rebels Reported Killed and 500 Wounded in Yesterday's Battle.

2,000 PRISONERS.

General Calles Pushes Troops North In Hope Of Overtaking Fleeing Force.

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—(Canadian Press). — General Piutarco Elias Calles pushed federal cavalry northward through Santa Rosalia De Camargo in an effort to overtake and "exterminate" fleeing remnants of the rebel army which aviators sighted at dusk yesterday. General Almazan's cavalry were brought up from La Reforma and hoped to overtake two bodies of rebel troops early to-day. General Almazan expected hig horse to be well past Santa Rosalia at daybreak.

Claims Great Victory

General Calles in a message to President Portes Gil remarked:

"Mr. President, you will note the defeat of the rebls was most decisive and even though the dispersed groups may continue to unite there is no possibility they will offer any resistance anywhere else in the State of Chihuahua. Soon the traitors will be exhibiting their shameless cowardice in foreign lands."

He forwarded official estimates of the carnage at La Reforma, the figures speaking even more eloquently than the words of General Almazan's official report. Wednesday night in which it was said "the veritable butchery among them was stupendous."

1,000 Dead

Rebel dead in the La Reforma action, General Calles said, exceeded 1,000; wounded—usually in battles far outnumber the dead—numbered only 500. There were 2,000 prisoners. The dead were said to lie in great stacks at La Reforma while arrangements for disposal were made. General Calles said he had not had time to check up on federal casualties.

Conveyances streamed back from La Reforma all day to Jimines bringing the wounded, both rebel and federal, 300 of whom were to be taken to hospitals at Montery, Nuevo Leon, and the remainder to Aguascalientes and Torreon. These latter included those rebel wounded who remained helpless in the cars of the troop trains during the La Reforma attack.

OFFICIALS UPHOLD RULING RELATING TO U.S. DIVORCEES WHO LATER MOVE TO CANADA

Montreal Judge Claims They Are Bigamists in the Eyes of the Law.

MANY INSTANCES.

548 Canadian Divorces, Principally From Ontario, Granted in Detroit Last Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 5 (Canadian Press).—Canadians who marry in the Dominion, secure a divorce in the United States, re-marry again in that country, and return to Canada to live with their second partners in marriage, are bigamists in the eyes of Canadian law.

This opinion was expressed to-day by divorce officials of the Senate in commenting on the decision of Judge J. C. Lacroix, in the Court of Sessions at Montreal yesterday, who found an accused guilty of bigamy. The Canadian subject in question had been married in New Brunswick and had afterwards sent his wife to Reno, Nevada, where she secured a divorce. Subsequently he, with his second choice, left for Malone, N.Y., where he contracted a second marriage and then returned to Montreal with his second wife to live.

Absent From House

While Senator W. B. Willoughby, chairman of the Divorce Committee, is absent in Moose Jaw, divorce officials state that this opinion has been accepted on a number of occasions in the course of divorce proceedings in Parliament.

The decision of Judge Lacroix will doubtlessly, it is said, create some uneasiness among some couples now living in Canada, one of whom may have re-married in the United States on the strength of a divorce from the American courts under the circumstances mentioned. Reference was made to this situation only recently in the Senate by Senator G. D. Robertson, Ottawa, during discussion on the bill of Senator Willoughby for the establishment of divorce courts in Ontario.

"On two grounds I hold that this bill ought to be approved and passed without further delay by this parliament," Senator Robertson stated. "One is that twice as many divorces of people living in the province of Ontario have been granted in the City of Detroit as by this parliament, during recent years. Do honorable gentlemen know that in the year 1928 there were 548 Canadian divorces secured in the City of Detroit most of the people who are separated by these Michigan decrees re-marry in the United States, return to Canada, and live in wedlock that is illegitimate, according to Canadian law."

New Slang Phrase For Hockey Fans

A new phrase of American slang was mentioned by Bert McLeod in his account of the American Hockey Association's season in which he played with the Kansas City Club. When the fans got excited and shouted for action, instead of yelling "Go on" or "Come on," etc., they yelled "Pour it on."

Mr. McLeod merely mentioned this gallery invention, but one could imagine the fans exhorting "Pour it on big boy, pour it on."

QUINLAN DIES IN HOSPITAL

Daniel Sinclair, Companion in the Crash, Was Instantly Killed.

BORN IN LAKEFIELD.

William Quinlan, who was severely injured in a crash between a street car and a motor car last Sunday at Mimico, died in hospital today. Quinlan had lain in hospital since the fatal crash, which caused compound fractures of legs and arms, ribs broken and fracture to his skull, suffering grievous pain until the end today. His companion in the accident, Daniel Sinclair, was killed instantly.

William Quinlan, aged 37 years, was the son of the late Robert Quinlan of this city. He was born in Lakefield, was a barber, and had been conducting a billiard and barber shop at Long Branch.

The mystery as to which of the men was driving the car in the fatal crash has not yet been cleared up. The motorman stated that it was being driven at a reckless speed past a barrier bearing a red light to mark an unpaved section of the road.

AMERICAN NAVY IS INFERIOR TO GREAT BRITAIN IN CRUISERS

Naval Correspondent To Daily Telegraph Outlines Comparative Strength of Two Navies.

SUPERIOR IN DESTROYERS.

New Type of U. S. Cruisers Will Outclass Those of British Nation.

LONDON, April 5. — (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)— The Daily Telegraph's naval correspondent in an analysis to-day of what he calls "America's huge naval estimates for the coming year," says: "The American navy is equal to us in capital ships (and superior in the number of naval guns); is immensely superior in destroyers, submarines and aircraft; and is inferior only in cruisers. When, however, the new construction programme has been completed, America will gain a pronounced lead in the number of large, modern ocean-going cruisers."

The article observes that while each of the 15 new United States' cruisers will cost $17,000,000, comparative British cruisers are priced at about $10,000,000. The higher cost of the American ships, the correspondent addds, "is due in part to economic conditions in the shipyards but also in part to their superior speed, armament and equipment."

"On paper at least," he continues, "our 10,000 ton county class cruisers are quite outclassed by the American vessels. While two out of three British vessels authorized for the year are to be small ships, probably of 6,000 tons, mounting only 6-inch guns, America is building nothing but 10,000 ton vessels carrying nine or ten 8-inch guns.

"Compared with the American figures our own fleet air-arm dwindles almost into insignificance. Already the United States enjoys at least a four-fold superiority on this side."

HANKOW, China, April 5.—(Canadian Press).—Nationalist occupation of Hankow was imminent to-day as Wuhan troops defending it refused to fight their brother Chinese from Nanking and instead fraternized with them.

The Wuhan generals had drawn their lines well about the city and were prepared to defend it but when they gave the order to fight their soldiers chose instead to forget their differences with Nanking troops and make friends.

FLOODS SWEEP DETROIT AREA

Hundreds of Families Are Marooned in Their Homes By High Waters.

POLICE OUT IN BOATS.

DETROIT, Mich., April 5 (C.P.).—Hundreds of families early to-day were marooned in their homes by flood waters from Connors Creek on Detroit's east side, caused by a torrential rain shortly after midnight. Water to a depth of five feet swept over streets and many families were forced to the second floor of their homes for safety. Police received reports that members of one family had been overcome by gas, but had not been able to reach the house to attempt a rescue.

All available police from a nearby precinct station were sent out in boats to remove men, women and children to dry grounds. A swift current prevented reaching one section, and occupants of houses took to second floors.

An area about a mile square was flooded and automobiles parked on streets were swept away, some of them several blocks. Basements of stores in the district were filled with water but shop-keepers opened up to sell hip boots and waders to rescuers.

So quickly did the waters rise that many families were unaware of the flood until it was too late to make their way to safety.

In addition to the work of removing those most seriously in danger, police and other workers were confronted with the problem of clearing clogged sewers. One fire company was called out and aided with ladders in removing marooned persons from their homes.

Three Survivors Will Face Charges Of Manslaughter

Engineer, Fireman and Rear Brakeman of C.N.R. Passenger No. 3, Which Collided at Drocourt With Number 4 On March 20, Are Committed For Trial.

APPEAR BEFORE MAGISTRATE J. D. BROUGHTON IN POLICE COURT IN PARRY SOUND TO-DAY

Men Are Released On Bail By District Judge Powell Immediately After Preliminary Hearing—Evidence Same As At Inquest.

PARRY SOUND, April 5.—(Canadian Press).—On charges of manslaughter arising out of the loss of 14 or more lives in a head-on collision between two passenger trains at Drocourt, March 20, engineer G. V. Alexander, fireman Edward Riley and rear brakeman Charles Gorrie were committed for trial by Magistrate J. D. Broughton in police court to-day. The men are the surviving members of the northbound train number 3 which failed to take the siding at Drocourt according to its orders and which met train number 4 head on ¾ of a mile past the meeting place.

Application for renewal of bail was made at once to District Judge F. C. Powell. The men were released on the same bail arranged before $10,000 for engineer Alexander and $5,000 each for fireman Riley and brakeman Gorrie.

Not Asked to Plead.

The men were not asked to plead, and the charges against all three were laid jointly. Fourteen or more persons were killed when two crack Canadian National trains collided head on north of Drocourt, where they had been scheduled to pass. At a coroner's inquest last week the crew of the north-bound No. 3 train were held responsible for the wreck, and the charges of manslaughter were laid immediately after. It was this train which failed to take the siding at Drocourt, as ordered, and ran past the stopping place to crash into the other train.

The evidence adduced by the Crown was practically the same as that brought out at the inquest. W. W. Cook, train despatcher, at Capreol, told of preparing the order for the trains to meet at Drocourt. The usual meeting place was at Waubamik, but owing to the fact that No. 4 was two hours late the witness ordered No. 3 to advance to Drocourt, take the siding there, and permit No. 4 to pass. The order was issued by M. Foister, who relieved Despatcher Cook at Capreol at midnight. The witness said he cleared No. 3 at South Parry by issuing the order to the operator there, and No. 4 by order through the operator at Capreol.

George Reynolds, rule instructor of the Canadian National Railways, said it was the duty of the entire train crew to see that a stop was made in accordance with the orders. Pressed by the Crown to say whether there was any difference in the responsibilities of the members of the crew, said: "Trains are run under the direction of the conductor." He pointed out that the rules required the order to stop to be delivered to the conductor and the engineer(but that all members of the crew had to know the contents of the orders.

The conductor of the southbound No. 4 tran, William Coomb, said he had no intimation of the possibility of a collision until the trains hit. He said the collision was the direct result of No. 3 failing to carry out the order delivered to it to stop at Drocourt.

A telegraph operator at South Parry Sound told of delivering the order to meet at Drocourt to Conductor Barstead of train No. 3, and an operator at Capreol told of delivering the order to Conductor Coomb of Number 4.

1928 REVIEW IS GIVEN CLUB

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Addresses Kiwanians at Weekly Luncheon.

YEAR MATERIAL PROGRESS.

When Kiwanian Charles Cook, scheduled to address his fellow club members at the luncheon to-day, fell sick, a worthy "pinch hitter" was found in the person of Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who came to the club's noon hour luncheon with an address of which optimism was the keynote. "A Retrospect of 1928," was the subject chosen by Mr. Gordon, who, looking to the past, found inspiration for the future of the Dominion.

"Canada, during the year 1928 has furnished a greater material growth than in any year of her history and generally trade conditions the world over are upon a more secure foundation than at any time since the war," said Mr. Gordon, by way of introduction. In touching upon the point of an illness that had concerned the people of Canada and the Empire, that of His Majesty the King, which had drawn forth a unanimity of feeling and concern, Mr. Gordon drew a striking comparison with the division of support accorded President Herbert Hoover during and since the last Presidential election in the United States; he touched upon the recent mandate, for the first time given by the people of that great country, in favor of total prohibition, and to the marvellous advances in trade and transportation on the American continent, all within 1928.

Progress in Industries

The speaker went on to quote forceful statistics showing unqualified progress in agriculture, forestry, power development, manufacturing, construction, trade and commerce and insurance, all of which he declared to be an accurate barometer of growing prosperity. District Governor I. P. McNabb moved the vote of thanks.

To-day's luncheon was featured by a statement of ticket sales by Roy Taylor and a challenge to the Kiwanians, thrown out by Andy Furman, director of "Kiwanis Kapers" which will be put on in the Grand, April 12 and 13. J. H. Gilgour, John Dewart and G. N. Gordon were the lucky winners of Wilf Freel's booster prizes, while Master Orvil Wainman proved himself possessed of a remarkably clear voice in singing to the club a couple of happy little numbers. Mrs. Wainman played his accompaniments. President J. J. Turner expressed the club's appreciation to the visitors. He also announced that an executive meeting would be held on Saturday evening, at 7.30, in the Clinic Board Room.

SIDEWALK FOR BRIDGE IS LEFT TO COMMITTEE

Reeves Parker and Clark Find That Two Motions Are in Minutes.

WAIT UNTIL JUNE SESSION.

January Motion Regarding the Buckhorn Bridge Was Never Rescinded.

John Clark and Harry Parker, reeves of Galway and Harvey townships, came down from the county council meeting date on Tuesday afternoon with more than a suspicion that they had been hornswoggled on the proposed sidewalk for pedestrians along the Buckhorn bridge.

To be hornswoggled is a generic verb of questionable origin, which in specific use, as in this instance, may mean to have it put all over you. And that's the way the two genial gentlemen from the Kawartha hinterland felt on the way back to Dave King's hotel.

Two Motions in Minutes.

In January, it seems, a resolution instructed the warden and chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee, who is Reeve Leahy of Douro, to bring in a report at the June session on Mr. Parker's Buckhorn project. Then at the special session toward the end of February, John Clark talked the council into almost unanimous approval of a new resolution authorizing the Warden and Mr. Leahy to have the bridge built.

Tuesday, Mr. Leahy pointed out that the January motion had not been rescinded, and therefore the February motion was out of order, subordinate or otherwise nugatory, and ineffective.

Reeve Rye was Ready.

Mr. Rye promptly suggested in the adoption of the minutes of the February special meeting that the Buckhorn bridge be struck out. Mr. McIntyre seconded it; and an amendment by Mr. Clark and Reeve Cavanagh of Ennismore, was defeated.

Of course the Buckhorn case is not hopelessly lost. It is set back to its January status, and will come up for further report and discussion at the June session. But in the manner in which the anomaly of the minutes was ferreted out, there was an odor of hornswoggling. It means that the bridge battle will have to be fought all over again. John Clark in February was a veritable Horatius and it is doubtful if he can muster up the eloquence that once wrung a perfectly good footbridge out of the hard-shelled representatives of the other municipalities. He painted in a picture of a mud-splattered population around Buckhorn having to cross the bridge in a muddy mist thrown up by automobiles. Mr. Clark wove a magic spell about his colleagues in that oratorical effort which according to the experience of histrionism, is rarely as effective in repetition. Some members of the council almost wept at the phantasy Mr. Clark conjured of school children arriving home so sprayed with the bridge mud that their mothers did not know them.

Cheer for Reeve Humphries.

He failed to move Reeve Adam Humphries of Asphodel that day. Adam was adamant. Tuesday he was absent with a cold he caught in Peterborough last Saturday, but it may cheer him to hear of the counter-stroke of Leahy and Rye, and he can get all set for a firmer defensive in June.

COUNCIL PASSES SHERIFF'S BILL

Government Demanded That Architects Make Complete Plan of Jail.

COST $142.50.

Hornsby and Allen, local architects, may now collect their bill of $142.50 from the county for plans of the jail premises which had been ordered by Sheriff F. J. A. Hall on the demand of the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto.

This account, in the words of the late Tom Curtis of Havelock, had been "let slide along" because the County Council had not been consulted. So many requisitions for school and highways monies, mothers' allowances, hospital bills and other expenses over which they have no control, are presented to the County Council nowadays that the members feel themselves being moulded into the general outline of a rubber stamp. Hence their inclination to guard their remaining prerogatives, however attenuated they may have become.

Tuesday afternoon they requested Sheriff Hall to attend them and explain this $142 account. He explained that because of the many prisoners escaping from old jails in Ontario, the Department asked for plans of the local jail down to the last bolt and bar to make sure it offered no loopholes. Sheriff Hall said he did not consult any representative of the County Council because he had thought the cost would be $25 or thereabouts.

A bill for a typewriter, bought for Crown Attorney Hatton's office, was also "let slide along" until the Council learns of its liability, that is, whether the statute has been changed to apply to a Crown Attorney who does not occupy an office in the County Building.

KEPT UNDER DRUGS.

MOBILE, Ala., April 5. (C.P.) — A close police watch was thrown over the highways leading into this city, and steamship travel out of Mobile yesterday when local authorities received telegraphic and radio messages informing them that abductors of Barbara Pitcher, the wealthy Montreal school girl, are believed en route to this city by automobile, in an attempt to whisk the kidnapped girl out of this country by steamer.

Radiograms and telegrame received by the local department from Chief of Police H. Langevin of Montreal, stated that a large automobile bearing two men and two women had been trailed through eastern cities and is believed en route to Mobile or New Orleans.

One of the women occupants of the machine is believed by Montreal authorities to be the pretty school girl abducted from her home in the Canadian city several days ago. Reports received from the Montreal police indicate that the girl had been kept under the influence of drugs during the flight of her abductors in this country from Canada, and their following attempted to reach a southern seaport.

Fearing an explosion, Reid hurled himself off the machine, but Hales was burned about the body and legs. NEW FACTORY IS COMPLETED

Cheese Building in Hastings Is Opened For Inspection.

SITE IS IDEAL.

The new Ormonde cheese factory at Hastings is completed except for the installing of the machinery, and Wednesday afternoon the patrons inspected the fine new plant. The new factory is of brick and concrete blocks with fireproof shingles, making one of the finest cheese manufacturing plants in the province. The building is 30 feet by 60 feet with a waterhouse beside the main building 15 feet by 30 feet, and it will have a daily capacity of 27 cheese.

The meeting Wednesday was very successful and the large number of patrons expressed themselves as being very proud of the factory. The new buildings are erected on the old site on which the Ormonde cheese factory has been operating for the past 42 years. The former building was destroyed by fire last July, but a bigger and finer plant has risen from its ashes.

Site is Ideal

The site is an ideal one for such a plant. It has ample drainage to the river which flows near by. The factory is set down in the centre of one of the best districts for milk of the remaining factories belonging to the Peterborough Cheese Board.

The new factory was built by G. A. Gillespie and W. Montgomery, the cheese-maker in the old plant, who will continue in his experienced capacity of cheese-maker. The hope was expressed at the meeting yesterday that the patrons would at some near future date take over the plant as their own and form a stock company. The plant was formerly run under that plan, and Mr. Gillespie offered them the fine new plant yesterday to be run under their management, if they desired to take it.

The first cheese factory was built on this site forty-two years ago. John Coughlin was the prime mover in the great undertaking and he called a meeting of the patrons to consider the work on his own responsibility. At this meeting Charles Mills, a cheese maker of high repute, was in attendance and entered into an agreement to begin making cheese. Mr. Mills conducted the factory for several years.

The factory was christened the Ormonde Cheese Factory by the suggestion of John C. Warrington of Montreal, then almost the sole cheese buyer in Canada for the export trade. "Ormonde" was the name of the horse which won the King's Plate that summer.

Mr. Coughlin was chairman of the meeting Wednesday, winding up the business of the old factory, and to him Mr. Gillespie handed a cheque in payment for the residue remaining from the fire. Mr. Coughlin also sold cheese to the Peterborough Cheese Board, and he was recognized by the buyers as one of the best salesmen in the business.

PUBLIC SERVANT PASSES AWAY

James Middleton Was For Years Member of Smith Township Council.

FORMER WARDEN OF COUNTY

In the death of James Middleton, aged 83, early last night, Peterborough loses one of its fine old men. He was active for many years in Smith Township work and has served on both township and county councils. He took a big part in church affairs and for the last nine years has been tax collector for that township.

The late Mr. Middleton was born on the First Concession of Smith, and that township was the centre of his interest all his life. At the age of twenty-one he was elected to the council of the township, and remained as councillor, deputy-reeve, and reeve for twenty years. During his last year in the council he was warden of the county.

He was rich in past achievement, but never was content to rest on the past, taking an important place in the business world right up until his final illness. Twenty-seven years ago he moved to Peterborough, and for the past twelve had been actively engaged in the real estate business and in collecting the taxes for Smith Township.

The late Mr. Middleton was a great Christian, being superintendent of the Lily Lake Union Sunday School for twenty-five years and a faithful member of the George Street United Church. He was president of the Liberal Association in this county for many years.

He is survived by three sons, W. H. Middleton of Belleville, J. A. Middleton, who resides on the old farm in Smith Township, and Dr. J. E. Middleton of this city, and also one daughter, Lottie Middleton, of this city.

The funeral service will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence, 663 Water Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. J. E. Todd, of George Street United Church, will be the officiating clergyman.

RUM RUNNER IS MISSING

No Trace Has Been Found of Clark Shrimpshire Since He Left Port Saturday.

LOST IN STORM.

CHATHAM, April 5 (Canadian Press). — Provincial Police here last night said that they had received no further information concerning Clark Shrimpshire, alleged rum-runner, who is thought to have perished in his lone craft in a week-end gale over Lake Erie. Friends are reported to have searched both the Canadian and American shores, but found no trace of the craft.

Shrimpshire is the man who gained notoriety about Christmas time. He was one of two men who, aboard the Anna H., with a cargo of liquor for a United States port, lived for two weeks on beer when their craft drifted in the lake after the engine was disabled.

The missing man, who skippered liquor boats between the Kent port and the Ohio shore, arrived at Erieau last Friday in a speed boat. He reported his arrival, but left without advising the customs officials of his departure or place of destination. His boat was seen travelling easterly on Saturday. The belief is that he made calls at other places on the Canadian shore and attempted to cross the lake on Sunday, when the gale developed. The storm continued until Monday night.

BUDGET DEBATE IS RESUMED

Parliament Re-assembles After Almost Two Weeks of Vacation.

VOTE NEXT WEEK.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 5 (Canadian Press). — After about two weeks' rest Parliament resumed yesterday. The attendance of members was somewhat slim, however. In view of the fact that there were only two days of sitting this week, a number preferred to remain at home over the next week's end. They will be here in full force on Monday.

The House again took up consideration of the Budget and its two amendments. The Commons now has before it the formal proposal of Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, "that the Speaker do now leave the chair for the House to go into committee of ways and means." Approval of this motion would mean the adoption of the Budget.

CONSERVATIVES OFFERED AMENDMENT.

From the Conservative ranks, however, came an amendment expressing regret "that the financial proposals of the Government make no provision for reasonably safeguarding and protecting the interests of those engaged in agricultural pursuits or in industrial employment in Canada." This was moved by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, member for South Wellington, on March 7.

Later in the debate the U.F.A. group furnished a sub-amendment. H. E. Spencer, member for Battle River, moved that the House "urge upon the Government consideration of an immediate and substantial increase of the British preference as a step towards freer trade relations between Canada and other nations."

These are the three proposals which the members have before them, and upon which they will be required to vote probably next week.

SPEAKERS TO LEFT TAKE PART.

The debate yesterday was carried along, largely by members sitting to the left of the Speaker. Dr. I. D. Cotnam, Conservative member for North Renfrew, opened in criticism of the Government. He was followed by D. M. Kennedy, U.F.A., Peace River. Finlay Macdonald, Conservative, Cape Breton South, charged

CORONER'S JURY BLAMES MAID

Mrs. Helen Kelso, 70, Passes Away in a Chicago Hospital.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 5. (C.P.) — Mrs. Helen Kelso, 70, died last night from injuries inflicted on Wednesday, police say, by her maid, Mrs. Ida Peterson, 64, who became suddenly insane, beating her mistress on the head with a hammer and then killing herself with a razor.

A physician's examination indicated for a time that a third party might have been responsible, but a coroner's jury yesterday held that the maid, who once had been an inmate of the insane hospital at Elgin, caused the dual tragedy.

Mrs. Kelso, was the widow of a wealthy Belleville, Ont., pickle manufacturer.

The woman whose beauty counsel sways Paris

Mme. Valentin LE BRUN

Director, L'Institut de Beauté, Paris

finds an ideal home beauty treatment

"I strongly advise every woman who is anxious to retain perpetual beauty to make use, daily at home, of . . . the specially blended Palmolive Soap, which is a powerful factor for promoting perfect skin hygiene. Other soaps, even more expensive ones, owing to their caustic nature, often irritate the epidermis and, in the end, tire and spoil it."

(Signed) Mlle Valentin Le Brun

L'INSTITUT DE BEAUTÉ, 26, PLACE VENDOME

Nowhere in Paris will you find a more typically cosmopolitan clientele than L'Institut de Beauté enjoys. Throughout its 35 years of existence, this beauty salon has been visited by many of the world's most distinguished women.

Parisian sunlight filters through the windows of Mme. Le Brun's salon, while operators demonstrate the remarkable results of Mme. Le Brun's principle for "producing loveliness on a healthy skin."

WHEN you visit L'Institut de Beauté, at 26 Place Vendome, Paris, you will notice that it was founded "en 1885 par Mme. Valentin Le Brun." Madame Le Brun is still the head of this celebrated beauty salon, and today, at 73 years of age, her word is more powerful than ever on matters of skin care. For Mme. Le Brun has perpetuated the youthful appearance of many of the world's most renowned beauties, on the stage and among the aristocracy.

Like all of her disciples and her most illustrious colleagues, Madame Le Brun cannot over-emphasize the value of "thorough cleansing of the skin" as the most vital step toward personal loveliness.

Other Parisian specialists agree

Her Parisian co-workers agree on this fundamental necessity. Lina Cavalieri, the former opera star, now a famous cosmetician; Delord et Bion; Massé; Vincent; Payot . . . all the leaders in Parisian beauty culture work first to assure foundation loveliness . . . by one means and one means only —Palmolive Soap!

Madame Le Brun finds that "Palmolive Soap . . . removes, without irritation, all the refuse which obstructs the pores and leaves the skin thoroughly cleansed and healthy . . . for the tonification of the skin, it should precede the use of my lotions, creams, etc., just as it should precede the application of all complexion cosmetics."*

A priceless formula embodying the precious oils of palm and olive, famous since the days of Cleopatra for prolonging health and beauty.

Echoed by the world's experts

In every country, in every world capital, one meets this same advice. Madame Bertha Jacobson of Mayfair, London; Elise Bock, of Berlin; Pessl, of Vienna—scores of others tell their smart patrons these same facts about skin care:

All day, the pores gather dirt and dust, oil, rouge, powder. Gradually, these impurities clog the surface of the skin. Unless they are removed every day, unattractive blemishes soon are likely to lead to complexion disorders of a more serious nature.

The treatment experts advise

The way to counteract these dangers to skin youthfulness is this simple treatment: Massage the face gently for two full minutes with Palmolive lather. Rinse this off thoroughly, and with it all impurities and secretions. Follow with a cold rinse . . . to icy temperature, in the morning, as an astringent. All other treatments, all use of make-up should be preceded by this basic skin cleanser.

Your own beauty specialist, you will find, agrees with this statement. The leading experts in every city throughout the country recommend Palmolive Soap. They have helped to make it the most popular soap in Canada and 48 other countries.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, April 6.—Wednesday's offering at the Union stock yards in practically all classes was cleaned up at the close of the day's business, and there were no fresh arrivals by rail yesterday. Cattle prices at Wednesday's close were steady with the opening of the week, and the light offering for the week as a whole was well cleared. There were no fresh sheep and lambs in the supply of ivestock, the rainy weather cutting down the truck arrivals to a few loads, mostly hogs.

Calves sold unchanged on a basis of 15 or 16 cents a pound for good veal, with plain veals downward to 9 cents. Sheep were steady at the week's decline with 9 cents taking the best light ewes and 14 cents the general top for yearling lambs. Good to choice spring lambs sold from $12 to $16 each.

The hog price yesterday was $12 per cwt., f.o.b., and $13 per cwt. w.o.c. for selects, showing a gain of 25 cents a cwt. for the week.

Receipts: Calves 129, hogs 182.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 5. — Surprising power to rally developed in the wheat market yesterday, after prices had dropped to almost the season's low-price record. Export demand for wheat from North America showed improvement, with domestic hard wheat said to be now on a competitive basis with Canadian, and with any change in domestic crop conditions asserted to be practically impossible, except backward.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular at ¼c net decline to ½c advance; corn finished ⅝ to ½c to ⅝c down; oats unchanged to ½c to ⅝c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

Bearish News

Extreme nervousness pervaded the wheat pit right from the opening. Early breaks in prices quickly carried the market to below Wednesday's bottom figures. Crop advices current were to the effect that the outlook for winter wheat, taking the domestic belt as a whole, could hardly be improved, and that on account of abundant subsoil moisture, Western Kansas, in particular, has a better prospect than usual.

Meanwhile, spring work in all spring wheat States was reported to be well under way, with the general crop outlook for spring wheat in the American Northwest optimistic, and a good start promising.

Bearish views, which in some quarters were expressed regarding farm-relief measures, did much to accelerate the downward swing of the wheat market, the idea put forward being that little likelihood was apparent of any action which could affect the price of grain already in existence. Active buying, nevertheless, on the part of commission houses broadened out fast in the wheat pit following setbacks in prices.

Eyes on Canada

Helping the upturns which ensued was word that trans-Atlantic takings of wheat from North America yesterday totalled 700,000 bushels. It was also a subject of notice that the Canadian drought situation is but little, if at all, improved. An advance in Winnipeg quotations was likewise a late bullish factor, especially as Winnipeg messages were at hand telling of rumors that Russia is to buy wheat this spring.

Corn Lower

Corn swayed with wheat, but showed less power to rally. On the setbacks in price May corn fell below 90 cents for the first time since last December. On the other hand, predictions were current that domestic corn receipts will be extremely light for the next sixty days, and that there is to be a big shrinkage of the corn visible supply total. July and September oats sold at a now low on the crop, but the oats market rallied later with grain. Provisions sympathized with a decline in hog values, and then responded to upturns shown

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 5.—Erratic price fluctuations featured yesterday's market. Wheat dropped 1c in the first hour, climbed to former levels, and during the last hour of trading was ⅝ over the previous close. Final quotations were ¼c higher to ¼c lower for the day. Exporters accumulated a fair amount of wheat.

Cash wheat trading was inactive, with the demand for the various grades poor. Prices dropped ¼c to ½c.

Oats were well bought at firm prices, and barley also displayed some activity, but very little interest was taken in rye and flax, and prices were a shade lower.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 5.—A feature of the butter trade was the stronger feeling that developed for New Zealand grades and values were advanced ½c per pound. New Zealand finest sold at 44c per pound. The strength was attributed to the small supplies on hand and the good demand. Receipts were 543 packages.

The demand for cheese showed a slight improvement and prices were well maintained. Receipts were 80 boxes.

A moderate amount of business was done in eggs and the tone of the market was steady. Receipts were 2,100 cases.

Potatoes continued firm at 50c per 90 pounds, in bulk for New Brunswick Green Mountains, with Prince Edward Island Whites selling at 65c and Green Mountains at 70c per 90 pounds, in bags.

Cheese, westerns, 22½c; butter, No. 1, pasteurized, 44; eggs, fresh extras, 36; eggs, fresh firsts, 34c.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, April 5. — The price of butter was advanced on the wholesale market yesterday and the dealers were quoting a new range of prices at from 42 3-4c to 43c per lb. The supply on spot is barely sufficient to meet the demand and dealers expect prices to hold steady at least for the balance of the week.

A survey of the outside market reveals the same condition of shortage of supply and slightly higher prices.

Eggs Unchanged.

Egg prices were unchanged from those of Wednesday and dealers reported receipts to be only moderate for this season of the year. There is more than sufficient supply on spot to take care of the requirements of the retail trade, and the additional supply is being absorbed for storage purposes.

Wholesale dealers were quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered and cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras, 27c per dozen; fresh firsts 25c and seconds 22c. Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged.

The cheese market remains dull, and prices were the same at 21 1-2 cents per lb., for No. 1 large colored, paraffined and government graded.

In later debate, John Evans, Progressive, Rosetown, suggested that the tariff advisory board was becoming a part of the Liberal electoral machine. Col. C. S. Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence)—Although the uniforms for the new policemen have not yet arrived, the officers are on the job and several people have been surprised to find themselves being checked up by an apparent civilian. Chief Grassick has not as yet, resorted to extreme measure, but he has been reminding several motorists that there are stop signs at certain places and that they are there for a purpose. So far, he has just been warning them, but if they persist in ignoring the traffic by-laws, offenders will be hailed into court to pay the penalty.

The April session of the Division court in Campbellford was not held. The court will not sit till the regular date in May. Yesterday was also the regular day for Magistrate Lloyd's visit for the purpose of holding police court here. There were, however, no cases to bring before him.

Campbellford has been affectionately dubbed the "Bridge Fiend's Paradise." It is generally accepted that there are a number of good players in town and that bridge parties are a favorite method of entertaining. Yesterday was the first time, however, that any one was noticed carrying a miniature deck in their pocket and indulging in the game, three-handed at that, while sitting at the dining table at meal time.

EUCHRE PARTY.

Campbellford Orange Lodge Entertains Friends at Social Evening.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—L.O.L. Number 36, proved ideal hosts last night when they entertained their friends in the Parish Hall, Rear street, to euchre and dancing. Although there were many card enthusiasts present, the dancing proved the most popular attraction, and many who did not care for euchre waited patiently for the dancing to begin. From a few minutes past ten, till three o'clock, the dancers kept up the pace with merriment that was unexcelled. The quadrilles were much more in favor than the modern round dancing and toward the end of the evening, it was noticed that the dancers were employing the round dances as rest periods between squares. From then, the square dances were more frequent.

The card prizes were won by Mrs. H. B. Mason and Hugh Todd for lone hands, and by Mrs. W. J. Abernethy and Clifford Casson for games.

L.O.L. 36 are making arrangements to have the Twelfth of July Walk in Campbellford this year, which will be the first for some time in Campbellford.

Anyway, there'll be fireworks at the Old Home celebration—$150 worth a night for four nights.

UNCLE SAM'S TARIFF POLICY.

Press dispatches, following the friendly visit to Washington of Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, intimate that the United States will hesitate to adopt tariff policies injurious to the primary producers in his country.

There is nothing, however, in the political history of the United States to justify such optimism.

It is a matter of record that when it comes to tariff changes that he expects will benefit his own people, Uncle Sam has never hesitated to act regardless of the effect upon outsiders.

With the United States the interests of its own residents rank above any other consideration; friendship with any other nation is not regarded as a reason for leniency in the matter of tariff proposals.

On top of this condition is the fact that the Hoover administration stands pledged to increase the tariff barrier against imports of agricultural products.

It received the support of rural voters in the mid-west, on that platform, and there is nothing to indicate any intention on the part of the administration to abandon its pledges now that the time has come to implement them.

Any hesitation to apply such a policy to Canadian products will at the most be only momentary.

MANY BETTER OUT OF OFFICE.

To those who know the actual conditions there is an element of burlesque in the argument offered by one opponent of the township school board plan, that there are now 15,000 rural school trustees in the Province, and that the school system would suffer if two-thirds of these men were deprived of an interest in school affairs.

Doubtless among the 15,000 trustees there are many enthusiastic, alive and progressive men who are sincerely and earnestly endeavoring to promote the cause of education in their communities.

But is it not the case that in many sections of Ontario there is the greatest difficulty, not only in persuading men to accept positions as school trustees, but in securing a large enough attendance of ratepayers to constitute a quorum for the election of trustees?

Why lament the cutting off of a number of officials who have reluctantly accepted office at the request of a handful of citizens when the township school board plan would ensure a more representative and better administrative board than is possible under the present system?

The contention that rural education would suffer if some of the present trustees were swept out of office is not likely to make much impression upon anybody who knows the weakness that characterizes much of the administration of education in rural Ontario.

HE SHOULD GO AHEAD.

Premier Ferguson has had his answer from rural Ontario in the snowing under of his township school plan by the ballots of the 1,000 rural school trustees attending the Ontario Educational Association annual meeting.

It is stated that his proposal had the backing of a mere handful of supporters.

And in rejecting the Ferguson program the rural trustees offered nothing in the way of a substitute policy that might prove a step in the direction of a much-needed reform in rural school conditions.

Apparently there is no other course open to the premier but to proceed with his policy, abandoning the idea of winning over public opinion in rural Ontario to support the township school plan.

He has marked time for several years, hoping that a campaign of education would impress the merits of the proposal upon the people, but the unanimity with which the rural trustees this week have opposed the change should convince Mr. Ferguson that if he is going to wait for public opinion to reverse itself the little red schoolhouse and the present unsatisfactory system will be in operation a long time.

Reform is needed, and rural Ontario has no policy to offer.

A trial of the Premier's plan would seem to be necessary even in the face of rural opposition.

THE OLD SCENES.

The story in The Examiner the other day of the former resident who, during a visit to Peterborough the other day, was eagerly seeking to find the old swimming hole where as a boy he used to spend the halcyon days of summer, is likely to be duplicated a good many times during Old Home Week.

It will be noticed that many of those who announced their intention of visiting Peterborough during the reunion have not been here for many years, and that they are hopefully looking forward to seeing again the scenes that were familiar to them in childhood.

More important to them than all the programmed features will be the old places, the school they used to attend, the place where they once played, the swimming hole in creek or river.

And they may have difficulty in locating just what they would most like to see; neighborhoods change, old landmarks disappear.

Would it not be possible for the Old Home Week Committee to do something to make it easier for old-timers to find the places they are looking for?

A volunteer corps of guides, necessarily comprising citizens who have lived in Peterborough for many years, might prove of invaluable assistance in this respect.

Men of long residence here, who themselves remember old conditions and old scenes, could contribute a great deal to the enjoyment of the real old boys, if they would donate a portion of their time during Old Home Week to seeing to it that the visitors are not disappointed.

SCIENTIFIC MARKETING.

At the moment of writing nothing definite has been announced regarding the Marketing Board promised by Premier Tolmie. We are informed on good authority that the plans of the Government are rapidly maturing, and that the board will be functioning before many weeks have passed.

It is to be hoped our information is correct, for the development of our agricultural districts depends almost entirely upon the manner in which this all-important business will be handled. We say almost entirely advisedly, for the very best that the Provincial Government could do for our farmers in the export markets will not compensate them for the loss of their domestic market, which is threatened unless the Dominion Government enacts anti-dumping legislation.

In other words, there must be co-ordination of effort between the Governments if the farmers are to benefit from their industry. The home market must be safeguarded, for upon their success in that market depends the farmers' very existence. The Marketing Board, if it is carefully selected and intelligently conducted, should go far towards removing the fear of over-production, which, as far as British Columbia is concerned, is just a manner of expressing the fact of poor salesmanship.

We believe that scientific marketing will do more to solve British Columbia's agricultural problem than all the legislation which has been perpetrated, presumably to that end, during the past few years.—Western Tribune.

SPECULATION.

The spectacular craze for stock speculation exhibited in recent months by unsophisticated investors has brought distress and sorrow to many homes. People of humble means who knew nothing about mining securities were trading on a margin. Easy profits on paper encouraged them to purchase recklessly, and when the bottom dropped out of the market their hard-earned cash was swept away.

Anyone who can't afford to lose is courting trouble when he buys mining stock on a margin. Fluctuations in values are so swift and uncertain that the practice is a pure gamble. It is pathetic to observe the number of young folks whose savings are gone as a result of playing the market. So anxious were most of them to pyramid their easy profits that they never thought of selling part of their holdings and purchasing a limited number of shares outright. The comparative few who did this in the case of some reputable issue like International Nickel and who can afford to hold on will probably come out all right. The others, it is hoped, have had their fill of marginal speculation and will dabble no more in a game that they don't understand.

Businessmen have reached a point where they refuse to give their employes tips on the market. They are justified in this attitude because many of those they seek to help, especially young women, cannot afford to lose and are inclined to blame their bad luck on the person who advised them to buy. It is to be hoped that the recent collapse in the value of popular stock issues will teach inexperienced speculators a lesson. They should take the advice of reputable financial journals and put their surplus cash in some sound investment like municipal bonds, which will bring sure return of interest and principal.—St. Catharines Standard.

ENJOYING OF LIFE.

A few days ago the newspapers told of the death in Brooklyn of an Irishman, who had denied himself for years in order that he might accumulate sufficient money to buy a castle in Ireland. He died in a cheap lodging house, although he had $6,300 in cash and some property in Ireland.

It was Kelleher's dream to end his life in comfort on the old soil, and to attain his end he lived the life of a recluse. Two years ago he went to Ireland, and when he came back he whispered a secret to his foundry foreman. "I've bought me the castle," he said, and went back to work to get the little more he needed to maintain him in the style to which a castle owner should accustom himself.

So he toiled and saved, denying himself many pleasures in order that he might secure the desired competency. But he died before his dream came true. We are afraid that there are many other cases of a similar nature. Men have set themselves an objective, such as wealth, or position, or power, and they sacrifice themselves and their friends in their determination to reach the desired goal.

They live with one object in view, and they have no time or money for anything else. They are strangers to pleasure, to relaxation, to contentment. They have no leisure in which to enjoy themselves or to help their friends secure enjoyment during life's journey. And, frequently, in the midst of their struggling and their self-denial, they pass out, their objectives unattained and their lives entirely barren of good works. What have their lives profited them or anybody else?

We believe in men hitching their wagons to stars, in having high objectives. Such men make the best citizens. Men without personal ambition will be without community ambition. They will seek neither to improve themselves nor their fellow-men. We like, therefore, to see men ambitious. We also like to see them provident. We commend their desire to lay up something for a rainy season and for the advancing night when no man may work.

The objectives of fame and riches are all right if they do not become an obsession with the seekers. There is a danger that they may become such. Men must learn to control their ambition, and not to be carried away by it. In seeking its fulfilment they should always remember that they owe a duty to themselves and their families, friends and neighbors. They must not crush anyone in climbing.

They should be helpful and companionable in passing along. If they do this, they may not amass as much money as they once hoped to do, but they will lay up real treasure, the respect and affection of their fellows. Allowing for a reasonable provision for the future and for a reasonable ambition to succeed in life, we believe that the happiest men and those who create the most happiness for others, are those who enjoy life as they go and who help others to enjoy life. They may not leave a famous name or a rich estate, but they will live in the grateful memories of many to whom they were always real friends.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Premier Ferguson had better go ahead with his township school board plan on his own.

The Department of Finance has received $150 in conscience money—but not from radio set-owners who have been operating without a license.

There is one thing about the pursuit of Orval Shaw—the Provincial Police will have the last laugh.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

GET SOMETHING

Get something out of life beside
A little heap of gold;
The heart is never satisfied
With anything so cold.
A little fame, a little pow'r,
Are things exceeding small,
For you will find in some sad hour
They matter not at all.

So, when you see a blue, blue sky,
A mount, a marshy flat,
Or feel a breeze that whispers by,
Get something out of that.
The little church, the singing choir,
And row on row of trees,
An open book, an open fire,
Get something out of these.

There are such joys of heart and mind
Upon this gray, old earth,
The treasures are not hard to find,
The things of greater worth.
The world has laughter, love and song,
Yes, more of these than strife.
And, brother, as you pass along,
Get something out of life.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY THE MAN WITH A STRONG WILL IS USUALLY A LEADER.

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Caesar, Napoleon, Garabaldi, Bismark, Gladstone, Washington, Roosevelt, Mussolini have never been accused of weak will. A great leader may have many weaknesses but he is never weak-willed. If there is any one trait that characterizes a leader it is the strength of his will.

The man with a strong will is usually a leader because he generates more nervous energy than the ordinary or the weak-willed person. And the man with an abundance of energy has clear, vivid ideas. They may be wrong ideas, but they are forceful.

One having clear ideas is likely to express them effectively not only in words but also in actions, manner, tone and voice, look of the eyes, and the whole body. Others perceive these expressions, catch the ideas or at least the emotional accompaniment of the ideas and are motivated by them. They become followers.

"If you hesitate, you're lost" is absolutely true for a leader. The successful leader must always be cock sure of himself. If he falters for an instant the followers will detect it immediately. He is through as a leader.

According to this explanation the success of a great leader does not necessarily mean that he is unusually wise or always right. He may be just the opposite and still succeed if he is positive enough and strong-willed enough to communicate his confidence and emotion contagion to others. This accounts for the numerous freak cults and other outlandish projects of history that have had rather wide following. Any strong willed fanatic will get a lot of weak-willed people to fall under his spell.

The same principle accounts for the fact that strong-willed men usually have much feeling. The excess energy generated by a strong will gives rise to resistance which is expressed as feeling. Extremes of cruelty and generosity on the part of a notorious leader can be partly explained on this basis.

However, it does not follow that a person with deep feeling is necessarily strong-willed. In some cases this excess of feeling may be due to poorly organized or even to diseased brain centers.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Although there are certain sinister aspects in the horoscope for today, the seers find the planetary government beneficent.

The early morning is a time to push work that belongs to the soil and should be a period beneficial to farmers and gardeners.

Real estate should be lucky at this time when there will be much activity in all parts of the United States.

Those who have foresight at this time will seek to own land and to provide safety against future economic upheavals.

While prosperity is to be enjoyed in the United States the seers declare that new fortunes immense in size will pile up and the cleavage between the rich and poor will be more distinct than formerly.

Mexico continues under a sinister rule of the stars which may encourage revolutions and violence.

For the states bordering on the southern republic international problems are foreshadowed.

Neptune is in an aspect read as exceedingly threatening where prohibition enforcement is concerned.

Again the seers prophesy for regions ruled by Saturn and Uranus broken treaties, changes in government and sudden calamities.

War clouds are discerned for the central states of Europe and it is prognosticated that again the United States will extend aid to victims of battles and their families.

Banking combinations between institutions in Great Britain and the United States, foretold last summer, are again prognosticated.

American manufacturers and merchants are to establish branch places in England and other parts of the British Isles, the seers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of money that will be received from unexpected sources. The year should be lucky.

Children born on this day probably will have a certain mystic power. The subjects of this sign usually are noble in nature and they usually have influential friends.

Joseph Medill, Chicago journalist, was born on this date, 1823. William Rufus King, 1786, Vice President of the United States, and Edward E. Salisbury, 1814, philologist, claimed this as a birthdate.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER V

"You don't mean that," Ana said with determined cheerfulness. "You wouldn't know what to do without her, I'm sure. We all get tired of people if we see too much of them."

Phillis interrupted eagerly.

"I should never get tired of you. I wish you would come and live with me. I'd pay you well, and I'd treat you well—quite differently to the way I treat Mitchell. Would you come? I'd pay you anything you liked to ask."

Ana drew back, her colour rising.

"It's very kind of you, but I couldn't. I live with an aunt when I'm not here. She couldn't spare me."

"She's spared you to the Hambledons for a long time," Phillis said sulkily.

Ana laughed.

"Do you know that this is the first real holiday I can ever remember?" she said. "Of course I've been away with my aunt sometimes for a few days, but that's never a real holiday. We always go into cheap, uninteresting rooms and do our own work, and except for the fact that the sea is somewhere about, life is just the same as it is at home. That's why I'm enjoying myself now so much."

"Yes, you always look perfectly happy," Phyllis admitted grudgingly. "I saw you walking along the cliffs the other morning with Mr. Hambledon, and you were both laughing as if you hadn't a care in the world."

Ana could truthfully have answered that was how she always felt when she was with Anthony, but she only said:

"Where were you? We didn't see you!"

"No; you were too interested in one another."

"Oh!"

There was a little silence which Mrs. Mahon broke abruptly with the question:

"Did Mrs. Hambledon see Ralph when she was in London?"

Ana hesitated.

"This last week-end, do you mean? I really don't know. I didn't ask her."

"I asked him," Phillis said sharply. "And he said he hadn't seen her, but I don't believe him."

Ana made no answer.

"They were always together on the boat coming home," Phillis complained. "Of course I know it was dull for him. I was ill all the time. I hardly went in to a single meal; but he need not have been with Mollie quite so much. People began to talk about it."

"People on boats always talk about each other," Ana said with scorn. "I suppose it helps to pass the time if they tear one another's characters to pieces."

Mrs. Mahon sighed and painfully tried to change her uncomfortable position.

"There were plenty of other women's husbands on the boat besides mine" she complained.

Ana did not know what to answer, but her heart was apprehensive as she thought of the check that had fluttered from Mollie's fingers.

"She's not really bad. She's only vain and foolish," she defended Mollie to herself. "I must speak to her—I must try and warn her," and at that moment Mollie and her husband came into the room.

CHAPTER VI

Mollie was wearing a new frock.

"She must have dozens," Ana thought blankly. "Where in the world does she keep them all in this tiny cottage?"

"I'm so sorry. I've been asleep," Mollie apologized. She bent over Mahon's wife as if to kiss her, but Phillis turned her face away.

"You look as if you were going to a garden party," she said in rather an unfriendly voice. "I always think it's such waste to dress up in a place like this. Who is there to care if your frock costs fifteen guineas or fifteen shillings?"

Mollie laughed rather uneasily.

"Well, there's my husband," she said, with a glance at Anthony.

"And mine, of course," Phillis added deliberately. "Ralph told me you bought lots of new things when you were in town this week-end."

Ana knew that this was a deliberate trap, but Mollie answered coolly enough:

"Yes, I ran into him twice when I was shopping—once in Bond Street when he very kindly carried my parcels and took me out to lunch. Of course he told you?"

"Of course. Ralph is like all men. He is delighted to carry parcels for any woman except his own wife." She looked at Hambledon. "What do you say to that?" she demanded pointedly.

"Only that I loathe carrying parcels," Anthony answered in his breezy way.

"He'd rather pay for a taxi than carry them," his wife agreed.

"Of course it all depends whose parcels they were," Phillis said nastily.

"Exactly," Hambledon agreed, and perhaps it was by accident that his eyes rested for a moment upon Ana.

And because Ana's heart leaped to that look she frowned and turned away.

"It's time the General came in," she said.

"I'll come with you," Hambledon said.

"What about me?" Mrs. Mahon demanded insistently. "You promised you'd drive me home."

"I will." He turned at the door to smile at her. "You've only to tell me what time you'll be ready."

"In about a quarter of an hour."

"I'll bring the car."

He escaped hurriedly. Ana was halfway down the hilly road and he whistled after her as he broke into a run.

"You're in a great hurry, aren't you?" he asked.

"The General's gone down to the sea, so Ellen says," Ana answered, without looking at him. "He's got no right down by the sea alone."

"Isn't there a proverb that says something about the Lord watching over children and drunken men?" Anthony asked teasingly.

Ana vouchsafed no answer.

"Mahon's wife is not the sweetest woman in the world exactly, is she?" he asked after a moment.

"She's a good deal sweeter than I should be with both her afflictions," Ana answered sharply.

"Both her afflictions?"

"Yes; her rheumatism and her husband."

Hambledon chuckled.

"So you dislike him as much as all that?"

"Did I ever deny it?"

"No. You generally keep silent on the subject, I notice. It only proves that you and I have yet another taste in common, because I hate the fellow as much as the devil hates holy water."

"What has he done to make you hate him?"

"Nothing. It's instinct, I suppose. There are some people whom one instinctively hates at first sight without adequate reason, just as there are some people whom one instinctively—loves—at first sight."

"Also without adequate reason, I suppose," Ana said sharply.

"No; there are generally lots of reasons. Shall I tell you some of them?"

"No, thank you, and I am sure you ought to go back. Aren't you going to drive Mrs. Mahon home?"

"Yes; will you come with us?"

"Certainly not."

"Ana! you're not very kind to me."

Ana stood still, facing him desperately.

"Don't say such things. What's the use? It's no use. You're only making things worse. You're only making me miserable."

"If you knew how much I want to make you happy."

Her cheeks flamed and her eyes filled with tears.

"You're unkind and mean. . . . It's not fair. What would Mollie say if she knew that you—that I—If she knew ——"

"If she knew how much I love you, you mean," he added for her quietly as she broke off.

"I've thought of all that. I've asked myself a hundred times what she would say. I've made all sorts of plans and strong determinations"—there was a note of dreary mirth in his voice. "I've even made up my mind to go away and never see you again. I thought of sending myself a cable from Bulawayo ordering myself back there at once on some pretext or another. I thought of asking you to go home to your aunt."

"I offered to go!" Ana cried indignantly.

"I know you did, and then I knew what a humbug I was, and that I would move heaven and earth to prevent your going. You see what my strong determination was worth and always will be where you are concerned. I can't imagine my life without you."

"You sound like a best-seller," Ana sneered. She could not help trying to hurt him, because by hurting him she could build up some sort of a shield for herself against him, and against her fear of his love.

"I daresay you are right," he agreed calmly, though his eyes were not calm. "I don't know myself in these days. I don't understand myself. I'm a different man."

"You've got nothing to do, that's what it is," Ana said briskly, though her heart shook. "You told me only the other day that you are not used to holidays, and that they bored you."

"And you told me only this afternoon that you loved me," Hambledon said.

Ana turned her head sharply away, but not before he had seen the burning flush that rushed from her chin to her brow; not before he saw the desperate way in which she caught her trembling lip between her teeth.

"Need we deliberately try to hurt one another?" he asked very gently. "I tell you it's no use fighting against fate. I love you and you love me, and nothing can alter it. I've known it ever since I came home and I've tried not to know it. You would not believe how I have fought against it, Ana." He drew a deep breath. "Well, I'm not going to fight any more. It's no use."

She faced him with desperate eyes.

"I never thought you were dishonourable," she almost sobbed.

"Is it dishonourable to tell you I love you?" he asked. He shrugged his shoulders. "There is no need to be so angry. I haven't asked you for anything in return."

"You wouldn't dare!" she flashed at him passionately.

She ran from him down the few rough steps that led to the narrow sea front, and Hambledon turned and slowly retraced his steps up the hill alone.

Ana met the General almost immediately coming happily along, singing a little song and dragging a long trail of seaweed behind him.

"You're a bad lad!" she accused him breathlessly, for her heart was still beating fast and she could not control her voice.

"It's going to rain, and you were told to stay in the garden."

"Can't breave in the garden," the General said reproachfully. "What's the good of being at the seaside, if you can't be at the seaside?"

Ana took his hand. He would not have allowed it had any of the family been looking, but as it was he was glad of her assistance up the steep roadway.

They walked slowly.

"Mollie might have taken a house at the bottom of the hill instead of at the top," Ana thought.

The General's dogged pluck always hurt her; she knew that he often refused assistance when he needed it badly.

Once she had gently tried to explain to him that there was nothing unmanly or to be ashamed of in admitting that one was tired or that one's poor little leg ached.

The General had listened gravely, a frown between his eyes, then he had asked:

"Lord Byron was lame, wasn't he?"

"Yes, but——"

"He was a soldier, too?"

"Yes, but——"

"He was never tired. It says so in the book."

The General had a book all about famous soldiers which was his most precious possession. He believed every word of it implicitly, and Ana knew the futility of arguing against it with him, but it made her heart ache none the less when the General dragged his lame leg beside her and refused even to allow his father to carry him.

When they were halfway up the hill she stopped on the pretence of wanting to look in a shop window.

"We looked in this one yesterday," said the General suspiciously. "And we looked in it the day before, too. Why do we always look in it?"

A man standing close beside them turned his head at the words, a faint smile in his eyes, then as Ana looked at him, his smile deepened and he raised his hat.

"Why, it's Miss Fabian," he said in amazement.

"Yes—why," Ana laughed in embarrassment. "I know your face quite well," she said, "but I can't for the life of me remember your name—it's silly of me, but——"

"My name is Drake—Tom Drake. Don't you remember, we met at a terrible church bazaar in Wimbledon last autumn? My sister was telling people's fortunes, or pretending to, and I was taking the money at the tent door."

"Why, of course!" It had been one of the few tiny episodes of something unusual in Ana's dull life.

"How clever of you to remember my name!" she told him.

"I'm here for a month's holiday," he answered. "I only came yesterday." He glanced down at the General.

"I'm staying with friends—this is their son," Ana explained. She would not have dared to say "their little boy"—the General would never have forgiven the indignity.

Drake and the General shook hands gravely.

"We live at the top of the hill—we've got a cottage," Ana went on. "Where are you staying?"

"At the Royal Lion, across the road there. I hope we shall see something of one another, Miss Fabian."

"I hope so, too," Ana answered smilingly.

She knew that Drake's sister was one of the many people who attended the same church as Miss Sawyer, of whom that lady strongly disapproved. For one reason she was—if not actually a divorced woman—at any rate with no husband anywhere upon the scene, although she was known as Mrs. Inglis. Of course, like all enforced good women, Miss Sawyer believed the worst.

"And anyone can see what she is," she told Ana. "Look at the paint on her face, and that disgusting display of lower limb!"

Ana remembered this as she looked at Drake.

"And how is your sister?" she asked.

"Very well, when I last saw her. She is at Deauville now."

"Well, we must be going along," Ana said, after a moment.

"May I walk with you?"

"Of course."

But at the top of the hill Ana stopped.

"Don't come any farther."

"May I see you to-morrow?"

"Yes, do."

He half turned away, then came back.

"I've got a car—nothing very much, just a two-seater, but if you would like a run in the country, I shall be only too delighted at any time——"

"There is nothing I should like better," Ana said. She was not at all interested in Drake, but his sudden appearance would afford a means of escape from Hambledon.

"When shall we go?" she asked.

"When you like. To-morrow? May I call?"

"Yes, do. I'll introduce my friends."

She gave him the name of the cottage.

"Come at three, will you?" It was generally about three that Hambledon suggested a walk or a drive.

Drake raised his hat and turned away.

Hambledon met them at the cottage door.

"You've been a long time," he said. "I was thinking of organizing a search party."

"I met a friend," Ana answered serenely.

"A man," the General supplemented calmly. "Was he a soldier?" he asked Ana eagerly.

"He was, during the war," Ana said. "I think he was in the Flying Corps."

"Not on a horse?" the General urged, disappointedly.

"No—up in an aeroplane."

"Who is this hero?" Hambledon inquired, with mock irony.

"A friend of mine." Ana tried to open the gate, but he kept a hand on it, barring the way.

"Name and address, please," Anthony demanded, smiling, though there was a faint jealousy in his eyes.

"Tom Drake — from Wimbledon," Ana told him. "Anything else? I don't know his age, but I should say he's about thirty-five, and he's got a sister and a two-seater car—and he's here for a month."

"Oh. That please you, I suppose."

"Yes. He's taking me for a drive to-morrow." She pushed at the gate ineffectually. "Do let us go in; it's beginning to rain."

But Hambledon still held the gate.

"You can't go with him to-morrow—we're all going for a picnic," he said. "It was arranged days ago, you know that."

"I'm sorry, but I've promised to go with Tom."

She had never called Drake by his Christian name in her life; she had not known what it was until he told her a few moments ago, but that irresistible impulse in her heart to hurt Hambledon drove her.

He made no reply, but he opened the gate, holding it wide for her to enter.

The General followed, talking all the time.

"Can you drive an a'roplane if you're lame?—do you think Lord Byron could have drived an a'roplane?"

Ana answered at random. She felt angry with Anthony Hambledon.

How dared he hold the gate against her—how dared he tell her she could not go out with Drake! Not that she wanted to go—she never wanted to go anywhere except where Anthony was.

"And that's what you've got to get over, you fool," she told herself viciously as she sat on the bottom stair gently helping the General to unfasten the iron that held his lame leg.

"That's what you've got to tear out of your heart and mind."

"You were only just in time," said Anthony from the doorway. "Look at the rain now."

Ana raised her eyes.

The sky had clouded over and the rain was pelting down relentlessly.

"I thought you said the fine weather was going to last," she could not resist saying, a trifle maliciously.

"At any rate I hope it rains like the devil all day to-morrow," Hambledon answered. Ana fell innocently into the trap.

"Why—whatever for?" she demanded blankly.

"So that you can't gallivant round Dorset with the Flying Corps hero," Hambledon answered.

Mollie appeared at the sitting-room door.

"What are you two arguing about?" she asked, stifling a yawn, and then, catching sight of the General's long trail of seaweed, "I can't have that rubbish is here. There's no room to move as it is, without lumbering us up with all that stuff."

Ana checked a smile.

"It won't take up much room," she expostulated. "I'll hang it in the kitchen out of the way."

"I tell you I won't have it in the place," Mollie stormed. She always lost her temper when she could not immediately get her own way.

"It's not very wet!" the General pleaded mournfully.

Mollie snatched up the trail and threw it out into the garden.

"Isn't it rather a fuss about nothing?" Hambledon asked lightly. "If the General wants it——"

"If the General wanted the moon you'd move heaven to get it for him," his wife answered.

She went back to the sitting room and shut the door upon them all. Ana turned to go upstairs.

"Mollie's tired. I'll put the General to bed," she said.

Hambledon laid his hand over hers as it rested on the wooden stair rail.

"Nothing will make any difference," he said.

She stood still, her hand jerking beneath his touch.

"I don't know what you mean," she protested.

"I mean that all the Flying Corps heroes in the world cannot change fate or alter facts."

"What facts?"

"The fact that you belong to me," Hambledon said.

"Do I? I don't think I do—I don't think I ever shall," Ana answered defiantly.

But her heart shook as she went up the narrow, steep little staircase.

She knew that however strenuously she might deny it, Hambledon had spoken the truth. In her heart and soul she belonged to him already, and always would.

OIL GOSSIP

Through Solloway, Mills and Company.

Home No. 3 joined the list of the wells in the Limestone Sunday morning when it struck the formation at a depth of 5,032 feet while McDougall-Segur No. 2, which is one of the wells in the lime racing for production, struck a flow of between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 cubic feet of wet gas recently There are now two Home wells in the lime, in addition to the No. 1 which is producing naptha Home 2 reached the formation at a depth of 5353 feet a week ago. Home No. 3 will be drilled a few feet into the lime, after which the casing will be run and cemented. Home No 3 is situated in the same legal subdivision as Home No. 1 the greatest producer, which came last February with a flow of 13,000,000 cubic feet of wet gas.

Spooner No. 2 is down 91 feet in the lime, states a wire from Miller, Court and Company's Calgary office, and after re-setting the diamonds in the bit a start will be made to continue drilling Tools were run in recently in readiness for operations to continue.

Royalite No. 3 blew in again yesterday with from 13,000,000 to 15,000,000 feet of gas. Reports from Calgary state that it looks like a large well

Drilling at the Southwest Petroleum well is said to be making remarkable time. The well is now said to be down about 1,400 feet. This well recently established a record for the Turner Valley for a single day's drilling Royalite No. 14 had become one of the largest wells in the Turner Valley when Sunday night the gas flow was reported to have doubled, it was stated by J. H. McLeod, production manager of the Imperial Oil Company. The flow was measured at 13,000,000 cubic feet shortly after the tools had been pulled out but later the gas flow was increased considerably.

United Oils will split its shares ten new for one old, raising the number of shares from 350,000 for one dollar part to 3,500,000 shares of no par. This resolution will be voted on April 10.

INTEREST LAX ON STANDARD

Bulk of Trading Confined To Prominent Issues On List.

PRICES HOLD STEADY.

TORONTO, April 5. (C.P.) — Interest was lacking on the Standard mining market to-day. Trading continued in a dull loitering manner with the bulk of the total sales being confined to the better known issues. The list was featureless and fluctuation was on a narrow margin, the majority of price changes being only fractional. Noranda made a strong upward swing to 55.50, later reacting to 54.55, for a gain of 55c, while Lake Shore advanced 75c to 25.75, and McIntyre improved 50 points to 19.50.

Sherritt-Gordon was the only member of the Lindsley group to retain its footing, Falconbridge slipping back 45c to 10.80 and Sudbury 10 to 9.75. Ventures lost 30 to 10.60.

LOWER CALL MONEY RESULT OF HIGH RATES ATTRACTING FUNDS FROM OUTSIDE MARKETS

Federal Reserve Board Gives No Assurance For Credit Relief.

RESERVE SYSTEM PATIENT.

Gain Shown In Gold Reserve From Low Point of February 6.

NEW YORK, April 5. — The moderate recovery which was scored in the stock market yesterday on considerably the smallest business since last week's severe break in prices, may reasonably be ascribed to the narrowing up and down oscillations which are usual in the sequel. Wall street explained the show of firmness to the day's reduction in call money rates to 6 per cent, the lowest since March 13. Presumably this decline from the 20 per cent. rate of March 26 reflects the inflow of money from other markets attracted by the recent abnormally high rates of Wall street, but it is more a measure of relaxing speculation. The amount of credit actually employed for speculative purposes may not have been very startingly reduced but with the spirit of the speculators broken for the moment the bidding for money naturally grows more hesitant.

Further Decline Necessary.

Neither for collateral time loans, however, nor for merchants paper did rates relax at all from their maximum figure, and the weekly brokers' loan report of the Federal Reserve was only negatively favorable to the situation. Outstanding credits of the kind were reduced only $87,000,000, or less than three-fourths of the previous week's curtailment. The reduction of $231,000,000 in the fortnight compares with an expansion of $702,000,000 in the 12 preceding weeks of 1929, and the present total is nearly a billion dollars greater than at the high point of last June's furious speculation. In the orderly readjustment of 1926, after the speculative mania of that period had been checked by the February and March reactions, brokers' loans were reduced $687,000,000 in eight weeks. Yet the highest figure reached by them that season was $2,650,000,000 less than the figure reported on the 20th of last month.

SOCIETY HEARS MISSION TALK

Rev. William McDonald Addresses W.M.S. Members at Thank Offering Service.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

The Easter Thank offering meeting of Knox church W.M.S. was held on Wednesday evening with a large attendance of members and visitors.

Rev. William McDonald, with the use of eighty-four beautifully colored slides, gave a talk on the mission work carried on by the United church in the province of Scheswan, South China. This province has a population of seventy millions. It is an exceedingly fertile section of China and famine is as unlikely to occur here as in our own province of Ontario.

Chenfi-tu is the capital city, having a population of three-quarters of a million. It is situated about eighteen hundred miles from Shanghai, on the Yangtze-Kiang river. Chengtu is also the strategic centre of the missionary activity in the province.

Pictures were shown of the splendid buildings owned by the church there, including hospitals, schools, churches and printing plans. The church called "The First United Church" was especially interesting, there being quite a large plant in connection with it. It has an auditorium capable of seating fifteen thousand people. They use very modern methods of imparting religious teaching in this great church. Three services are held throughout each Sunday. There is a kindergarten service for very young children, a junior department and the regular service for adults.

The First United Church of Chengtu is attended by the university constituency, the consular officials, and the white colony of the city, besides the better educated of the Chinese. Five thousand dollars was contributed by the Chinese people towards the cost of the building.

Other Christian churches with missions in Scheswan have united with the United church to found a university where arts, dentistry, medicine and other faculties are established as well as theology.

The mission of Scheswan was established in the year 1893 and has been carried on ever since, except in times of trouble, when the missionaries have been compelled to leave the country. During the recent civil war only six missionaries remained and these were not able to do much work, but one of the splendid results of the missionary effort of the past have been the training of native ministers, teachers, doctors and nurses and the work has been ably carried on by native Chinese workers.

There is still much work to be done in the province of Scheswan, Great numbers have not yet embraced Christianity.

Mr. McDonald offered the dedicatory prayer in connection with the Easter Thank offering.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker for his talk and Frank Morrison for his services at the lantern.

The meeting closed with a missionary hymn and a benediction.

TRADE SESSION CONTINUES DULL TORONTO CURB

Prices Hold Steady While Trading Confined To Narrow List.

OIL GROUP ACTIVE.

International Nickel Firms at 49 Mark After Early Setback.

TORONTO, Ont., April 5 (C.P.)— Trading continued in a dull fashion on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The list narrowed down considerably and price changes on the whole, were insignificant. The oils held most of the attention with Imperial Oil (new) heading the entire list in point of activity. In a turnover of more than 14,000 shares, Imperial strengthened fractionally to 105⅛. British American and International Petroleum held unchanged at 48½ and 56½ respectively.

International Nickel got below 49 and then recovered to hold unchanged at that mark. Bell Telephone came out 2 points stronger at 162, while Page Hersey appeared 1½ points higher at 126.

A few shares of Canadian Gypsum changed hands at 110, off 5 points, while Bank of Commerce slid back 2 to 352, and City Dairy and Hayes Wheels both lost one point to 64 and 55 respectively.

JUDGMENT IS UPHELD

Appeal of Harvey Wallace Is Dismissed in Osgoode Hall.

SIXTH TIME IN COURT.

For the sixth time the case arising from Thomas McMillan of Peterborough driving his car into some cattle of Harvey Wallace, a farmer in Hope township, which were on the road, one night last fall, has appeared in the courts.

The appeal of Harvey Wallace taken from Judge Huycke, who gave judgment against him in favor of Thomas McMillan for $300 for damage caused to the latter's car in the crash with the cattle, to the Second Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall, was dismissed to-day.

This case was first in the police court at Cobourg, where Wallace was fined for having his cattle on the road. Wallace appealed the fine. Wallace then sued McMillan for the value of the calf which was killed in the crash with the car and got judgment and his damages. McMillan then sued for the value of his car which was badly damaged, and was given judgment for $300 by the jury before Judge Huycke at the Winter Assizes here. Wallace was appealing this judgment at Osgoode Hall.

J. A. O'Brien appeared for the plaintiff, McMillan, and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for the defendant, Wallace, and the same counsel appeared on the appeal.

YOUNG PEOPLE PRESENT PLAY

"The Bride Breezes In" Enacted By Members of Trinity Church Society.

TAKE PARTS WELL.

A three act comedy, "The Bride Breezes In" was presented by Trinity Young Peoples Club last evening in the Reid Street Hall to a capacity audience.

Thep lay was a breezy little comedy with many amusing situations. The heroine part was taken particularly well by Jean Padget who as a wealthy heiress, came to her guardian's home disguised as a maid and fell in love with the secretary. The scenes all take place at the summer home of Mr. Cotrex Osborne Smith, a supposedly wealthy manufacturer and his son (Al). This part was splendidly enacted by James Reeve-Newson. Other inmates of the Cotrex home are Mrs. Neal, his housekeeper (Miss Lyda Wilson) her son Gregg (John Krogh) who acted his part superbly. Al's friend Frederic Burke (George Nicholls) and Mr. Cotrex's neice, Lolly Gray (Miss Nellie Carter) who gave the audience many a thrill, with their love scenes and lover's quarrels. Goldie Mandel, a vaudeville star has secured a place in the home disguised as a maid "Peg" because she is interested in "Al", who falls deeply in love with her. This part is splendidly enacted by Miss Alma Blanchard. Bob., the chauffeur's part, is taken by William Fanjoy.

Into this happy home comes trouble owing to Mr. Cotrex having invested some money in his factory belonging to his ward, a country girl whom he has not seen since she was a child. He tells his son Al the state of his affairs and asks him to marry Fannie Fay and to save him from disgrace and probably the penitentiary. At last Al consents and tells Peg his father's wishes. Fay is invited to their home, and when she arrives with her bird cage, bundles, and her coarse, rough manner, the family are in agony of remorse and the visitors convulsed with merriment. Fay (Edna Forrester) has a difficult part to play, but she does it to perfection and received plenty of applause. She is accompanied by her maid, Stella Hollytree (Jean Padget), who by her sweetness, wins the heart of Gregg.

Just before the wedding of Fay and Al, a plot is discovered. Fay and Stella had exchanged places in order that Fay may decide whether she loves Al. Then Peg, who is his sweetheart, takes a hand, and before the wedding she and the real Stella do some planning. Peg dons the wedding finery, coming in deeply veiled to the strains of "Here comes the bride," played by the orchestra, and everything turns out lovely. Stella consoles herself with Bob, who m she declares she loved at first sight.

In the last act Mr. Cotrex, assisted by Gregg, sells an invention to Peg's godfather, whereby he is enabled to repay Fay her money. Freddie and Fay, after a lover's quarrel, are happily re-united and all ends well.

Repeat Performance To-night.

This splendid play will be repeated to-night in Reid Street Hall. It was directed by William Derry, who deserves great credit for his training and intuition in picking out characters so admirably suited to their parts. Harold Rehill made a very efficient stage manager. The orchestra also assisted greatly with the program. It was composed of Viggo Dennison at the piano, S. Quist, violin. Art. Knott, saxophone, George Coleman trap drums. The furniture for the stage was kindly loaned by the Teco Store.

NEW YORK LIST SOARS AS CALL RATE LOWERED

Some Uneasiness Felt By Speculators Over Credit Situation.

STEEL SHARES LEAD.

Heavy Liquidation in Morning Trading Due To Reserve Board Statement.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 5. — (Canadian Press).—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment in to-day's stock market reflected the widespread uneasiness still existing over the credit situation. Reactionary tendencies predominated at the opening as a result of rather heavy liquidation by nervous investors and speculators who were alarmed at the threat contained in the Federal Reserve Board statement published this morning, but these offerings were readily absorbed, and the market showed a tendency to rally when the call money rate was lowered from 8 to 6 per cent.

Steel shares were kept in the forefront by operators for the advance in view of the optimistic predictions being made by leaders of the industry on first quarter and the first half year's earnings. U. S. Steel, which is shortly expected to announce the offering of additional common stock to retire it funded indebtedness, was in brisk demand, rallying from a low of 185½ to 188⅝, where it was up more than 2 points above last night's close. Bethlehem crossed 112 for the first time since the "War Bridges" boom of 1917. Superior crossed 71 to a new peak but had difficulty in maintaining its gain after the spirited advance earlier in the week. Vanadium was marked up more than 4 points and Ludlum 2 with most of of the other so-called independents selling a point or more higher.

Wheat Averages Lower Due Fair Crop Reports

CHICAGO, Ill., April 5 (C.P.).—Owing to beneficial rains in parts of the southwest, wheat prices here averaged lower early to-day. Liverpool wheat quotations, higher than looked for, were practically ignored as being due to transient oversold market conditions there.

Opening unchanged to ⅛ off, Chicago wheat rallied somewhat, but then underwent a general sag. Corn, oats and provisions also were easy, with corn starting at ¼c decline to ¼c advance and subsequently receding all around.

DOG TAGS HAVE ARRIVED IN CITY

The city police have received the 1929 issue of dog tags within the past week, and Peterborough citizens who own dogs are urged to procure their 1929 licenses accordingly. The tags this year are rectangular in shape and of nickel shade. They may be obtained at the Police Station.

OLD HOME WEEK

Tuesday afternoon would be Mr. Rye's choice.

Field Sports Ready

D. Loomis, field sports committee, announced that he is ready to fill in anywhere needed in the program. He suggested that chairman get together with the idea of arranging shields, cups, or other mementoes of Old Home Week as prizes.

Three Days' Racing

"All set" was the laconic report of Alderman S. Lowe, horse races committee.

Answering Mr. Glover, Alderman Lowe said the races will be run over a period of three days.

Free Dancing Uptown

D. A. Costello, chairman of the community dancing committee, reported two metings. The committee will meet at 7.30 on Mondays.

Four nights of free dancing during Old Home Week are proposed by the committee to be held on Aylmer street between Charlotte and King with a special feature program under cover on one evening. It was thought the expenses would be $1,500 and dancing at the exhibition grounds is frowned upon by the committee. "We feel that community dancing would be counter to the revenue-producing features at the exhibition grounds," said Mr. Costello. "The uptown dancing would commence at 10.30."

The committee has in mind a big social night with an outstanding orchestra, which it is believed would cover the entire cost of the dancing program.

Mr. Glover congratulated the committee on the extent of the report, and the painstaking interest indicated. He suggested that the music for dancing might be arranged with Mr. Crane and the music committee. He supported the idea of the big social night.

Mayor Denne suggested massing the Peterborough orchestras for the social night instead of bringing in a strange orchestra, but the chairman reported that the local orchestras would be used to their capacity on four nights.

Mr. Dutton also complimented Mr. Costello on his splendid report, and supported the idea of having a platform for dancing at the exhibition grounds.

Webber Turner expressed the belief that the uptown dances after 10.30 will be very enjoyable.

The report was adopted, including the recommendation against dancing at exhibition park.

County Will Help

The county day committee, chairman J. F. Breckenridge, warden of Peterborough county, sought information for the guidance of his committee.

It was remarked that 9.30 is too early to start the parade, "Daylight saving time," said Mr. Roy. "If it's daylight saving time we won't be here at all," retorted Mr. Breckenridge.

Major Winterbottom asked for the appointment of a military committee, and the selection was left to him.

Toronto Scottish Booked

Final plans were made for the signing of a contract with the Toronto Scottish, to give a display on Saturday and Monday of Old Home Week.

A. Mowat, in charge of the Old Home school project, proposed that Central School be used, and that a separate school session also be arranged. He proposed sending invitations to the 4,000 ex-pupils of the Normal school. "Holy smoke," remarked Mr. Dobbin.

For Decorations

J. J. Turner proposed that the city be divided into sections and prizes offered for the best decorated homes and places of business.

This, Mayor Denne remarked, is being looked after by the horticultural committee and the decorations committee.

Organizing Old Boys

C. Lacheur reported progress on the organizing of old boys in other cities to come home in groups.

Loud Speaker

Webber Turner was instructed to complete arrangements for securing a loud speaker apparatus for Old Home Week.

Fireworks

On motion, Mr. Turner was also instructed to arrange for four evenings' fireworks at $150 for each evening, a total of $600.

A. Purman, director of Kiwanis Kapers, proposed a pageant of the founding of Peterborough, or a boys' circus.

It would take about a month to work up the circus, Mr. Purman said. The circus was frowned upon because of the approaching examinations.

Major Winterbottom suggested that Mr. Purman might be retained to train the children during the summer to build the circus for the fall fair.

Mr. Purman's projects were referred to the entertainment committee.

Old Photographs

F. L. Roy told about finding many old photographs of Peterborough and Peterborough people, taken by his father, R. M. Roy, before he entered the commercial photography business. These are available for any purpose desired by the committee.

Would Number Badges

J. Wells Fraser, a member of the finance committee, proposed a system of numbering Old Home badges, selling the badges for say 25 cents each, and offering a substantial prize for the lucky numbers drawn. This would provide some revenue, he suggested.

A Meeting a Week

It was arranged that the general committee will meet every Thursday evening at 7.30.

Among thosep resent last night were Mayor Denne, J. Wells Fraser, J. Dutton, J. J. Turner, Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., E. A. Peck, M.P., D. A. Costello, Alderman S. Lowe, F. Fairen, Col. J. W. Miller, E. Dillon, T. Brown, Reeve H. B. Rye, Alderman G. A. MacDonald, Warden J. F. Breckenridge, F. L. Roy, E. F. Mason, J. A. Abraham, A. Blade, Alderman R. Cotton, George Giroux, Alderman J. A. MacNabb, A. Mowat, D. Loomis, Webber, Turner, C. Lacheur, A. J. Reynolds, R. M. Glover, E. V. Morphet, J. R. Heron and Messrs. Copp and Deyell.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE LITTLE PUDDLE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate)

Not so very many years ago say about as far as from one lollypop to another, there lived in a field, close by a running brook, a Little Puddle of water. It was a cute Little Puddle, left there by the rain.

Around the edges of this Little Puddle grew green grass which whispered in the wind of flowers that were to bloom when the May sun would shine bright and warm. And in the Little Puddle were small stones, red, black and yellow in color.

"Oh, what a cute Little Puddle!" croaked Bully No Tail, the frog boy, one day as he was hopping across the field. "Look, Bawly!"

"Sure, it's a cute Little Puddle!" croaked the other frog. "But there isn't enough water there for you and me to swim in at the same time. Silly Little Puddle, I call it!"

"No, there isn't much water," admitted Bully. "Hardly as much as there was in Uncle Wiggily's rubber boots! Ha! Ha!"

"Ha! Ha!" echoed Bawly. And the two frogs, with their jolly, big mouths laughed as they remembered what a funny splash Uncle Wiggily made when he tried to put on his rubber boots, full of water, in which the green, jumping chaps had gone to bed. I told you that story Monday if you will kindly remember.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"There is no use of us trying to swim in that little puddle," went on Bully. "Come along and we'll jump in the brook over here."

"Last one in has to buy the chewing gum!" croaked Bawly and away raced the two frogs to see who would be first to swim in the babbling brook not far from the Little Puddle. Bully won the race and his brother had to buy the chewing gum. But Bawly didn't mind that.

"So, I am no good to swim in; eh? I am silly; am I? Not big enough even for a couple of green frogs! Puff!"

So the Little Puddle talked to itself after Bully and Bawly had gone to the brook. Oh, how disappointed it was! And so ashamed! For the Little Puddle was very fond of itself and had begun to imagine it was quite a pond, or perhaps even a lake, and might grow into a big ocean. But, hearing what Bully and Bawly said, that Little Puddle was now quite unhappy.

"I'll show those croaking frogs!" whispered the Little Puddle. "I'll grow big and surprise them! Ho! That's what I'll do! I'll grow big!"

So the Little Puddle tried to puff itself up big, but it only remained the same size. Then it called out:

"Ho, Rain, splash more water in me so I can grow big!" But the Rain had stopped falling. Then the Little Puddle shouted:

"Ho, Wind! Blow on me, ruffle me up and make me big!" But the Wind only blew gently. Oh, how disappointed was the Little Puddle. Then it called to the green grass all about it: "Help me to grow big!"

"I cannot!" whispered the grass.

"Then you, red, black and yellow stones, you help me to grow big!" begged the Little Puddle.

But the stones said they could not and the Little Puddle did not know what to do until, all of a sudden, it heard steps coming nearer and nearer. Thinking it was the frogs returning, the Little Puddle cried out:

"Ho! You think you're smart; don't you? Calling me silly! Saying I am too small to swim in! I'll show you!"

"Surely there must be some mistake!" spoke a gentle voice and Uncle Wiggily hopped over the grass and toward the little hole filled with water from the rain. "What's the matter? I haven't called you silly."

"Oh! excuse me," said the Little Puddle. "I thought you were Bully and Bawly."

"Ho! Those frogs!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "Up to more tricks, I suppose, like filling my boots with water."

"No, they didn't play any tricks on me," said the Little Puddle. "I only wish they had, instead of making fun of me. "Oh, I am so unhappy and ashamed!"

"Why, whatever is the matter?" asked the kind rabbit gentleman.

"I am ashamed of being little!" whispered the Puddle. "I want to be big, like a pond. Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Can't you do me a favor? Make me grow big so those frog boys will be glad to swim in me. I want to be of some use in this world."

"So," spoke Uncle Wiggily, gently, "the Little Puddle wants to grow big. Well, that is the way of the world." He thought for a moment and then said: "All right, Little Puddle, I shall help you to grow big."

And how the bunny gentleman did this I shall tell you in the next story.

EASTER SEASON SERVICES IN THE DISTRICT CHURCHES

BETHANY CHURCHES.

BETHANY, April 5.— (Examiner Correspondence).—Easter was observed in both the United Church and St. Paul's Anglican Church. In the United Church an Easter cantata "Jesus of Nazareth" was sung by the choir directed by Alfred Driver with Mrs. Ona Thorndyke as organist.

St. Paul's Church.

In St. Paul's Church the anthem "King of Kings" was well given and was directed by Mrs. (Rev.) Fierheller, Miss Laura Morton singing the solo part.

WARSAW CHURCHES.

WARSAW, April 5.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Sunday School was held in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning when Dr. Munro made the Resurrection a very interesting subject. The assistance of the orchestra was very much appreciated, those taking part being: Violins, Hector Munro, Della Tucker, Ruth McQuaig and Tom Davis; cornet, Gearld Crowe, and organist, Ellen Douglas. The room was prettily decorated for the occasion.

At the Baptist Church

Pastor Eikenaar preached a very helpful Easter sermon in the Baptist Church on Easter Sunday and Miss Lula Bell and Percy Kidd sang a solo, "On Calvary's Brow."

St. Mark's Church.

Rural Dean J. T. O'Conor-Fenton conducted Good Friday service in St. Mark's Church on Friday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Fenton announced that it would be impossible for him to carry out his plan of an early Easter morning Communion service. He was unable to conduct the service in Warsaw on Sunday evening.

The United Church.

The United Church was beautifully decorated for the Easter service on Sunday evening. Rev. H. B. Herrington conducted the service and dwelt on reasons assuring the Resurrection, the testimony of the many who saw Jesus and the effect of the Resurrection on the world.

There was a full choir which sang a selection "Easter Bells" and an Easter anthem. Eight little girls, Jean Hawthorne, Enid Darling, Florence Bolton, Alva Darby, Jean Payne, Edna Payne, Helen Williams and Cressa Payne gave a beautiful selection, "Easter Lilies" which consisted of recitations and choruses. They were trained by Mrs. Herrington.

CAMPBELLFORD CHURCH

(Contributed)

The special Easter services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were most inspiration and impressive. Large congregations attended both morning and evening. Rev. W. J. Mark, D.D., minister delivered very appropriate and helpful sermons portraying the meaning and spirit of Easter.

At the morning service, Dr. Mark chose as his text, "Jesus met them", and in a most aesthetic and beautiful setting gave a vivid account of the event, in the (morning), in the (spring), in the (garden), and the (Angels), and contrasted the environment of the Resurrection with the Nativity. If we are in an elevated frame of mind we readily see the beauties of the Garden, but if we are depressed we see only the tomb and miss the garden.

The choir sang "Christ Arose" and gave a very fine rendition of this very appropriate anthem. Mr. J. W. Russell and Mr. W. Collison sang a duet, "They Are Nailed to the Cross", in splendid voice.

At the evening service the minister spoke from the text, "If a man die shall he live again?" Apart from Biblical teaching on this subject Dr. Mark first spoke of historic, scientific and philosophic beliefs in this regard and showed how all confirm the belief exemplified and proven to us in the Resurrection.

"As the Voice of Many Waters" was the anthem rendered by the choir, the organist being Miss Eva Brady. The solo part was taken by Miss Dorothy Reynolds, who is a young singer of great promise. A fine addition to the evening program was a duet, "The Old Rugged Cross", sung by Mr. W. Collison and Mr. J. W. Russell. A solo, "It Was For Me" was contributed by Mr. Russell in his usual pleasing style.

At the Sunday school in the afternoon Rev. Dr. Mark gave an illustrated talk on the Passion, Crucifixion and Resurrection, which made very clear the Easter theme, and long to be remembered.

A special Good Friday service was held at 11 a.m. There was a splendid attendance, and special music was rendered by the choir.

The program was a literary one, Winnifred Stuart, Fred Sawyer and Charles Middleton giving humorous readings with music by the Misses Fierheller and May Smith between readings.

The next meeting will be social in character and will be held in the Orange Hall.

RECEIVES HONOR.

OLD ENGLISH HOME RECIPE

For Falling Hair, Baldness, Dandruff and Itching Scalp, Makes Hair Beautiful.

Thousands of people who find their hair coming out badly try various advertised hair tonics and hair growers without results and finally resign themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless. The following simple home prescription in many instances has made hair grow again after years of partial baldness and almost instantly stops dandruff and further loss of hair. It will not make the hair dry or greasy, is pleasant and easy to use, inexpensive and can be put up in a few moments by any good druggist. Bay Rum, 6 oz., Lavona de Composee, 2 oz., Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. Add a little of your favorite perfume, if you desire. This preparation is absolutely harmless, but highly effective. Ladies using the prescription should be careful not to get it on the face or where the hair is not desired.

The whole building was given over to the show and to the entertaining of the visitors, and the first night was a great success.

Everything that the normal healthy boy makes, and is interested in, is on exhibition at the show. And the whole show was staged and planned by the boys themselves under the wise guidance of Mr. McNeely, the boys' secretary. There are 43 directors managing the show, and they have been working out their plans beginning with the New Year. The exhibits were placed, listed and in many cases judged by these young showmen. The exhibitors are all under 18 years of age, and many of them are nearer ten.

The boys' social room is the scene of the great concentration and high-powered thinking for it is here that the big checker and chess tournaments for the boy section championship of the city is being played. Twenty or thirty boys will be sitting around the long tables grimly concentrating on moves to checkmate and overcome his equally thoughful opponent. Here, too, is the steady tat-tat of the ping-pong balls as they smack the table because they are battling off the city ping-pong championship.

Exhibition well Arranged.

In the gymnasium in well-arranged sections are the prized results of many patient hours' work with saw, hammer and pincers on exhibit. There are graceful airplanes planned and made by the boys, which are guaranteed to remain in flight for at least ten seconds and which will be given the opportunity to show their flying stability on Saturday in Central Park, if the weather is suitable. Then there are stately sailing ships, and the brilliantly painted, decorative, old time ships modelled after the famous Pinta. In the same woodworking section there are cleverly made birdhouses, and such useful home articles as hall trees, sewing cabinets, jardiniere stands and many other things.

The finely-constructed cranes and elevators made from meccano and erector sets are on view and all these are exact models of the real thing. Scoutcraft, too, comes in for its full share of prominence.

In the livestock section the boys have white rabbits, grey rabbits, big rabbits and tiny rabbits, and there are also many breeds of feathered fowl, including pigeons and bantams.

All these have been already judged, and the awards are plainly marked on each exhibit. The results are:

Outstanding Art Work.

The sections of the Hobby Show in which the artistic talents of the boys are demonstrated, are splendid this year, the art exhibit having some outstanding examples of fine work. Here the different instincts of the boys have their expression. Some of the pictures are romantic, some are funny, and others show the characteristic worship of the boy for heroes of adventure, like Lindbergh, for historical demigods, like Abraham Lincoln, and for the stars of the screen, in the fine representation of Lon Chaney in "West of Zanzibar."

There is humour in the picture of the fat fisherman, asleep at his fishing pole, with a wary bunny peeking around a stump corner at him. There is a Canadian gob, a picture of Harold Lloyd and one of Charlie Chaplin, Jiggs, in a belligerent mood, and a haughty beauty with tip-tilted nose and an up-stage eyebrow. A pencil drawing shows an outfielder leaning against the atmosphere in angular style, to catch a flying ball in a languid mitt.

In water colors and pen and ink, in pencil and in crayon, the boys represent their favorite characters and portray pretty scenes of natural beauty in trees and water. They go in for still life also, one of the best bits of the collection being a cornucopia that spills in profusion an autumn variety of fruits and leaves. A head of the late Marshal Foch is a good piece of portraiture, and there is a clever silhouette of an old-time writing gentleman with a feathered pen sitting in a suggested garden, with a friendly silhouette cat as a companion.

The outline maps of Canada are well done, in free-hand style, and there are several examples of penmanship based on the soulful poem, "My Native Land." Designs for crests and monograms are executed in brightly colored bits.

The department of mechanical drawing displays another type of artistic ability in a demonstration of careful working drawings of the developed surfaces of cone sand pyramids ,and of drill sockets, in the section devoted to machine parts.

Billie Herd and Leslie Cavalier are directors of this section, while Lloyd Bath and George Biggs have charge of the Department of Art.

The department of photography, with Douglas Blagrave and George A. Barns as directors, shows also some excellent artistic work, in little snapshot pictures of landscape and marine views, interiors, farm stock and pets, wild animal and bird life, and action pictures.

The picture of an elderly man shows an extraordinary skill in the development of light and shadow effects and there is a charming bit in a silhouette, sharply outlined, of three bare tree trunks against an evening skyline. A boy with two small dogs makes an interesting group and there is a good picture of a police dog. The collection is very interesting.

A collection that engages the rapt attention of those who style themselves philatelists and, numismatists, in their love for old stamps and coins, is also excellent in quality of the exhibits on view. Postage stamps are in charge of Percy Pickering and Charles Clark, directors, and coins are looked after by Garnet Dainard and Wib Ward.

Many Countries Represented.

The stamps represent many countries of the world. There are stamps of Canada and the United States and the British Isles, of Bavaria and Austria, of the Free State of Dantzig, of Belgium with the comely head of the Belgian king outlined sharply, of the French colony of the Cameroun in the African Congo, with a thoughtful bullock as the outstanding figure, stamps of the Confederate States of the Union, in the wars of the blue and grey, of Germany and Hungary, of Turkey, with the star and the crescent superimposed, of the Netherlands and of South America.

The collection of coins brings eager watchers of the old-time and moderns bits of money and the tokens which are not money at all, but look much like it.

There are Chinese "cash" pieces, with central holes, coins of France and England, of Africa and Cuba and Belgium and Ireland, of Portugal and Spain and Brazil and Chili.

An interesting specimen is the first one-cent piece of the United States, one of the million pennies which were in this first issue. It is dated 1793, and has under the caption of "One cent," a further safeguard in the sign 1/100. It bears the design of the Goddess of Liberty with flowing hair. There is also a Canadian cent of the first year of issue in 1858, a thinner coin than the modern cent, with a difference also in the milling of the edge. The head of the Young Queen Victoria appears on the front.

There are English cartwheels of 1797, large and ponderous, one-half franc pieces of French origin, the "double," or farthing, piece of the Isle of Guernsey and the eight double piece of the same place, the half penny coin of 1798 of the Isle of Man, with a Latin inscription on the reverse side and the front bearing a curious sign of three legs joined together.

A very good collection, put in as an exhibit by the Rev. Mr. Haddow, missionary home on furlough from Bolivia, is of coins of South America.

Commercial tokens with no monetary value are also very interesting. There is one, dated 1813, with the head of the Duke of Wellington, surrounded by the curious legend, "Wellington and Erin go Bragh," and the name of "E. Stephens, Dublin," on the obverse side.

Another token of the same type which shows on one side a fanciful representation of a gentleman's trousers and vest is in the form of a half penny, issued by J. Hyam of Liverpool, Manufacturing Clothier.

The Department of Miscellaneous Collections, in charge of Jack Comstock and Jack Patte, includes out of the ordinary things like collections of trade marks and woven advertising labels, advertising blotters, souvenir ribbon badges, automobile license plates, souvenir and advertising buttons and badges, and names of headings of newspapers and of magazines. It is impossible to say how interesting these odd things are, unless one sees them in collection form.

Another collection is that of picture post cards in an album, and a collection of dried leaves, while one youth shows a collection of diplomas and certificates received by himself, which has the real personal touch. Again, there is a collection of much interest, which will probably increase as the years go on, for it symbolizes the little picture stamps which were issued in the Boer War and the last Great War.

Another odd collection is that of cardboard milk bottle tops, of French and Canadian origin, from both provinces. One example, in emphasizing the purity of the product sold by that particular firm, uses the head of a dove to symbolize the excellence of the milk.

The collection of coat lapel buttons is at once dignified and funny, when one scans the writing on them. There is a button issued "In Memory of the late King Edward," another which shows the present King and Queen of England, when they were the Duke and Duchess of York, another with a large daisy advertises "Daisy Rubbers," and a tiny boy with a shock head of hair proclaims the work of "Skeasix Sweaters." Harold Lloyd displays a splendid dental formation on another button, and St. Nicholas is round and jolly on a Christmas emblem. Easter is symbolized by a buttom showing two lilies and the inscription, "He is Risen."

These particular collections are housed in one of the upper rooms of the Y.M.C.A. and have their bevy of polite and thoughtful attendants, members of the "Y", who give information to those seeking for it.

The Art exhibits are judged by Miss Cameron Edwards and Miss Mamie L. McCarthy; the Mechanical Drawings by H. Browett; the Photography by Alex. Darling; the stamps by Charles Butcher and George Clark. John Barringer and G. Dainard judge the Coins, and the Miscellaneous Collection is judged by George Clark and B. V. Moore.

The ping-pong competition for the championship of the city is under the direction of Carlos Routly and Kenneth Weldon, with Robert Sturgeon as judge. There is a big entry in the division and the boys will be playing off for the championshp during the whole three days of the show.

The competition for the different divisions of the city championship in checkers is another section which is creating a great deal of interest and has nearly twenty competitors. It is under the direction of Max Glover and Jack Richardson and W. S. Edgar is the judge. Here, too, the competition will necessarily have to progress through the full time of the whole show.

There are four divisions, and the participants are: For boys 11 and under—W. Wright, Edward Craig, Jack Currie, George McLean and Eric Edmondson. For boys 14 and under—Reg. Kingdon, Gord Duncan, Harry March, Arthur Ward, Garnet Budd, Walter Ward, Tom Craig, V. Holmes and Bill McPherson. For boys 16 and under—M. Swartz, A. Ward, C. Routly, A. Holmes and S. Clarke. MONTHLY REPORT FOR CITY RELIEF Hundred and Forty-two Orders Issued By Relief Officer.

Interesting information regarding relief work in the city of Peterborough may be found in the City Relief Officer's report for the month of March, just closed, which indicates that in that period, 100 orders for provisions were issued together with 38 for fuel and four to indigents. Three other patients had been refused and in connection with all these orders, inspections and investigations totalled thirty-nine.

A. G. Metheral, who is the City Relief Officer, and who is also the City Plumbing Inspector, gave The Examiner equally enlightening information regarding that department. For instance, during the past month 21 permits were issued by him, to provide for the installation of 11 water closets, 9 baths, 12 basins, 8 sinks, 1 laundry tub and 5 floor drains. A total of 44 inspections were made including 11 water tests, 26 smoke tests, 4 of lay-outs and 27 miscellaneous while 44 certificates of completion were issued. It is interesting to note that during March six more old buildings were connected and fitted with sanitary conveniences.

In the month of March 1928, thirteen permits were issued for various plumbing jobs while inspections totalled thirty-eight.

During the past month Mr. Metheral also gave valuable assistance to the City Sanitary Inspector, having put up 50 placards where contagious diseases were reported, and having taken down 67 placards.

It takes about seven weeks for a rhea egg to incubate.

The rhea is a South American three-toed ostrich.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

PARADISE

Many who are still accepting Satan's lie: "that man does not die, are compelled to tell other untruths, in order to give the original lie a semblance of truth. Amongst the many false statements is one in regard to the Bible and "Paradise." They erroneously teach that "Paradise" is heaven, and some of them say it is a place in the centre of the earth, where all the dead (who they claim are not dead) exist, the good in one apartment and the bad in another, the one enjoying themselves, and the other suffering.

The truth of the matter is, Eden and Paradise are synonymous words. When this earth is brought into Edenic conditions, then we shall have "Paradise" right here on this earth. This is the "Paradise" mentioned three times in the Scriptures. Luke 23: 42-43; 2 Corinthians 12:4, and Rev. 2:7.

The first reference is found in the words of Jesus, in response to the thief's request, to be remembered when He (Jesus) came into His Kingdom. Jesus answered with emphasis, "Verily I say unto thee to-day, thou shalt be with Me in "Paradise." It is absurd to say the thief would be in heaven or in the centre of the earth on the day Jesus spoke these words, for Jesus would be in hell (the grave) for three days, and had not ascended into heaven, nor had He come into His Kingdom, when the thief made request to be remembered.

The Apostle Paul, speaking of visions and revelations, mentions being caught up into "Paradise." He no doubt had a prophetic vision of the "Paradise" yet to come.

The Apostle John, in Revelation tells us the overcomers will eat of the tree of life, which is in the "Paradise" of God.

The false meanings put to the word "Paradise," like other untruths, that are preached from pulpit and desk, lead into contradiction and absurdities.

Victor.

CITY FUEL SUPPLY

April 5, 1929

To the Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir.—In your issue of April 2nd, I notice in your report of council meeting that "on motion of Aldermen Huffman and Cotton, the contract for supplying 40 tons of coal to Queen Mary Hospital, 65 tons to the Fire Hall, and 45 tons to the City Buildings was let at $7.85 a ton for No. 2 Red Jacket." To the public this may sound like good reading, but to the coal dealer who quoted a price more than ten per cent or $114.00 less on a No. 1 grade of coal, it does not read so good, but no doubt Alderman Huffman will hasten through your columns to explain the matter to the public.

Before he starts, however, I would remind him that I am only writing this letter as an introductory, assuring him that I am holding a little in reserve. I discussed the matter with him and if his explanation through the press is as enlightening as it was to me over the telephone the ratepayers will be left wondering why the extra $114.00 was handed out.

In closing, if Alderman Huffman received tenders from two reputable lumber companies for, say, $1,200.00 worth of lumber and one price was ten per cent., or $120.00 less than the other, would he pay the extra $120.00 or would he look into what the other dealer was offering?

Yours truly,
T. O. Donaldson

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

TWO KINDS OF ASTHMA

That an innocent beloved cat created unhappiness and financial loss in a household was amply demonstrated a couple of years ago by one of the health magazines.

As soon as the father of the house moved to another city or climate he was free of asthma, but when the family, including the cat, followed him, his attacks returned.

Investigation finally showed that the asthmatic attacks were due to "sensitiveness" to "animal" protein. When the cat was removed from the home there were no more attacks.

As you know it is now amply proven that many cases of asthma are due to protein substances either in the air or in the food we eat.

Dr. H. K. Detweiler outlines the attack about as follows: When the patient has been exposed to protein substance to which he is sensitive there is usually a feeling of tightness in the chest, which rapidly grows more and more intense until the breathing becomes little more than a succession of quick gasps, followed by prolonged and wheezy expirations (when the air is going out of the lungs).

The main difficulty is in getting the air "out" of the lungs. Fortunately, just as it would seem that the patient must suffocate, he coughs up a thick, jelly-like material and gets relief.

The attack may last from a half hour to three hours.

Between attacks the chest is quite clear and the patient suffers no inconvenience.

In the other type of asthma, the kind that follows bronchitis, the patient has jdifficulty in getting air into his lungs, instead of getting it out, as in the proteid asthma. And even between attacks the chest will show signs of bronchitis.

Further, in the proteid asthma the skin tests for the proteids is always positive, while in the bronchitis type of asthma all skin tests are negative. Another point is that the sputum that is coughed up is clear and jelly-like in the proteid asthma, whereas it is gray or yellowish in the bronchitis form.

Now these little differences may help you to get an idea as to which type your asthma belongs.

Adrenalin is the best treatment during an attack. Your doctor will give you the correct dose. Injecting it is more quickly effective than by the mouth.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Silence-Cloth, husher, table-pad—call it what you will—is a necessity for the correctly laid dinner table. For breakfast and luncheon it is customary to lay the cloth, runners, or mats on the bare table. If hot dishes are to be served small pads may be placed beneath the covers where needed, but the small lunch or breakfast cloth should not usually be used over a full-sized pad. The formal damask dinner cloth, however, should always be laid over some sort of protector.

The old-fashioned silence cloth is usually of felt large enough to cover the table amply when more leaves are inserted. Sometimes it is of padded material. If the felt sort is used it should be bound or over-handed at the raw edges in some way so that the ravelings do not fluff off, and, of course, it is always important to have it enough smaller than the tablecloth to prevent showing at the edges.

The newer table pads are just the size of the table and are laid on the table in sections that fit together perfectly. I have seen some of these that are of washable white fabric on one side so that they may be wiped off when necessary and on the other side are covered with green suede cloth. When you wish to use the table for some sort of game—Michigan or runny—at which a number of persons gather round a large table, the pads may be laid white side down with the green sides exposed.

If you have any old blankets that have become thickened and shrunk through careless washing you may turn these to account for every-day table pads. One may be thick enough but if not you may use two thicknesses and quilt them together by means of quilting done with coarse machine stitching. A table pad of this sort made just the size for the family dinner table is a great convenience and may be used to save the larger pad used when an extended table is needed.

Yes, it crackles!

RICE KRISPIES is the new cereal that's so crisp it crackles when you pour on the milk or cream.

Delicious toasted rice. Something different for breakfast. And what a treat for lunch—with fruits or honey added! Kiddies love it. Use Krispies in candies, soups. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

HOW would it be for us to organize little garden clubs for streets or sections or, in the country, for districts?

* * * * * *

We might arrange to come in under the Horticultural Society, and thus gain the privilege of advice and premiums and prizes.

* * * * * *

Anyhow, these sectional organizations would create a spirit of rivalry that would be healthy, and they would enable us to plan not only our own gardens, but the appearance of the street as a whole.

* * * * * *

This is the time of year for the beginning garden club to map out its plans without difficulty and start on its career with high hopes of success. Gardening is attractive in prospect just now, and we are all enthusiastic.

* * * * * *

Gardening encourages work that will have a beneficial effect upon each individual physically. Gardening uses every muscle, helps us to breathe long and deep; it drives out the blues, and the red blood pours in.

* * * * * *

It may seem TOO strenuous, but it produces sound sleep and completc relaxation.

* * * * * *

The relaxation of the mind after a day of mental strain is well worth while. And how wonderful it is to get out into the garden after a day in the kitchen! There is something about the contact with the elements of wind, sun, rain, and earth that produces a feeling of mental peace.

* * * * * *

You can't keep a grouch while you're working in your garden!

* * * * * *

Then, gardening increases the beauty and attractiveness of every home. What a feeling of pride you have in a clean green lawn, ample shrubs, charming flowers, and beautiful vines! The tiniest and most drab looking of houses, with these adornments, takes on a wealth of beauty. And the market value of such a place is greatly increased.

* * * * * *

Again, when the majority of residents in the city take a personal pride in their individual surroundings, how attractive and prosperous Peterborough as a whole will appear.

* * * * * *

And to add another argument, just think of the lure gardening holds out to the child. The young mind is stimulated with wholesome, worthwhile thoughts and healthful, productive work.

* * * * * *

Gardening is a pastime for which no one is too young or too old. As I have pointed out, it benefits the individual, the home, the neighborhood, and the city. Let's get busy.

* * * * * *

I'm strong for co-operation. I like to see people working together. Take our pages, for instance—they are built up through co-operation.

* * * * * *

It's the little bit that this neighbor contributes, and the little contribution from someone else, that go together to make an interesting and successful page. And notice how neighbors follow one another's lead!

* * * * * *

Let's do the same in our gardening. Let's get to gether in streets or sections and plan together, and swap advice, and exchange tools. Let's be gardening neighbors.

* * * * * *

Suppose there are twenty houses on your street; all you neighbors can meet in one house and make your plans. Then hold the next meeting next door, and so on.

* * * * * *

If you wish to do it right, ask me for an outline of a constitution and by-laws—I'll be glad to supply the form.

* * * * * *

Maybe you desire to have only women in the club—then you may hold your meetings on a verandah in the afternoon. You will decide the business to be talked about; maybe you will have a representative of the Horticultural Society or someone else versed in flower lore present to speak and answer questions.

* * * * * *

The club might be developed so that a community cold frame and a community hotbed would be provided, to supply all members with appropriate plants. Discounts might be obtained by buying seeds and settings in bulk.

* * * * * *

And such a club could wield great influence in city affairs by suggesting improvements to parks, boulevards and tree.

* * * * * *

If there were sufficient of these clubs, for instance, I have no doubt but that the council could be persuaded to either sod the boulevards or provide topsoil to cover the terrible gravel.

* * * * * *

Vacant lots on a street could be beautified by neighborly co-operation.

* * * * * *

There might be a little neighborhood flower show, from which everyone participating would derive a great deal of enjoyment.

* * * * * *

In fact, there's nothing in heaven or on earth in the way of beautification and flower enjoyment that a little garden club will not provide.

* * * * * *

Try it and see! I'm ready to help in any way I can—by providing an outline of organization, suggested programs, ideas for talks, ideas on civic improvement, plans for a flower show, or in any other way possible.

* * * * * *

I WOULD like to know what you think of the scheme, and whether any of you neighbors take it up.

* * * * * *

Anyhow, tell us about your plans for your garden; what flowers you will plant; how you will mark them; what kind of beds (shape and size) you will have; whether you will have a rockery; what climbers you use on your verandah, if any.

* * * * * *

We are all really and truly interested, and many of us are just longing for the help we'll get from your experience.

* * * * * *

And if you haven't obtained your pair of "Please Keep Off Lawn" cards, sign the coupon and bring it to the office right away. I don't know how many were printed (the men somehow seemed to run right away with my little scheme!) but I think they are going fast.

* * * * * *

It would be too bad if, after starting it all, the neighbors lost out!

* * * * * *

P.S. (As usual, the most important part is in the postscript!) The thought just struck me that if any neighbor is backward about approaching others on the formation of a garden club, and will write me giving the names and addresses, I will write those she suggests and endeavor to bring them together.

FAVORITE RECIPE.

CANNED PUMPKIN PIE.
(Eggless)
(Contributed by J. J. P.)

Cook pumpkin or squash tender. Rub through a fine sieve and measure off 3 cups. Over it grate half a nutmeg or its equivalent of orange peel. Add 1½ cups white coffee sugar. Moisten 4 heaping teaspoons cornstarch in ½ cup of sweet milk and add to the pumpkin. Now add 3 full pints of sweet milk. Stir well and pour the mixture into crusts. Bake in a hot oven until well browned on top. When cold, spread the top of one or two with tart jelly, and note the improvement. The custard in these pies will not leave the crust at the edge, nor will any water gather on top when allowed to stand a few hours, as is often the case with those made in the usual manner with eggs.

CARAMEL ICING.
(Contributed by L. J. S.)

One and one-quarter cups brown sugar; ¼ cup white sugar; 1-3 cup boiling water; 2 eggs (whites); 1 teaspoon vanilla; 1-3 cup English walnut meats.

Mix sugar and water and let boil till syrup threads when dropped from spoon. Pour slowly, while beating constantly, on to the beaten whites and continue beating until the mixture is nearly cool. Set in a pan of boiling water and cook, stirring constantly until mixture becomes slightly granular around the edge of the dish. Remove from range and beat until mixture will hold its shape. Add vanilla and nutmeats broken in pieces. Pour on cake and spread with back of spoon, making a rough surface.

UNUSUAL LOVELINESS

THE STYLE No. 2753 in printed silk crepe has a practical appeal for all-day wear as a smart complement to ensemble or with plain or pleated silk crepe skirt. The hipband that buttons snugly at side-front, combines with jabot frill to add length, which makes it so suitable for woman with larger figure. Shirring at each shoulder gives that little touch of femininity, so important in the mode. Sheer crepe, printed handkerchief linen and chiffon voile also chic.

THE PATTERN is most interesting to use, as it contains a Picture Chart to help you make it in least time possible. It is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust, and offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles cost 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

PITY A POOR MARRIED MAN

(Contributed by "Billy Bo/.")

I once was happy and single, could go to concert or play,
B t now I am married, by gingo, my wife I'm forced to obey.
F r my soul, I can't call my own, so pity a poor married man.

To the free church we went to be married,
There they do it for nothing, they say,
But I wish it was longer I tarried, before she threw me away.
The honeymoon scarcely was over when a big lump she raised on my head,
Because I refused to rise early and bring her her breakfast in bed.

Three years I've been wed to this angel, though it seems like a hundred to me,
We now have three babies to provide for, the likeness I never did see.
When single I thought I was clever, my wife says I'm terrible bold,
She told me right up to my face, she never saw such a dummy before.
Maybe I'm not very clever, to please I do what I can,
But to suit her I'm sure I can never so - pity a poor married man.

"Before My Baby Was Born"

"I was in very poor health before my baby was born and had to lie down two hours every day. The doctor said I would never carry my baby as I was too weak. My mother persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped me wonderfully. My baby is not very big but he is strong and healthy. I recommend the Compound to every woman I hear complaining and when I feel weak I take it again myself. Everybody says they never saw me looking better. I will be glad to answer letters if I can help other women to be strong and healthy again." —Mrs. William Hardy, 70 Queen Street, Lindsay, Ontario.

Over the Phone

By CORONA REMINGTON

"Daddy, if John Harrison asks—asks you for me, what'll you say?"

"What do you want me to say, daughter?"

"Oh, I—I think he's wonderful. I love him most to death, but he doesn't know it."

"Well, I never thought of him as a possible son, so I haven't paid much attention to him. Is he doing well in business? He's with the Sunset City Coal people, I believe."

"Yes, but he wants to get to be vice-president of something big. He's worked there nine years and they're awfully stingy with their promotions."

"Maybe it's his fault. I'll investigate and tell you more about it afterward."

A few days later Mr. Wilton had a casual talk with a friend at the club, and the friend was blissfully unconscious of the fact that he was being put through the third degree. So much for Wilton's law training. As strangers are prone to do, he made inquiry about a number of the business houses in town, and among them the Sunset City Coal Company. He asked no more questions about it and showed no more interest in it than he did in the others. Nor was the well-dressed young man in the chair opposite him the only one who unknowingly testified for or against John Harrison that day.

As it happened, Mr. Wilton had made his investigations just in time for that very evening Harrison, flushed and stammering, sat on the edge of a chair in the library and tried to state his case.

"I know what you want to say," smiled Wilton kindly, his gray eyes sparkling with amusement. "I had it to do once myself, and I haven't forgotten it yet. But the old man did not help me out—not a bit of it. Well, to get down to business. You love her, of course; no use asking fool questions. Can you support her?"

"N-not as I would like to. That is, just yet—but I can make her comfortable."

"Hmmm, suppose you give me twenty-four hours to think it over?"

"All right, sir. I don't know how I'll ever live through the suspense, but I guess I'll have to try."

Early the next day Mr. Wilton picked up the telephone and gave a number.

"Is this Mr. Harrison?" he asked.

"Yes."

"John Wilton speaking. Just wanted to say one thing; you seem to be a pretty fine fellow and I admire you, and all that, but you can't marry Myrtle until you get a little further up the business ladder. If you don't de erve a promotion you're not worthy of my daughter. If you do you ought to get it, and you ought to have backbone enough to go after it. I haven't lived here long enough to know the members of your firm, but whoever's over you needs a good stiff talking to. If he's an unprogressive old mossback, get out; but I believe you've got it in you to bring him around. And, remember one thing—no promotion, no wedding. And remember another thing, young man, it's not the money side of it that bothers me. Myrtle'll have $200,000 in her own name when she's of age. It's not that, it's the backbone. Good-by."

Wilton hung up the receiver and things happened pretty swiftly after that. Just before luncheon young Harrison came tearing into Wilton's office like a baby tornado.

"They've promised to make me vice-president. May I marry her now?"

"No. Not ri ht now. I advise you to wait a few minutes anyhow."

"Oh, you know what I mean. May I marry her?"

"Yes, if she's willing."

"The worst is, the very worst is," Harrison went on, "I can't get out to tell Myrtle until this evening. The old man gets furious if I'm five minutes late coming back from lunch. He was never a minute late in his whole life."

"It will keep and you'll enjoy the anticipation."

"Poor consolation, but I've got to put up with it. You won't tell myrtle, will you?"

"Not I. But why don't you phone her?"

"Phones ar such unsatisfactory things."

"Not always. I've found them very useful on some occasions. In fact, even more effective than a personal visit," laughed Wilton. "But tell me how you broke the news."

"I didn't. You did. It's the biggest joke. It was dad you were talking to over the phone this morning and not me!"

"Your father!"

"Sure. He's the whole works up at the Sunset City Coal. Didn't you know it? The phone on my desk is an extension of his, and I listened in to part of the conversation. Don't know what made me do it, but I could hardly sit still when he sauntered into my cubbyhole of an office and magnanimously offered me the position of vice-president."

After he had left, Wilton lit a cigar, put his feet up on the desk and indulged in a prolonged chuckle.

"I thought that would bring the old chap around," he laughed to himself. "And the boy doe n't suspect a thing. Wonder whether he heard me tell him Myrtle's coming in for $200,000 of her mother's money when she's twenty-one. Hope not, anyhow."

OLD SONGS

FRIENDS OF LONG AGO
(Contributed by "Benevolence.")

When I sit a'one in the twilight
Dreaming of days gone by,
There come to me sweet memories
That bring from the heart a sigh,
And I see familar faces
Alight in the afterglow,
And I hear familar voices
Of friend of long ago.

Faces of friends of childhood,
Grown dim with the passing years
Come vividly back in the twilight,
And I recall our hopes and fears.
Though ar away and scattered
Old friends may be, I know
I can conjure them back anew,
Those friends of long ago.

Dear are the visions pictured,
From the dim and misty ast,
Startling clear the images
So sweet I could wish they would last.
And though new friends are many,
And the old have had to go,
Yet ever ar the memories
Of the friends of long ago.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

The line of the new bob shown above at the right is in strong contrast with that of the old bob. In the newer arrangement the hair is brushed off the forehead, waved and curled under on the neck. Below, the hair is parted and tucked in a loose roll on the neck and held with diamond pins.

Gradually foreheads have come back into fashion and the woman who has a smooth fair brow is as much admired nowadays as she was in early Victorian days. To be sure, one still sees well-dressed women with hair arranged in bangs of some sort, or with side-parted hair looping down on the forehead, but the prevailing type of millinery makes such an arrangement difficult, especially for daytime wear. The hat pushed way back from the forehead is neither in good taste nor in fashion, but rather more of the forehead is seen than was the case a year ago and many of the new hats are made to show quite a patch of forehead on one side—but drawn down on the brow at the other side. And if you would wear your new hats in a way that Paris approves you must not let one single hair show at the front. In order to make sure of this the simplest arrangement is to brush the hair well back from the forehead.

Ears are, as one hairdresser puts it, "optional." If you have very nicely shaped ears and a face that is neither too broad nor too thin you will find the coiffure shown uppermost in the sketch well worth trying, and with a hat that fits closely down at the side of the head you will find it convenient not to have earlocks to contend with.

But there really never was a time when a woman might arrange her hair in such a wide variety of styles and still not look quaint or eccentric.

OLD SONGS

CARRY ME BACK TO OLD VIRGINNY

Carry me back to old Viginny,
There's where the cotton and the corn and tatoes grow.
There's where the birds warble sweet in the springtime,
There's where this old darkey's heart am long'd to go
Ther 's where I labored so hard 'or old Mass,
Day after day in the field of yellow corn.
No place on earth do I love more sincere'y,
Than old Virginny, the state where I was born.

Carry me back to o'd Virginny
There's where the cotton and the corn and tatoes grow,
There's where the birds warble in the springtime,
There's where this darkey's heart am long'd to go.

Carry me back to old Virginny,
There let me live till I wither and decay.
Long by the o'd dismal swamp I have wandered,
There's where this old Darkey's life will pass away.
Massa and Missus have long gone before me,
Soon we will meet on that bright and go'den shore,
There we'll be happy and free from all sorrow,
We'll never, never part no more.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

Is not our circle growing this week? So many nice new letters coming in. Benevolence wrote a lovely letter some time ago advising mothers to encourage their children to entertain their friends in their homes. I forget her exact words but I think that was her idea. She may have meant girls at the 'going out' age, but I have always thought it a good plan with the school girls too. My girls never seem to want to go into other houses, but they are always bringing others home with them. During the Christmas holidays, if you remember there was nothing to do—no ice to skate on or anything. Our living room was full of children every afternoon. I knew where mine were and what they were doing, but I'm sure some of those other mothers didn't know or seem to care. Two children in particular have to either read a book and be quiet in the house or go outside. My idea is that some of my two mothers will wonder why their children leave home so young to face the world. Is it not strange that the children who are kept down in their homes are positively Indians in the homes of others?

I wonder if Benevolence has found that the case?

I consider it a hard task to wax floors and often I feel kind of an easy mark to allow those strict mothers' children in so often. It has always been an unwritten law around our home—don't go in anybody's house. Wouldn't you think that some of those mothers would notice that and act accordingly?

I have wandered quite a way from the main subjects — housecleaning and bridge. I have the first to do and the second to learn yet.

Mistral."

Others' children ARE a trial, "Mistral," especially when they cut up so. It's no joke to wax and polish floors, and then have them all marked up by racing, jumping, children.

"Dear Marion:

I have been an interested reader of the woman's page for a long time and enjoy the letters by the neighbors very much, also hints and recipes of which I make good use whenever I can.

I was especially interested in your talks about faces and thought Virgie's contribution very good. I expect mine often carries the worried look, although I do try to live above my worries, but sometimes while thinking and planning and hurried all at once I may not have a happy look. We can't all have a sunny life, can we, Marion?

I liked Pom Pom's budget and think it worth trying as it is one of my greatest problems to feed and clothe my family on a small income.

I had a good laugh after reading Samantha Ann's letter of March 20. I do not play bridge myself for just now I have not the time, but I believe it would do me good if could. I do not object to others playing unless they be foolish enough to carry it to extremes (but then anything is bad). It's not unlikely our more leisurely ladies sometimes do this, but I am sure we busy ones will never get the chance. The helps will surely do no harm to our page and any who don't want them may not read them.

I have spoken in possessive terms—our page—I didn't mean to be cheeky, Marion, as this is my first time here. But may I be a neighbor also, in this wonderful circle?

Please find enclosed twenty-five cents for pattern also new fashion book. Also helps which I have marked if you have them and thanking you very much indeed. Now I hope I have not stayed too long or asked too much for my first time. Wishing the page every success,

Pixie."

You are certainly welcome to our circle, "Pixie," and I hope you join the gossipers often. Isn't it nice to have these chats with so many friendly neighbors.

Do you read "Clancy Kids?" If you do, you know the famous—"After, Maybe? After?" That's my answer bout bridge lessons!

"Dear Marion:

Sometime ago I received a card from you asking me for my favorite recipe. I am sorry I have been so long in replying and I hope the enclosed recipe for Brownies will be of some use to the neighbors. They are so easy to make and taste delicious.

I have just been reading your Whatnot on gardening and found it very interesting and have cut it out so that I will be able to refer to it when I plan my garden. I wonder if you could tell me what is the best thing to do to our lawn? Last year the lawn was very uneven and now that the snow is gone I can see that it is more hilly than ever. I suppose this is due to the fact that the house has been only built a little over a year and the ground is not properly settled. Should we have it all dug up and levelled off and then re-seeded or scatter some good soil all over and level it off that way?

I am enclosing coupon for some helps, I hope I am not asking for too much. My mother sent for your fashion book and I glanced through it the other day and thought it was splendid and am going to make use of it in the near future. Thanking you in advance and wishing you a happy Easter, I am

Yours sincerely,
Molly Brown."

The treatment for your lawn depends on the present height in relation to sidewalk and private path, "Molly Brown." If it is about the right height, then digging and rolling would probably be best, but if it will stand a little raising you will get good results by adding top soil.

I'm glad you like the fashion book. Thank you for the recipe for Brownies.

Dear Marion:

You gave us some excellent advice about house-cleaning. Circumstances forced me to get at mine, and it is nearly done, though the order of doing was far from orthodox.

"Faces" rather interested me. Indeed they always have. When I was where there were street cars, many is the time I took a long ride for no other reason than to watch the people; there was lots of fun in it. After I got over being homesick in crowds, I gained much amusement by watching people; their walk, carriage, expression, and every feature tells so much. Expressions stay in the memory when the features do not, and it would seem we can cultivate our expressions. Some can absolutely control them. Once I had quite a bit to do with a young man, apparently quite clever, and of good manners a most interesting talker and one who could turn his hand to anything. He certainly made himself very useful, but his face was as expressionless as the Sphinx. Circumstances happened which gave me opportunity to speak of it, and he informed us that in his business they were trained to have expressionless faces. I did not know his occupation, but it was tantalizing not to know how he took anything we did. The expressionless face is no acquisition.

An early recollection is of a woman coming out of a church; evidently she had had great sorrow, for I never pass that church but her eyes are there. It is all I see or remember. During the war, in a certain city street, I saw a woman in black, leading a little child. She was not beautifully dressed, and likely an extraordinarily beautiful woman, but of all the woe-begone faces I ever saw, hers was the most awful. The expression haunts me yet.

Another time a wonderfully beautiful woman, with such a beautiful expression, passed. Later it appeared she was a very wealthy woman who was happy only in doing good works, but she had had sorrow, and taking it as she did it simply enhanced her beauty.

Again I saw a dying bar-tender in his delirium, mixing drinks. The face would have done for a study of Mephistocles. It would seem that what people are, must show in their faces, and there is so much haste and worry that it cannot help but show, and worry seems to be about as hard on the expression as anything can be. Oh, it is hard not to worry, when everything goes wrong, or when the digestion is bad, and everything looks blue. The worst of it is the worrying does no good, in fact generally makes things worse. A happy heart will soon show itself in the face; and then the face will be good to look upon, without any assumed pleasant thoughts.

It sometimes seems that some of the plainest people have the most beautiful expressions. Some very homely faces are more than redeemed by their expressions, which show a happy inner life.

I well remember a store-keeper who seemed to have a continual grin. It was assumed, and it used to make me feel like slapping him, just to get rid of that eternal grin. Sincerely yours,

"Quid Est."

As usual, "Quid Est," you touch the vital spot in your letter—it isn't any use assuming pleasant expressions—we must so live that the expression will be a mirror of an inward satisfaction and joy. Thank you for your interesting letter, with its recollections.

Isn't it sweet to meet a woman, well on in life, whose ways have been so ordered that her mind is tranquil and her eyes peaceful—not harassed-looking as so many younger women's are? Such a happy condition is not arrived at by affectation, or in a few years. One must live the right kind of life, sailing on top of the tide, and never allow one's self to be swamped by ordinary care.

"Dear Marion:

"Sorry I have been so long in answering your very kind letter, but better late than never. Thank you very, very much for the trouble you took in trying to find that book, when I think of how very busy you must be in answering all our letters. I am ashamed of myself for bothering you.

"Now, Marion, I am a firm believer in buying everything possible that is made or produced in Canada, and as I thought you were of like mind, am wondering why you don't get the patterns for our page from a firm in Canada. I know they can be got in Canada for the same price, as the —— printed in Montreal supplied patterns at the same price—it is possible you have to submit to the Editor in this matter. I wonder how many neighbors are trying to help their country by buying everything 'made in Canada?' Wouldn't a discussion on this and the budget question be better than the Bridge just now? Also, would like to see how many of the neighbors believe in the 'Easter parade.' I think it is a shame for nearly everyone to don their new clothes upon Easter Day, most of them for show, as a person can easily wear their new toggery either the Sunday before or the Sunday after. What is your opinion, Marion?

"Best wishes for the success of our page and all good luck to you, Marion, in your daily task of keeping us in order.

"Sincerely yours, Ferndale."

I never heard of the Canadian pattern service, "Ferndale"—but I'm told in the office the only known Canadian-made pattern costs 25 cents. How do you know the Montreal patterns were made in Canada?

I don't see anything wrong in the "Easter parade," but of course I may change my mind when I hear your REASONS! Let's have them.

I believe in buying at home when price, service and quality are equal or nearly equal.

"Dear Marion:

"I have been a silent reader of your page for a long while but I can't stand it any longer. I enclose a two-cent stamp for helps which I have checked. I enjoy reading the letters and the Whatnot but most of all the Old Song column, I think it is wonderful, and I do not like the idea of bridge in the paper. The paper would be lost without the old songs. I would like to get the words of 'Sonny Boy' if I could. I agree to Liverpool's request in last night's paper. I think it would be all right. I am enclosing a recipe for Cherry Cake, which I find is good. Well, Marion, as my letter is getting long I will close, wishing you ever so much luck.

"Yours sincerely, Rosebud."

Your choice of a pen-name is unfortunate, as we already have a "Rosebud." Please choose another when writing again.

I'm pleased to know you like the Old Songs—and thank you for the recipe. Come soon again. "Sonny Boy" can hardly be called an "old" song, can it?

"Dear Marion:

"Thank you so much for the helps, they are so useful. I have already made a belt of slipper cotton in black and put it on a little girl's dress of flame-colored fugi. The best of this belt is that one can have several nice belts and the cost is almost nothing.

"No, Marion, I was not referring to the Handy Andy type of Irish. Have you read Handy Andy? If you haven't, well, don't, as it gives one an erroneous impression of the true type of Irish life. My grandmother was Irish. I can always remember her lovely old face under its dainty lace cap.

"In regard to the budget I gave you it is only my housekeeping budget; we have a general budget that takes care of fuel, light, telephone, clothing, doctor, dentist, and the larger insurance that every family carries. We are also buying our home. Each year we set a goal for ourselves and it makes things more interesting than if we just spent as we went.

"I think your hints for gardening are lovely and it will help me have a more interesting garden this year. I already have some seeds started in window boxes and we are eagerly watching for the tiny green sprouts.

"I am sending for pattern No.. — Well, the baby has just tried to swallow my thimble so I had better put it on and start sewing.

"Yours, Polly."

That will be a good way to preserve your thimble, "Polly" but I'm sorry baby interrupted so interesting a letter. Thank you for the information about your budget.

"Dear Marion:

"I wish to thank the neighbor who so kindly gave me the information of the North, also I see Young's Point says I would not like it if bridge was to win if voted on. Now I think Young's Point did not read the whole of my letter or she would not think me so narrow-minded. I sincerely hope if we have bridge it shares the fate as our dear old songs—shoved away on some other page quite remote from ours. They have lost their interest for me, so come on, bridge, let's go. I only kicked against bridge for the weaker ones' sake, not for any objection of my own. I am quite a high stepper, neighbors, and not a killjoy. I have seen tragedies caused through bridge and could name them if required, but, of course, would rather not, and if you women insist on getting weaker ones started on gambling it rests on your shoulders, so there! Bridge is gambling, isn't it?

"Leatherhead."

No. I've played bridge many, many times, and never gambled yet, "Leatherhead," so you see you were "off on the wrong foot" from the start. Where on earth did you get the idea? And, for pity's sake, has all this fuss that has raged around my head been because of an absurd mistake?

You are in a critical mood to-day, "Leatherhead." You weren't really much interested in the old songs themselves if a printer's error in make-up killed your interest.

Really, you are not the "Leatherhead" who wrote those first sweet letters — let's know if we can help turn the clouds inside out and show the silver lining.

"Dear Marion:

"No doubt you will think I passed on to the next world with that wonderful 'flu' we all had; however, I am still here to tell the tale. I sure enjoy the Old Songs. I have cut them all out.

"I am sure those who do not care for bridge need not read it, but I think it is very unreasonable of them to try to prevent those who would like to learn. I'm sure I wouldn't miss any of the lessons if you start them. How about it, Marion? As Frenchy says, 'Yes, no,' but we hope so.

"Enclosed you will find forty cents for two patterns and fashion book. Hoping this won't be too much bother for you, Marion.

"Yours very sincerely, Irish."

I'm glad you haven't passed away, "Irish," and I hope you write many more letters. It's nice to know the old songs are appreciated.

"Dear Marion:

"Here I am again. Must write to the page, it's so interesting to read all the neighbors' letters. How the circle is extending—that says well. I am sending in some old songs; may they be of help: 'The Bells of St. Mary,' 'Love's Old Sweet Song,' and 'Sweet Belle Mahone.' Two were asked for by Leatherhead; the name brings childhood times to memory. Our school outings by horse-drawn conveyances were to Leatherhead, Eng'and. How we enjoyed the trip through country lanes with tea down in the valley of woodland flowers! I cannot imagine Leatherhead taking that long trip out to Northern Ontario away from all to such a vast space, even without children. One needs enormous strength and nerves to settle out beyond, if born to the quiet English life. This is only my opinion; maybe it's some kind neighbor's too.

"I must not make this letter too long for your valuable page is quickly filled. Hoping to try and send any songs asked for in between times, and that you will send words of song, 'The Pardon That Came Too Late,' when you find time at your convenience.

"Hoping for continued success with all the nice neighbors so united. Yours sincerely, Unity."

Thank you for your interesting letter, "Unity," and for the old songs. Those must have been jolly days of which you write.

I'll send the song some day soon.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Strict Diets Often Unnecessary

It is a well known fact that some foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequent indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree and limiting the diet to certain tasteless unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may in many instances be slowly overcome. Nine times in ten, however, indigestion, gas, etc., are due to excessive acidity and the premature souring of food in the stomach. Keep the stomach clean and sweet by freeing it of this extra acid and then sufferers can eat the foods they like best and as much as they want in reason and have no stomach trouble at all. Thousands of people do this daily by merely taking after every meal a little Bisurated Magnesia, which can be had at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. Bisurated Magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acids, stops food fermentation and meals digest as naturally and painlessly as in the stomach of a healthy child. Stomach comfort means a lot and most folks like good things to eat. Enjoy them both by making Bisurated Magnesia your daily after eating protection.

Local Industry Has Made Great Strides in Last 50 Years

ADAM HALL, LTD., CELEBRATES FIFTIETH BUSINESS ANNIVERSARY

Industry Was Founded By Late Adam Hall in 1878.

LUMBERING CENTRE THEN.

Firm Turned Out First Cast Iron and Steel Range in Dominion.

Fifty years is a long time in the history and expansion of any business. There are comparatively few manufacturing or mercantile establishments operating in Canada to-day under the same name as they founded half a century ago. Such an organization, however, is that of Adam Hall, Limited, Peterborough, Ont., manufacturers of steel ranges. The business was launched in 1878 by Adam Hall, who passed away in 1920. A son of a farmer in Smith township, he came to the then town of Peterborough as a lad and, after gaining some experience in the hardware line, started out on his own behalf. In those days, Peterborough was a great lumbering centre and the Otonabee River was the scene of much square timber being floated down its surface to Rice Lake and then on down Lake Ontario to Montreal and Quebec for export.

With prophetic vision, Mr. Hall, in his association with lumbermen and selling them supplies from his hardware store, saw the necessity of providing something comfortable and convenient for the camps along the streams and in the bush, which up to that time, possessed open chimney fire places for cooking and heating purposes. The meal preparing methods were crude and the inconveniences many, but the active mind of Mr. Hall soon evolved an idea of a suitable camp range—one that would combine heating and cooking facilities and stand every strain and service. Cast iron stoves had been made up to that time but these had not found their way to any extent in the camps. Something lighter and not so susceptible to breakage and having greater strength and more attractiveness was the big idea.

Camp Range Sales Extended

The firm say that they turned out the first cast iron and steel range in the Dominion. The body part was steel while the radiating surfaces were cast iron, such as the top, fire boxes and doors. From that day on down for half a century, many improvements have been effected in trimmings and mountings, finish and appearance, interchange of parts, etc.

Beginning in a small way, Mr. Hall's new camp ranges soon became known far and wide, as he was always in the thick of lumbering operations. He had a large measure of interest in and worked in co-operation with the camps, often situated many long miles from the base of supplies and comforts.

In 1910 the late Mr. Hall disposed of his hardware business and devoted his entire time to manufacturing stoves and ranges as his trade had developed all the way from Gaspe and Newfoundland in the east, to Vancouver Island in the West and north to Alaska.

The following year he formed a limited liability company, of which he was president until his death; his sons being identified with him in the management of the enterprise. Today the sons are carrying on the historic business most successfully. W. T. Hall, president, has associated with him his own two sons, Douglas M., superintendent of the plant, and Terrance A., accountant. A. L. F. Hall, brother of W. T. Hall, is secretary-treasurer of the company.

Evolution of the Product

The manufacture of domestic stoves was also started, and in 1914 the first combined coal and wood burner, which was the original of a popular line of domestic stoves and known as the "Tropic," was launched. Since then there have been many changes in style, pattern and design. The largest range made for the ordinary camp to-day is a six-hole one, with a 24" x 30" oven, the production of the big, cumbersome ranges of a previous period being discontinued. In earlier years a ten-hole range carried two ovens and two fire pots and a sixteen-hole range three fire pots; a twenty-hole range had an equal number of fire pots and four ovens. These were too large and heavy and, now where twelve holes are required, two ranges are linked together in order that there may not be one gigantic expanse of iron and steel as of old. There is not as much nickel adornment on stoves now, as there was a few years ago, more attention being paid to serviceability, strength and usefulness.

It is a long road from the iron covered baking kettles used for baking bread in the hot ashes when the fires were burnt out and when meats were boiled in iron pots on cranes overhanging the fires, to the well-equipped camp ranges with their galvanized copper, attachable reservoirs, which are interchangeable.

The business of Adam Hall, Limited, is one of the most solid and best managed in Canada. The firm has a strong connection and numerous lumber, mining, construction, pulpwood and other concerns are placing orders with the company to-day who started two score and more years ago. The variety and standard of cooked meals in the camps, which at one time, were restrictive, crude and primitive, are now equal to that of the finest hotels throughout the country.

W. T. Hall, president of the company, has been linked up with the business for many years and has travelled throughout a wide portion of the Dominion in the interest of the steel ranges and heaters. This pioneer industry employs from fifty to sixty hands the year round.—Canada Lumberman.

MRS. MORRIS IS RE-ELECTED

Home and School Movement Wants Recognition in Curricula of Normal Schools.

PETITION PREMIER.

TORONTO, Ont., April 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Departmental recognition of the Home and School movement in the curricula of Model and Normal schools forms the request of a resolution that will be presented to Hon. G H Ferguson, Minister of Education, to-day by representatives of the Ontario Home and School Federation. This was announced in the report of the Department of Education committee, read by Mrs. Richard Davidson, Toronto, at the closing session of the Home and School section of the Ontario Educational Association yesterday. The resolution was passed last year but no action had heretofore been taken.

Executive members of all individual Home and School Associations will form "study classes" in order to familiarize themselves with the basis of the League of Nations according to a resolution presented by Mrs. T. Robson, London, Ont. The resolution was accepted without discussion. It was felt that world conditions proved the necessity of adult education in international conditions and that the subject was of vital importance to mothers.

It was also decided that the Department of Education be requested to give music credits for Lower and Middle school standing in secondary schools. At present music credits are only given for matriculation standing.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, Peterborough, Ont., was re-elected president.

No One Downhearted And None Lamenting

Last night's meeting put another crimp in the idea that Old Home Week is not going over the top.

Upwards of forty citizens gathered in the council chamber to discuss plans and hear reports. There were lots of both.

The best report ever presented at one of the meetings was brought in by D. A. Costello, who showed other chairmen how to do it. His report was written. It told what had been done, what was planned, and what was tentatively suggested. Three members of the general committee took occasion to compliment Mr. Costello upon the completeness of the report.

Other committees that have not yet done much, last night promised to get busy right away, and they will doubtless have progress to report at the next meeting—on Thursday, April 11.

A. Mowat's suggestion to have the old school boys and girls assemble at Central school, met with a ready approval. This should be one of the most interesting features to the visitors, who, after all, are coming back with the hope of renewing their youth.

Other features that will remind the returning old boys and girls of their childhood days in Peterborough might well be given attention, and doubtless the committees will bring in recommendations for this, the central theme of the whole celebration. If evidence were needed of the importance of this feature it was given last night when F. L. Roy produced a hundred or so photographs taken by his father, some forty years ago. Everyone forgot, for the time being, the meeting in progress, and searched through the pictures for long-ago-familiar faces. In the same manner the citizens of twenty, thirty, forty years ago who will return this summer, will be looking for reminders of their youth.

Mr. Roy performed another service last night when he suggested that citizens obtain tents and beds to be set up in their back gardens to accommodate some of the thousands of visitors. It would be a pleasant experience for the guests, and a simple solution of the billetting problem.

The idea to give cups or shields that will be treasured as souvenirs of the big event, instead of other prizes, commended itself to the committee as a whole.

This idea was brought forward by D. Loomis and H. B. Rye.

Let's Get Together

FOCH declared that every man in his military staff was like the member of an orchestra. Every man had his part, and the success of the whole depended upon the enthusiasm and skill and CO-OPERATION of every individual.

It holds good in peace, too. No great project can succeed without co-operation.

And that doesn't mean sitting back and saying how glad one is to see things going so well . . .

It means DOING YOUR BIT!

It means following the leader and putting your whole heart into the piece. It means forgetting trivialities. It means sinking your own little differences in the interest of the success of the whole organization.

Every man is entitled to his own opinion, and every man has the right to tell his own opinion. But when it comes down to playing the tune—to doing the work—LET'S FOLLOW THE MUSIC

IF YOU CAN'T BE THE WHOLE BAND AT LEAST PLAY YOUR PART

How about some ideas TO-DAY? Every man and woman has an idea once in a while—dig yours up now.

How about those notices of meetings, Mr. Chairman? Everybody will look for them here.

Peterborough expects that every man will do his duty.

Chairmen: Remember the general meeting on Thursday evening at 7.30.

One of the most interesting promises made at Thursday's meeting is a military secret, and can't be divulged. Shades of DORA!

There should be some floats in the big parade showing early life in Peterborough district. Page P. G. Towns!

Girls! Start now to save your energy for the four nights of free dancing uptown during Old Home Week!

The excursions committee, under chairmanship of F. Fairen, is now composed of A. L. Killaly, F. Young, V. McCabe, W. Grady, W. C. Hughes, O. S. Mayhett, V. Hamilton, secretary and treasurer.

For the next four weeks, the dance committee will meet on Mondays at 7.30.

Will YOUR lawn be beautiful for Old Home Week?

'Remembered Things' Bringing Them Back

"Best wishes for the get-together," says Rev. John F. Davidson, King's Collegiate School, Windsor, Nova Scotia, in writing to tell the names of several former Peterborough residents now in his district. Mr. Davidson left here in 1920. His home was at St. John's Rectory, Brock street.

Pleased to Accept

"I will be very pleased to accept the invitation to the celebration if possible," writes Mrs. Annie Elliott, 108 Albertus avenue, North Toronto.

Looking Forward

"Mr. Stiner worked for eighteen years with the C.G.E., and still thinks Peterborough is all right. He is looking forward to returning for the celebration and to renew old acquaintance." So says Mrs. John Stiner, 157 Russell avenue, St. Catherines, whose husband is foreman in the English Electric Co. Mrs. Stiner was formerly Gertrude O'Neil, born in Lakefield. They lived at 241 George street.

Remembered Things

Stewart Mannell, 903 Arctic Building, Seattle, Wn., left Peterborough about 35 years ago and is now importer, exporter and engineer, under the firm name Stewart Mannell and Company. His wife was formerly Mabel Maguire of Peterborough, and a cousin, S. Fanning, resides at 33 Sophia street.

Mr. Mannell sends this poem:

REMEMBERED THINGS

How strange at day's swift ending, to recall
No long-sought plaudits of the eager throng,
But only ivy mantling a wall,
A gust of laughter or a bit of song!

How strange, to find the hard-won triumph glows
But faintly as the twilight sky grows dim,
And that the wonder of a wayside rose
Outlasts the fruits of struggle, long and grim!

How strange, that of all rare, remembered things
The dearest should be light as thistledown
And frail as butterflies' gay, painted wings,
Yet of these strands men weave for life a crown!

DETROIT BEATS WINDSOR IN THIRD GAME

OLYMPICS WIN BY 2-0 SCORE

Winners, By Aggressive Attack in the Second Period

EARN LEAD IN SERIES.

DETROIT, April 5.—Olympics can take the championship of the Canadian Professional Hockey League if they can defeat the Windsor Bulldogs in Windsor on Saturday night. They took the third game of the series here last night 2 to 0 and they deserved to win by that margin, if not by more.

For one period it was a battle, but for one period only. The Windsorites started as if they were about to make it two in a row from Foyston's team, outplaying them in the initial session and giving Stuart many hard shots to handle.

Olympics' Aggressive Attack.

In the second period the Olympics set the pace and maintained the offensive throughout. They registered twice, each time on a combination play. Three minutes after the resumption of play Filmore swung a long pass across to Goodfellow and the centre-ice star drilled in a shot from the blue line. Cox saw it too late to save and the puck whistled under his arm as he jumped.

Cox held the fort for the next fifteen minutes, but shortly before the end of the period Goodfellow engineered another play, feeding McInley with a pass in the mouth of the net. Mac was on top of the goaler as he shot and Cox didn't have any chance to save.

Play Is Listless.

The third period was comparatively tame, the Bulldogs trying hard, but failing entirely to beat the Detroit defence. On their few chance to score Stuart easily saved.

Only eleven penalties were handed out, Detroit drawing six and Windsor five. Over fourteen thousand patrons saw the contest.

Detroit—Goal, Stuart; defence, Frazer, Rockburn; centre, Goodfellow; wings, Gillie, Filmore; subs., Foyston, McCabe, McInley, Hinsperger.

Windsor — Goal, Cox; defence, Brown, Arbour; centre, Neville; wings Emms, Carson; subs., Rodden, Roach, Sorrell, Gregg, Bellemer.

Referees—Lou Marsh, Toronto, and Bobby Hewitson, Toronto.

PROMOTER AND SPRINTER

This photograph was taken at Hamilton after the big indoor meet. On the LEFT is Bobby Kerr of Hamilton, who won the 200 metres race for Canada at the London Olympiad in 1908, and on RIGHT—well, you can take two guesses and both are likely to be right—is Percy Williams of Vancouver, who triumphed in both sprints at the Amsterdam Olympiad. Kerr managed the meet up in Hamilton and Williams galloped 60 yards, equalling the world's record of 6 1-5 seconds.

BUCKY HARRIS IS GOOD LEADER

Records Show His Products Never Have Finished Out of First Division.

HAS STRONG TEAM.

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 5 (C.P.).—Whether Stanley ("Bucky") Harris plays or not, he is a factor that cannot well be overlooked when the chances of the Detroit Tigers in the forthcoming American League campaign are considered.

"Bucky" might be new to the club, but nevertheless he is an experienced hand at putting out good ball teams. His record will attest to that. In the five years that he has been wielding managerial reins, his products never have finished out of the first division.

Considerable interest will centre upon Harris' debut with the Tigers, for his accession to the managership brings them a leader of a type new to Detroit baseball. He has a way of handling the team that is interesting to study.

After holding down an outfield berth for the past ten years, Harry Heilman, whose chief enjoyment appears to be knocking dry knots out of baseball fences, has been assigned to first base. Heilman, who again aims to lead the league in hitting, is finding coverage of the initial sack much to his liking.

Dale Alexander, formerly of Toronto, a fence buster, has been hitting a mighty pace to vie with Heilman. The 6-foot 3-inch first bast prospect, who batted .380 last season, appears to have put in a stronger bid for 1929 hitting honors than has Dudley Branom, drafted from Louisville where he led the American Association in total bases and hit around .320.

Charley Gehringer, ranked as the best second sacker in the league and a .316 batsman last year, will again fill the berth he has held for the last three seasons. He has Francis Sigafoos, drafted from Portland of the Pacific Coast League, as a rival, while Manager Harris also can play second, but does not plan to do so unless an emergency arises.

Heinie Schuble, once with the St. Louis Cardinals, and last year with the Houston club of the Texas League, has been working his head off to make the shortstop grade. Mortie McManus, veteran of two years, is a certainty at third.

Speedy Outfield

If Roy Johnson, $75,000 fly chaser from the San Francisco Club of the Coast League, fits into the place Harris has opened for him, the Tigers will have an outfield possessed of both power and speed.

Harry Rice, who was secured in a trade with the St. Louis browns last spring involving Manush and Blue, and John Stone, youngster who was brought up from Evansville last fall and proved a sensation, together with Johnson, are considered an ideal outfield. All are better than .300 hitters. Robert Fothergill, whose connection with the club dates back six or seven years, is yet to be reckoned with, however.

George Uhle might have been relinquished by Cleveland because he had lost his pitching cunning, but Manager Harris is not sorry for having the great hurler on his staff. In fact, Harris is counting on the veteran to be a mainstay of the Tiger corps. Uhle, who came to Detroit via the Galloway and Tavener deal, had his "wing" treated by a specialist and is developing to the satisfaction of Harris the easy delivery of yore.

Emil Yde, former Pittsburgh pirate, is another newcomer from whom Harris expects much. Camp followers believe Earl Whitehall should be the best left-handed in the league. Whitehill has had little real success in the past, but he looks promising. Frank Barnes, a purchase from Houston, throws a left-hand curve with an easy motion.

Another portsider, Phil Page, purchased from Springfield, Ill., is showing lots of ability.

Harris has nine right-handers in addition to Uhle. Six of them were with the club last season. Owen Carroll, leading club pitcher last year, George Smith, Stocky Till Stoner, relief hurler, and Sam Gibson are the more experienced.

In all, five backstoppers are wearing the Tiger uniform, but it looks as if Mervyn Shea will be the ace of the lot. Larry Woodall, oldest catcher on the squad had a bad season last year but expects to do better. "Red" Hargrave, a good hitter, is another veteran, while Raymond Hayworth, from Shreveport, and Eddie Phillips, recalled from Toronto, are the newcomers.

RAY BURGLAR ALARM.

LONDON, April 5.—An invisible foe to burglars, infra-red rays, is being experimented with here. The rays are invisible, and can be thrown across an entire room or across a doorway. When an object passes through the rays an electric circuit is broken, causing the ringing of alarm.

LONGER FIGHTS ARE SUGGESTED IN ANWSER TO DULL CONDITIONS EXISTING IN BOXING CIRCLES

New York Expert Makes Interesting Comment On Offer From Tia Juana For 45 Round Loughran-Walker Bout.

REAL FIGHTERS AND RING FANS WOULD WELCOME SUCH A CHANGE

Wilbur Wood has the following to say in the New York Sun:

What would happen if Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker were to step into the ring to fight 45 rounds? That may seem to be a pointless query, but if the offer from Tia Juana for a return bout between the two champions on May 29 is on the up and up, all of us may learn the answer.

Wirth B. Bowman, president of the Agua Caliente Club at Tia Juana, says he is willing to give Loughran $100,000 for such a fight. Thus far, Bowman has not mentioned what he would be willing to hand over to Walker. On the basis of the split-up of the cash after their Chicago bout, Walker would want a million dollars.

Could not Last.

One thing is virtually certain—that neither Loughran nor Walker could have gone 45 rounds, or even close to that long, in Chicago last Thursday evening. Even 10 was too much for them then.

Suppose Tommy and Mickey had been informed, at the end of the tenth round, that they would have to stay in there and go 35 more frames. Who would have lasted the longer? Would Loughran gradually have worn Walker down with his long left jabs, or would Tommy have broken down as a result of Mickey's bulling tactics? Or would they have twined their arms around each other and gone down together like a couple of drowning men along about the nineteenth round?

Fight fans who can recall the 25-round fights here in the days of the Horton law and the finish fights of an even earlier era, would be willing to hock their Easter finery to see a revival of the long distance fight. Many a man who has turned into a fistic hermit since 10-round bouts have become the established order, would come out of his cell, or wherever such hermits hang out, to see a fight billed for 45 rounds.

Followers of the sock market who followed the game in the old days when the gladiators fought to a finish, or at least 25 rounds, consider the sport to-day just a parlor pastime. They can't get any kick out of it.

Draw Big Crowd.

For that very reason a forty-five round fight such as proposed by Bowman in Tia Juana, where there is no limit, might attract an enormous gathering. The old timers would get there by hook or crook and the younger generation, never having seen a long battle, would be just as eager to sit in.

Loughran made only a little pocket money out of his Chicago fight. If he can pick up $100,000 for a forty-five round fight in Tia Juana he might as well go to it, for he never will grab that much coin for one night's work any other way unless our calculations are all wrong.

Walker might not be so keen on such a scrimmage, but unless the gab handed out by his manager, Jack Kearns, is 100 per cent. bunk, he should leap at another chance to grab the title, even if all he got out of it was training expenses. Kearns will tell you that Walker can whip any man in the world to-day in a finish fight. This may be Mickey's chance to prove it.

While this subject is up for discussion it is meet and fitting to remind William F. Carey, the new head of Madison Square Garden, and also Jack Dempsey and Humbert Fugazy, that the fans will appreciate it if they book their important fights this summer for fifteen rounds, the maximum distance permitted in this state.

What the fans want when they dish out their dough to see a brace of fighters who claim they are good is a decisive result. Fifteen rounds may not be long enough for that, but fifteen rounds is five rounds better than ten, according to old style arithmetic.

Rickard had the Idea.

Some time before he passed away Tex Rickard informed the writer that it was his intention to book all his big fights over the fifteen round route this summer.

Fancy boxers may squawk if asked to travel fifteen rounds. Real fighters will welcome such a command. A fellow like Paulino Uzcudun, who comes closer to the old-time fans' idea of what a fighter should be, is one who would be well suited if given a chance in a finish fight. It is doughful if there is a man around who would be able to whip the Basque in such a battle.

According to the present schedule Paulino and Max Schmeling are to box at the Yankee Stadium on June 26, with the winner to meet Jack Sharkey in a contest that probably will be billed as a championship affair. The least Messrs. Paulino, Schmeling and Sharkey can do for a long suffering public, which will be taxed heavily for these fights, is to agree cheerfully to a fifteen round route. To argue against fifteen rounds is a confession of weakness. Many a better man fought longer than that for much less than what these fellows will take out of the pockets of the boxing public.

LARGE ENTRY IN KING'S PLATE

Fifty-Eight Canadian-Breds Are Named to Start in Big Event.

RACE TO BE OPEN ONE

TORONTO, Ont., April 5.—(By the Canadian Press).—It is early yet to consider closely the merits of the candidates for the King's Plate, outstanding event of the Canadian turf, but the season will open at old Woodbine Park here on May 18 and perhaps a record field will start in the classic, which features the opening day program. At any rate 58 Canadian-breds are named in the entries for the 1929 renewal of the oldest continuously-run stake event on the American continent.

The race will be over the mile and a quarter course for the 50 guineas offered by the King and $15,000 added by the Ontario Jockey Club.

At this time a King's Plate story can hardly be more than a memorandum of the two-year-old form of the entrants, and this form is generally inadequate. The juvenile records do not show a candidate's worth over a mile, and as the plate distance is 10 furlongs, only breeding can be used as authority for staying power. Again, the two-year-old ugly duckling often comes out the swan in his three-year-old year. Older entries must carry crushing imposts in the scale of weights, and most handicappers therefore consider their chances mighty slim.

Supporting Pin Wheel.

Gossip among Canadian turf enthusiasts appear to centre the favoritism on the Thorncliffe and Seagram stable entries, with the bulk of the support going to Pin Wheel, winner of the closing juvenile homebred stakes, and Circulet, the speedy Seagramite who was undefeated until he broke down in the Clarendon Plate. Outsiders, however, are given greater consideration this year than in 1928 when Young Kitty overshadowed her field, and the race is expected to be an "open one."

Circulet, Irish Sphere and Dance Circle are the trio entered by the Seagrams and on their juvenile form up to midseason the first two named appear to have a regal chance to repeat the success of the Waterloo establishment.

Fred Schelke, placid conditioner of the Thorncliffe Stable string, will undoubtedly pin his hopes on Pin Wheel, the chestnut son of First Sight-Skyrocket, bred by Mrs. Livingston at her Cobourg farm. Then there is also Shorelint, a winner at Woodbine in the fall, and Fair Oil another with a keen turn of speed. Pin Wheel was the first to cross under the wire in front of the meteoric Circulet and he repeated impressively in the leading homebred juvenile test at the Woodbine second meeting. Here is the favorite, according to early calculations.

Has Won Three Races.

Cuddle Doon, a trim bay Lovetie filly, will likely be the first string in the Hastings Stable's bow. She has developed into a beautiful three-year-old and she will be a threat if she runs back to her juvenile form when she won three races.

From juvenile form it does not appear as though J. C. Fletcher will hold as strong a hand in the King's Plate as he did last year with Hann Deebie and Duska. The latter and Ichitaro are entered, but must tote four-year-old weight.

H. Ryland New, the Hamilton man whose colors flew victoriously over Troutlet in the 1927 Plate in his first season on the turf, is back again on the list with four candidates. Corera, Vestrip, Bendorb and Edinorb. J. P. White of Cedarcrest farm will likely pin his hopes on the Gauntley filly, Ladycrest, and R. W. R. Cowie may have a contender in his Master Bobbie.

The 1928 winners that showed a decided liking for a distance of ground are Robt. Dewell's Airdrome and Mrs. Ed. Glassee's Daisy Fair. The Windsor sportswoman provided a sterling contender in 1927, when Mr. Gaiety carried the red-starred green jacket into second position.

PRO GOLF TOURNEY IS WON BY DUNCAN

British Ryder Cup Players Show Good Form in Competition.

FRINTON-ON-SEA, England, April 5.—Led by its Captain, George Duncan, who showed the way with low score, the players of the British Ryder Cup team performed brilliantly in the season's first professional tournament. With all but one of the players selected to oppose the team from the United States participating, Duncan won the 36 hole medal play competition with a score of 143, connecting two consistent rounds of 71 and 72.

Abe Mitchell, after setting a new course record with a sensational 69 for the first round slipped to 76 on the second test and finished in a tie for second with Charles Whitcombe.

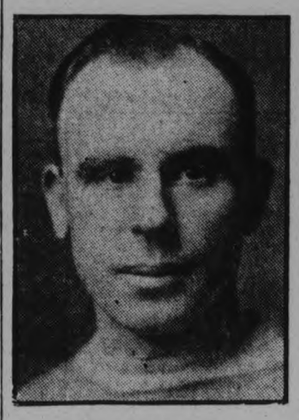
Archie Compston suffered from some erratic shots in the morning when he was around in 77, but he did the afternoon 18 in 72. Henry Cotton, just back from the United States, played well in the afternoon when he scored 72 after he had used 81 in the morning.

Other scores for the 36 holes; Ernest Whitcombe, 147; Ted Ray, 148; Aubrey Boomer, 150; Fred Robson, 150; James Baird, 151; Arthur Havers, 154; George Gadd, 160.

ONE UP IN FINAL

PINEHURST, N.C., April 5 (C.P.)—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, national women's gold champion, rounded the turn one up on Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, in the final match of the North and South Women's tournament to-day.

McLEOD AND RANGER HOME AFTER STRENUOUS SEASON IN THE PRO HOCKEY RANKS



BERT McLEOD.

WILFRED RANGER.

Bert McLeod and Wilfrid Ranger, Peterborough's representatives among the salaried hockey experts, are home again after their five months' season with the Kansas City (Missouri) club in the American Hockey Association.

After leading the league all season to the final road trip Kansas City ran into a series of reverses that pushed them down in the standing until in the last game of the schedule Tulsa shut them out of the playoffs on a close decision and then went out and won the championship.

Mr. McLeod will now devote his rugged energies to his drug store at the corner of Park and Albert streets which under his brother's management during the winter has been developing a steadily increasing business to such good effect that March was the best month since Mr. McLeod moved into the shadow of the Canadian General Electric Company's factory. He has not yet decided whether he will hang up his skates for keeps this Spring. His place on the Kansas City team will be open for him, and it is more than possible that he will again be on his way west in the first week of next November. However, he is undecided, and has plenty of time to make up his mind.

Hockey Interest Spreading

The American Hockey Association had a thoroughly satisfactory and successful season, Mr. McLeod reports. Next winter its six-club group will likely be increased to eight. Oklahoma City is one of the two towns preparing to join the "pro" hockey company. Hockey in the Middle West has caught the fancy of the sports crowd and may be regarded as already firmly established. The race for the playoffs was interesting and the clubs were delighted with the response of the fans as registered in the gate receipts.

A Million Dollar Rink

"The Tulsa rink is generally said to be the finest on the continent," Mr. McLeod told The Examiner. "They said it cost one million dollars. Walter Whiteside is the man who brought hockey to Tulsa. He used to live in Duluth, but made about sixty millions in the Oklahoma oil fields. Hockey is a hobby to him. His rink reminds you of a theatre. It has a beautiful ceiling and all the electric lamps are concealed. As a result you have a strong but soft light on the ice. A special ventilation system keeps the air fresh. The seats are deeply upholstered theatre chairs, and the spectator sinks in them just as comfortably as at the opera. The lobbies include a restaurant, lounge and all that sort of thing for the fans. The rink is heated. Sometimes the heat makes the ice a trifle sticky, but on the whole it doesn't affect the game.

Crowd Learning the Game

Tulsa saw its first hockey this winter, and unlike the Kansas City crowd was unfamiliar with the fine points of the game and therefore uncertain as to what to yell about and when. It was rather a strange experience to be playing at times in comparative silence. But the Tulsa crowd was "wising up" toward the end of the season. The success of their team in winning the championship will give the game a great boost in Oklahoma.

Thousands Learn to Skate

Another strange experience, Mr. McLeod said, was to see the crowds of people learning to skate.

Skating and hockey were both new interests and pastimes, but both were popular. At night there would be anywhere from 1000 to 1500 skaters venturing out on the unfamiliar steel blades, but getting a lot of fun out of their bumps and their first strides.

The skaters were charged 50c to enter the rink, 50 cents to rent skates if they had none of their own and perhaps $1.50 a half hour for an instructor's help and guidance. On Saturday morning it was not unusual to see 1,200 to 1,300 children all learning to skate. The spectacle was just exactly what you imagine it would be.

"Duke" Keats With Tulsa

The owner of the Tulsa club wanted a winning team and paid up to $4,500 for the season. The manager is Dick Carroll, who handled the St. Pat's team of Toronto a few years ago, and last summer directed the Guelph amateur ball team. One of the Tulsa players was "Duke" Keats, who came to Peterborough before he had reached the hockey heights in the ambitious days of the late John McLarry, who lacked only an Oklahoma oil well to have given Peterborough the cream of the hockey talent at that time. Keats had a good season with the Tulsa team.

Virtually All Canadians

All but four of the players composing the six teams are Canadians. These four are with St. Paul team, and are a clever quartet, Mr. McLeod says. Winter in St. Paul and Minneapolis is much the same as Peterborough, and it is natural that the northern end of the circuit should produce some of its own players.

The winter just passed was the coldest in twenty-five years. Kansas City collected considerable snow all through January and February and there were also a few falls in Tulsa, but March was sunny and a real introduction to Spring.

music of Paderewski's famous composition for this dance.

A baby doll with a lot of marabou trimming to her gaily tinted dress did a "split" dance with great abandon; there was a trio of little things in a frightened child song number, and a very skilful small lassie in kilts and tartan did a clever sword dance.

One of the loveliest bits was a toe or "point" dance by a small Geisha girl in beautiful dress of Japanese origin and a boy and girl had a vivid "tough" dance in a Bowery number that was splendidly presented. The tiny tot of the company sang "School Days" as an odd introduction to a demonstration of the Charleston dance, and a small graceful girl did a sailor's hornpipe. The finale, in an orchestra jazzing of "Varsity Rag," brought much applause to the clever youngsters.

The feature picture stars William Boyd as "The Cop" and Jacqueline Logan as "The Girl." It is one of those curiously-directed pictures which appear to have a big theme, handled in a small way. Much emphasis is put on little bits that are rather tiresome, and the big scenes, in the gangster hold-up on the streets of New York and the unexplained killing of "The Louse," are merely flash ins and disappear in a twinkling, with very little elaboration.

"The Cop" is a brash youngster, who has a big heart and little intelligence. He joins the forces of New York's police and gets mixed up with a "racketeer" and the racketeer's girl. The picture ends satisfactorily for the cop and the girl, but it flattens out disappointing at large moments.

The comedy is named "Troubles Galore," and has an amateur cook as the hero. —Jeanette.

MONTREAL, April 5.—Practically one and three-quarter millions of people bought admission tickets to regular league fixtures and Stanley Cup games of the National Hockey League during the season just ended, according to official attendance figures issued at league headquarters here yesterday.

Tickets to the number of 1,604,921 were purchased for scheduled fixtures, while 131,921 persons passed through the turnstiles for Stanley Cup games. The total shows an increase over paid admissions of last year amounting to approximately 22 per cent.

CHICAGO HEAD HANDS SHIRES STERN REBUKE

Comiskey Sends First Base Star of Chicago American Home.

PLAYERS DISSATISFIED.

Club Owner Intends Rigid Backing For Lena Blackburne.

CHICAGO, April 5 (Canadian Press).—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago Americans, ruling with an iron hand, yesterday stepped in to end the rebellion brewing among the White Sox.

The "Old Roman," in a long distance telephone conversation with Manager Russell Blackburne, ordered Art Shires, recalcitrant young first baseman, to return to his home in Italy, Texas, and remain there at his own expense until he considers that he is in playing condition.

The order was received by Blackburne in Dallas, Texas, a few minutes before Shires was scheduled to board a Chicago bound train for a star chamber session with the "Old Roman." Thus, Comiskey made it plain to the White Sox that Manager Blackburne could do all the dealings with the dissatisfied players and that his word was law.

Both Were Benched.

Shires, a promising rookie first baseman, and Bill Cissell, who cost the Sox $123,000 in 1927, were benched, and Shires dethroned as captain, at Ennes, Texas, last week when they were charged with celebrating too much and then refusing to obey Manager Blackburne. Cissell, reports to Comiskey said, has since made peace with Blackburne and other dissatisfied players also have quieted down.

Blackburne has the reputation of being a stern disciplinarian, a quality Comiskey said he found lacking in Ray Schalk, whom Blackburne succeeded.

Paul Waner Signs Pittsburgh Contract

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 5.—Paul Waner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates ended his hold-out by signing a contract with Barney Dreyfuss, President of the club, here yesterday. The terms were not announced. Waner said after the conference that he was satisfied with the contract. Waner had asked for $18,000. Waner left to-day for his home in Oklahoma City, announcing that he would return here to-day to don a uniform for the first time this spring.

FOSTER WILL PLAY WITH N.Y. RANGERS

Will Be Promoted For Trial From Canadian-American League.

NEW YORK, April 5.—There will be no startling changes made in the personnel of the New York Rangers prior to next season, Colonel John Hammond, President of the club, stated yesterday in reply to queries regarding the reported breaking up of the team which won the Stanley Cup last year and battled its way to the final against Boston this year.

Russell Oatman and Gerald Carson will be disposed of, the Colonel stated, while Harry ("Yip") Foster, defense player of the Springfield Indians, in the Canadian-American League, will be added to the roster.

Foster, who is a native of Toronto, and a former football star, was signed by Hammond two years ago, but was sent to Springfield for seasoning. An attempt was made to recall him during the regular National Hockey League seaeson, but Hammond was outvoted by other league directors.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Plans for a boxing tournament are being made, and the tourney will likely be held next Thursday.

STUDENTS IN GOOD FIGHTING TRIM.

The student boxers at the Y.M.C.A. have been making rapid progress under the expert tuition of Soldier Jones and it is now thought that the boys have reached sufficiently along the path of perfection to participate in a tourney. All have taken their lessons seriously and several hav e developed real class. The tourn ament will be held under the auspices of the Y's Men's Club and arrangements are being mad e to hold it in the "Y" gym on Thursday evening. Chris Graham has been suggested as the third man in the ring.

"Y" HARRIERS BEGIN TRAINING

The "Y" Harriers are getting down to strenuous training, grooming themselves for participation in the many athletic meets that are to be held this summer. Nightly a squad of them patter up Water street and circle the north end. The runners have no trainer, doing all the road work on their own, proving how keenly taken up with the game they really are. An experienced runner, who would take on the duties of coach, would be most welcome by the boys.

COLORED BALLS FOR DIAMOND PASTIME.

Will the ball players soon be tossing around blue and pink colored baseballs? Golf and tennis which have been made more colorful by the introduction of orange, red and green balls, have been followed by baseball, the Associated Press reported yesterday. A bright yellow baseball is now on the market, making the old white "horsehide" seem pale. Golf has extended the riot of color to the club shafts with green and red predominating in the new Spring models. The orange golf balls have filled a long felt need on courses where there is a wealth of sand, but they may become as elusive as the white ones when the dandelions bloom.

DISSENSION IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Trouble has been brewing in many of major league training camps and several disagreements have broken out into open warfare in which the participants called each other bad names and such. One of the greatest outbursts was in the White Sox camp and it looked for a few days as though the team was nigh shot to pieces. But the hustling manager, Lena Blackburne, one time with the Toronto Leafs for a brief stay, has settled the players back contentedly. He is inclined to minimize the revolation in the White Sox ranks. "It's nothing at all" Lena is reported as having said. His field captain exploded in his face and his $75,000 shortstop broke training and was suspended. Just what would Lena call a cloud burst?

* * * * * *

SEVERAL CHANG ES IN ROSTERS

But in spite of all such trouble the teams in the south are making rapid progress along the steep grade to mid-season form. There have been several shake ups in the teams. The Pirates will face the barrier with two, and possibly three, replacements in their infield. The Waner hold-out problem has complicated matters. The Cardinals will have two new infielders. Chick Hafey has taken to wearing glasses at the bat as well as in the field and it is said that it improves his batting. The players are settling down for the hard grind and it won't be long now till "Play ball" will ring in ball parks all over the continent.

SHORE DEMANDS BIG SALARY INCREASE

Announcement from Boston that Eddie Shore of the Bruins is demanding $17,500 for next season is causing some laughter. Shore is a great player but $17,500 for 44 games is beyond all reason, especially when a player like Joliat gets only $4,800. While figures are not available, it is believed that Bill Cook received the largest salary ever paid a professional hockey player when he signed for $8,000, but at the time he was a free agent and many clubs sought his services. Conacher is said to have drawn down $7,000 from the Americans this season, but the majority of the salaries for the regulars in the N.H.L. are around $5,000

HOW ENGLAND VIEWS HOCKEY

Under the caption Funniest Game in the World—Speed and Thrills of Ice Hockey, the London, England, Express reported a game between England and France as follows:

"Ice hockey is the fastest game in the world. It is also one of the funniest.

"England played France at the Ice club on Saturday night, and won by 6 goals to 1, which was hard luck on France.

"The Frenchmen looked so much smarter. They wore yellow jerseys, clean white shorts, and black stockings, and looked like wasps. The English wore dark blue jersey, shorts of various shades that appeared to have seen long service on rugger fields uninterrupted by the laundry, and red stockings. The goalkeepers looked like a mixture of a robot, a batsman and knight in armor.

"They had the best time. Every time they went down they were applauded.

"A curious thing about ice hockey is that the players, not the spectators, make the noise. Howls and cries and sharp ejaculations in English and French rang and echoed; the ball bang-banged on the wooden boundary with a noise like those they make at the pictures during war films. Skates whirred as the men turned suddenly, sticks clashed, and occasionally there was a thud as a man was thrown violently against the boundary.

"Nobody, however, had time to be hurt. The game was back and forwards, back and forwards, almost as quickly as you can say the words. The speed was terrific; every decision was instantaneous—or it was useless.

"It would be difficult to say why England won so decisively, unless it was due to the goalkeeper, a wonderful little man with a jaw and a coolness worthy of the ground he stood on.

"The French goalkeeper shook his hand enthusiastically at the end of the game, so, perhaps, he understood."

THEATRES

THE SUNSHINE KIDDIES AND "THE COP."

The Sunshine Kiddies who have been entertaining crowds at the Capitol Theatre during the past week, proved themselves to be indeed a very versatile and clever aggregation of youthful players when they appeared yesterday in a complete change of program for their second session here. They have plenty of entertainment in their varied repertoire of music, song, and dance, and their jazz orchestra went over big again, with an interlude in an Argentine Tango, the girl in cloth of gold costume and the boy in white satin outfit.

Another gorgeous small dance was a lovely minuet number in which the two miniature performers were also in gold cloth costumes, dancing the favorite old-time minuet to the music of Paderewski's famous composition for this dance.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

'CITY BEAUTIFUL' CAMPAIGN ATTRACTING MANY FOLLOWERS

Lawn Protection Is Only Basis of Wider Movement Now Begun.

CARDS GIVEN.

Total of 52,000 Square Feet of Lawn Now Enrolled By Citizens.

The Examiner's campaign for protection of the lawns of Peterborough, and the beautification of its gardens, is popular. So much may be gathered from the response to the request to days ago.

As a practical evidence of its interest, The Examiner gives to everyone signing a promise to respect and care for the lawns of the city, two "Please Keep Off the Lawn" signs, neatly printed in green on stiff card. If everyone in the city would place these cards on his lawn there would be no danger of the sward-destroying, corner-cutting, and everyone would be helping along with the good work. All that is needed is to sign the coupon and bring it to The Examiner Office, when two cards will be given in exchange. If desired, the coupon may be mailed, with a two cent stamp enclosed to cover postage on the cards.

This is the promise: "I will endeavor in all possible and legitimate ways to preserve my lawn; I will check up persons who habitually walk on it; I will care for my lawn regularly so that it will always be attractive; I will not 'cut across' any other person's lawn."

Up to last night the following had signed the promise, and had been supplied with cards:

Mrs. W. Lowes, 83 Aylmer street.
P. S. Dallin, 2 Brown street.
George Gimblett, 304 King street.
Paul Shank, 444 Rogers street.
A. Rishea, 70 Park street south.
W. J. Collins, 297 Westcott street.
Ed. O'Toole, 290 Westcott street.
P. Black, 476 Charlotte street.
Mrs. L. J. Cleary, 492 Driscoll terrace.
Mrs. Pringle, 144 London street.
John Pirie, 547 Romaine street.
Mrs. E. Ecobichon, 703 Aylmer street.
R. M. Glover, 572 Charlotte street.
T. H. Gillespie, 176 McDonnel street.
Mrs. Thos. Watson, 227 Prince street.
W. Jobe, 448 George street south.
E. J. Brown, 191 Dublin street.
J. R. Heron, 193 Aylmer street.
Mrs. D. Corkery, 238 Westcott street.
A. Hartshorn, 10 Victoria avenue.
J. J. Turner, 515 Water street.

These citizens, who have signed the promise in the interests of a more beautiful Peterborough, have a combined area of 52,353 square feet. To have that protected is a big achievement—and hundreds more are yet to sign.

Organizations Help.

The Examiner's campaign is backed by Rotary Club, the milk dealers, the post office and the bakeries in the city. Everyone recognizes the need for a concerted action to preserve the lawns, and everyone seems willing to help. It but remains for the householders themselves to take up the movement in force, and see how beautiful Peterborough will look by the dawn of Old Home Week.

Official Flower Proposed.

It has been proposed that Peterborough adopt an official flower, and The Examiner will be pleased to receive suggestions along this line. It would be nice to have a flower that appears in every garden, and is known as the flower of Peterborough. Then, says the man who passes on this idea, there might be asmall show of this particular flower, with prizes.

BOY ORATOR COMING.

William Fox Will Be Speaker at St. Paul's Canadian Night.

William Fox, Jr., of London, Ont., who will be the speaker at St. Paul's Church Canadian Night next Monday, has a splendid reputation as an orator. His triumphs include the winning of the Ontario Championship at Toronto May 2, 1928; the Canadian Championship at Toronto, May 16, 1928, and the International Championship at Washington, D.C., October 13, 1928. At Washington the Mexican, French and Canadian entrants were tied for first place, the judges being unable to decide between them. The candidates drew for position, as a result of which Mr. Fox was relegated to third place, the French and Mexican orators taking first and second respectively.

The organizers of the evening are persuaded that in this Canadian night they have an entertainment that will compare well with the Scotch, English, and Irish nights which proved so successful.

COLOR SCHEMES ARE OUTLINED

Miss Ernestine Baker Addresses Audience in St. John's Parish Hall.

"COLOR IN THE BEDROOM."

"If we feel beauty in our hearts and our hands we can put it into our homes. Your sleeping room is a room of peace and rest and quiet and it may be beautiful as well if you want it to reflect your personality. The softer, pastel shades are the best in creating a feeling of restfulness and peace."

Miss Ernestine H. Baker of New York City, color adviser to the Wabasso Mills of Quebec, spoke to one hundred and forty ladies of the city yesterday, n St. John's Church parish hall, on the subject of the use of "Color in the Bedroom," and her pleasant manner of presenting her ideas, as well as the practical demonstration given in the way of draping a bed in different color schemes, made this a very interesting talk.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Evening Branch of St. John's Women's Association, and the speaker was introduced by the president, Mrs. George Wesley. A very pretty vocal solo entitled "O Flower Divine" was contributed by Mrs. J. Dickenson, with accompaniment played by Mrs. R. Ross.

Sensitive to Color.

"People have always been sensitive to color," said Miss Baker, "and animals are also very sensitive to different hues." The speaker went on to outline various experiments which demonstrated how differently insects would react to a mild, soothing color like blue, and their contrary reaction to the excitement of red. She also mentioned researches which had been made and proved that mosquitoes will avoid the wearer of a yellow gown.

The primitive races had a fondness for bright colors, as have the modern Indian squaws, who use gay tints in making their blankets. But there is a charm and delicacy in soft, pastel tints that is making them very popular just now in their use in bed-linen furnishings, an evolution of the old idea that white was the only proper color for such things.

Comfortable and Attractive.

"We spend one-third of our lives in our bedrooms, and we should make them as comfortable and attractive as possible," said Miss Baker. "Colors affect our dispositions and the dispositions of our children and in this way they make for the happiness of our daily lives. We should get away from the drabness of life as much as we can."

The speaker went on to emphasize the use of the cool colors, such as blue, lavender and green, in hot summer days, and the use of the warm shades of rose, pink, yellow and peach, in winter weather and also in the clothing of the bed of a north room, where yellow was always good, as an imitation of sunshine.

The sizes of sheets were also considered and the recommendation made for the use of a sheet 81 inches by 108 inches, to allow of generous tucking in on a double bed and also to allow for inevitable shrinking in laundering.

Miss Baker illustrated her talk by an interesting demonstration of proper bed-making and also showed the effect of different color combinations, such as green sheets and green blankets, used with blue pillow-slips and a blue spread, or pink and rose combinations, or sets all of the one color, or lovely combinations like green sheets and yellow spreads.

She also showed the latest novelties in nighties and pyjama sets, which are designed to follow out in their color schemes the same hues used in the bed linens. A little pyjama set of printed yellow and green blended beautifully with the green and yellow bed furnishings referred to above, while a gown in rosebud pattern was the finishing touch to the ensemble in pink and rose.

Wedding Bells

MOORE—GILES.
The marriage took place quietly on March 23, at St. Luke's church, of Mrs. Annie F. Giles of Peterborough, and Mr. James H. Moore of Warsaw. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, and attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Eva Patterson and Mr. Reg. Dyer.

BROWNE—MARCHAND
A pretty wedding took place on Thursday at three o'clock at St. George's Anglican church in Oshawa, when Maria Bernadette, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Marchand of Peterborough, became the bride of Ernest George Browne, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Browne, of King George street, Peterborough.
Attendants were Miss Isabella Scott and Captain Arthur Mason of Oshawa.
The bride wore a lovely ensemble of Russian blue georgette and sand, trimmed with lace, with hat to match, taupe silk stocking and black shoes. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.
Later a dainty buffet luncheon was served to the guests, who included Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marchand of Peterborough.
The bride and bridegroom will reside in Oshawa, where Mr. Browne is employed with the Williams Piano Company, as designer. The staff of the Williams' establishment presented a handsome tray of flat silver to Mr. and Mrs. Browne.

In Police Court

A radio owners' indignation broadcast with Magistrate O. A. Langley presiding at the "mike" was the feature attraction of this morning's police court program when the usual gallery tuned in on some decidedly heated argument provoked by some recent scouting of the Dominion radio license inspectors in the city. When Alex Elliott acting for the Department figuratively turned the dials he set in action a hook-up of local citizens, loud in their condemnation of radio inspectors, licenses and all pertaining to them, but from all pleas of guilty were picked up without interference. A local taxi man was catalogued $5.00 and costs; a hardware clerk nearly burned out a tube remonstrating, but got some distance in that he was only fined the $5.00 without costs, while there was oscillation galore in a local government man's denunciation of the treatment accorded him by the visiting inspectors. A doctor was picked up but faded badly on plea of guilty, being dialed at $5.00 and costs. A grain merchant, whose plea also came in from out of court, was fined the customary five spot plus costs.
Three men, two of them residents of Norwood were fined $14.50 (exclusive of costs) $24.50 and $15.00 on charges of intoxication.

WASH-OUT CLAIMS LOCAL LIVES

TWO ENGINEERS ARE KILLED

NEWS IN BRIEF

MOTH PLANE CRASHES

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., April 6 (C.P.).—T. W. Abray, of St. Catharines, Ont., sustained serious fractures, and Flying Officer D. H. MacCaul facial injuries, when their Moth airplane crashed as the result of a spinning nose dive here to-day. Mr. Abray was taking instruction in the flying instructors' course. His condition is uncertain.

BOY COMMITS SUICIDE

MOOSEJAW, Sask., April 6 (C.P.) —Hanging at the end of a rope, the body of Richard Rummell, 17, was found by his father in the barn at the farm home near Mortlach. The boy is believed to have suicided while temporarily insane.

CLUES PROVE FRUITLESS

TORONTO, Ont., April 6 (C.P.).—No trace has yet been found of George M. Hendry, missing Toronto business man. At the conclusion of yesterday's search local police were no nearer a solution as to his whereabouts than when they started their hunt five days ago. Several clues, which at first gave promise of throwing some light on the mystery, proved fruitless yesterday.

AMERICANS BEAT SEATTLE

SEATTLE, Wn., April 6.—(Canadian Press).—New York Americans of the National Hockey League defeated Seattle Eskimos of the Pacific Coast League in an exhibition game here last night, 6 to 4. When the final period opened the Americans were four goals to the good and a free scoring session gave them two more, while the Eskimos ran in four counters.

FRENCH STEAMER AGROUND

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 6. —(Canadian Press). —Groping her way to sea during a dense fog this morning, the French liner, Paris, bound for Havre with 1,000 passengers grounded on the soft mud flats off Bay Ridge. No passengers were injured and no damage done.

ROUTED BY ORILLIA.

TORONTO, Ont., April 6 (Special to The Examiner).—The first train to leave Toronto to-day for the east was the regular C.N.R. inter-city train which pulled out of the Union Station at 1.30 p.m. The train, which was routed via Orillia, Atherley Junction, Lindsay, Peterborough and Belleville, will be split into two sections at Napanee as usual, one proceeding to Ottawa and the other to Montreal.

SOME IMPROVEMENT SHOWN.

LONDON, April 6. (C.P.) — New diathermal treatment has been decided upon for the rheumatism symptoms in the King's left shoulder, disclosure of which was made only in the last bulletin from Craigwell House.

It is not definitely known whether the trouble is rheumatism or neuritis. There has been some improvement recently although no treatment has been given yet.

PASSENGER COACH WRECKED

TEMPLE, Texas, April 6. (C.P.) —A passenger coach of the Southbound Santa Fe train was wrecked 15 miles north of here to-day by a mysterious explosion. No passengers were seriously injured.

BEER RUNNER IS SHOT.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 6. (C.P.) — Two gangsters walked up behind Frank "Red" Kryeger last night as he sat in an automobile, and shot him twice in the back of the head. Krueger, who was a beer runner, died before reaching a hospital.

BELIEVED NEAR THURNBURN BLUFF

PERTH, N.S.W., April 6 (C.P.).—Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions of the Southern Cross were believed to-day to be down southwest of Thurnburn Bluff, Western Australia. A government launch, with searching party, was sent for them. Information was conveyed in a telegram this morning to Philip Collin, Premier of Western Australia, from Colonel Mansbridge, resident magistrate at Brooms, Far West Australian coast.

Roadbed Is Softened By Rain

Engineers On Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Trains Killed.

NEAR BOWMANVILLE.

All Rail Traffic Is Tied Up in Central Ontario.

TORONTO, Ont., April 6.—(Canadian Press).—Two lives are believed to have been lost, hundreds of railway passengers were stranded as the railways struggled to extricate themselves from one of the worst traffic tie-ups in years, as the result of a storm that swept over Central Ontario last night, undermining railway roadbeds, bridges, culverts and highways, and sending rivers over their banks.

Derailment of a Canadian Pacific freight train near Bowmanville resulted in the death of Engineer John Kennedy, of Toronto and the derailment of Canadian National No. 20, which left last night for Montreal, is believed to have cost Engineer Robert Milne of Belleville his life. Both were pinned under the locomotives, which turned over. Milne is listed as missing by railway officials. No passengers were injured.

Nine Trains Tied Up

Nine passenger trains were tied up by washouts and other damage to railway facilities—six on the Canadian Pacific railway and three on the Canadian National. The Ottawa-Toronto train on the C.P.R. is stranded between a washout bridge and a washout area near Locust Hill but the C. N. R. train from Ottawa to Toronto subsequently reached its destination after detouring by Peterborough.

The three trains which left Montreal for Toronto on the C. P. R. last night are also stranded, but the three Montreal-Toronto trains on the C. N. R. were able to reach Toronto after detournment through Peterborough.

The C. P. R. and C. N. R. Toronto-Montreal trains and the C. P. R. and C. N. R. Toronto-Ottawa train, all of which left last night, have been unable to proceed owing to devastation wrought by the heavy rain, and are being held up at different places along the line.

Eastbound trains from Toronto are nearly all being cancelled or detour until repairs are made. Resumption of normal traffic is expected some time to-night or early tomorrow morning. C. N. R. train No. 6 will leave for Montreal this afternoon, but is taking a circuitous route north to Orillia and southeast to Belleville to get on the main line.

C. N. R. Toronto-Winnipeg train No. 3 is being detained at Bussard, Ontario, about 40 miles north of Toronto, owing to bad track conditions north of there. It left here at 9 o'clock last night.

FIVE ARE KNOWN TO HAVE DIED IN LAST NIGHT'S WILD RAINSTORM THROUGHOUT CENTRAL ONTARIO

Ambulance Division Will Be Organized

It has been proposed by some members of the St. John's Ambulance corps that a division be formed in Peterborough to serve during Old Home Week, and an organization meeting will be held in the Canadian Legion hall on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Comrade Samuel Berry, of the Legion, is taking a leading part in the plan. He informed The Examiner to-day that fifteen men will be required to form a division. Any qualified man is invited to join in what will be a worth while contribution to the Old Home Week. Comrade Berry has fully particulars of organization from the overseas division of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade, and will present this information on Tuesday evening.

Rivers At Galt, Guelph and Kitchener Overflow, Causing Great Damage.

RAILWAYS UNDERMINED.

Several Lose Their Lives When Cars Crash Through Bridges.

TORONTO, Ont., April 6. (C.P.) — As reports tricked in from outlying sections to-day, the death toll as the result of last night's wild rainstorm in Central Ontario mounted to five known dead, one missing, and unconfirmed reports indicated as many as eight persons lost their lives.

In addition to the two persons drowned when an automobile went through a bridge at Harmony Creek, Ont., the fatal injury to a C.P.R. freight train engineer, and the probable death of a C.N.R. passenger train engineer, who is listed as missing, reports of two drownings as the result of floods reached here early this afternoon.

John Miller, aged 40, of Ormerod, Ont., lost his life when his truck crashed through a bridge over the Rouge River, just east of here, and Oran Cook, aged 13, was drowned in flood waters near Painswick, Ont.

A rumor that two persons lost their lives in floods near Bradford, Ont., is being investigated.

Rivers at Galt, Guelph and Kitchener are overflowing to-day with a loss of thousands of dollars as the result of the storm which swept over Central Ontario last night and early this morning, undermining railway roadbeds, bridges, culverts and highways, and sending rivers over their banks.

GUELPH, Ont., April 6 (C.P.).—Torrential rains last night throughout the whole of Wellington County left in its trail an unprecedented flood which has caused damage to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the immediate neighborhood of Guelph.

At six-twenty this morning the huge stone and concrete dam at Goldie's Mill went out with the roar of a hundred cannon and in a few minutes millions of cubic feet of water were rushing down the Speed River in a tumultous torrent.

In the lower part of the city one hundred families were roused from their sleep by the rush of water into their homes, some of the families being first awakened by the barking of the dogs confined to the cellars of the houses.

Factories and Mills Closed

Factories and mills along the river bank were forced to close down, throwing out of work hundreds of men, the water having put on the fires and made the machinery impossible to operate.

No reports of loss of life have been received. The C.P.R. trains from Gelph southward will have to be routed over the C.N.R., as a bridge within the city limits has been badly undermined and a washout is reported near Speedwell.

Traffic on the Hamilton highway is difficult right in Guelph and the street railway bridge on the Dundas road is impassable. The storm of last night was the worst known in forty years. It is almost sixty years since the dam at Goldie's Mill was washed out before.

KITCHENER, Ont., April 6 (Canadian Press).—"Old timers" claim that the flood which is to-day reaching across bridges and highways at Bridgeport near here is the worst that the village has seen in 17 years. At least, the heavy rains of last evening have swollen the river to such an extent that it is very much higher than at the time of the spring overflow a few weeks ago. The ground floors of houses are covered with several inches of water, and stock in barns are standing over their knees in the muddy eddies.

Bridgeport seems to have been the storm centre for the heavy rains which descended over this district last night.

GALT, Ont., April 6. (C.P.) — Following last night's torrential rain, which began late in the afternoon with a terrific lightning storm and continued with momentary abatement well into the night, the Grand River went on a rampage this morning and broke all high water records, flooding Water and adjacent streets. Thousands of dollars damage has been done. The river rose so suddenly that merchants and manufacturers along the river had no time to remove goods which they had only nicely replaced after the floods of March 14 and 16. To-day's flood was the worst yet, passing the highest

LITTLE DAMAGE FROM BIG RAIN

Sewers and Jackson Park Creek Are Able To Carry Off Surplus Water.

HIGHWAYS BLOCKED.

The city was deluged by a record heavy rainfall last night in the form of continuous thunderstorms, accompanied by severe electrical storms. The city was soaked by one and one-quarter inches of rain, but the drainage system was kept open and very little damage was reported.

The Jackson Park creek was flowing muddy and swollen at noon today, but there was no danger of flooding. None of the city service departments reported any damage and the telephone service was unaffected.

However, the problem of transportation to and from the city is perhaps the most acute that has occurred in a number of years, not even excepting heavy snowstorms of winter. The Chamber of Commerce and The Examiner have been deluged with phone calls and people making inquiry of motor routes to Toronto. Since the wash-out of the Harmony Creek bridge near Oshawa, in which the double drowning fatality occurred, there has been no motor traffic; and those who would have gone around by Lindsay to Toronto, find the roads all but impassable within four miles of Peterborough with the Lindsay-Tor-

UNITED STATES' TROOP TRAIN RUSHED TO ARIZONA BORDER

Windsorite Reports Seeing White Robin

WINDSOR, Ont., April 6 (C.P.). —That legendary bird, the white robin, is not a myth but a realty, and there is one in Windsor, according to J. H. Belair, who declares that seeing is believing. While walking on Wyandotte st., here yesterday Belair says he saw the white robin. The bird was sitting atop a garage. It had white wings and a white tail, and its vividly contrasting breast was red, Belair declares.

Member of Tenth Cavalry Border Patrol Shot Through Breast.

75 BOMBS FOUND

Commander Is Ordered To Warn Mexican Rebel Leaders.

NACO, Ariz., April 6 (C.P.). — A member of the Tenth Cavalry Border Patrol, United States army, was shot in the chest while on duty near the Southern Pacific tunnel, eight miles east of here, early this morning according to reports received at the headquarters of Major Walter Hazeltine, Commander of American troops station here.

This report, together with advices that a border patrol had found 75 bombs near the railroad tunnel, sent a troop of the Tenth Cavalry rushing to the scene from here aboard a United States troop train shortly before daybreak.

Shortly after three o'clock this morning a terrific explosion shook this border town, tumbling residents from their beds. The entire town was left in darkness, the electric light plant being put out of commission by the blast. It was believed that one of the mines planted near the Mexican Federal fortifications at Naco, Sonora, had exploded.

Youth Awarded $50 By Cabinet Minister For His Presence Of Mind And Quick Wit

TORONTO, Ont., April 6 (Canadian Press). — Presence of mind and quick wit on the part of Ross Robinson, 12, will bring him a reward of $50.00. He will be handed a cheque for that amount by a member of the Ontario Cabinet. On January 22, while Ross was walking to school he heard a crash behind him, and upon turning around saw an automobile still moving with a man underneath it.

The driver of the car did not stop, but drove rapidly away, leaving the man he had struck lying on the road. Ross then showed his quickness. As the car passed he jotted down the license number in his scribbler. Due to Robinson's quick wit in putting down the number of the car the driver was apprehended by the police.

Steam Engine Built In Galt In Year 1858 Purchased By Ford From Meaford Company

OWEN SOUND, Ont., April 6 (Canadian Press). — Henry Ford has purchased from the Georgian Foundry, Meaford, their upright stationary steam engine, requesting shipment of same to headquarters at Dearborn at earliest convenience.

This engine until a few days ago, when it was replaced by a new thirty-five horse-power electric motor, has been in constant operation at the power plant of the Georgian Foundry here since the days of Confederation.

The engine was built by Cromble & Company, of Galt, Canada West, in 1856. It was operated in Ainsley's Distillery, Leith, Ont., from 1859 to 1867, and in Charles Barber's Iron Foundry, Meaford, Ont., 1867 to 1929.

Mr. Ford's representative first endeavored, two years ago, to purchase this engine, the mate of which he had bought at the time from the Goderich Tannery. The only difference in the machines is one foot in diameter of fly wheel, the Goderich engine having a seven-foot wheel.

These twin relics will be re-erected on a concrete pedestal at the Dearborn headquarters of Mr. Ford's great plant, with a tablet giving a brief history of their industrious career.

LABOR MEMBER DECLARES AGAINST BARTERING WITH UNITED STATES OVER TARIFF

A. A. Heaps Continues Debate On Budget in House of Commons.

TRANSFER OUR TRADE.

Waterway Question Should in No Way Be Used As Bargaining Point.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 6 (C.P.).—There must be no "bartering away our rights in the St. Lawrence waterway" in order to escape the effect of United States tariff increases, the House of Commons was told yesterday. A. A. Heaps, Labor member for Winnipeg North, was speaking during continued debate on the budget. Mr. Heaps referred to the coming revision of the United States tariff.

"At the present time," he said, "both the public men and the press of the United States are expressing the intention of Congress to raise the tariff against commodities manufactured and grown in Canada. Well, if the people of the United States are not anxious to deal with us, then at least we can transfer our trade to those who are willing to trade with us, and," added Mr. Heaps, "Canada has no better customer than Great Britain."

Want No Concessions

Later Mr. Heaps made his reference to the St. Lawrence waterways. It had been stated in the press, without any denial by the government, he said, that Canada might enter into a trade arrangement using the St. Lawrence waterways as a factor to obtain tariff concessions.

This he was opposed to. "If we are to negotiate with the United States on matters of tariff," he said, "then we will confine the negotiations to tariff, and the waterways question should in no way be made a bargaining point between the two governments."

Mr. Heaps was the first speaker in the budget debate yesterday. He was followed by C. H. Cahan (Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George). Mr. Cahan dealt at some length with trade treaties negotiated by the government. His view was that the government had not reaped many advantages from these conventions. In 1925, he instanced, the Dominion had made a trade treaty with the British West Indies. Our exports to these islands during the past year, however, had been only $473,000 greater than in 1926.

CENTRAL NEW YORK SWEPT BY STORM

Five Men and Two Women Are Killed—Traffic Is At a Standstill.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., April ...—(C.P.) —Five men and two women were injured, a special train was derailed, trolley lines were brought to a standstill and thousands of dollars damage was caused by electrical storms which struck Syracuse and Central New York last night and early today.

Reports from centrally located cities and towns throughout the State showed that the storm had struck with brief but intense fury, leaving in its wake swollen rivers and creeks and inundated railroad beds.

Kilmarnock Team Wins Scottish Football Cup

GLASGOW, Scotland, April 6. —(Canadian Press Cable).—Kilmarnock won the Scottish Football Association Cup from Glasgow Rangers at Hampden Park today by two goals to nil.

Both Kilmarnock's goals were scored in the second half of the match.

FAILED TO SEE GAP IN BRIDGE

Stanley Northrop Was Carried Half Mile Down Stream.

FOLLOWED LIGHT.

OSHAWA, April 6.— (Special to The Examiner.)—Stanley Northrop, 16, interviewed to-day, said: "I did not see the gap which resulted from the bridge being washed away, and the first thing I knew we were in the water. I was forced to look out for myself and was rapidly carried down stream. I must have been carried a half mile and I was swimming desperately. After a hard struggle, I managed to drag myself ashore. I was drenched to the skin and was weakened. I noticed the light of a house and after a tiresome journed reached it, to learn the tragic end of my father.

Dr. Mills, of Oshawa, attended the lad and stated that he suffered from shock and exposure, but his condition is not critical.

The Weather

Although we have had an unusually heavy rainfall this season already, the heaviest downpour occurred last night. The total fall was 1.26 (or 1¼ inches.) Thunderstorms, too, have been frequent for so early in the year. Temperature this morning, 36 degrees. In connection with the "big wind" of April 1, I have seen statements in the newspapers that it was the heaviest gale for fifty-five years. This aroused my curiosity, and in a little research of the weather record of December 4, 1873 (between 55 and 56 years ago) I found an item which may have reference to such a wind. J. Byron Dixon, M.A., of the local High School, was the observer at that time, and under date Dec. 4, 1873, writes: "A wind storm of great violence occurred on the 4th. Began early and continued all day. Several buildings were much injured, and one man was killed. Some of the timbers of a bridge which he was passing struck him with such force as to cause his death in a short time." This bridge, I have been told, was on George street, just north of Dublin street, and extended over a deep gully that extended eastward to the river, to what was then known as the "Goose pond," the "swimming hole" of the boys of those days. This gully was still in existence on Water street until comparatively recent years, but has since been filled in, and houses erected thereon.—W. P.

Four Motorists Are Washed Into Harmony Creek

Walter Northrop and Miss Helen Wright, Both of Peterborough, Are Drowned When Motor Car Plunges Through Bridge On Kingston Highway.

BODY OF MAN IS FOUND BY SEARCHERS TWO BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN RESCUED

Party Was Returning From Concert in Oshawa and After Proceeding For a Few Miles Turned Back On Account of Condition of Highway.

(Special to The Examiner.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 6. — When their car was carried down into the swollen waters of the Harmony Creek at one o'clock this morning, Walter Northrop, aged 60, and Helen Wright, of Peterborough, lost their lives, and Harry Northrop and Stanley Northrop were saved in a miraculous manner. The bridge over which the car plunged is on the Kingston Highway, about one mile east of Oshawa, and now is a gaping wreckage of concrete, the span for over 15 feet, being swept away.

The body of Walter Northrop, father of the two boys who survived the plunge into the 18 feet of swirling waters, was recovered at 6.40 a.m. to-day, about 600 yards down the stream, by Fire Chief Elliot and Lieut. Oster and Firemen William Logen and George Wilson. The body of Miss Wright is still missing, although a scarf worn by the young girl was found a short distance from the spot where Mr. Northrop was found. The search is continuing along both sides of the stream, which is fast receding.

Mrs. Northrop Remained Behind.

The Northrops, including Mr. and Mrs. Northrop, the two boys, Harry and Stanley, and a friend of the family, Miss Helen Wright, drove here from Peterborough last night to attend a concert under Boy Scout auspices, the two boys Harry and Stanley being accomplished musicians, and taking a prominent part in the program. Harry is an expert violinist and Stanley, a graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music on the violin. After the concert, Mrs. Northrop decided to spend the weekend with her brother, Albert Ingram, 283 Park Road South, and the rest of the party started for home about 1 o'clock. The heavy storm which swept over the city and district all the evening had flooded the highway in spots, as well as the city streets, and when they came to the bridge water was flowing over the road and bridge for a space of one hundred yards.

They went safely over the bridge, however, and over the hill to the second bridge which was entirely swept away by the surging waters. There they turned the car and were proceeding back to Oshawa and when passing over the bridge which they had safely navigated a few minutes previously the structure gave way with the weight of the car and the party were precipitated into the flood. The car was a Buick touring car and and all the party were thrown from the car as it plunged over the edge with the bridge. Stanley Northrup told the Examiner to-day that he remembers swimming and finally clutching a tree and puling himself to land. He remembers another of the party sweeping past him in the flood, but that is all he remembers .He was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wagar and is suffering from shock. The brother, Harry, who was driving the car, also had a miraculous escape from death, the swift current sweeping him past the narrow culvert and down stream for a distance of 100 yards. He is hazy about the whole affair and at times hysterical.

Saw Car Plunge.

The car was seen to plunge into the wreckage of the bridge by Mrs. Cameron Allison who was carried out of her home along with her four children by the husband when the waters surged into the kitchen and the living room. The Allison home is situated a few yards from the bridge where the fatality occurred. Mrs. Allison saw the car approach the bridge but was unable to utter a warning. She, however, stopped two other cars which were sweeping on to destruction. She said the car stayed where it fell for about three minutes and then was swept down by the rushing waters, the headlights burning brightly. The car was struck about 150 yards down stream and in the inky blackness of the night the lights continued to shed their ghostly glare over the rushing waters.

Fire Department Called Out

A telephone call to the fire department about 1.15 a.m. this morning summoned Chief Elliot and Lieut. Oster and Police Constable Wright to the scene. They organized a rope brigade and, wading in water to their necks, they reached the car and found it empty of its human cargo. Chief Elliot had a narrow escape from drowning also, being swept off his feet by the current, and rescued by Lieut. Oster. The work of the Oshawa firemen was particularly heroic, they being on the scene along with The Examiner's correspondent from 1.30, and it was through their efforts that the body of Walter Northrop was discovered. The body was carried along the east bank of the swollen stream and then transferred across the gaping hole in the bridge by ropes, and conveyed to an undertaking establishment in Oshawa. Mrs. Northrup is in a very serious condition suffering from shock, the first intimation of disaster coming to her when her son Harry was brought to the home of her brother, Albert Ingham, where she was visiting after being left only a short time before by her husband and two sons and Miss Wright.

The Harmony Creek, which swept away the bridge and highway at the scene of the fatality, is a harmless little thing, usually being only a foot or two wide.

Last night's rain was unprecedented in the history of this district and the creek soon became a raging torrent of 100 yards in width. Cameron Allison, lives near the scene, heard the roaring waters, and in a short time the water was running in the kitchen door and out the front door. He went to a telephone to notify the authorities and when he came back, fearing that his house would be swept from its foundation, carried his wife and four children on his back to safety, the water reaching to his neck. It was at this time that Mrs. Allison saw the Northrup car plunge to its doom.

Mass of Wreckage.

The bridge is a mass of wreckage of concrete and the pavement is gradually being undermined and sagging for a further distance of forty feet, and is expected to go out at any moment. A second bridge just east

Seasoned Aviators Amazed At Epic Flight Of Toronto Man In De Haviland Moth Plane

TORONTO, Ont., April 6 (Canadian Press). — Seasoned aviators were amazed at the epic flight and aerial battle with the elements made during the darkness and fury of yesterday's electrical storm by W. C. Van Horne, general manager of the Auburn Motor Sales, Toronto. Mr. Van Horne left Montreal early yesterday afternoon in a De Haviland Moth airplane for Toronto. The daring aviator made the trip in four hours and forty minutes.

Mr. Van Horne made a successful night landing at the Mount Dennis aerodrome with the aid of an automobile's headlights turned on the wind-indicator on the top of the hangar.

Van Horne stopped twice during his trip. He was forced to land at Cornwall because of water in the gasoline. He was again forced to alight at Belleville to get more gas.

CONDITIONS IN CHINA OUTLINED BY MISSIONARY

Rev. Edward J. Blandford Blames Soviet Russia For Present Trouble.

COUNTRY HAS BIG FUTURE.

Hatred Formerly Manifest Against British Instigated By Soviet Agents.

China has been the catapaw of Russia sinc 1920, but during the past two years the Nationalis party has gradually awakened to the peril of Russian tyranny and the pit of destruction opening before the country from the too close association with Bolshevism. The Bolsheviki propaganda was spread like fire to a timber from one part of China to the other by Russian agents, and caused all the disunion, strife and massacre among the teeming millions of Chinese.

So said Rev. Edward J. Blandford, a man eminently fitted to speak with authority upon Chinese affairs, in an interview with The Examiner yesterday. Mr. Blandford has been a missionary in China for the past forty-five years. His station was situated in the interior, in the middle of all the savage war fare that has raged back and forth across the country."

Fled to the Hills

"First the northern army would invade our city and next the southern would triumph and swarm in upon us," said Mr. Blandford in telling of his experiences. Finally the Blandfords had to flee to the hills for their lives and thence made their way to the Yangtse river, Shanghai and Canada. They could not afford to encumber their flight with any luggage and all that they possessed fell into the hands of the insurgents.

Later against the advice of Consel-General Mr. Blandford made his way back up the river and through the armies of the conflicting parties to the hills to bring out some valuable papers which he had concealed there during his escape. He found himself welcomed by the common people and they desired him to remain among them.

In fact Mr. Blandford bears no malice toward the Chinese despite their butchery of Christians. He referred to them as "one of the most trustful, hospitable and honest peoples in the world. In describing his experiences among the Chinese he spoke with a soft English accent and has the drooping moustache and nearly yellow skin that characterizes the people among whom he has lived and talks interestingly about.

Blames Soviet Russia

But Mr. Blandford's voice took on a sharp note when he spoke of the Russians whom he claims are responsible for all China's troubles. "The Chinese armies during the wars were officered by Russians, the commanders were surrounded by wily Russians advisers, "declared Mr. Blandford, who told of going to the encampment of the governor of his province for an interview and finding Russians holding responsible positions. "Russia, too, supplies the armies with their weapons of war, sending them over land through Tibet. Russia, eager to get control in China kept fanning the enmity between the fighting factions by false propaganda. The Chinese have adopted all the most modern war implements and are now using airplanes.

"The present insurrection," continued Mr. Blandford, "is not of the importance that marked the former conflicts. It is centering about Hankow, the richest city in China, and this city is the goal of both parties. Hankow is the railway centre of the interior and it controls all the wealth of the great central provinces. The leaders of Hayseh, Hunon and Kewangsi were left in control of it, but they refused to give up the proper portion of the revenue to the central government at Nankin. The Nationalists are now out to compel their rights and they should be able to do that very readily."

HEAVY RAINS DELAY TRAINS

Both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Lines Are Held Up.

ENGINEER KILLED.

The heavy rains and incidental wash-outs had a telling effect on both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific train schedules, and this morning, passengers on otherwise through trains ate breakfast here and in Lindsay, while trains are reported held up all along the lines between here and Toronto.

In touch with the local C.P.R. Station officials this morning, The Examiner learned that for a while at least, nothing would move through, since bad wash-outs had occurred between Myrtle and Agincourt. A Montreal train for Toronto is held here; an Ottawa train bound for the same city is marooned at Burketon, and the Toronto train for Ottawa awaits clearing orders at Locust Hill.

From the Canadian National Station an even worse story of trouble was told. All main line trains had been turned through Peterborough, to go to Toronto by way of Lindsay, but later, wash-outs near Uxbridge and Scarborough Junction held up that line also. Train No. 20 from Toronto to Montreal went into a wash-out somewhere near Bowmanville, and it is understood that one of the crew was killed.

Passengers on the train that leaves Montreal at 11 p.m. went through here in two sections this morning, the passengers having breakfast here, while Train 21, also from Montreal to Toronto, stopped over in Lindsay for the passengers to breakfast.

HIGH PRICES REALIZED AT CATTLE SALE

Six Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars Top Price Paid.

GOOD QUALITY CATTLE.

Belleville District Breeders' Club Holds Nineteenth Annual Sale.

BURNBRAE, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—Six hundred and twenty-five dollars was the top price paid for a Holstein cow at the nineteenth annual sale of the Belleville District Breeders' Club held at the Belvidere Hotel in the Quinte City on Wednesday afternoon. The usual number of Burnbrae farmers attended the sale and W. L. Pollack and John Rannie, of Rawdon Township, were successful in securing fine young herd sires from the herds of E. B. Purtelle and A. Parks. The first animal offered, Edward Purtelle's 'Madge Segis Pontiac,' 7 years of age, went to the $625 bid of A. H. Fair, Hemlock Park Farm, Kingston. He also secured a richly bred yearling heifer from the same herd for $190. The heifer from the high-priced cow realized $115, and another yearling from the Purtelle herd sold for $125. Purtelle also sold two other 7-year-old cows of almost equal quality with good R.O.P. records fat test around 4 per cent. for $400 and $405 to Edward Irish, Langstaff, and H. Goodfellow, Lancaster, respectively.

B. R. Leaven's 6-year-old cow, Sylvia Korndyke De Kol, went to Herbert M. Williams for $335. Mr. Williams is a noteworthy figure in Holstein history, being the first man in Ontario to import Holstein cattle from Holland. After a few years in the dairy industry he moved to the United States, where he was engaged in the immigration work at Toledo. Returning to Prince Edward last year, he started farming again, and shows that he has lost none of his former judgment in picking the good ones. A good 4-year-old cow from the herd of Archibald Parks, of Napanee, sold to M. Castonguay, of Vaudreuil, Quebec, for $250. This buyer secured several animals of high quality during the sale.

Common Stock $200.

Other cows of more common style sold from $125 to $200, including several aged cows. Two-year-old heifers were not quite as high-class as in some former sales, and most of these sold at $135 to $160 each. Yearling bulls sold from $100 to $170 each. There were twelve young bulls in the sale, and a judging class was held on these at 11 a.m. B. R. Leaven's bull stood first. Arthur Ward of Dartford had second prize entry, and Purtelle's seven months calf stood third. This is the calf purchased by W. L. Pollock and will be a decided boost to the quality of the dairy cattle in this district.

Altogether the sale was one of the best ever held by the club, of which Dunham Foster is president and P. B. Nelson secretary. James A. Cashey was sales managed, and George O. Tice, of Belleville, acted in the capacity of auctioneer in a very satisfactory manner.

UNITED EMPIRE LOYALISTS MAY PRESS U. S. CLAIMS

Meeting at Deseronto in June to Consider Whether Action Will Be Taken.

RECOVER ORIGINAL LANDS.

Right to Property Will Be Difficult to Establish After 145 Years.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 6.—(By The Canadian Press).—United Empire Loyalists throughout Canada are becoming somewhat deeply interested in their claims against the United States, said Magistrate W. C. Mikel, K.C., vice-president of the United Empire Loyalists Association, in a statement published here recently. This question of the return of the lands to the Loyalists or payment of compensation by the U. S. Government will be considered at the U. E. L. celebration at Deseronto next June.

Mr. Mikel said it should be borne in mind that it would be difficult, expensive and practically impossible for an individual to succeed in establishing in an action a right to the possession of land in the United States owned by his original U. E. L. ancestors after 145 years. Apart from this right of action the claims of the loyalists he said were only of an equitable or non-legal character arising out of the Treaty of Paris and not enforceable by legal proceedings. Therefore U. E. Loyalists should hesitate seeking private assistance. The United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada, incorporated by the Dominion Parliament is the only organization that can properly represent the Loy-

J. J. DUFFUS LIMITED, Peterborough

Harry Tinney, Cavanville John Allen, Campbellford

FROM the workshop of John Plane I have brought the following remarkable utterance. It is the utterance of a man who has been called "the John the Baptist of Agnosticism—an eloquent voice crying in the wilderness." Without further comment at this point, I set it down as it has come to me:

Dear Friends: I am going to do that which the dead oft promised he would do for me. The loved and loving brother husband, father, friend, died where manhood's morning almost touches noon, and while the shadows still were falling toward the west.

He had not passed on life's highway the stone that marks the highest point; but being weary for a moment, he lay down by the wayside, and using his burden for a pillow, fell into that dreamless sleep that kisses down his eyelids still. While yet in love with life and raptured with the world, he passed to silence and pathetic dust.

The Heart's Hope.

Yet, after all, it may be best, just in the happiest, sunniest hour of all the voyage, while eager winds are kissing every sail, to dash against the unseen rock, and in an instant hear the billows roar above a sunken ship. For whether in mid-sea or 'mong the breakers of the farther shore, a wreck at last must mark the end of each and all. And every life, no matter if its every hour is rich with love and every moment jeweled with a joy, will, at its close, become a tragedy as sad and deep and dark as can be woven of the warp and woof of mystery and death.

This brave and tender man in every storm of life was oak and rock; but in the sunshine he was vine and flower. He was the friend of all heroic souls. He climbed the heights and left all superstitions far below, while on his forehead fell the golden dawning of the grander day.

Touched to Tears.

He loved the beautiful, and was with color, form and music touched to tears. He sided with the weak, the poor and wronged, and lovingly gave alms. With loyal heart and with the purest hands he faithfully discharged all public trusts. He was a worshipper of liberty, a friend of the oppressed. A thousand times I have heard him quote these words: "For Justice all place a temple, and all season, summer." He believed that happiness is the only good, reason the only torch, justice the only worship, humanity the only religion, and love the only priest. He added to the sum of human joy; and were every one to whom he did some loving service to bring a blossom to his grave, he would sleep to-night beneath a wilderness of flowers.

A Bleak Landscape.

Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word; but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing.

He who sleeps here, when dying, mistaking the approach of death for the return of health, whispered with his latest breath, "I am better now." Let us believe, in spite of doubts and dogmas, of fears and tears, that these dear words are true of all the countless dead.

Perfumed Flowers.

The record of a generous life runs like a vine around the memory of our dead, and every sweet, unselfish act is now a perfumed flower. And now, to you, who have been chosen to do the last sad office for the dead, we give his sacred dust. Speech cannot contain our love. There was, there is, no gentler, stronger, manlier man.

These words were spoken by Robert G. Ingersoll as a tribute to his brother, Ebon C. Ingersoll. In the darkest hour that can come to a human being, the hour of death, this is Agnosticism's finest testimony so far as I have been able to discover. In it there is little or nothing of comfort. The most he could ever say was: We do not know whether the grave is the end of this life, or the door of another, or whether the night here is not somewhere else a dawn. Every cradle asks us, "Whence?" and every coffin, "Whither?" The poor barbarian, weeping above his dead, can answer these questions as intelligently as the robed priest of the most authentic creed.

Refusing the Light.

If Ingersoll had been willing to experiment with the Gospel of Jesus Christ, instead of allowing himself to be prejudiced by the hypocrisy of those whose lives gave the lie to their lips, life would have been far more to him than a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. It would have been a sunlit plain leading toward the heights and home!

It would be an awful thought if compelled to think that at death we shall be detained in death, never to live again. Anything short of a faith based upon the revelation expressed in the Sacred Scriptures has little more to offer us than such a possibility and fear. But, to the soul sincerely seeking to know all that can be known about death and what lies beyond death, there is a wealth of assurance to comfort the heart in its greatest trial and a glorious light to make radiant the cloud that overshadows in the hour of death.

Gethsemane and Afterwards.

Perhaps the proper place for a sin-conscious soul is amid the cold shadows of Gethsemane. There, facing the enormity of human guilt, the sinner looks with mingled feelings toward the Cross, little realizing the liberty and light lying beyond that Cross. In the warm light of the Easter morning we hear the answer to the age-long cry of the human heart, "If a man die shall he live again?" He is not here, He is risen; come see the place where the Lord lay."

"But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept." In view of what has happened it is worth repeating that the resurrection of Jesus Christ is the promise and pledge of our own resurrection if it should be our sad lot to enter the Valley of the Shadow of Death.

Just as day dies and is buried amid the silence and darkness of the night, so we poor mortals lay ourselves down to meet the sleep of the tomb. But the day that died and was buried had its resurrection. Even so, the soul that falls asleep in the Lord shall have a glorious resurrection when He comes again.

The resurrection of these human bodies of ours is an assured fact clearly stated and convincingly supported in the Sacred Scriptures. Just think of it! These bodies shall come back into life from the ravages of the grave. The decay and seeming oblivion of death shall all be forgotten in that hour when in obedience to His voice we shall Lazarus-like come forth from our graves.

The Emphasis of Easter.

My body is a distinct, a very important part of me. It is the part of me that is seen, known, handled, and thought of as me! Apart from my body I cannot express myself! When the hour arrives that I shall have to part company with this clay habitation, will it rise from the place where it has been laid amid tears and heart-breaking farewells? That it has died is a fact distinct and clearly outlined. "Will it rise and live again?" is the natural, the passionate question of loving and longing hearts.

Apart from Christianity, there is little more than emptiness and despair. Human life seems eclipsed and lost in the darkness of death, and no spring, nor morn, no rising ever brings them again! Easter hushes these sighs, fills this emptiness and dispells this depair. The darkness of the grave is transformed by the star of hope as it sheds the lustre of the resurrection day upon the night of the tomb. —Allan Fairbairn.

The Minister Remarks—

—No man can be at his best in a fog bank. Come out into the light and stay there.

—I have noticed that many of the people who are for ever wanting to speak their minds, usually have very ugly minds —Poverty is no barrier to piety. Some of the poorest have been the most pious.

—No man is ever at his best until he is saved by Jesus Christ.

—It is largely characteristic of the twentieth century that wit has taken the place of wisdom and eccentricity is often confounded with originality.

—What's the use of meeting a new idea if you don't know how to act in its presence?

—A. F.

A Determining Factor

ONE'S religion determines his attitude toward life. It is often said that Christianity is not a system of doctrine, but a way of life. Which saying is true as far as it goes. But Christianity is a way of thinking about God, about human life, about the world, and about eternity. It is that divine philosophy which determines one's outlook upon the universe. One way of thinking about these great realities is not as good as another. Some religions set forth a way of thinking about God, life and the world to come that brings dread and despair. Christianity in its view of these things brings hope, confidence, and joyful anticipation.

How to Judge a Man

YOU can judge a man always and everywhere by what angers him. What is it that makes you maddest? Is it injustice? Is it impurity? Is it vice of any kind? That is a noble feeling that flames with a sudden passion at any meanness and at any wrong. But these men (shame upon them!) were angered by innocence, by the recognition of virtue, by the triumph of holiness. "They were moved with indignation" (Matt. 21:15). If your heart swells with bitterness because of the prosperity of some one who is innocent and good, be sure that it is the abode of an evil spirit, and needs cleansing.

How To Do It

I PRAY you, O excellent wife, not to cumber yourself and me to get a rich dinner for this man or this woman who has alighted at our gate, nor a bed-chamber made ready at too great a cost. These things they can get for a dollar at any village. But let this stranger, if he will, in your looks, in your accent, and behavior, read your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, which he cannot buy at any price in any village or city, and which he may well travel fifty miles and dine sparely and sleep hard in order to behold. Certainly, let the board be spread and let the bed be dressed for the traveler: but let not the emphasis of hospitality lie in these things. Honor to the house where they are simple to the verge of hardship, so that there the intellect is awake and reads the laws of the universe. —Emerson.

Getting Peace

TO get peace, if you do want it, make for yourselves nests of pleasant thoughts. None of us yet knows, for none of us has been taught in early youth, what fairy palaces we may build of beautiful thoughts—proof against all adversity. Bright fancies, satisfied memories, noble histories, faithful sayings, treasure-houses of precious and restful thoughts, which care cannot disturb, nor pain make gloomy, nor poverty take away from us—houses built with Lloyd, Mrs. W. J., 217 Emmerson out hands for our souls to live in.

A Smile And A Song

WE have heard of sermons in stones, but I listened to an eloquent one from a coal cart the other morning. Where it happened doesn't very much matter. To say too much might disclose the identity of the preacher; and I fancy that his modesty might prefer a discreet silence.

On the morning in question the skies were grey, snowflakes were in the air, and the ground was soft under foot. There was not much cheer about unless one happened to have the cheer in one's own soul. The man I am thinking of must have had brightness in his heart or he could not have sung, as he did, under conditions that would have tried the patience of a gilded saint. He had turned his coal cart into a private driveway only to have his cart mire deeply. His one horse couldn't budge the load of coal. The man coaxed and shoved at the wheels, but there was "nothing doing."

It was at this point that he became the preacher to me.

He scratched his head in perplexity, pulled his horse's ears playfully, scolded it in a good-humored way, and then he began to sing. There was tonal quality enough to prove that the melody was sincere. And all the time he kept on working, pausing in his song occasionally to reproach the striving horse with sarcastic humor. It was very evident that they were the best of friends. At last he gave up the effort to move the cart and began to unload his coal at that point, carrying it some distance to a basement opening.

As I watched him without his knowledge I could not help wondering how many men could have conducted themselves as well under similar circumstances. Some drivers would have scorched the atmosphere with oaths, while brutally beating the poor horse. How much better was this man's way. Instead of helping the situation, cursing and cruelty would only have done further injury to his own soul.

It is a rare spirit which can smile and sing under stress of provocation. Wise is the man, or woman, and happy as well, who can look out and up and laugh at the exasperating things in life and all the while keep singing.

The preacher at the coal cart made the grey morning appear bright with the radiant glory of self-conquest. —A. F.

A Fine Art

ENTERTAINING is the finest of all the fine arts, and it cannot be done by proxy. It cannot be done by the cook, nor yet by the decorator. Let the hostess give her guests her personal interest, her sympathetic comprehension, and she will have then mastered the delicate and subtle art.

Did We But Know

I BELIEVE if we could only see beforehand what it is that our Heavenly Father means us to be, the soul beauty and perfection and glory, the glorious and lovely spiritual body that this soul is to dwell in through all eternity, if we could have a glimpse of this, we should not grudge all the trouble and pains He is taking with us now to bring us up to that ideal which is His thought of us.

One Word

IN all the crowded universe
There is but one stupendous word:
Love.
There is no tree that rears its crest,
No fern or flower that cleaves the sod
Nor bird that sings above its nest,
But tries to speak this word of God.

A SIGN OF GROWTH.

The Peterborough Golf and Country Club, Limited, is to be congratulated upon its purchase of the Beachwood Farm property and its decision to lay out an eighteen-hole course and to erect a modern club house.

Cities are judged by the facilities they offer for healthful recreation, and golf has come to occupy such an important place in the recreation field that any community that does not provide adequate accommodation for the exponents of the game is at a decided disadvantage in attracting new citizens.

The present links have been a source of pleasure to members of the club for many years, but with only nine holes available membership has necessarily had to be curtailed, and opportunities to develop sound golfers were to some extent at least limited.

The construction of a modern golf course, like the laying out of spacious bowling greens by the Lawn Bowlers' Club, is a step toward a bigger and better Peterborough, and a gesture to outsiders that this community is alive, alert and progressive.

It is a matter of general satisfaction, and not merely for the golfers, that modern facilities for the game are to be available in the near future.

THE GROWTH OF HOCKEY.

Official figures issued in regard to the attendance at National Hockey League games during the season just closed prove that Canada has not only given our neighbors a new sport but also a new industry.

With practically one and three-quarter millions of people paying admissions, it can be seen that professional hockey has taken on the status of big business, and there is every reason to believe that this huge attendance would have been greatly increased had there been accommodation for all who wanted to see the games.

Larger arenas will follow as a matter of course, and it will not be long before hockey will rival baseball in its money-making possibilities.

An increase of 22 per cent. in one season and the record of nearly 300,000 set up in Boston, are proof that such a prophecy is justified.

The spread of the game to other large centres in the United States and a still greater demand for players are certain developments, and Canada as the training ground for hockey stars is going to have a difficult task keeping up the supply.

A new and fascinating profession for the Canadian youth is being created by the rapidly increasing popularity of professional hockey as a major sport.

THE HOME AND SCHOOL MOVEMENT.

The deputation headed by Mrs. W. R. Morris of Peterborough and representing the Home and School Associations in Ontario has been successful in securing the approval of Premier Ferguson for the movement, and a promise that pupils in model and normal schools will be taught something of the work of the organization so that they will be acquainted with its aims and objects before entering upon the teaching profession.

Those who have watched the Home and School movement develop in Peterborough and who are in a position to realize what important work it is doing in linking up the school and the home, the teacher and the parent, and in improving school conditions, will share the Premier's hope that it will be possible to extend the movement into Ontario's rural schools.

It could do much in the country, as it has done much in urban communities, and it is to be imagined that conditions in some rural schools would show a marked improvement were the parents to be brought closely into touch with school life through the medium of such an organization as the Home and School Association.

Instructing pupils in the model and normal schools in the work of the association may do much to hasten the day when similar bodies will be in operation in each country school section with beneficial results both to teachers and pupils.

RADIO LICENSES.

All radio set-owners who have complied with the law in regard to operating licenses in other years are receiving a notice from the Deputy Minister of Marine to the effect that their licenses expired on March 31st and must be renewed before May 1st.

No fault is to be found with this policy of warning licensed owners, who will cheerfully renew their license in the knowledge that they are complying with the law and that they are helping to maintain a radio service that is of value to set-owners.

At the same time, however, no one likes to feel that he is penalized for doing his duty as a citizen, and unless radio owners who have been operating receiving sets without taking out a license are checked up and made to contribute their fees, the result will be in the nature of a penalty upon those who have obeyed the law.

Citizens who have paid the license charge for one, two or more years as the case may be are registered, and if they do not renew their licenses are certain to be prosecuted; on the other hand, those who have been "getting away with it" for years and operating unlicensed sets are unknown to the department and may continue to escape unless there is a vigilant check-up.

There is little excuse for not complying with the law; the license fee, $1.00 a year, is small, and when it is realized that the more revenue obtained from a centre the more service in the form of the elimination of interference can be counted on, bootleg radio sets should be reduced to a minimum.

The appearance of a number of citizens in Police Court for failure to comply with the law may help to remedy the situation.

Major Seagrave has quit the performance of making speed records and has turned to cement. There is plenty of evidence that the major is a good mixer.—St. Catharines Standard.

A DESERVED TRIBUTE.

The following tribute in the Owen Sound Sun-Times is paid to the memory of Dr. J. B. Fraser, father of J. Wells Fraser, of this city, and former editorial writer of the Sun-Times:

"In the death of Dr. J. B. Fraser, which occurred on Friday evening after an extended illness, the community loses a worthy citizen and one who was held in the highest esteem throughout the city and surrounding country, where he was well known. The late Dr. Fraser had many remarkable qualities which commended him to all who had the privilege of his acquaintance. He was scholarly, a man of wise judgment, thoroughly conversant with world affairs, an able minister of the gospel, one who lived what he preached and whose love for his fellows was boundless, and who had a kindly word for those who sought his advice and counsel. He was sympathetic toward every good cause and he was always ready to assist in a practical manner the many appeals which were made in the interests of the community.

"The late Dr Fraser, while engaged in the capacity of editorial writer for the Daily Sun-Times, dealt with a wide range of subjects, and his articles were always of a very high standard and showed careful preparation. His pen is silent now, and he will write no more, but he passed out with the knowledge that his life had not been in vain, and it will be acknowledged that he had a wide sphere of influence. He will be greatly missed in the office of the Daily Sun-Times, and although his daily visits ceased some time ago, the members of the staff will always retain pleasant memories of him and will extend their sincere sympathy to the widow and other members of the family. A good citizen, a noble character and a devout Christian has gone to be with his Maker and to receive his final reward."

LACROSSE.

With the coming of spring, the sporting editors, optimistic gentlemen, are again writing about a revival of lacrosse. It is an old, and a sad, story. We have been hearing it now for a decade at least, but while April always brings optimistic predictions, June and July invariably bring unfulfillment. A few lacrosse enthusiasts linger on, and last year an Ottawa team, bearers of a name of hallowed memory in the game, won Dominion honors. Generally, however, lacrosse in Canada is dead or, if not dead, shorn of its ancient glory. It is one of the curious aspects of a sport-crazed age.

Fifteen or twenty years ago, at this time of the year, it would be hard to meet an Ottawa youngster without a lacrosse stick. To-day he is carrying a baseball bat, or a tennis racquet, or perhaps father's mashie. The lacrosse stick, symbol of our athletic prowess in the long ago, is as rare as a buggy in Detroit.

The curious thing is that while lacrosse thus dies in its cradle, it has begun to flourish in other lands. Only the other day the Baltimore Sun, one of the great and serious papers of the United States, carried this on its editorial page:

"Lacrosse held its spring opening on Saturday with due reward for Maryland tradition. Mount Washington defeated Princeton handily and the Navy sank New York University without a trace. The auspices for an interesting season are unmistakable, for stronger opposition than this will come from teams outside the State—from the army, for instance—and contests between the Maryland teams will be marked by stiff fighting of the highest quality in the game which this State has adopted as its own. Perhaps 'adopted' is not exactly the word. There was some opposition, but Maryland got it by right of conquest."

And as in the United States, so in Europe. Lacrosse is now one of the established games of the British universities, far more at home at Oxford and Cambridge than at McGill or Queen's or the University of Toronto. More than that, it is being played in Germany, in Switzerland, and in other countries of the Continent.

Decline of lacrosse in Canada is one of those things that baffle explanation. It is argued that it was killed by professionalism, plus too much rowdyism. But if that be the explanation, what accounts for the survival of hockey, which has had plenty of professionalism and some rowdyism, too? And what of professional boxing which, in a city like Toronto, draws crowds of ten and twelve thousand?

There must be something else to account for the fate of lacrosse. What that something else is we do not know, but what we do know is that the result itself is a great pity. Lacrosse was of the very warp and woof of Canada, the most distinctive of Canadian games, wrapped up with a lot of our history. If anyone among us could find a way to charm it back, to make it even half of what it was in the brave days of the old Capitals and Shamrocks and Tecumsehs, he would indeed be a national benefactor.—Ottawa Journal.

Editor, News of our Village:

About two weeks ago I met Sandy MacTavish and he mentioned casually that he was sending me a chicken for Easter. I was pleasantly surprised, but Easter arrived and no chicken. To-day I met Sandy again, and asked him if the matter of the chicken had slipped his memory. "What chicken", he asked. "Why, the one you were to send me for Easter," I replied. "Oh, yes, now I mind," quoth he, "it got better again."

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE CAKE COMES LAST

The cake comes last in ever meal,
An old, established rule;
It's funny, though, he way we feel
About a shop or school.
We seldom want to wait to eat
The solid things like bread and meat;
Before the simpler things we take
We start to reaching for the cake.

We want the play before the toil,
And many times we ask,
The fruit before we plough the soil,
The wage before the task.
We try to build a house of dreams
Without foundations, so it seems;
We build the roof before the walls,
And wonder when the structure falls.

Yet, if the sweets of life are ours
Before the solid things,
The other things of life it sours
And little joy it brings.
And so I think that simple rule
Is pretty good for shop or school:
Don't reach too far, don't reach too fast,
Remember that the cake comes last.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER VII

"Of course," said Tom Drake cheerily, "it's going to rain like the very devil."

He had just driven up to the gate of the Hambledons' cottage, and Ana had come out to him.

She glanced up at the sky—a gray, windy sky with puffy clouds scudding excitedly about.

"I don't mind a little rain if you don't," she said. "And we can put the hood up, can't we?"

"It's going to rain," said Mollie, who had followed her out. Mollie was anxious to see Drake. She liked all men, and secretly she was rather amazed that any man should wish to spend an afternoon in Ana's company. She thought Ana an "awfully good sort and all that you know," as she vaguely expressed it, but that any man should be particularly interested in her was entirely another matter. She judged all women by her own standard; she thought that smart frocks and immaculately dressed hair were the only sure road to a man's heart.

Ana introduced her.

"Mr. Drake, Mrs. Hambledon."

Mollie held out her hand and smiled. She had a very pretty smile, and she knew it, and made the most of it.

"I tell Ana you'll get wet to the bone," she said.

"We were going for a picnic but we've put it off. I loathe picnics anyway," she added with a grimace. "You sit about in uncomfortable positions, and get wasps all over the food, and feel thankful when it's time to go home."

Drake laughed.

"If one waits for the weather in this country, one waits forever," he said.

He opened the gate for Ana to come out.

"Have you got a coat?" he asked.

"No. Do you think I ought to bring one?"

"It doesn't matter. I've got mine in the car."

Mollie stood at the gate and watched them drive away, then she went back to the sitting room where her husband was sprawled inelegantly on the sofa.

"Why didn't you come out and speak to him?" she asked in a vexed way. "It looks so rude."

"I don't suppose he wanted to speak to me," Hambledon said with a yawn. "And I'm darned sure I didn't want to speak to him."

"You might have been polite for Ana's sake," Mollie protested.

She sat down beside him on the edge of the hard sofa.

"What's the fellow like?" Hambledon asked.

"Rather nice. I liked him. I wonder if he means anything?"

Anthony's half-closed eyes opened with a snap.

"What do you mean? Means anything?"

"With Ana, of course. I should think she'd love to get married, and escape from that dreadful aunt of hers."

"There is such a thing as getting out of the frying pan into the fire," Anthony said with a hard note in his voice. He rolled over on his side, his face to the wall.

There was a little silence, then Mollie spoke his name timidly.

"Tony, dear!" She only called him Tony when she wanted something.

"Well?"

"Would you mind very much if I went to London again this week-end?"

"Mind? Good lord, no!"

She drew a little sigh of relief.

"Though why you always want to be gadding off to London beats me," Anthony added.

She twisted a lock of his ruffled hair.

"Well, it's rather dull here, you must admit. It's all right for you and the General; you like doing nothing and seeing nobody—but I don't."

Anthony made no answer.

He was hardly listening to what she said; in imagination he was following Ana and young Drake down the hill in the little two-seater car. What were they talking about, he wondered?—and what sort of a fellow was Drake? For the first time in his life he was conscious of jealousy. Ana must like the fellow to have gone out with him on such a threatening afternoon.

"I thought if I went up on Friday," Mollie was saying, and he roused himself with an effort to attend.

"Yes, go up on Friday," he echoed vaguely.

"You'll be all right, won't you?" She was still twisting his ruffled hair and he found it rather irritating. "Ellen will see you have everything you want, and there's Ana."

"Oh, you're not taking her with you, then?"

"Taking her with me!" Mollie laughed. "No, thank you. She would hate doing the things I do."

"What sort of things do you do?" he demanded suddenly.

Mollie looked away from him.

"Well, shops and theatres—Ana hates them both."

"Does she? I've never heard her say so."

Mollie frowned.

"Well, she'd hate them the way I do them, anyway," she said lightly. She rose to her feet. "You're really rather a dear, you know," she said, and bending dropped a light kiss on his forehead. "I'm going up to rest now," she said and walked out of the room.

Hambledon lay very still staring up at the ceiling. He heard his wife's light step on the stairs, and then overhead. She was humming a gay little tune and sounded quite happy. Mollie was always happy when she had succeeded in getting her own way, he thought with a bitter sort of amusement.

Theirs had been a queer sort of marriage.

It was not often that he allowed himself to think about it or to analyze his own feelings in the matter, but to-day he did so deliberately.

He remembered the strange sense of fatalism which had crept into his heart when Mollie's letter arrived saying that she was coming out to Rhodesia to marry him.

He could remember sitting with her letter in his hand, looking round the bungalow, which had seemed sufficiently comfortable for his bachelor needs, and wondering what on earth she would think of it. In the six months that had elapsed since their parting in England he had—if not quite forgotten her—at least grown to think of her as a charming memory. Certainly he was not unhappy because thousands of miles divided them from one another. He had been fond of her, of course, as any man would be fond of a very pretty girl who took no pains to hide the fact that she liked him far better than any other man she knew.

He had also been more fond of her than of any other woman he had ever known—but then he had not known many—but he had not loved her as a man should love the woman he marries, and he had always been conscious of the fact.

But she had come out to him, and he had met her in Cape Town and married here there.

At first it had seemed all right.

They had stayed in the best hotel, and Mollie's frocks had been quite the newest and smartest things, and he had been proud of her prettiness and of the attention she attracted.

It had also struck him as amazing that she should care enough for him to be willing to leave behind everything she held most dear and come out to rough it in Rhodesia just for his sake. He had been humbly grateful to her, but neither his gratitude nor his amazement had lasted long.

A month after they got back to Rhodesia Mollie began to get homesick. She was lonely, she said, and bored. What was the use of having pretty clothes with nobody to see them? Was she to spend all her life buried in the wilds?

When she knew that the General was coming, things grew even worse. Hambledon did not like to think of those days, and of the tears and reproaches and discontent he had to endure.

She had wanted to go home—she had declared that she would die—she reiterated over and over again that she did not want any children. As a matter of fact, Hambledon had not wanted children either. Looking back now, he supposed that alone showed the whole thing was wrong. If a man and a woman loved one another, surely it would be the most natural thing in the world to want a kiddie. Anyhow he and Mollie had not wanted one.

Hambledon shied away from the memory of the General's arrival.

Poor little devil! There was a moisture in his eyes as he thought of his son. It seemed such damned hard luck on a kid to have to go through all the General had gone through, and then be left lame for the rest of his life.

It was nobody's fault, of course, and yet at the back of his mind Hambledon vaguely wondered if it was not a sort of judgment on him and on Mollie because they had not really wanted him.

Well, there it was! these things happen, and there is no explaining them.

And now after all these years they had come home, and he had met Ana.

He had always known that he would like Ana. There was something in the tone of her letters to Mollie, something about the expression of her eyes in the only photograph he had ever seen of her, that had seemed to call to him.

But Hambledon had not expected to love her!

He had never dreamed of loving any woman except his wife, and yet now as he lay on his back in the little sitting room listening to the gay sound of Mollie's voice upstairs he knew that the only feeling he had ever had for her was a very long way indeed from love.

She had never made him feel as if his heart was turning over in his breast, she had never made his pulses race. He had never felt that nothing else in the world mattered if only he could be with her—he had never felt almost sick with jealousy when she went out with another man as Ana had done this afternoon.

Mollie often went out with other men, and it did not affect him at all; even in the early days of their marriage, he had only laughed at her little flirtations and told her to amuse herself as she liked.

But to-day——

Benefic aspects dominate today, according to astrology. This is a day in which the finer things of life should make strong appeal.

The clergy should benefit from this planetary government which seems to encourage the open mind and noble aspiration among average men and women.

All the signs appear to promise that new leaders will work together with the churches to achieve sweeping reforms in cities.

According to the seers the people of the United States are to awaken slowly to civic responsibilities and then to compel organized crime to capitulate.

Women are subject to adverse planetary influences while this rule prevails. They should eliminate all destructive thoughts and evade temptation to gossip.

A period when egotism and vanity are peculiarly affecting men and women of all types will culminate this year, if the stars are read aright.

At this time slanders may be prevalent and libel suits may be expected in more than one city.

Under this direction of the stars the use of medicines may not be effective and for this reason depression may be prevalent.

The public health is to be much improved as the spring advances, astrologers declare, but every sanitary precaution should be taken against an epidemic of fevers.

Neptune, the planet supposed to rule oil and beverages of various sorts, is rising and likely to cause much trouble for the United States government, the seers declare.

Notable weddings will be many this year, if the stars are rightly read and there will be born an unusual number of talented children.

Speculation in cotton may be extraordinarily interesting this spring, it is foretold.

The planetary government for this entire month favors property-owners and successful business men, astrologers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy, prosperous year. Success should be within reach of earnest effort.

Children born on this day probably will have equable dispositions and fine minds. The subjects of this sign of Aries love life and make an art of living.

William Ellery Channing, famous Unitarian minister, was born on this date, 1780. William Wadsworth, 1770, a poet, also claimed this as his birthdate.

MONDAY, APRIL 8, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Adverse planetary aspects rule today, according to astrology. It is a day not fortunate for big enterprises.

The early morning may affect workers with discontent, inclining them to find fault where they really have no grievances.

Destructive and depressing thoughts should be cast out by all who desire to make the most of their opportunities.

Merchants may see reason to fear poor trade, but the stars promise prosperity in all lines of business.

Farmers may have some sort of a setback at this time when storms and even floods are indicated in certain parts of the country, yet the stars promise for them a prosperous season.

Advertising should be fortunate today, when Mercury seems to promise large returns from all sorts of publicity.

Surprises for Uncle Sam may be expected, if the stars are rightly read. The summer is to be a period of great activity in Washington, D.C., it is foretold.

The evening should be a fairly auspicious time for offering a new play or for presenting any amusement for public approval.

Music and musicians are to enjoy a prosperous summer, it is forecast, and music publishers will profit.

Warning is given that nervous disorders will be even more prevalent than formerly. Rest and sane recreation are imperative, the seers announce.

Sudden deaths, foretold as numerous this year, will increase in number this summer when the golf courses should be deserted by many who have undergone severe nerve strain.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be cautious in all things during the coming year which may bring unexpected experiences.

Children born on this day may be extraordinary in their talents. Geniuses now and then are born under this sign. Both boys and girls may have so many gifts that it is difficult to direct their lives to the best advantage.

Albert, King of Belgium, was born on this date 1875. David Rittenhouse, 1732, famous astronomer, and General Walter Harriman, 1817, claimed this as a birthday.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY POLICEMEN ARE ABUSIVE

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

A man stalled his car at an important intersection. A policeman immediately appeared on the scene and the driver expected the usual bawling out. Much to his surprise the policeman actually smiled and offered to help the man start his car. The driver was so dumbfounded that he later sent the policeman a note of thanks inclosing a ten dollar bill.

Of course there are a great many policemen who are not gruff and abusive, but there are enough of them who stand ready to take off your head at the slightest infringement so that the public has come to look upon them as typical.

It is partly our fault. We expect policemen to be rough and abusive. From early childhood we have been trained to fear the policeman. Some mothers tell their children that if they do not do as they are told, the policeman will get them. The policeman serves as a convenient boogieman.

Moreover, the police are in the business of dealing with law breakers who as a class are anything but kind and gentle and considerate. They are a hard lot and only harsh methods are invited and suggested by their own conduct. They look upon the police as their natural enemy. It is to be expected that the police should take a similar attitude of hostility. This becomes an attitude on the part of the policeman and he appears to be gruff and abusive to all who come under his power.

Very few people realize how often a policeman must use his discretion in arresting a person. Quite frequently he lets a man off after a good talking to instead of taking him to the judge for the same type of lecture. Many cases are handled in this way. The policeman is imitating the judge. Even when his language is original he is acting to maintain his personal dignity and the dignity of the law according to his light.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

LEFT HAND TURN.

Peterboro, April 6, 1929.

Editor, Peterboro Examiner.

Dear sir:

Your editorial regarding abolishing the left hand turn at George and Charlotte street, it is certainly about time that someone took some action in removing this fool idea, even if the Police Chief does not agree with same. In the first place if the buses can make a left hand turn here why not the motorists, as strangers here see the sign and start their cars, and find a bus pull across the front of them, and as far as the pedestrian goes about 50 per cent wait until the green light goes on and then step in front of your car. You can verify this by standing on the corner and watch their actions. Also the lights can be speeded up as there is very little traffic to warrant such delay except Saturday, and even then if the pedestrians were to cross with the signals no congestion would follow.

Yours truly,

PETERBORO MOTORIST.

TRUCK HAVOC ON ROADS

To the Editor of Examiner:

Dear sir:

Over the signature of "J. F. Lillicrap" (Lakefield an opinion based on his knowledge of road construction is cited.

Mr. Lillicrap is an old prominent citizen of the Village of Lakefield, being J.P. and a member of the village council, and no doubt his advice has been obtained by those entrusted with the condition of Lakefield streets.

What seems strange is this: It looks as if his fragrance has been wasted in the Desert Air, according to a statement made in public a few days ago, when a prominent gentleman from Lakefield stated as follows: "Gentlemen who had occasion to travel frequently from Peterborough to Apsley found the road all fairly good, save the road through Lakefield, declaring the same to be the worst part of such road."

FINANCIAL and MINING REVIEWS

PRICES RALLY AFTER EARLY LIST DECLINE

Heavy Buying Noted in Some of Popular Railroad and Oil Issues.

MARKET UNSETTLED.

No New Developments in the Credit Situation at New York.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 6. — (Canadian Press).—Prices generally headed downward at the opening on the New York exchange, but rallied later when fresh buying operations appeared in some of the popular oil and railroad shares. Acute weakness cropped out in a few high priced specialties, which dropped 5 to 20 points in a thin market.

Speculative sentiment was unsettled by the circulation of unconfirmed rumors that a large operator, who was sponsoring a pool in a motor stock, had met with financial difficulties. While there were no new developments in the credit situation to-day, many large and small traders were reported to be reducing their long commitments on the theory that a major up-swing was unlikely, while the market was under the threat of Federal Reserve Board that unless there was voluntary co-operation on the part of the banks in obtaining a reduction of brokers' borrowings it "may adopt other methods of influencing the situation."

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

A comprehensive report covering operations in the field, in the air and various camps has been issued by the Northern Aerials Minerals Exploration, Limited for the year ending December 31, 1928. The report is well illustrated with photos and contains remarks by president John E. Hammell, survey of aerial exploration by Capt. H. A. "Doc" Oakes and a resume of field operations by the engineers of the various districts in which the company is operating.

In reporting to the shareholders President Hammell states the company has been fortunate enough to make seven discoveries and for the present are concentrating attention on the very promising gold discoveries at Crow River. A camp has been established on this property and a crew is now at work stripping, trenching and sampling these showings. Mr. Hammell says shareholders will be able to judge from the report on field operations by the engineers that the showing at Crow River looks as though N.A.M.E. have a very important property. Mr. Hamell has just visited this find and remarks that it look like a winner. There has not been enough work done as yet to show definitely the importance of property, but first channel samples have given most satisfactory values.

Mr. Hammell touches briefly on the wrecking on the "Patrick and Michael" which however was fully covered by insurance, and the misfortune met with by two prospectors on the trail.

Continuing Mr. Hammell says: — "Judging from our first season's operations, we feel that we are justified in looking forward with great optimism to next season's work. Now that we have the entire organization rounded out and our various supply depots and flying bases established at strategic points, we have every reason to look forward to still greater success for our operations during 1929.

"The general plans for the season's operations that this coming summer are as follows: Firstly, careful surface development of the Crow River properties with a view to laying out a diamond drilling program. Secondly, concentration of prospecting in the Patricia area, each mining engineer having ten prospectors under his direct supervision. These prospectors are to be visited regularly by the engineer and moved from place to place as circumstances justify. Thirdly, a small mobile expedition will prospect the area on the west side of Hudson Bay. It is possible that two other small scouting parties may be sent to investigate two new promising areas, with a view to further more careful work with a larger party the following season."

Announcement is made of the acquisition of the services of Gordon Duncan, formerly assistant superintendent of the Flin Flon Mine and mining engineer in charge of exploration for the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, to take charge of N.A.M.E. field operations.

Crosscutting on the 125-foot level of the Kirkland Gold Belt Mines, east Kirkland Lake, has been successful in encountering a good-looking vein. To date the vein appears to be from ten to eighteen feet wide and, while no assays have been given out, the find is said to look very rich. The shaft will be deepened to the 250-foot horizon and lateral work will be prosecuted at this level.

Treadwell-Yukon is reported to be proceeding with aggressive development at the Yukon property. A contract for power is said to have been arranged.

Good Outlook For Crescent Company

W. R. Aird, vice-president of Eastern Dairies, Limited, has just returned to Montreal after inspecting the company's plants in Western Canada.

"I was very much impressed with the spirit of optimism prevailing in the West," said Mr. Aird. "Winnipeg is particularly active right now, participating as it is in the development of northern Manitoba, and the future of that province never looked so bright.

"The business of Crescent Creamery Company of Winnipeg is reflecting this increased activity and we are looking forward to an exceptionally good year. With the development of Winnipeg, and its increasing population the business of our company there is bound to grow, and we anticipate a healthy and continued increase in sales and earnings of the Crescent Creamery Company."

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

FIRSTBROOK BOXES REGISTERS PROGRESS.

A gratifying report was presented to shareholders of the Firstbrook Boxes, Limited, at the first general meeting of the company held yesterday in Mount Dennis. The report covered operations from the date of the company's incorporation June 2, 1928, to January 5, 1929, a seven months' period.

E. V. Donaldson, president of the company, presented the directors' report, and in the course of his speech remarked:

"From the surplus account before you, you will note that gross operating profits for the period were $100,807, and that in writing off $33,370, a liberal depreciation policy has been adopted. After deducting an amount for extraordinary expenses and income taxes of $12,452 and bond interest and preference dividend requirements of $23,484, a net balance of $31,500 is available to be carried forward.

"I think it well to mention that, due to the fact that the company has only moved into its new premises within the last fortnight, the above gross operating profits were arrived at before taking into account the havings to be effected through our activities henceforth being combined in one plant. Your directors consider that these figures constitute a very promising augury for the company's future. Apart from purely operating economies, important savings will be attained through the elimination of duplicate staffs and taxation expenditures incidental to the dual operation of our factories, previously situated some distance apart. An additional item of interest, and one which is not reflected in the surplus account, is that there has been a pleasing increase in sales since the commencement of the present fiscal year."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 6 (Canadian Press).—Foreign exchanges irregular. Quotations (in cents), Great Britain, demand 4.84 13-16; Canadian dollars at 19-32 of one per cent. discount.

PIG IRON PRICES IN THE DOMINION EXPECTED TO FOLLOW U.S. ADVANCE

Following the $1 advance in the Buffalo market, pig iron prices in Canada are expected to rise again over the 50 cent advance recorded last week. Conservative estimates indicate a further immediate advance of 50 cents as inevitable, though steel men consider that next quarter quotations, taking the lead from the strong United States market, should advance much further.

Shipments are steady on contracts. As yet, there has been no real testing of the new prices, as most big buyers have their supplies well in hand. It is estimated that more than 80 per cent are now covered against second quarter requirements. Sellers are confident of holding the new prices to all spot buyers.

Steel, drawing strength from the firm pig iron market, shows a firmer tone, and the general advances rumored are expected to come into operation during the first week in April. New business from the spring building programs is now on hand for considerable tonnages.

American mills are operating at 100 per cent of capacity, while Canadian mills are still short on demand. The new listed prices are not expected to meet any serious opposition. Among recent orders is one to the Hamilton Bridge Co., for four bridges in British Columbia from the C.P.R. These are estimated to be worth about 300,000.

Scrap merchants report a quieter market with prices unchanged, although it is thought that the firmer tone of the iron and steel markets will be reflected here also. Belting manufacturers report a steady demand, with prices unchanged and likely to remain steady. Brisker business is expected to materialise shortly.

Business is developing, as is shown by the report from William Hamilton Ltd., of Peterborough, that in the three and a half months after Oct., 1928, they have booked orders that total more than the whole of last year's business. Canada Iron Foundries Ltd., show a substantial increase of working capital over the past year, although keen competition, resulting in decreased prices for pipe, lowered earnings considerably.

Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., report good business at present. This firm are reaping the benefits from the considerable sums expended last year on improving their equipment. In many of their departments, they are completely sold out for months ahead. The Steel Co., of Canada is showing excellent returns, while the McKinnon Steel Corporation in Quebec report record shipments due to the general activity in industrial enterprises.

Though not a single ton of iron ore is mined in Ontario, there are indications that the Government will take steps to utilize the vast known deposits of low grade ore. The total output of blast furnaces in Canada is at present from imported ores. Germany and other countries have made good use of their deposits of low grade ore and the prospect of such a development in Canada would be welcomed.

Loblaws To Retire 7 Per Cent. Preferred

Holders of the 7 per cent. cumulative preferred issued of Loblaw Groceterias will shortly receive an offer for the retirement of this issue. The preferred stock of this company is non-callable, although there is a sinking fund provided for the redemption of the stock and it is understood officials are now working out details of an offer to be made to the senior stockholders shortly. This will take the form of a straight cash payment, and it is expected practically all preferred holders will decide to accept this proposal and place the company in the position of having only ordinary shares outstanding. Class "A" shares exchanged for preferred will also carry the rights accruing at the present time and will make the convertible feature even more attractive.

LIST EASIER ON STANDARD CURB

Noranda Heaviest Loser in Quiet Session On Standard Exchange.

DALHOUSIE ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., April 6 (Canadian Press).—A slightly easier tone in the general list was evident on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Trading was quite orderly and price changes were not marked. Noranda was the heaviest loser, selling down 1.00 to 53.00, while Treadwell eased off 25 to 12.50 and Pend Oreille 15 to 8.85. Ventures held 5 cents lower at 10.55, and Wright Hargreaves weakened 6 cents to 1.87, Mining Corporation 15 to 4.65, Kirkland Lake 5 to 1.15, Sudbury Basin 5 to 9.50, and Falconbridge 10 to 10.50.

South-West Petroleum worked in opposition to the general movement, strengthening 60 cents to 4.60, while Dome improved 25 to 9.25, Teck-Hughes 15 to 9.15, and Dalhousie Oil 15 to 5.30.

GENERAL LIST HOLDS STEADY

Nickel and Oil Stocks Provide Bright Spots On Toronto Exchange.

QUIET SESSION.

TORONTO, Ont., April 6 (C.P.).—Prices continued to mark time on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning with trading being resumed in an easy fashion. The list was quite narrow and uninteresting with fluctuation mostly on a fractional scale. International Nickel and the oil stocks were the only bright spots on the board, but even here prices showed only fractional changes. International Nickel broke to 47½, recovering to 48⅛ for a fractional loss.

Imperial Oil improved ½ to 105¾, while the new held unchanged at 27¾. International Petroleum was slightly off at 54⅝, while Imperial dropped back one point to 48.

Hayes Wheels appeared 3 points higher at 56½, while Page Hersey advanced the same amount to 128. A few shares of English Electric B. changed hands at 28, 3 points higher.

Brazilian, in light trading, lost a point to 59, City Dairy one to 64, and Dominion Power 3 to 65.

CHICAGO WHEAT PRICES LOWER

Market Has Easier Tendencies Due to Favorable Weather Reports.

CORN VALUES STEADY.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 6. (C.P.) — General selling and much lower prices came about in the wheat market to-day as a result of widespread northwest. Numerous standing orders to sell out at various fixed limits were forced into execution by the drop in values. Opening 1-2 to 1 3-8 off wheat later showed some additional setback. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, with corn starting 1-4 to 7-8c down but subsequently holding near to the initial figures.

SHE WAS WORTH IT.

CLEVELAND, April 6. — After Frank Stroggin, 22, was caught speeding he told the judge that he had been hurrying to keep a date with his girl. "Was your visit to your girl worth $10.00, and costs?" the judge asked. "All of that, judge," replied Stroggin as he dug for the money.

MAN ATTEMPTS TO KILL FAMILY

Mike Boyka Is Given Two Months in Hamilton Jail.

SERVED 10 YEARS.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 6 (C.P.).—Mike Boyka, 225 Canada street, supplied thrills for his neighborhood last night when he threatened his family with extermination, followed them to a neighbor's house, fired a shot through a window, sent several rocks after it, then tried to chop the front door down, and later barricaded himself in his cellar when the police arrived. He was found to be armed with one rifle, a revolver, and other deadly instruments. Magistrate Jelfs sentenced him to two months in jail, fined him $20 and bound him over at $500 to keep the peace. Evidence was produced that Boyka had been convicted of killing a man in 1912, and had served ten years in prison.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the ten day period ending March 31, 1929, were $7,259,143, as compared with $7,234.15 for the corresponding period of 1928, an increase of $25,018.

The finest and smartest cars on the streets of the world

It is a very tangible value in Cadillac-La Salle that all over the world Cadillac-La Salle ownership carries with it the unquestioned admission that the owner is driving the very finest motor cars which his highest ambition can attain.

Other cars have sought in vain to achieve the high social prestige that has been inseparably Cadillac's for a generation. But you have only to pause where the smartest people congregate, you have only to check the social register, and you will inevitably discover a preponderance of Cadillacs and La Salles.

And the simple bald fact about this is that men and women who know motor cars know too that if they want a car to ride and drive as Cadillac-La Salle ride and drive they must eliminate everything else from consideration.

For the truth of all truths about Cadillac-La Salle, and something that you know full well, is just this: it is because of inherent and surpassing excellence that there is no substitute for the priceless possession and prestige of a Cadillac-built car.

Where else—in all the world—will you find the same measure of comfort, of riding and driving ease?—where else such vital provisions for safety and freedom of mind?

The Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission, for example, was designed and perfected specifically for the highest degree of control in all driving conditions. A vital essential in time of emergency, this transmission permits lightning-like shifting of gears with a finger-touch, at any speed, without pausing in neutral. It is quiet, simple, positive and effortless in operation and removes even the faintest suggestion of clashing gears.

The sense of security inspired by the Cadillac-La Salle Duplex-Mechanical System of Four-Wheel Brakes will prove a decidedly new motoring experience. Though these new brakes are amazingly powerful and positive in action, slight effort is required to operate them. Just a touch of the toe on the brake pedal and they respond instantaneously.

Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass with which Cadillac-La Salle windows, doors and windshields are equipped, is the highest quality, perfect-vision plate glass. TORONTO, April 6.—Trade in cattle at the Union Stock Yards this week was moderately active, with the price of killers generally unchanged on a light offering, showing a decrease of some 300 head as compared with the week previous. Heavy steers were scarce and anything choice in that class was taken readily at prices ranging up to 10 cents per pound. The ten cent top applied also in the case of some of the best weighty butcher steers, while the bulk of the good to choice handy-weight brought 9¼ to 9¾ cents.

Butcher cows were draggy at the start of the week, and looked a quarter lower at the top, but light offerings after Monday brought a better feeling with regard to anything but rough heavy cows and the good to choice butcher kind closed at 7½ to 8 cents per pound, with the odd fancy heifersh cow up to 8½ cents. Fair quality cows sold downward to 6 cents per pound.

Butcher bulls showed a range of 7¼ to 8 cents per pound in the bulk of sales, with just a few up to last week's top of 8¼ cents.

Baby ewes were slow and barely steady on Monday and Tuesday, with the extreme range of price of that class 9 to 11 cents per pound. On Wednesday, however, feeling appeared somewhat brighter, and the range moved up to 10 to 12 cents, several head in a light total offering of baby beeves seling at the top

Springers and milkers were in fair demand, and best forward springers sold up to $120 each in spots, which was a gain of $5 over last week. Strictly fresh milkers of good quality brought $80 to $90 each.

Enquiry for store cattle was better and with offerings even lighter than they have been in recent weeks the price on both good stockers and feeders was a shade higher at a range of 8 to 8¾ cents per pound for anything outside common, with 9 cents for a few shortkeep steers.

Calf receipts were some 300 lower than last week, and prices held steady at last week's $1 per cwt. decline. From 15 to 15½ cents per pound took the bulk of the choice veals, and light calves and medium quality veals sold from 9 to 14 cents per pound. Shipment to the United States accounted for only 500 calves as against 900 in the week previous. While calf receipts at this market this week were lighter than in the week previous, falling off was in part attributable to bad road conditions adversely affecting truck deliveries. Accumulation of calves at country points is increasing, and heavier supply from now on may be looked for.

The run of sheep and lambs was the smallest for the year to date, amounting in all to some 250 head. Most of last year's lambs offered were of inferior quality, selling from 10 to 13 cents per pound, and it was a very small number that brought 14¼ cents, or steady with last week's top. Spring lambs, good to choice, sold from $12 to $17 each. A shipment of 800 Alberta lambs went through on billing to Buffalo. Best light sheep sold a cent per pound lower at the top than last week, the range being 8 to 9 cents per pound, with heavies at 7 cents, and culls downward to 4 cents per pound.

Hog supply was somewhat lighter than last week, and while the market was unsettled the first day, stronger feeling prevailed, and the bulk of the week's run of selects sold from 12¾ to 13 cents per pound, w.o.c., with the close firm at the higher figure, representing a gain of 25 cents per cut over last week's close.

EASTER SEASON SERVICES IN THE DISTRICT CHURCHES

LAKEFIELD, April 5.—(Examiner Correspondence).—There were two celebrations of Holy Communion in St. John's Church on Sunday (Easter) morning, one at 8 o'clock, and the second at 11 o'clock. Besides the Easter hymns, an anthem "Thanks Be to God" by Caleb Simper, was sung with the solo part taken by Miss Winnie Payne.

One of Simper's Te Deum's was sung and a setting of the Jubilate by Barnaby, Palmer's Kyrie Mann's Savetus, Plummer's Gloria Tik and Blackburn's, Gloria in Excelsios were sung in the communion office with Stainer's four fold amen after the blessing. Rev. W. J. Creighton preached the subject of the Risen Lord, the subject, paramount in importance and especially brought to notice at the Easter season.

The evening service was fully choral with the anthem repeated and appropriate sermon.

KNOX UNITED CHURCH

Both morning and evening services were marked by large congregations, beautiful music and inspirational sermons by Rev. T. M. Wesley, the minister of the church.

Instead of the usual doxology at the opening of the morning service the first verse of Bishop Hebers beautiful hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy" was sung and at the evening service included an anthem "Christ the Lord is Risen," a ladies quartette "In the Cross of Christ I glory" by Mesdames Bell, Hull, Renwick and Yale.

Mrs. Hull's sweet mezzo soprano was heard to advantage in a setting of the beautiful old "Shepherd's psalm "The Lord is My Shepherd" and Mrs. Bell's solo "Open the Gates of the Temple" was a truly magnificent effort.

In the evening the anthem was Gounod's "Praise Ye the Father" a very fine selection with excellent shading and splendid rendition. Mesdames Renwick and Hull sang "Nailed to the Cross" as a duet in an acceptable manner. The same two ladies with Messrs. Carveth and Yale were heard to advantage in a mixed quartette entitled "On Calvary's Cross." Mrs. G. Craig Bell sang with exquisite feeling Gounod's beautiful setting for Mrs. Alexander's hymn "There is a Green Hill Far Away." Music was a masterly effort and formed an appropriate setting for Mr. Wesley's thoughtful and inspiring sermons. Mr. Wesley's evening text was taken from the third verse of the 37th chapter of Ezekiel "And he said unto me, 'Son of man, can these bones live and I answered "Oh Lord God, thou knowest." Mr. Wesley drew a vivid picture of the valley of dead bones and cited Ezekiel's perplexed answer to the question of his Lord. Philosophers, scientists and spiritualists all down the ages from Aristotle to Conan Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge have studied the question and have given no satisfactory explanation. Turning to the more practical phase of the question, the speaker said "Can bones morally dead live again"? Can sin be forgiven, sinners all over the world, convicts in prisons all hang on the answer which we find in the parable of the Prodigal Son where the Father says "This my Son was dead and is alive again."

Returning to the question of immortality, these dead bones can live, again as we have abundant evidence in the resurrection, the empty tomb, the changed disciples, the glorified church, and our Lord's own sacred promise, "Because I live, ye shall live also."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. J. Ross of the Presbyterian church gave very inspiring sermon on the Easter festival on Sunday morning.

He prefaced the sermon with an explanation of Easter, this season has been always marked by a great festival even in heathen days, then the Jewish Feast of the Passover and now the season is marked by the great Christian festival of Easter which marks the resurrection of Our Lord from the dead. His victory over sin and death, which brought to the world the bessed hope of everlasting life.

Mr. Ross took his text from the first and second verses of the 96th Psalm "Oh sing Unto the Lord," this phrase is three times repeated in these two verses. Let us sing 1st with the tongue in conversation, If we are not musical, 2nd sing with your understanding, 3rd sing in your deeds and doings.

It is a great matter to compose a song which lives and thrills the hearts of the world. We all can't compose a song, that needs a poet's tongue and imagination and is a talent given to but few and we can all sing songs. Make your life a song; God gives the words in your duties and experiences, you set them to music in your obedience and submission.

God wants your life to be a song, he gives the words and the song becomes glad, in sweet or sad as you chose to fashion the measure. We must write the music, whatever the song if it is sad we can make it glad and if it is sweet we can make it sweeter.

Make music in the individual life and harmony and peace with relatives, neighbours and all with whom we come in contact.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Mass was said in St. Paul's church at 9 a.m. on Easter morning with a large congregation present on this the greatest of all church festivals.

REGENT STREET CHURCH

Special music and appropriate sermons marked the Easter services in Regent street United Church. Following the custom of years past the evening service was under the auspices of the W.M.S. who conducted it in an impressive manner. Mrs. Bookhout of Peterborough gave an interesting and illuminating address on missions.

The ROYAL MASTER

and your new car

THERE are three major features to be considered in choosing tires for your new car — economy, safety and freedom from trouble.

ECONOMY

No other tire in the world will return as many miles per dollar as the Royal Master. It costs more, naturally—but its extra mileage far outweighs its additional cost.

SAFETY

The Royal Master insures safety from blowouts and punctures.

Not one Royal Master in a thousand will ever puncture.

Not one in five thousand will blow out under two years of service.

FREEDOM FROM TROUBLE

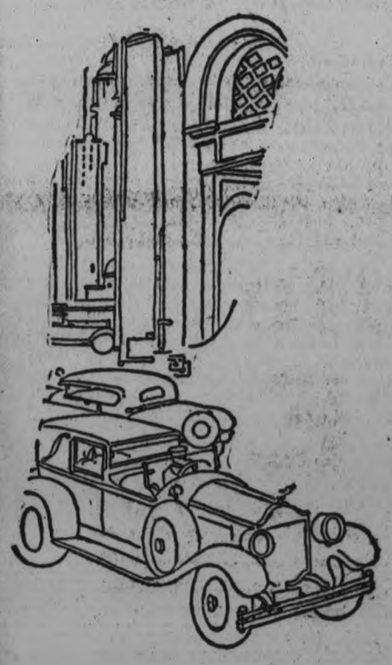
With Royal Masters you will enjoy care-free motoring not only this year but for a long time to come.

ROYAL MASTERS cost more than any other tire made and you cannot expect them as standard equipment on your new car.

Any dealer will, however, be glad to equip your new car with Royal Masters as an extra. You will find the additional cost one of the best investments you have ever made.

Royal Masters on Last Year's Car

If your car has been stored all winter the tires will need careful attention to put them in shape for this season's motoring. If new tires are required, by all means insist on Royal Masters. They cost less in the long run. They will give you greater mileage than any tire ever made.



You are never far away from a

DAMAGE WROUGHT BY RUNAWAY TEAM

Horses Owned By John Laffin Stampede Through Madoc Streets.

MADOC, April 6.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Considerable excitement was caused on Tuesday afternoon when a team of horses, owned by John Laffin broke loose from the lower hotel sheds and though hitched to a heavy wagon, proceeded up the lane to St. Lawrence street. They collided with the fire hall building and part of the wagon was left there. At Armstrong's garage they struck a telephone pole which checked them somewhat in their wild stampede, but not before they struck a car, owned by Mr. Rupert, which was parked there, and considerable damage was done to the glass in the car. The wagon and harness were completely wrecked and one horse was severely cut when it fell.

Fortunately the streets were almost clear of traffic, so that very little other damage was done.

ELOCUTION CONCERT PRESENTED IN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC HALL

Interesting Program Provided By Pupils of Miss Kathleen Baker.

TAKE PARTS WELL.

Amusing and Entertaining Skits Presented By Youthful Students.

(By Jeanette).

A very pleasing and well-managed Recital of Elocution by the pupils of Miss Kathleen Baker of the staff of the Conservatory of Music was presented in the Conservatory Hall last evening in a manner that was creditable alike to the performers and to their clever young teacher. The interest taken in the recital was manifested by the extremely large attendance. The hall was well filled, even the very bad weather proving powerless to keep the patrons away.

The program went through smoothly, without a hitch, and demonstrated admirably an excellent type of teaching in elocutionary work. The young people and children taking part appeared to be absolutely unselfconscious in their efforts to amuse and entertain. They have pleasant, clear voices, whose modulations are quite equal to the demands of dramatic and humorous readings and they demonstrate also a degree of histrionic ability that adds much to the interest of their work.

The imitations of some of the smaller children, in their cunning recitations that included sneezing and simulation of more than one voice, were very clever and likeable. Miss Baker has a quite evident faculty of getting her pupils very interested in their own work. Each, in an individual way, put every bit of effort into a dramatic presentation of their own particular "piece," while the older actors in the little one-act play which completed the program demonstrated the same alive enthusiasm in their parts.

An addition to the program that brought to local audiences the pleasure of hearing a remarkably fine tenor voice in a very young man was the singing of Miss Baker's brother, J. Howard Baker of Lindsay, who gave several beautifully-rendered vocal numbers in a warm, pleasing, smooth tenor voice. Mr. Baker assisted in several of the sections of the evening's entertainment.

G. F. Liddle provided adequate and sympathetic piano accompaniments for the program, while Miss Berenice Flynn played the pretty piano accompaniment for the sketch, "Twenty Minutes in Ireland." A very attractive stage setting was provided through the courtesy of J. Gerald McFadden.

Canadian Scene.

The entertainment had an effective opening in a Canadian Scene in which small girls, dressed in snappy white middy blouses and navy skirts, gave in turn brief recitations of Canadian type and marched off in a military drill formation. The little lasses taking part in this were Agnes Lynch, Reta Young, Marion Schooley, Eleanor Dunsford, Jean Doris, Barbara Dawson, Pauline Huppe, Florence Barry, Phyllis Watson and Eileen Scholes.

A Gypsy Skit followed, with a beautiful introduction in the song, "My Little Gypsy Sweetheart," by Mr. Baker, who also sang later on, in splendid voice, a number that must have been very attractive to the senior members of the audience, in the melodious old-time favorite, "The Gypsy's Warning." Miss Peggy Roche gave a very fine presentation of the gypsy girl, Zingarella, enacting her part with dramatic emphasis and eloquent voice. Others taking part were Miss Nellie Boorman as the gypsy fortune-teller, the Misses Helen Gainey and Roxy Roche, as soothseekers, and Howard Baker as the gypsy lover. All were in appropriate costume.

A sextette of small girls with entertaining little readings and pretty frocks came next, entertaining their hearers with a diversity of recitations, delivered with much enthusiasm and charm.

Dorothy Boorman was the "Tom Boy" of her recitation, giving a boyish touch to her jolly little number. Barbara Hickey was the extremely unselfconscious little miss who tried to entertain the young man who called on her sister, and did it with astounding revelation of some home truths, in a reading entitled "Miss Edith Helps Things Along," and Corona Hanbidge gave a very clever imitation of "Ma and the Auto," in which the mother of the house gives Pa directions on how to drive.

"Seein' Things at Night" was a cunning bit by a very small lady, Betty Kirn, who had a piano accompaniment for her amusing little bit of fun, and Isobel Young was a yawny tot who knew just how to put over her "Sleepy Boy" number.

Jean Doris had a difficult little recitation called "Nuthin' to Laugh At," and carried it off beautifully, telling the story of the little girl stung by a bee and the family's rude reaction.

Miss Maretta Marvin was extremely good as a giggly elderly maiden in "Leap Year Proposals."

"Twenty Minutes in Ireland" brought in some cleverly done and amusing bits of humor from the Green Isle, in song and readings given by the Misses Roxy and Peggy Roche and Helen Gainey, as pretty Irish colleens in costume, who recited, and by Howard Baker, heard in the lovely vocal selections, "Mother Machree" and "My Wild Irish Rose." The recitations included splendidly-done selections that told the story of Mary Ann and her suitors.

Another group of small children, with two little boys taking part, came next. Ella Meagher, a very small child, had a cute piece about "Babies and Kittens," and little Jack Barry told the story of the small brother who did some eavesdropping, in "So Was I." Jacqueline Graham was very dainty and mischievous in "The Naughty Child," and George Nimmons was amusing in the extreme in "The Picture Cow."

Miss Nellie Boorman was very effective in her recital of the curiosity of the wash-tub lady in "The Busybody."

Two musical interludes here were a very fine rendition of the lovely song, "Little Mother of Mine," by J. Howard Baker, and a group song by young girls of the Junior Class wearing pretty "angel" frocks of pastel shades of orchid, blue, pink, yellow and white. They carried little silvery hand-bells that served as an accompaniment to the recital in Miss Barbara Dawson's smooth, pretty tones of Tenneyson's New Year's Eve composition. An effective accompaniment by the piano brought the performers in to the sound of "The Sidewalks of New York."

"His Model Wife"

A one-act farce comedy entitled "His Model Wife" brought the entertainment to a close. The performance of this was snappy and bright, the youth and skill and interested enthusiasm of the actors giving it a very pleasing atmosphere. John Holland was the hero of the piece, Arthur Everett, a harassed young artist in velvet smock and tam, who is compelled by his erratic aunt, a returned missionary (Miss Maretta Marvin as Aunt Agnes McPherson) to get married. He is in love with Eleanor Perry (Miss Nellie Boorman) but pretends to be married when his aunt pays him a visit, and enlists the aid of Miss Wilhelmina Torrington Montgomery, or "Willie," as she is called, a peppy young lady whose role is taken by Miss Peggy Roche. He is assisted through a very hectic visit in which the zippy "bride" pulls some bad breaks, by his well meaning but unthanked companion, Robert Parks (John Madden), who cherishes a growing infatuation for "Willy."

Visitors to the studio are a young lady who has been sitting for a portrait, Miss Bella Potts (Miss Roxy Roche), with her father, John Potts (Jack Gainey) and Mrs. Munford Wells (Miss Helen Gainey). Two small juniors who take part add much to the interest of the piece by their amusing character roles. They are Isobel Duffus, who is Mary, a very pretty and energetic maid, and who conceals a passion for Arthur Everett that reveals itself occasionally in the form of nervously smashed dishes, and the little independent "Patsy," the child of the "washing-lady" of the neighborhood, who comes at an awkward moment and demands payment of a long overdue laundry bill. This small child's part is well taken by Dorothy Boorman.

At the conclusion of the performance, a pretty bouquet of roses from her pupils was presented to Miss Baker.

MOCK BABY SHOW IS BIG SUCCESS

Entertainment Provided By the Members of Murray Street Church Society.

The mock baby show presented last evening in the Sunday school auditorium of Murray Street Church, under the auspices of the Women's Association and the Baraca Class, provided much merriment for the good-sized audience present.

The babies, although not as young as they used to be, presented a very amusing picture as the curtain rose, in their own numbered stalls, dainty dresses in white bonnets, some with pink bows, some with yellow and still others with purple bows. The nurse in attendance was Mrs. C. Westbrook, who administered to their needs as the cry arose, supplying Lolly-Pops or the bottle as the case may be. The judging of the babies proved quite a task with Charles Westbrook as chairman and Miss Iman Oldman, whose part was taken by Mrs. L. Ingram, and Walter Fitzgerald, as judges. Each thinking, of course, that the one he chose should receive the prize. Walter Fitzgerald, who took the part of a butcher, tried his best to interest the audience during his speech about babies and pigs, and to announce the fact that he was having a sale of veal cutlets and pig's feet at his store in the morning— these, he said, were good for babies.

The baby characters were taken by Mrs. A. J. Madill, Mrs. H. H. Graham, Miss Smith, the Messrs. H. H. Graham, Walter Kidd, Jimmy Ellis, Joseph Wearing, L. Ingram, L. Smith, David Kidd, H. Lord and Sidney Drury.

During the judging of the babies a sweet chorus was given by the 'little mothers,' including Virginia Madill, Diana Liddle, Jean Cox, Dorothy Lord, Evelyn Wilson and Kathryn Wearing.

Miss M. Mayneord delighted the audience with a whistling solo, while little Diana Liddle was heartily received in two vocal numbers as was Orville Wainman in two vocal numbers.

The accompanists were Miss B. Payton, Mrs. Wainman and Miss Elizabeth Webber.

During the intermission between the supper, which was served in the basement from prettily decorated tables, many of the old-time games were enjoyed such as crokinole, checkers, etc.

water mark of March 16 by nearly a foot.

BUSINESS PARALYZED

From Simcoe street, two blocks below the C.P.R. hill, to the southern extremities, Water street was turned into a river, which at some places was over two feet deep.

Sidewalks were covered by the muddy water which ran in alleyways into cellars. Furnaces were extinguished. The water backed up from Water street on to the adjoining streets, including Main, as far back as Ainslie. Water gushed out of manhole covers like geysers. Business was paralyzed by the flood, all industrial plants along the river being closed down, while motor cars were employed to convey office staffs to buildings on the west side of Water street. Firemen and police, including night shifts, were called out to render aid to the marooned, and to guard the bridges. Waves splashed over the C.P.R. bridge and was sprinkling the pedestrians walking on other bridges. River walls were washed over. Ice with to-day's high water, would have carried away every down-town bridge in Galt. A peculiar feature of to-day's freshet was that it lasted longer than usual. Water sereet was flooded before eight o'clock and at ten the water was still rising.

STRATFORD, Ont., April 6.— (C. P.)—Although Stratford and the immediate vicinity escaped with little damage from the storm which swept this part of the province last night, heavy loss was sustained by the Canadan National Railways through washouts which occurred at various points along the track near here. More than 50 cars of gravel and cinders are being rushed to the scene and it is expected traffic will be resumed late to-day.

Serious damage was wrought at Holstein, where the dam gave way to the floods, inundating the tracks and in many places washed away the roadbed. A work train was derailed near there, but no direct damage was sufferd, and no one was injured. A small bridge was swept away by the floods at Hanover.

A large barn at Mitchell was struck by lightning during the storm and was destroyed by fire which followed.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 6 (C.P.). — Sault Ste. Marie was an isolated case where benefit was derived from last night's thunderstorm. No damage was suffered in the city and the only effect the storm had on local conditions was to break up the ice in the river and send it hurtling down over the compensating dam into the harbor. Mariners have long been waiting the breaking up of the ice in

Although the sun is burning itself up at the rate of 250,000,000 tons a minute, says a European scientist, it is so large that it will not be reduced to the size of the earth for approximately 100,000,000 years.

EGGS ARE CHEAPER ON LOCAL MARKET

Butter Is Quoted At From 45 To 48, While Syrup Brings $2.60 a Gallon.

There was an air of Spring about the farmers' market this morning. Maple syrup flowed freely in the open section and up-stairs, the chirping of tiny chicks filled the air, along with the odor of fresh green onions and crisp celery, and the new look of their companions, lettuce and cress.

Eggs were on the sliding scale this morning. One woman threatened to kill off her hens if they couldn't produce a higher-priced article. They started out at 30 cents a dozen, and slid to 24 cents before closing time, with plenty left then.

Butter, which a few weeks ago registered exactly the same price as a dozen of eggs, was 45 to 48 cents a pound this morning, and a few scarce chickens were quoted at 35 cents a pound.

Clover honey was 65 cents in five-pound pails and maple syrup was 70 and 75 cents a quart, and $2.60 a gallon.

Little Plymouth Rock chicks were 20 cents apiece.

Gladioli bulbs were two and a half cents each, in named varieties.

Home-made buns were 25 cents a dozen, and two bits would buy a scrumptious-looking lemon pie with meringue trimming.

Potatoes were $1 a bag and Spy apples $1 to 75 cents a peck, with russets and Baldwins priced at 60 cents.

Dead porkers sold at 17 and 19 cents a pound and little live pigs were $11 a pair. Two of these small Yorkshire piglets were in a tight crate without an inch to turn in. In the entry, a small boy with two Pomeranian puppies chastised one of them quite severely whenever the frisky small creature made a move.

Quick Success

Few girls in pictures have made such rapid strides toward success as this charming New Yorker. Just a few months ago she was given her first job, shadowing a star. Within three hours, she had a real part in the picture—"The Loves of Sunya."

Miss Bayard says: "I am told my selection was largely due to my perfect skin and lovely hair. I've really never taken much trouble with either. For my hair I use the simple method that most of the girls I know here in New York are so enthusiastic about. It's so easy. All you do is put a little Danderine on your brush each time you use it.

"This method is just what a busy girl needs. It's so easy; and it keeps your hair and scalp so clean you don't need to shampoo half so often. I am letting my hair grow and I find Danderine helps make it soft and easily manageable. I can arrange it any way I want and it stays that way. All my friends are complimenting me on the appearance of my hair, nowadays, because Danderine has brought out all its natural color and made it so soft and lustrous."

Danderine removes the oily film from each strand and makes dull, stringy hair gleamy, soft, easy to dress. It tones and refreshes the scalp; helps overcome dandruff. It is delicately fragranced; isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles.

COAL IS NOT NUMBER 2

To Editor of Examiner:

In your Voice of the People column issue of yesterday, I notice a letter expressing dissatisfaction of the award given for city coal. As the successful tenderer, I wish to correct a very serious error made in it; namely, inferring that coal being supplied was No. 2 grade, which is far from the truth. This information could easily have been obtained by making enquiries either at the city hall or my office, before flying into print by the writer of that letter. The facts are that I am supplying the city with Red Jacket coal, the good qualities of which are well-known in this city. Said coal being put over a 2-inch screen which takes all small coal and slack out; not a second grade as the writer seems to think. I submitted prices from $6.84 up to $7.85 per ton; the Council wisely decided to buy the best instead of any of the lower-priced coals.

AFTERNOON TEA HELD IN HALL

Social Hour Given For Members of Salvation Army Classes.

JUNIOR SOCIETIES

A very interesting gathering was held at the local Salvation Army Temple yesterday afternoon, in the nature of a social hour or tea for members of the Cradle Roll and Primary up to six years of age, together with their mothers. Under the able direction of Mrs. Stanley Richardson, assisted by Mrs. R. C. Braund, Mrs. F. Wells, Mrs. C. Breadman, Mrs. G. West of Toronto. The children were entertained to the satisfaction of the whole assembly. The gathering comprised one hundred and twenty-five mothers and children. Prizes were given out by Ensign E. H. Green to Mrs. Drummond of Bethune Street, representing the largest family present; Peggy Parnell, Rubidge street, the youngest member present of the Primary; Herbert Linden Carson of Edison street, the youngest baby present on the Cradle Roll; Raymond Mundle of Dublin street, the tallest member present of the Primary; and Howard Tobin, the slowest to walk under two years. A very dainty tea was served to all present. Mrs. Stanley Richardson is to be congratulated on her energetic work in securing such a healthy cradle roll membership which now stands at around one hundred. Illuminated birthday cards are sent to the members on their birthdays until the fourth year, after which they are transferred to the Primary. The Cradle Roll and Primary is one of the mony branches of young peoples activities carried on under the able leadership of Young Peoples Sergeant, Major R. C. Brown. The Hustlers and Rustlers campaign is progressing with continued enthusiasm by the Junior corps, between sixty and seventy new members have been secured. The largest attendance for some considerable time was recorded last Sunday morning when over one hundred attended the 1 oclock directory class. Mrs. Commissioner W. Maxwell esteemed Territorial Leader, of Toronto, addressed the gathering. The afternoon company attendance was also over three hundred. The young peoples singing company under the leadership of Miss Ethel Payton appeared in their new uniforms last Sunday consisting of a very neat blue dress with red tie. They gave a program of music and song last Thursday night at Brownton, and a goodly number of boys and girls were on hand and enjoyed the various items. The singing company has a personnel of twenty-six.

When the chair on which she was standing collapsed, five ambulance men were required to carry Florence Hatchman, weighing nearly 300 lbs., from her home to the hospital in London recently.

HIGHWAYS IN POOR SHAPE

Roads in Lindsay District Almost in Impassable Condition.

BUS SERVICE INTERRUPTED.

LINDSAY, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — As a result of the departure of the frost from mother earth, the leading highways out of Lindsay are in an impassable condition.

The Lindsay-Peterborough highway, which remained open for all kinds of traffic during the entire winter and up until a few days ago, is in a desperate shape in patches. Motorists who tried to make Peterborough were obliged to turn back, and a number of them were pulled out of sink holes by teams. The Lindsay-Newcastle highway, running south through Durham County from Lindsay, is reported to be in very bad shape. Parties from Bethany came over it yesterday, and reported that in two places the bottom has fallen out completely.

On the Lindsay-Whitby highway the bus service continued uninterruptedly all winter, but the road went bad between Sunderland and Greenbank, with the result that the busses were pulled off the service. At present it is impossible to motor from Lindsay to the Queen City. A local transport truck left Toronto last night for Lindsay, but the owner was obliged to secure the services of three teams of horses in order to get through. The highways going north are veritable quagmires and unfit for traffic.

CONDITIONS IN CHINA OUTLINED

against the British was directly due to the Russian influence, according to Mr. Blandford. The missionaries were forced to bear the greatest share of this hatred, since the Chinese were told that the missionaries formed the thin edge of the wedge which was working always for British control. The missionaries were the pioneers and came bringing the "Book" which only opened the way to merchants and the gun boats, said the Russians.

"It was the Hands-Off China agreement among the nations of the world that gave Russia her opportunity to go in and do all her evil work unmolested."

Mr. Blandford could not impress too strongly upon his listener his conviction that China formed the greatest untilled market in world. "China, with its 400 millions of people, is a tremendous field for Canadian commerce and business. The Germans have already placed agents in there who are scouting out the land, but we British are away behind."

"This is a fact," emphasized Mr. Blandford, " a bag of Canadian flour can be shipped into the interior of China and sold cheaper than the Chinese can produce their own poor quality flour".

The Chinese business man is still "Honest John" according to Mr. Blandord. "When he enters into an agreement, he can be trusted to fulfill.

A Diplomatic Peer

"But," he remarked with a smile, "the Chinese are without a peer as a diplomat. Formerly the nations thought that he could be easily bamboozled, but it is now being forced into realization that the Chinese are sly and will work patiently for their own ends. Russia is finding that out now."

Here Mr. Blandford told of talking with on of his old Chinese friends and asking him why Russia was being allowed into China. The old mandarin replied, "Russia will help us get rid of the other foreigners and then we kick him out after."

Mr. Blandford gives China five to six more years to find herself and establish a stable government that will be paramount throughout the country. He spoke of the tremendous difficulties such a settlement will incur due to lack of railroads and communications, which make it impossible to transport troops rapidly to the point of uprising.

"Too" he added, "there are the bandits and it is they, whom the people fear most. These bands are formed of rebel soldiers who leave the army in search of richer booty. A band of soldiers will be sent against the rebels; they meet and palaver. 'How much, ask the soldiers, will you give us if we join you?', and in most cases an agreement is reached and the soldiers swell the ranks of the rebels"

But Mr. Blandford sees a golden future for China, when her ills are all cured. "Tell them" said he, "that I have every confidence in China, the real Chinaman is upright, honest and industrious and he will work out his own political and industrial salvation. I hope Canada will seize the opportunity and open trade with him."

He sees a bright future for Christianity in China, also and is going back full of confidence to preach Christianity. The missionaries are not taking such a prominent place in the Chinese Christian church now. Here, too, the Chinese are taking up the burden and the missionaries' duties now will be merely in an advisory capacity.

It is a singular truth, oft borne out, that the greatest believers in the future of the Chinaman and his ancient country are the missionaries who return to Canada with a challenge to church organizations the country over, to carry on and extend the gospel in this foreign field. Despite the fact that they have sometimes been made to bear the brunt of misdirected hatred and have felt the inhospitality of a people incensed against them through the unfair dealings of traders and propaganda of other foreign elements, these missionaries seem to have found in China and her people a latent greatness inviting Christianity.

So it was last night when Edward J. Blandford spoke to an audience that was limited only by the inclement weather, in the Public Library auditorium.

Prefacing his main address by a brief service of an evangelistic nature, this man, a missionary home on furlough and soon to return to the fields of his early labors, spoke from the wealth of sometimes pleasant, sometimes unpleasant and oft times hazardous experiences that have come to him through thirty-five long years spent in the heart of China, and his words could not have been but an inspiration to those who listened. Wearing an elaborate native costume replete with skull cap, and surrounded by the many valuable and ornamental pieces of Chinese coverings each with its own special significance, Mr. Blandford carried his audience in fancy to those far fields, and showed them the tremendous work yet to be done; showed them the tragedy of Russian propaganda in its effect upon the minds of the yellow races and finally recounted, in a manner replete with the sense of danger that he had felt, how he and his family had fled to the hills, and later to safety by way of the Yangtse river, leaving behind them all personal property.

"Yet I intend going back to China, for there is a great work to be done there for the Master," declared Mr. Blandford in conclusion. For China he predicted a great future, since her people had come to modern conceptions and style of government and for Christianity in China he foresaw a great field of extension

FRANK SHARPE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, April 6. — On Good Friday there passed away at his home Frank Sharpe, aged 44 years and two months. The deceased was born in Rawdon township, where he spent the greater part of his life. He has resided in Madoc village for the past 16 years. For the past five years his health has been failing.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his widow, one brother in Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. B. Carman of Eldorado.

The funeral service was conducted in St. Peter's Presbyterian church by the Rev. T. G. Marshall, his pastor, on Monday. Burial was made in the Lakeview cemetery.

THOMAS TAYLOR.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 6. — The death occurred from heart disease on Friday afternoon, about four o'clock, of Havelock's oldest resident in the person of Thomas Taylor, age 94 years.

The deceased was born in Oxfordshire, England, his parents coming to Canada when he was seven months old. He was one of the early settlers of the Township of Belmont, purchasing what is known as Taylor's Mills, before there was any village of Havelock. Twenty years ago when he sold the mill and power rights to the Havelock Electric Light Company he moved to a farm just east of the village, moving into town a few years later. His wife, who before her marriage was Miss Susan Breckenridge, predeceased him last June. There are left to mourn his loss three sons, George of San Francisco, Harry of Detroit, and Charles of town.

EDGAR TRIPP

HASTINGS, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death of Edgar Tripp, aged 19 years and 8 months, occurred at the home of his parents on Thursday morning, April 4. Edgar was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tripp of Percy township, and had been working for a farmer near Lakefield. On Friday, March 29 he complained of being unwell, and on Saturday came to his home. Being apparently worse on Sunday, Dr. W. N. Campbell was called in, and discovered that the young lad had pneumonia. All that loving care and medical skill could do was done, but death came at five o'clock on Thursday morning.

The funeral service was conducted at his late home on Friday afternoon, by his pastor, Rev. A. C. Hie, interment taking place in the Trent Valley Cemetery.

ANDREW WILSON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 6. — Mount Pleasant lost another life-long resident of the community in the person of Andrew Wilson, whose death occurred on Saturday.

The late Mr. Wilson was in his 64th year and had been in failing health for some time, having undergone an operation in January in the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, where he was a patient for six weeks.

Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson and with the exception of a few years spent in Saskatchewan, he has lived all his life on the homestead on the 13th concession of Cavan, with his brother George, until two years ago, when he came to the village to reside.

In November of 1928, the late Mr. Wilson was married to Miss Dorothy Paragreen. He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, three sisters, Mrs. Maria Boyd, of Omemee; Mrs. Thomas Boyd of Ida, and Mrs. Scott Rutherford of Omemee; also four brothers, Bert, of Cadillac, Sask.; Lewis, of Artland, Sask., Edwin of Ida, and George, on the homestead.

The funeral was held from his late residence on Tuesday afternoon, the service being conducted by the Rev. John Riddell, of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, who gave an earnest and thoughtful address, basing his remarks on the text from 1 Corinthians, 15th chapter, beginning with verse 20. Burial was made in St. John's cemetery.

The pallbearers were Frank Gardiner, C. Morden, John Handley, Elmer Windrim, Thomas Boyd and Ira Lowe.

THOMAS J. LOUGH

MILLBROOK, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence).Relatives and friends in this community received the sad news on Sunday, March 31, of the death of Thomas J. Lough, who had passed away in the hospital at Castor, Alberta, the previous day. Deceased had been a resident of Alberta for twenty years.

Previous to going to the West Mr. Lough resided in Cavan, his farm being on the Zion Line, now owned and occupied by his nephew, Harold J. Hubbeard; he had also lived at Cobourg, Toronto, and other points before deciding to take up land in the Western province. His birthplace was at Madoc, Ontario, and he was in his seventy-fourth year when his death occurred.

It was during his residence in Cavan that Mr. Lough was united in marriage to Miss S. J. Hubbeard, and to their union four sons were born, three of whom survive their father: Alvin T., of Regina, Sask.; Herbert R. and Percy W., of Toronto. His wife predeceased him by forty years, and one son, James H., died in infancy.

The funeral took place from the United Church, Millbrook, on Thursday, April 4, at 2.30 p.m., the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., having charge of the service. The large attendance at the funeral, including many of those who had been neighbors and friends of the deceased during his residence in this vicinity, and the beautiful floral tributes, among these being a handsome wreath from the T. Eaton Company, Toronto, with which two of the sons hold business positions, gave evidence of the esteem in which Mr. Lough was held.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. William, John and Robert Devolin; Arnold Lough, Harold and Cecil Hubbeard, nephews. Carrying the flowers from the church were: Messrs. J. Albert Brown, A. J. Henderson, James Roddy, and W. B. Williamson. Interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery.

Among those from outside points, who attended the funeral were: Robert Lough, a brother of the deceased; Arnold Lough, Mr. and Mrs. Pack, Marmora; Messrs. William, John, and Robert Devolin, of Madoc; Marguerette Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lough, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lough; Mrs. Milne; Mr. and Mrs. Sterling and son, Wilson; Mr. Earl Fallis, of Toronto; Mr. Alvin Lough, of Regina, Sask.; and Mr. J. W. McCullough, of Newtonville.

While a considerable number of the people of these colonies rebelled a large number remained Loyal to the Empire.

Rebelled in 1774

Thirteen colonies rebelled because of the Quebec Act passed by the British Parliament in 1773, which gave the privilege of the Roman Catholic religion to the people of the fourteenth Colony of Quebec and extended the borders of Quebec on the West, taking in what is now part of Western Canada and also the Ohio country now part of the United States. The British Parliament, while repealing all the other Acts would not repeal the Quebec Act, so that the fourteenth, the Roman Catholic colony of Quebec, remained loyal to the Empire, while the other 13 rebelled.

By article 5 of the Treaty of Paris after the close of the war, the Government of the United States was to arrange for the various State Governments to provide for the restitution to the Loyalists of "estates, rights and properties." These "estates, rights and properties" have never been restored. Friends of the various State Governments during and after the war, squatted on these lands of the Loyalists and refused to give them up and the various State Governments submitted to the influence of those land grabbers, who in fact got some of the State Legislatures to pass Acts that made it impossible for the Loyalists to remain in or return to the States to seek their rights, Mr. Mikel declared.

"This was a very distinct breach of faith," Mr. Mikel said. "It was treating the Treaty of Paris as a scrap of paper.

There is no doubt that in early days of the New Republic following the Treaty of Paris the Central Government of the U. S. was very shaky and some thought at times that it would not survive. He said this may have been an excuse for the non-fulfillment of the terms of the Treaty at that time but the U. S. Government is now however in a very strong and powerful position and could see that the spirit of the Treaty of Paris is carried out he added. There are thousands of descendants of the U. E. Loyalists in the Bay of Quinte District of Ontario, alone, whose interests in those "estates, rights, properties" would now be worth many millions of dollars. There are also U. E. Loyalist families scattered all through Canada.

Great Grandson of U.E.I.

Mr. Mikel, local Master of the Supreme Court and Magistrate of the City of Belleville, is a great grandson of the late Godlove Mikel, who was an officer in a British Regiment recruited from the loyalists in New York during the Revolutionary War. Godlove Mikel owned a farm which is now part of a large city in New York state and without the buildings now erected upon it is worth a large sum of money. Magistrate Mikel has therefore a personal as well as a general interest in these claims and would naturally be glad to know that these claims could be enforced but he takes the ground that as the Treaty of Paris was made, not with the individual Loyalists, but the Government of Great Britain, that the individual Loyalists have no legal claim against the U.S. under the equitable claim might be taken up by the U. E. Loyalist Association of Canada, and presented through the Governments of Canada and Great Britain. He believes that now or later the United States Goveriment will recognize the justice of the claims of the Loyalists and the wisdom of carrying out in some form the terms of the Treaty of Paris.

"To allow an important Treaty like the Treaty of Paris to remain unfulfilled must naturally diminish the self respect of the people of United States and affect the influence of that country as a Pan American power," he said, "How can they expect nations to go into treaties with them with the Treaty of Paris unfullfilled?"

The State of South Carolina did restore the estates of some of the Loyalists.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is to-day. Every druggist has it.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK.

"Whatever is most needed, that our Women's Institute takes up," is the idea suggested for all branches, and one which probably ninety per cent of the Institutes are putting into actual parctice throughout the year.

"Study your community; does it need backing with the local rink that the young folk may have a place of healthful recreation? Is your school well supplied with historical pictures that stimulate patriotism in the minds of growing boys and girls? Do you give the work of the League of Nations a place in every regular program of your organization? Is there improvement work to be done on your streets, or in the parks (if you hav none, is this a hint for a needed activity),or is a public recreation ground needed, with tennis courts, swings, bowling green, basketball, etc.?"

These are questions suggested for attention at Institute gatherings by those at the head of this important organization, which is especially responsible for community service.

The Institute at Embro, Ontario, undertakes each season t improve the look of the village by planting flowers along the boulevard on one or two residential streets, taking care of watering, weeding, cutting off old bloom, etc.; another branch makes quilts of crib size and sells them to add to its funds; another society added to its treasury surplus by making, and selling by slices, a delicious fruit cake, the recipe for which was sent all the way from Australia to one of its members. This 'sale of slices' was at a public gathering sponsored by the Institute, as was also another similar sale only this time it was Scripture cake, with five cents for the recipe and the big piece of the fruited sweetness which was carried round on plates by junior girls.

WARSAW.

Those who were not at the last Institute meeting missed a talk given by one who knows a great deal about flowers, and their care. The subject was chosen because there is a growing desire among the women of the country, not only Institute members, but all, to grow more flowers. Some of the windows show that house plants are loved and cared for.

There are many beautiful flower gardens, and many gardens of beautiful flowers. Mrs. William Harding always has a blaze of old-fashioned flowers.

At one time Mr. McCrae gave an illustrated lecture on beautifying the homes. He used slides illustrating grouping of shrubs and flowers, and the uses of vines. This lecture was attended by nearly all the members and by many others.

Many women long for the plants, but they are unable to do the necessary digging, and it is hard sometimes to induce a man to give even one half day a season. Some men are only too glad to do it.

Woman's work is such that she needs beauty to rest her; it is her right. Even a well-kept lawn, just the bit of smooth green rests a weary person, just to see it, though it never be used or even trodden, except when being clipped.

Flowers may be used to border a vegetable garden, and rows of annuals may be grown right in the vegetable garden. English people know how to utilize every inch of space, and a vegetable garden without flowers is almost unknown.

In connection with this, one time it was my privilege to visit the rectory at Worth or Word. The previous rector had been a man with a large income of his own, and the present one kept the gardens up to standard.

The rectory gardens were noted for their roses. In it there were every known variety of rose. The rector claimed that he obtained a sample of any new rose that appeared. In a secluded corner, he had a blue rose, and a green one. They were not beautiful, but they were roses. His latest acquisition was a perfectly colored scarlet rose, more like a single tulip in form.

The oval-shaped lawn was surrounded by evergreens, arbor vitae, cedar, and others. Here and there a rosebush appeared. Outside the lawn was a walk bordered on either side by roses, and at certain spaces pergolas with all sorts of climbing small-flowered roses. These were the most wonderful crimson and white ramblers, and Dorothy Perkins, and many others, the names of which I have forgotten. Climbing over the house, and conservatories were large-flowered climbing roses. Mr. Hodson inspected those blooms every day, and every one that did not promise to be perfect was removed.

Besides this there were single rose trees, groups of bushes, and beds of roses of all colors and all sizes, but some of the newest hybrids were practically without perfume.

WARSAW

The provisional tests for the summer series delegates are out. Warsaw's date is given June 6. The department seems able to secure very able women for these gatherings, and an effort is always made to get a large number out, whether or not they are members. The subjects upon which they talk are such as touch every home-maker in the community. They take the litte things of life and when they are done we feel these little things are most important.

Their coming brings a wholesome change from ourselves. At times we hear "Ah, I knew all that." We may know it but we are apt to forget, and things take on a new aspect when spoken of by some one else. Their coming introduces changes in our meetings.

The department tries to suit the needs of the various branches. It also asks that where branches can do so, two or three unite that the delegate may address several branches at one meeting. Warsaw is so far from other places it must have a delegate for itself.

HAVELOCK.

The following is a paper on St. Patrick, given by Mrs. Joseph Seabrook, at a meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute:

"St. Patrick," she said, "was the famous missionary of the fifth century to the Irish. He was born in Dumbarton, Scotland, and at the age of sixteen years was carried away captive to Ireland by a band of pirates and sold to a petty chief whom he served for six years when he made us escape and fled to France where he studied Theology. A little poem by T. D'Archy McGee describes his captivity.

The captive is a keeper of sheep in Antrim's hills;
The captive is a weeper of Antrim's icy rills;
The captive is a mourner in the midnours of the night;
The captive is a watcher for the coming of the light;
A watcher for His coming who is the Light of Men,
A mourner for the darkness that shadows Slemish Glen,
A weeper for the sins of youth, afore time unconfessed,
A keeper of the passions that rush through boyhood's breast.
The captive is a shepherd but his future flock shall be
All the countless generations of that Garden of the Sea.

It was during his captivity that his faith in God was established and his love of God became a source of new strength. It is said at one time an Angel presented him in his sleep with a scroll bearing the inscription: 'The voice of the Irish' and at another time he seemed to hear all the unborn children of Ireland calling to him for help and holy baptism. After his stay in France he went to Rome and in the course of time was sent by the Pope to be Bishop of Ireland and his mission was to preach and convert the Irish. The principal enemies that St. Patrick found to the introduction of Christianity into Ireland were Ireland were Druidical priests of the more ancient faith who were exceedingly adverse to any changes. The greatest of St. Patrick's miracles was that of driving the venomous reptiles out of Ireland. The method he used in trying to convert the Irish was to address himself to the chiefs and to foster the spirit of clanship and his efforts were most successful. After twenty years of missionary labours St. Patrick established a See at Armagh, and it is told of this noted disciple that he founded three hundred and sixty-five churches and baptized twelve thousand persons.

In his preaching St. Patrick was never at a loss how to make clear what he wanted to teach and on one occasion he found it difficult to explain to the heathen Irish the Trinity of God so he held up a Shamrock leaf which every Irishman knew and showed them its three lobed leaf and explained very simply to them how there may be parts in one whole and it is from this incident that the Shamrocks became associated with the patron Saint of Ireland and the country's national emblem. In the work of reconstruction of the people's living St. Patrick showed much wisdom. He respected the deep feeling of a sensitive people for its old ideals and retained all that was tolerable in the old and so blended in with the new life that the social revolution from darkness to light was natural as night into day. He visited in person every mission in the Kingdom seven times. Because of his extreme age the seventh circuit was made by chariot but the first six he performed on foot. The fifth century was drawing to a close and St. Patrick's days were numbered but he had accomplished his task and it was done in good season for the light of the gospel was badly needed. On the site of the old barn where he had first held service sixty-one years before in the Monastery of Saul. St. Patrick breathed his last on the seventeenth of March, 493 A.D. He was buried with national honors at the church of Armagh to which he had given primary over all the churches of Ireland."

In closing Mrs. Seabrook's gave a little poem entitled "A Task for St. Patrick."

St. Patrick who drove all the snakes out of Ireland,
Receive our petition this day,
That power which you used to sweep clean old Ireland,
Devote to fresh marvel we pray.

The green snake of envy, the serpent of distrust,
The adder of malice, the monster of lust,
The rattler called anger, the viper called hate,
The python of slothfulness waiting on fate,
The cobra of selfishness, asp of despair,
The copperhead murder, alurk in his lair,
The blacksnake of treason, the moccasin fear,
The dark anaconda of doubt and of fear,
The scorpion of falsehood, alive with his darts,
All these by thy magic drive out of our hearts.

St. Patrick who banished these pests of Old Erin,
Oh grant our petition this day,
Take heed of the snakes in our hearts that we're fearin',
And drive them divinely away.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

"I am so sorry not to have answered your nice letter sooner. You certainly must be a very thoughtful and industrious person to find time for these personal notes.

"About the salads, I didn't notice any recipes in the paper, but please don't bother about them because it will soon be summer now and then it is so easy to prepare them.

"I was delighted to see your Whatnot in the paper about gardening. I don't suppose I should ever dare suggest a column entitled "Hints on Gardening" or some such name, but I would love to see it even more than bridge. By the way, please don't think that no one missed the Daily Reading Column because I did but I didn't holler. I should like to see it return and should try and do better by suggesting some passages from my favorite books.

"Well, to return to gardening, I have some questions I should like to ask you or the neighbors. Do these bulbs, narcissus, jonquils, daffodils, crocus, and hyacinth come up year after year the same as tulips, and if not how long do they last? And could some neighbor tell me of some nice shrubs to plant? You see our house has been built only two years and it takes a lot of work to beautify the grounds, especially when one's means are limited. I have visions of what it may be some day. I think yours was a wonderful idea about the lawns and gardens in Peterborough for Old Home Week, Marion, and didn't the men grab it up quickly?

"I do enjoy the neighbors' letters but what has become of Bobbie and Sheila, they are two whose letters I enjoy. I notice we have had two from Highflyer since I wrote last. Her letters are always so nice and cheerful and breezy.

"Well, I am going to close by asking for some helps which I have marked on the coupon.

"Very sincerely,
"COUNTRYWOMAN."

I'm very pleased, indeed, to have your nice letter, "Countrywoman." But, bless me, if I start many more columns I'm afraid the editor will throw me out. Mr. Heron tells me often now that I'm starting too much! However, I'm going to write one more Whatnot on gardens—for Friday. If no neighbor with more experience answers your queries I'll try to do so.

The men surely did grab my idea about beautifying the lawns—did you see the big ads they have been running?

I don't know where Bobbie and Sheila are hiding—we would all like to hear from them again soon.

Come again, "Countrywoman."

"Dear Marion:

"I am almost ashamed to be writing and thanking you for those patterns now but I know you will forgive me when I tell you the reason. I had a very bad attack of tonsilitis and if you have ever had it you will be able to accept my excuse. I am enclosing a recipe for salad dressing which is very good. The time for salads is here again. I like a salad with almost every thing in it that one can put and it is surprising the delicious salads one can make with the leftovers from dinner.

"Speaking of time for salads, I motored to Oshawa on Sunday and there were people camping along the road and they were not men working on the roads, but real summer campers. When we were coming home we saw them all huddled around a large campfire burning in one of the tents. I noticed one little girl about three years old and there were other children too. Pretty cold for camping, what do you think, Marion?

"I think perhaps this letter is long enough for this time. NURSE."

I don't know that I would care for camping at this time of year, "Nurse." I do like warmth.

Thank you for the salad dressing recipe, and come again soon, "Nurse."

"Dear Marion:

"Just a few lines to say I am very much interested in your page. Your recipes are wonderful. I have tried out a good many of them, and found them very good indeed. Well I must say you have some wonderful letters on your page also. Just as good as a real chat with the people themselves. If you have some of those helps left that I have checked I would be pleased to get them. I will close, wishing you and your page every success. I remain,
"SUNBEAM."

I'm glad that you find our page so interesting, "Sunbeam." The letters ARE just like friendly chats with the neighbors.

"Dear Marion:

"There is a cloud hanging over our 'circle' which should not be there. May I explain?

"I have noticed that two of the neighbors have mistaken your 'Whatnot' in which you got truly mad, not at M.B., nor anything she wrote but at a clipping she sent you by a 'popular writer.'

"Now I notice there are two M.B.'s who write to you; one is M.B. ;the other one, Mrs. M. B. (myself), who sent you the 'clipping,' and both of us, Marion, I am sure, love our mother's memory and all she meant to us, and so I crawl out from under this dark cloud, bringing my sister, M.B., along with me. Though I don't know her personally, but she is innocent, so am I.

"Trusting this will clear the air again, and thanking you for publishing my other letter, I am, yours very truly,
"MOTHER."

Thank you, "Mother," for clearing this up. Maybe I didn't write very clearly that day. I certainly was not mad at you or the other "M.B."!

"Dear Marion:

"Would you please order the enclosed pattern for me? I think it's awfully cute, don't you? I am also enclosing stamp for the pattern for rompers or sun suit.

"I intend to write you a good long letter some of these days, Marion, but I always seem to be so busy. Your page is great, getting better all the time. You have a wonderful gift, Marion, that of getting yourself out of the many difficulties which come up so often, in connection with the page. It's hard to please everybody, isn't it? Well, Cheerio for now,
"BLUEJAY."

Anyone who tries to please everyone is very foolish, "Bluejay." The thing to do is set a standard for one's self—and never fall below it (or seldom!). That standard will be a better guide than all the outsiders put together, however friendly they may be.

Really, though, I don't get into MANY difficulties, do I?

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

IT IS always interesting to know what others think of you, so to-day we will amuse ourselves by finding what men in different walks of life think of women.

Maybe I could have found a doctor in Peterborough to say it, but I didn't approach any with the dictum of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley: "If you want me to tell you where to place a nation in the scale, don't tell me the name of it, nor the country it inhabits, nor the religion it professes, nor its form of government. Let me know how much sugar it uses per head, what the consumption of soap is and whether its women have the same rights as its men. That nation which eats the most sugar, uses the most soap, and regards its women as having the same rights as its men, will always be at the top."

So there's a tip for you, neighbors. If you wish to bring Canada to the forefront of nations, encourage your family to double the sugar bill (that shouldn't be hard!), don't bother to take the soap out of the washtub after scrubbing (you will use more by this system), and tell your husband to-night that you are going to insist on having equal rights with him in everything!

You will thereby, according to Dr. Wiley, be materially assisting Canada.

It is interesting to note what the learned doctor thinks of woman's beauty. "It depends on taste and education," he remarks. "It has something to do with habit and experience." His ideal of beauty is "seen by a sober second thought." It does not so much "dazzle as delight." It is "a beauty which does not fade with the passing hour, but stays through the heat and burden of the day and until the day is done."

To those of us who pay but scant attention to appearances, there comes this admonition from another man of prominence: "If I were a woman I would value health and wealth; I would think kindly of honor and reputation; I would greatly prize knowledge and truth; but above all I would be beautiful—possessed of that strange and mighty charm which would lead a crowd of slaves behind my triumphal car and compel a haughty world to bow in humble submission at my feet."

Do I hear someone remark, incegantly, "Applesauce!"? It's unanimous. Methinks the wordy one hath been reading the sorty of Cleopatra! However, that's his opinion.

Not many men, I find, give woman much credit for having intelligence. Men are too apt to consider "intelligence" synonymous with a knowledge of French and German and Latin and Greek. Or they deal in conics and curves; or they expect an "intelligent" person to integrate the vanishing funct on of a quivering nfinitesimal.

These things are marks of learning (you must be GOOD to understand some of the things that are worshipped by men!), but knowledge of them is not necessarily evidence of intelligence. A person may know all of these things and hundreds of things besides, and yet be the veriest fool.

True intelligence has a mind above petty prejudice and giant bigotry. It sees more in life than a dance or a ribbon. It has wit and judgment. It sees the fitness of things and grasps the logic of events.

This intelligence, I suggest, woman has in large measure. If she were not above prejudice, she would never have married the man, for one thing. And aren't women more open-minded on matters of religion and politics and sociology than men?

Women like the frills of life, admittedly. Thank heavens we do! Look at the drab lives of so many men, sombre in clothes, drab in enjoyment, devoid of thrills. But at the same time women SERVE—they are everlastingly at the service of their families, and they look beyond the frills to embrace even sacrifice for the sake of those they love.

As to wit, we have been often maligned. I devoted an article once to showing that woman's sense of humor is finer than man's. The burlesque that brings a hearty laugh from a man appears simply silly to a woman. Women do not like to see other humans tortured to make "fun." We do not delight in the mortification of others.

I was sitting in a dance hall the other night, in a gaily-costumed throng, when a man, obviously out of place as to dress, entered by mistake. The men gave the blushing victim what they would be pleased to call the "razzberry"—but I noticed that the girls looked rather sympathetic in his embarrassment.

Real humor is appreciated as fully by women as by men—and do you know, sometimes I think we have more, really, to laugh at than they have!

Judgment is the next requirement of true intelligence, and no argument is needed in woman's favor. Men dismiss our judgment as "intuition," and sneer while they admit we are always more or less right.

On the last counts, women win hands down in the comparison. No man was ever so conscious of the fitness of things as woman naturally is, and while we may not be noted for our habitual methods of logic, we DO as a rule grasp analogies quickly and accurately.

I started out to tell what others think of women, and here I am back on my old stamping ground, standing up for our sex against the windmill-tilting male!

You've heard, of course, about men who carried their business into all affairs of their lives—even into their lovemaking (of course, your huband never breaks off in the middle of an endearing sentence to talk mundane things!)—but the following verses, which I found a few days ago, give the height of achievement in this regard.

The chemist's romance:

I know a maiden, charming and true,
With beautiful eyes like the cobalt blue
Of the borax bead, and I guess she'll do
If she hasn't another reaction.

Her form is no bundle of toilet shams,
Her beauty no boon of arsenical balms,
And she weighs just sixty-two kilograms
To a deci-decimal fraction.

Her hair is a crown, I can truthfully state,
'Tis a metre long, nor curly nor straight,
And it is as yellow as plumbic chromate
In a slightly acid solution.

And when she speaks from parlor or stump,
The words which gracefully gambol and jump
Sound sweet like the blue in Sprengel's pump
In magnesic phosphate ablution.

I have bought me a lot, about a hectare,
And have built me a house ten metres square,
And soon, I think, I shall take her there,
My tart little acid radicle.

Perhaps little sailors on life's deep sea
Will be the salts of this chemistry,
And the lisp of the infantile A, B, C,
Be the refrain of this madrigal.

OUT WHERE THE WEST BEGINS

(Contributed by "Welsh Born.")

Out where the handclasp's a little stronger,
Out where the smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun is a little brighter,
Where the snows that fall are a trifle whiter,
Where the boris of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
Out where friendship's a little truer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where a fresher breeze is blowing,
Where there's laughter in every streamlet flowing,
Where there's more of reaping and less of sowing,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the world is in the making,
Where fewer hearts in despair are aching,
That's where the West begins.
Where there's more sighing and less of sighing,
Where there's more of giving and less of buying,

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real anilines That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market! Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. Remember this when you buy. MAPLE LEAF CONTINGENTS JOIN FORCES

TWO GAME SERIES FOR MAPLE LEAFS

Meet Club They Defeated For Little World's Championship in 1926.

TEAM IN GOOD FORM.

Leafs Will Put Best Foot Forward in Tilt With Association Rivals.

LOUISVILLE, April 6.—Perhaps the gruelling that the Leafs received in their round of the clubs in the Dixie belt should not be taken too seriously. None of the major league outfits have found the Southern League section exactly a happy hunting ground as witness the case of Dan Howley's Browns who were carried 13 innings by the Barons, and also that of Jack Hendrick's Reds who had all that they could do to beat the Crackers. The Leafs should have won at least two of the three games with Birmingham and both engagements at Atlanta.

The Crackers were presented with seven runs, all that they scored, by battery mistakes. At Chattanooga Naylor miscalculated his endurance and had he retired when it was originally intended that he should the outcome would have been altogether different. But it is results that count and the Leafs haven't exactly covered themselves with glory to date. Now they have been getting the work that they need and when all is said and done winning or losing exhibition games is not as serious a matter as it will be a month hence.

There will be no fooling in the two games here with the Colonels to-day and Sunday. The Leafs will put their best foot foremost in the twin tilts with their Class AA rivals and Manager O'Neill will throw his full assortment of players into the fray, including Doyle, Satterfield, Billy Webb and some of the good rookies. The second contingent rejoined the main aggregation last night and it will be a small army of diamond gladiators that "Napoleon" O'Neil will lead on to the field in the first game this afternoon.

Another Good Prospect

Fine reports have come to hand regarding the prowess of McHenry, the lanky high school youngster from Atlanta, and it is more than likely that he will be injected into the proceedings along with Claset, the Giant southpaw, and Frank Novosel, the flashy shortstopper.

If it so happens that they make a better showing than the regulars whom they will replace Manager O'Neil will be in a quandary. Fred Bedore, although right off the lots last season, supplanted Billy Webb at third base, but his experience was almost unprecedented and is not likely to be duplicated in several springs. But Novosel has much in common with the Chicagoan and Cote may have a fight on his hands. The youngster acquired his baseball knowledge in a good school—the sand lots of New York—and although he is not the finished article by any means, he is a dashing performer nevertheless. Yesterday some of the players following a stern two-hour session at the Louisville park, which they had all to themselves in the absence of the Colonels, who are away barnstorming, paid a visit to the well-known bat factory here and accumulated a number of the new weapons of the most up-to-date kind. O'Neil himself brought back with him no fewer than six and he is hopeful that there will be a home run bat in collection. Bill Sweeney also was a liberal purchaser and Joe Rabbit was not far behind him in that respect. There were many Babe Ruths models stacked up, but it is significant that Roger Hornsby shapes filled two long shelves. Everything in the line of bats was on view with the names of the users conspicuously displayed. It was interesting to see the skilled workmen take a rough piece of wood and convert it into the real thing in a few minutes. Ray Wise, the Charlotte slugger, who was unlucky to stop a thrown ball with his eyebrow at Birmingham, was not seriously injured as was at first feared but it will be a week yet before he will be ready to get into action again. The pupil of the optic which was injured was almost flattened, but it is rapidly returning to normal and the swelling has almost subsided. He had a narrow escape from losing the sight of his eye. The injury may prevent him making a place with the Leafs this year, but Manager O'Neil does not intend to pass him up without a fair trial as he is a most promising youngster. Joe Samuels, the Scranton right hander, who has not figured in a game on the trip because of a dead arm, took a turn in the box at batting practice yesterday for the first time since the team left Albany and showed much of his real speed although his wing is far from being right as yet. He is another who will be given every consideration.

NEW LEAF HURLER.

Guy Cantrell, a new pitcher, who is expected to be a strong addition to the Toronto Leafs' hurling corps this season.

GIANTS LOOK LIKE WINNERS

New Yorkers Expected To Be Head Men in National League Race.

STRONG MOUND STAFF.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 6 (C.P.).—The New York Giants believe that they will live up to their names in the approaching National League race. The players confidently expect to be the head men in the baseball show and there seems to be some ground for their confidence.

Manager John McGraw's outfit seems definitely stronger than the 1928 cast which was good enough to finish runner up to the champion St. Louis Cardinals. Perhaps the most encouraging single item in the Giant's new prospectus is a greatly improved Andy Reese. Last season the Tupelo flash hit well while serving as an outfielder, third baseman and second caseman, but his defensive status was undermined at the end of the season.

Overnight Reese has developed into a capable and possibly great second baseman and is hitting harder than ever. His almost phenomenal improvements rounds out an effective infield combination for Bill Terry, Travis Jackson and Fred Lindstrom have been tried and proven. Standing by for emergencies will be Andy Cohen and Pat Crawford and possibly Baxter Jordan. Crawford and Jordan, graduates of Toledo, can play anywhere and hit any time.

Manager McGraw has his 1928 pitching staff intact, and expects Carl Hubbell, who joined the Giants late in the season, to declare dividends on his experience gained under major league fire. Hubbell will be a starting pitcher with Larry Benton, Fred Fitzsimmons, Joe Grenewich and Dutch Henry, a southpaw who seems to have regained his earlier form. Carl Mays, the veteran underhand performer, may join the group as his arm has recovered at least a part of its old cunning. John Scott, another veteran, will be a valuable man in relief roles and Curly Ogden has shown well in the spring. A merry battle is being fought out by the recruits with the end not yet in sight.

Manager McGraw is holding his final outfield assignments in abeyance, with a possible arrangement calling for shifts against right and left hand pitching. Fred Leach, obtained by trade from the Phillies, is expected to add strength and Ed Roush, who had an indifferent season last year and was finally forced out by sickness, appears to have completely recovered. Jimmy Welsh, the former Brave, picked up this spring where he left off last autumn. Melvin Ott, a major league veteran at 20 years of age has shown to better advantage at San Antonio than ever before and may convince the boss of the Giants that he can punish southpaws as well as the orthodox pitchers. Tony Kauffman, former pitcher, and Art Veltman, a youngster from Springfield, Ill., and Chuck Fullis, who has been up for a trial before, have the advantage of right hand batting to commend them for further consideration. Six of the seven outfielders in camp may be retained.

Behind the Bat

The hard hitting Frank Hogan will be the main reliance behind the bat. Bob O'Farrell seems to have the call as first assistant with John Cummings, who has more weight that he can conveniently carry and young Joe Fitry, shy on experience, candidates for the third place. Ray Schalk, former manager of the Chicago White Sox and now McGraw's first assistant, has been doing more active catching in exhibition games. Schalk was forced to the bench by a weak arm, and if it has regained its strength it is difficult to see how he can spend the summer on the coaching lines if a situation should arise demanding expert handling of pitchers.

Bert Niehoff, one of the great minor league managers of his day and a former major league infielder, has returned to the big time as coach, giving McGraw an entirely new staff at the field generalship end of the game.

The Giants will be in shape at the opening and expect to have something to say about awarding the championship. Manager McGraw does not go so far as some of his players in claiming a pennant, but certainly the pilot, to whom championships are no novelty, is not down-hearted.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, at last we can call it a hockey season, with all the championships decided and the sticks and everything put away until the tag end of the next football campaign. I got anyway I wish. The Boston Bruins didn't hurt my feelings more when they knocked the Rangers for a row. They was only 2 teams, the way I saw it, had any right to be in the play-offs, and Boston being 1 of them, it was all right with me when they cleaned up on the New Yorkers. 1 thing, Mac, I was glad to see, and that was that every serious in the play-offs was run through as quick as they could be decided. They is always a bunch of wise birds what try to tell you the pro teams is going to stretch out the serious to grab off a little extra gate money. Them gazaboes just naturally figger that the whole thing is cooked, and this year they didn't have a leg left the way the games went. 1st the Boston Beans trimmed the Canadiens 3 in a row, the Leaves finished Detroit in 2 games, and the Yanks walloped the Americans in 2 battles. Then the Cook-Boucher crowd cleaned Mister Smythe's speeders in 2 straight, and Boston turned around and walloped them 2 in a line to wind it up. The least number of games the title could be decided in was 11, and the play-off serious just took 11—not a extra game in the whole lay-out. The fellers who thought the games was running for Sweeney ain't been able to think up a answer yet.

The local Golf Club is going to branch out this year, Mac, into a 18-hole affair, which means that if you got a golfing friend you're going to hafta listen to about twice the usual crop of alibis. I used to think ball players was the kitten's robe de nuit when it come to framing up excuses for gumming up plays, but, believe me, they ain't in the same class with the golfers. Them birds can think up a dozen reasons for every boner they pull—and so the bigger golf links is going to provide a record harvest of explanations. Anyway it will keep the plus 4 lads a little further out of town, and that will help to save the resta us from being overwhelmed.

In baseball, Mac, they ain't much to report, save that Oshawa has already denied the story that they was going to forsake the Central loop for a berth in the Toronto Industrial League. The Motor City boys has no intention of leaving this here gang, Mister Sporting Editor, and unless somebody tries to shove the Kingston Ponies back into the Central they're here to stick. The quickest way to bust up the Central League, Mac, would be to give Kingston a franchise. The moguls better let things ride, Mac, or they'll be a coupla well known names missing from the schedule.

The Toronto Leaves, the baseball variety I mean, ain't exactly setting the South on fire in their training, Mac, and if Mister Steve O'Neill don't get his machine working smoother, a lotta Peterborough fans ain't going to waste much time travelling up to Toronto this summer. With gas taxed 5c a gallon, they ain't much percentage going to Mayor McBride's bailiewick to see a 2nd class ball outfit perform.

It won't be long now, Mac, until the big leagues is operating, and we'll be able to judge how truthful the press agents has been in their dope from the training camps. Oh, well, never matter how thin you slice it, it's still boloney. Ain't that right, Mac?

Well, I guess that's all for now. Hoping you're the same.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

ROUTIS DECIDES TO RISK TITLE

Feather Champion Picks New Haven To Meet Connecticut Boy Unnamed.

BRADDOCK SIGNED.

NEW YORK, April 6. — Andre Routis, world's featherweight champion, signed articles yesterday to defend his title for the first time since he won it from Tony Canzoneri, but it is to be feared that the young Frenchman had his tongue in his cheek and his fingers crossed.

The match will be staged at the New Haven Arena, probably on April 22, and will be scheduled for ten rounds. Al Weill is the promoter.

The date was left open, and so was the opponent. Joe Jacobs, manager of Routis, blandly explained that Weill will secure the best "available" opponent. Literally interpreted, that means the best available opponent from Joe Jacobs' standpoint. Joe smoothly added that it will have to be a Connecticut boy, of course. The match is being held at New Haven, and it must have local appeal.

It seems to be an obvious attempt on the part of Jacobs to meet the demands of the National Boxing Association that Routis defend his title. Paddy Harmon wants Routis to box Canzoneri at the New Chicago Stadium on May 11, and Routis will not be required to risk his precious title. Harmon is willing to stage the bout over the weight. By going through the motions of defending the title at New Haven, Jacobs will mollify Paul Prehm and clear away the technical objections to the Harmon offer.

Two years ago Jack Delaney "defended" the light heavyweight title against Jamaica Kid at Waterbury, Conn., under similar circumstances. The Jamaica Kid was batted out in three rounds. The bout was a farce, of course.

James J. Bradock, Bill Muldoon's candidate for the heavyweight championship, figures in still another championship match that was made public here yesterday. Humbert Fugazy announced that Braddock had been signed to meet Tommy Loughran, world's light heavyweight champion, on July 4.

Jack Dempsey has been negotiating with Loughran, and Tommy is as good as signed, Fugazy said.

The site of the match has been left open. Fugazy said it is by no means certain that it wil l be staged at Ebbets Field. It may go to Detroit, or it may be held at Philadelphia.

Madison Square Garden claimed to have Braddock signed for May 10 but Joe Gould denies he has accepted the Garden offer. Bradock was at the ringside when Loughran fought Micky Walker, and Jimmy made up his mind then and there that he can knock out both of them.

"I am going to match Jimmy with these supposed-to-be third-raters" said Gould. "They don't try to fight. They try to say, and Jimmy runs the chance of breaking his hands on their heads. That's the only place he can hit them. All we want is one shot at Loughran and then Jimmy will be ready for the heavies."

Braddock is only twenty-three years old. He has knocked out Jimmy Slattery, Tuffy Griffiths and Pete Latzo in the past six months.

FAIR STORY.

He: "I see Dempsey is coming back."

She: "Was he away?"

All Saints' Church Teams Are Guests of Men's Club At Banquet.

PRESENTATION OF CUPS.

All Saints' church hockey forces, who captured no less than three championships during the past season, gathered in the Guild room at the church last night, the guests of an appreciative Men's Club, who had prepared for them by the Women's Guild a banquet "worthy of champions."

Following the supper the personnel of the five teams were called upon and introduced by the respective managers. The Midget team beaten for the first time in three years were introduced by Spencer Hope; the Junior Church League Champions by Manager Bud Frost; the Juvenile Church League Champions by John Price; the City League finalists by Edgar Lebarr, and the Scout teams by Harry Wilkes after which the presentation of trophies by William H. Buller, Rector's Warden, and Tom Pitchford, the Peoples' Warden, proved a most pleasant event.

Presiding over the gathering was Charles Wiggins, President of the Men's Club of All Saints, and he it was who introduced the speaker of the evening, C. A. Salmonsen, of the Canadian General Electric, who gave a most inspiring address on the principles of Sportsmanship.

Last night's gathering was in all one of the most happily interesting that the men's club has ever enjoyed, and as a result when the teams swing into the 1929-30 campaign the Club will be behind them stronger than ever.

onto highway completely closed, according to advices.

Railways Affected.

As stated in another column, both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways have suffered tie-ups owing to wash-outs along the main lines, and this morning, two trains from Montreal and one from Ottawa, on the Canadian National, moved on to Lindsay in the hope of making Toronto by way of Washago and Beaverton, while the regular Lindsay-Toronto route is tied up by wash-outs in the vicinity of Uxbridge and Scarborough Junction.

The train from Montreal which was forced to stop at the local Canadian Pacific Station owing to wash-outs down the lakeshore line, had left later this morning to reach Toronto by a route which took it around by Orillia, and while both Canadian Pacific and Canadian National officials have resorted to these auxiliary route, it has not been definitely decided to run all the scheduled trains over them.

PLANTERS NUT & CHOCOLATE COMPANY LIMITED TORONTO CANADA

PLANTERS SALTED PEANUTS

A GOOD INDEX.

The Bell Telephone Company spent over $22 400,000 in gross additions to plant during 1928, according to a statement from their annual report which has recently been published. This exceeds the expenditure in 1927, a previous record year, by over $4,000,000. Such continuous expenditures by the Bell Company speak well for general progress in Ontario and Quebec. The demand for service may be taken as a fair gauge of conditions, and expansion such as noted above is material evidence of the country's prosperity.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS" WITH JOAN CRAWFORD, THE PICTURE THAT SET THE WHOLE CONTINENT DISCUSSING IT, WILL BE AT THE CAPITOL MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY, WITH DAILY MATINEES.

What is the greatest social problem to-day?

The home!

Harry Beaumont, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director, supplied the startling answer.

Good or bad, he believes, parental influence guides young footsteps. The home is the mould in which modern youth is cast, he declares, and the atmosphere provided by parents is that in which the children's mental attitude is formed.

In directing "Our Dancing Daughters," which come to the Capitol Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with daily matinees, the director has brought to the screen a cross-section of the present generation and goes behind the scenes in the family lives of three very modern young women for plot motivation.

Before filming the screen adaptation of the ultra-modern story written for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by Josephine Lovett, the director consulted a number of prominent social research agencies who agreed that the theme of the gripping drama of youth was based upon real life problems of the present generation.

"When a girl loses confidence in her own parents it is time to look for unfortunate consequences," Beaumont declares. "If parents have not surrounded growing children with a healthy and sympathetic environment they are responsible, morally, for the outcome of outside contacts and associations made by their children.

"The boy or girl who does not fear a father or mother in any respect, who has their confidence and trust completely in his or her heart, will not give those parents anything to worry about.

"It is the old proverb over again —'And as the twig is bent so inclines the tree'—Life, it seems, always has been that way. But never before have elders been so prone to voice criticism of the younger generation. This is certainly not a healthy environment and is just so much as telling the children that their parents do not believe in them.

"Personally, I see nothing wrong with the present generation. They are fun-loving and happy in their young ways just as their fathers and mothers were. If there is anything to be censured the trouble may lie right in their own homes. Let the parents look themselves in the mirror of cold facts!"

In the ultra-modern production the leading roles are played by Joan Crawford, Dorothy Sebastian, Johnny Mack Brown and Anita Page. A stellar cast is in support.

CUPID GUIDED WANER'S HAND AS HE SIGNED FOR 10 GRAND

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 5.—A.P.) — Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh National League outfielder, and Miss Frances Mae Snyder, of Pittsburgh, will be married this spring, Mrs. E. B. Cook, "Little Poison's" sister, said here in confirming a copyrighted story in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph announcing the engagement.

Friends of Lloyd, who recently signed a contract calling for a purported sum of $10,000 for this year's services, said the coming trip to the matrimonial altar played no little part in bringing him to terms with the Pittsburgh management.

Paul Waner, the older brother, is still a holdout, refusing to accept offers made by Barney Dreyfus, Pittsburgh owner. Paul is married.

Old Home Week News

(By J. R. H.)

Contributions Welcome

No. 8 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO April 6, 1929

Have You Found YOUR Job Yet?

How Would You Like To Answer This One?

When ye editor framed the questionnaires to be sent out to all the old boys and girls whose names were kindly sent in by citizens, he included an embarrassing question: "How does your present home compare with your recollection of Peterborough, for beauty, opportunity, friendliness and progressiveness?"

It's very much like the old catch: "Have you stopped beating your wife?" If a man answers "Yes," he indicates that he HAD been beating her; and if he answers "No," he tells the world he is STILL beating her.

In the Old Home Week questionnaire, if a man says his present home is better than his memories of Peterborough, he's in wrong HERE, and if he admits the truth, that there's no place in the world to compare with Peterborough in any way, shape or form, then he runs the risk of losing favor in his present home.

Many dodge the issue by ignoring the question; most meet it squarely and tell the truth—that Peterborough is the best ever; and with the others ye editor uses his discretion—one of the few powers still left to an editor.

Since it is not being used in connection with his name, we are sure the writer of the "prize" of all answers to this annoying question will not mind if we use it, even if he did add: "It is definitely understood, of course, that the wtiness has the protection of the court." (And just in case anyone gets inquisitive, this man's name does not appear in today's list of communications!—Ed.)

Here's his answer: "Among the many pictures that hang on memory's wall, one is of the old home town, which secmeth best of all, notwithstanding the fact that as an apprentice I plodded nightly from —— street, Ashburnham Village, through east Inverlea Park, across Smith street bridge, through the west park to the Auburn Flour Mills, to toil diligently for the munificent sum of $4 a week. It was a good fight anyway, and viewed in retrospect the pleasing highlights are greatly in evidence and Peterborough holds an outstanding place in my heart."

Well, having reached the top rung of the ladder, it is pleasant to look back on how far one has climbed. Success so won is all the more appreciated.

They HAVE Climbed!

A rough glance through hundreds of responses to this inquiry shows that Peterborough's sons have reached enviable heights in many businesses and professions. Here is one man, proprietor of a wholesale paint and oil establishment; two are bank managers; two are public school inspectors; one is a public school principal. Others are listed as vice-president and general manager of a flour manufacturing establishment, barrister, sales manager in a wholesale fur house, post master, general superintendent of a hospital, secretary and manager of a club, medical superintendent of a hospital, dental specialist, proprietor of a drug store, proprietor of a grain business; there are editors, clergymen doctors and teachers galore.

Other parts of the country MUST think people are good when they hail from Peterborough!

Appearance Will Count.

One of the most important contributions of every citizen toward Old Home Week will be in improving the appearance of the city, and the first fine day is the time to start. Lawns can be cleaned, edges trimmed, and soon grass seed may be sown. Then there will be flowers to think about.

If everybody joins The Examiner's "Beautify Peterborough" campaign, then this will be a city to gladden the eyes of any visitor. Sign the coupon and get the cards right away.

An Idea of the Program

HERE'S a rough outline of the program for Old Home Week. This is the skeleton which is to be dressed up by the committees—look it over and send in any suggestions you have.

Saturday—Registration, get-together and reception. At night, a procession and display by the Toronto Scottish.

Sunday—Church services with clergymen of past years officiating. In the afternoon, unveiling of the war memorial. In the evening, concert of sacred music by massed bands, singing of old-time hymns.

Monday—Militia parade at 9.30. In the afternoon, demonstration by visiting regiments, rodeo, vaudeville. Evening, same show and fireworks, community dancing on Aylmer street.

Tuesday—Troops depart, old school classes will meet again, water sports (time uncertain). Afternoon, baseball and football (program at Exhibition Grounds). Evening, same program.

Wednesday—Lacrosse game between old teams, boat excursions, horse races, field sports, community dancing, fireworks, program.

Thursday—Boat excursions, horse races, program at Exhibition Park. In the evening, moonlight excursion, community dancing, night shirt parade.

Friday—Excursion to Stoney Lake, horse races, vaudeville. In the evening, moonlight excursion, community dancing, street festivity.

Saturday—Ball game, vaudeville, community dancing.

Sunday—Decoration day. Sacred concert in park.

Now, how about those ideas?

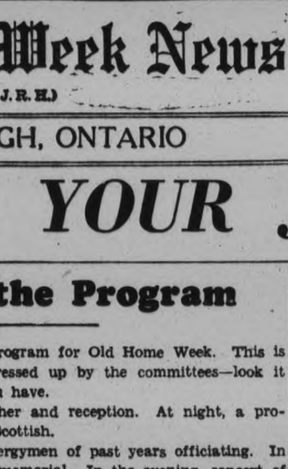
To Organize the Music

John Crane, chairman of the Music Committee, has one of the biggest jobs in the Old Home Week organization. Every other committee (nearly) will call the tunes, and Mr. Crane will have to play them, or provide someone else who will.

He believes in supporting home town talent, and so his recommendation to the Central Committee the other night was that as far as possible only Peterborough and Peterborough district bands be engaged. No one dissented.

One of the difficulties Mr. Crane sees is that two or three committees may require music at the same time, and so he has issued a request that the chairmen form their plans now, and give him the list. That seems so reasonable that no doubt it will be done.

Everyone will agree that there can't be too much music.



The registration cards proposed by Mr. Dutton should help the accommodation committee in its work — with the asistance of citizens.

One of these days you'll be asked whether you can house some Old Home Week visitors —so think it over.

This being a five-day-a-week News, ye editor will have a rest on Monday.

The part the Legion is to take in Old Home Week will be discussed at the executive meeting on Monday night.

The Publicity Committee is preparing a four-page folder to boost Old Home Week among the 8,000 old boys and girls listed.

Has anyone asked the churches to take up the matter of bringing back clergymen of bygone years for the Sunday services? This is important.

Committee chairmen: Keep every Thursday evening open for Old Home Week business till we write "SUCCESS" across the record.

Even Major Hoople has heard about the reunion. Now look out for tall stories!

"No Place Like Home," All Old Boys Declare

"There is no place like the old home town," declares George Woods, Sr., a moulder with the Ford Motor Co., now residing at 5252 Horgen avenue, Dearborn. He formerly lived at 515 Bonacord street, and his wife was Violet Baker of this city. A sister still resides at 675 Bethune street, and Mrs. Woods' brother at 573 Gilchrist street. Mr. Woods left here in 1923.

"I Will Be With You."

"If it is at all possible I will be in the old home town with you during Old Home Week," says Joseph W. Potvin, 54 Brock street, Brockville, formerly of 215 Lake street here. He left Peterborough on July 20, 1894. "I am wondering about those two names, 'Glover and Dobbin'," Mr. Potvin continues. "I played lacrosse against two boys of that name in Riverside Park, Ashburnham. Seems a long time ago."

Come on back, Mr. Potvin, and play again. We are to have the old lacrosse teams lined up in battle array once more during Old Home Week, and your place will be saved in the ranks.

"Will Be There . . ."

"Will be there if possible," writes A. F. McConkey, bank branch manager, Humboldt, Sask., who left here in 1903. He formerly resided in Smith Township.

Memories . . .

Though Edward Howden has been gone from Peterborough 32 years, he still has fond recollections of his old home. "My memories often go back to the old days, to the beautiful parks, the river, and the friendliness of the people," he says. Mrs. Howden was formerly Anna W. King, of Peterborough. Hugh Howden, 105 Romaine street, is a relative.

Extolls Peterborough.

James A. Seger, 15326 La Salle blvd., Detroit, Mich., left his home at 242 McGill street in 1923, and is now a tool and die maker. His parents still reside here. "I don't think the beauty of Peterborough and its surroundings can be surpassed," he declares.

"Remember Me To . . ."

"Remember me to Rollie Denne, Johnny Turner, Rollie Glover, and all the rest who may have known me," is the request of William J. Melrose, Springside, Sask., formerly of 777 Water street. He left here in 1898, and is now an auctioneer and grain buyer.

"I have travelled in 21 States in United States and six Provinces in Canada, and there is only one Peterborough," Mr. Melrose adds.

Played Football Here.

"I played football for the Y. M. C. A. in the summer of 1904. I organized a team in Peterborough Collegiate, and used to play Quaker Oats with Ben L. Simpson as their chief," recalls Albert E. Nelson, 116 St. Vincent street south, Stratford, after twenty-five years of absence from the city. He is now inspector of public schools.

Mr. Nelson, whose home was on a farm near Keene, married Grace Mitchell, of Lindsay.

It Makes a Difference.

"As a boy I loved Peterborough; as a man I like Boissevain," is the summing-up of J. R. Baker, agent for the C.P.R. at Boissevain, Manitoba, after an absence of thirty-one years. He resided on Lock street, and later on Murray street, opposite the now defunct drill shed. His wife was formerly S. E. Chard.

CANADIAN NIGHT BEING PLANNED

Fourth of Series of Monthly Concerts To Be Held On Monday Night.

IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

The fourth of the series of monthly national events inaugurated by the men of St. Paul's, will be held in the church on Monday, April 8, at 8 p.m.

The popularity of the previous three gatherings, representative of the people of the Motherland, was instantaneous, and as each program was presented monthly, the interest and enthusiasm increased. The men's association, with the splendid assistance of the Ladies' Aid, went one better than the previous affair. The Irish Night was promised, and turned out the premiere of the series up to that time.

On Monday evening of next week those who are looking forward to Canadian Night will have a greater surprise than could be foreseen. This time the choir are preparing a program of music and action surpassing the others—for is not this our land of birth and adoption?; and though hearts may have warm spots for the dear Motherland, yet we will hear the songs of this Canada of ours—the greatest of the dominions beyond the seas, and rejoice that we are part and parcel of a heritage, than which there is none greater.

The choir of St. Paul's church, under the genial and indefatigable Martin B. Chenhall, the organist and choirmaster have to date sponsored three concerts in the church and one at Keene, and now in this the fourth month of 1929, after three rehearsals, will on Monday "put across' an all-Canadian program, equal—aye, better than the former three.

Songs of the Immigrant.

There are such selections as "Canada Ever," "My Ain Folk" (these two were composed by a Canadian; he doubtless originally came from the Land o' Cakes); "The Raftsman," "Send Her Along," and others, descriptive of the history of Canada from the early Indian settlement, up to the era of the lumber raft. The music of these chansons is among the finest to be found; and speaks through every note of the onward march of the ages, and the wonderful spirit of the descendants of Old France immigrants.

Songs of the Voyageur

"The Raftmen," for instance, a Quebec boat song, brings to the listener the swish of the waters as the raft or canoe sweeps over the rapids, or as the voyageur's oars dip in the calmer stretches on its onward journey to the sea. Or "you-pe," as the French-Canadian sailors bend to the oars, and pull with a vigor born of the race.

Patrotic Songs

Again there is the patriotic songs —"O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf," truly Canadian, with the throb of pride for our native land. One of the unfortunate features connected with the singing of either of these two national songs at present-day gatherings is the ignorance of the words. How many people, as the writer has often noted, just mumble something to the tunes they know fairly well? This is a duty we all should accomplish—memorizing the words of our two national hymn-anthems.

To Stroke of the Paddle

It must be remarked that there never was a better paddling song than the one to be sung by the choir, namely, "Send Her on Along, Along" —and this will suffice as an appreciation in its praises—as the lumbermen return to their home from the winter work in the camps. As noted elsewhere, "In Flanders Field" will have a conspicuous place in the repertoire on Monday.

There are many selections, solo and choral and instrumental, all by Canadian authors—and one of the most popular, catchy, and tuneful melodies, is "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise," which will also have a place on the program as solo and chorus—but time will not permit the rendering of these at this entertainment, much as they deserve to be heard. And this will mean 43 selections to be given by the choir for the four occasions.

Appropriate Background

The setting for the evening is expected to be in keeping, as it is hoped to have a tepee in the choir loft, and drapings of flags and Indian, French, Scottish and other costumes; and with the address on "Canada's Future," by William Fox, Jr., Dominion champion boy ortator, solos, duets, quartets and choruses, in unique settings, the evening should be a red-letter event among the national nights held in St. Paul's in past months.

ARMY REVIVALISTS OPEN CAMPAIGN

Major and Mrs. H. C. Kendall Conducting Series of Meetings in City.

Major and Mrs. H. C. Kendall, Territorial Revivalists of Toronto, were greeted very warmly last night in the Salvation Army Temple by those who had gathered to welcome them at the first of a series of revival meetings to be conducted in connection with the special "centenary call" campaign which is at present in operation all over the Army world. An intensified effort is being carried on during the next ten days throughout Canada East territory, led by the various corps, to stimulate interest, particularly amongst Salvationists, in matters concerning the Kingdom of God. Major Kendall was stationed at the local corps over thirty years ago, and it was evident that he retains a good memory in being able to recall the names of some present in the meeting last night who were ardent workers with him in Peterborough. He remarked on the evolution of the local corps since then, and congratulated the Army and the citizens who largely contributed, on such a fine Temple to worship in. The Major revelled in recalling his welcome to Peterborough years ago when he was met at the station by the Salvationists and carried shoulder high through the streets to the Temple—or rather the barracks, as it was called in those days. Major and Mrs. Kendall have for the past twelve years been travelling up and down the Canada East territory leading special series of evangelistic meetings, and their labors have been strikingly productive of renewed consecrations.

Mrs. Kendall is a public speaker of well-known repute, and her addresses are delivered in a convincing manner, spiced with incidents both humorous and pathetic. Last night she stated that they had come to uphold the banner of Jesus, the banner of salvation for all, the banner of Holiness, and the banner of the dear old yellow, red and blue (the flag of the Salvation Army). It was possible, she said, to take away everything external, army uniform, instruments, regalia, paraphernalia, and still have the religion of Jesus. Some people had expected Salvation Army in its recent reforms to split, but we have to-day a bigger and better Army all over the world, revealing the true international spirit of the organization.

So heavy that it required two men to lift, Lady Hilton Young's statue, "The Stolen Baby," which has been exhibited at the Royal Academy, London, was recently stolen from her garden at Baywater, England, and no trace of the thieves was left.

A BLACK cloud hangs overhead. Great blobs strike and splash on your roof. In a moment comes the torrent—harmless if your roof is tight and secure.

Even light summer rains have a way of finding the smallest crack or chink in the roof of your home—crumbling your plaster, spoiling your interior decorations, and drenching your rugs. How essential, then, that you own a roof which is immune to ordinary roofing ailments—a roof the sun cannot warp—the wind cannot loosen—the driving snow and sleet cannot harm.

Brantford Asphalt Slates give your home the highest degree of weather and fire protection. For Brantford Asphalt Slates neither swell or shrink, split or chip, curl or bulge, rust or decay. Yet they cost no more.

You can entrust the safeguarding of your family and furnishings with perfect confidence to these handsome shingles. For summer and town homes—for schools, churches, and public buildings they are equally desirable—not only for their security but for their exceptional beauty and economy.

Write for copy of booklet "Beauty With Fire Protection"—an authoritative treatise on the proper type, design, finish and colour for your roof.

ANGLERS TO GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

Sportsmen From Toronto Association Will Be Here On April 10.

Through the efforts of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association Messrs. Jull, Ward, Galbraith, Cooper and possibly Gregory Clark of the Toronto Anglers' Association, will pay a visit to Peterborough on Wednesday, April 10th.

They will give an exhibition of casting, both fly and bait, at the armouries on that evening. Arrangements have been made with Colonel Gordon Hall to secure the use of the armouries for the event.

This is the first time that the Peterborough anglers have had an opportunity of seeing some of the best bait-casters in Canada in action.

Mr. Jull holds an all-round trophy for an average cast of one hundred and forty-five feet for three casts. Mr. Norman Ward holds the target casting championship, casting to a net thirty inches in diameter at distances of forty-five to sixty-five feet, and has a remarkable score of bull's eye at each of these distances. Gregory Clark is the Angling editor of the Toronto Star and the Association expects to have him along and give the boys a talk after the bait-casting exhibition.

All local sportsmen and those interested in fishing and casting are invited to attend this free exhibition next Wednesday, April 10, as there will be one or more events in which they may try their skill.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS.

The office worker, the farmer and the mechanic are all liable to suffer from derangements of the kidneys. Backaches and headaches are one of the many symptoms, others suffer from high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries sets in. In order to check these alarming and sometimes fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are now recognized by the Doctors and Druggists as one of the most reliable kidney preparations on the market. They will correct acidity of the urine and by keeping the kidneys in a healthy condition they will remove the poison that remains in the blood, which is the cause of a great many rheumatic ailments. The numerous testimonials from individuals who have derived benefit from the use of these tablets, speak for themselves.

These pills are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store and have no hesitation in asking your druggist about the merits of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills.

A.Y.P.A. HOLDS LADIES' NIGHT

Pleasing Program Provided By Members of Lakefield Church Society.

DISTRICT NEWS.

LAKEFIELD, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—Tuesday night was Ladies' Night at the A.Y.P.A and a very successful night it proved. All the lady members formed the committee and carefully planned the program, so that it would have the virtues of originality and variety of the Harmony Creek is also out and will be many days before the highway can be traversed eastward from this city. Many numerous lucky escapes have been narrated to-day of people who were travelling over this road at this time.

The men were inclined to suspect jokes at their expense, but nothing of the sort was even thought of. The evening was spent in progressive peanut euchre, which was new to everyone, and in its informality proved an excellent "ice breaker." Following the game a supper of "hot dogs" was served, followed by other dainties. The men were unanimous in their approval of the ladies' entertainment. Prizes were won by Miss Grace Watson and Mendell Smith, who displayed equal proficiency at peanut euchre as at the regular euchre. Consolation prizes were won by Miss Dorothy Holmes and Ernest Robertshaw.

Many people from Bowmanville attended the annual ball of the Pedlar People, Limited, last night at the Genosha Hotel here, and came over the wrecked bridge as late as 11 o'clock, and all were held to-day, unable to get back either by road or train. Two dozen cars containing Bowmanville people were about to start on the homeward train when the fatality occurred.

Walter Northrop's body was recovered about 600 yards down stream, caught on some bushes on rising ground. He was terribly bruised. Miss Wright's scarf was found half a mile down the stream.

Around the City

There was a sudden and unexpected rise in temperature to-day. At noon the thermometer was up to 71 degrees, much the highest to date, and well worthy of a mid-summer day.

Or painful you can be sure there is some interference with the nerves along the spine or hips. This could result from some jar, twist, strain, exposure to cold or assuming a faulty posture. Any of these can cause a misalignment of spinal bones capable of producing constriction of nerves, which will make muscular movement painful and difficult. Various ailments, such as

SEARCH CONTINUES FOR LOCAL GIRL'S BODY

Eight Lives Lost By Floods

NEWS IN BRIEF

NEW VACCINE IS REPORTED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8.—(C.P.)—Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, has heard nothing of the new anti-tuberculosis vaccine, the product of Dr. Albert Vaudreumere, of Paris, France, that has been imported into New York for experimental purposes, and he does not anticipate that any will be imported into Canada until it has been tested by a special board of the United States' Health Service.

ESCAPES BAD STORM

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 8 (C.P.).—This section of Ontario escaped the worst features of the storm which the lower portion of the province suffered during the week-end, and no damage was reported. The thermometer dropped during the night and to-day is quite chilly, but the sun is shining brightly. Reports received here indicate that the ice would offer little trouble to the opening of navigation.

SUPPRESS COMMUNISTS.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 8.—(C.P.) — The Rumanian government decided to-day henceforth to press mercilessly all Communist organizations throughout Rumania and to forbid by law their agitation and propaganda in open meetings.

EIGHT CHILDREN KILLED

HOBART, Tasmania, April 8. (C.P.)—The death toll of the floods which followed heavy rains last week, continues to grow. A motor truck carrying a number of children to a concert at Ulverstone crashed through a weakened bridge into the Gawler River.

Tight of the children were killed, including six members of one family.

The total of deaths in the Briseis tin mine, near the village of Derby, has grown to 27.

TWO BRIDGES ARE REPAIRED

Emergency Work Rushed On Saturday and Sunday at Harmony.

SIDE ROADS IMPASSABLE.

OSHAWA, April 8 (C.P.). — Early Sunday evening the washed-out bridges at Harmony, on the Kingston road, responsible for a double tragedy Saturday morning, were temporarily repaired. As soon as the small army of workmen on the job had finished, traffic officers released the stream of cars that had been help up.

By 3.30 yesterday afternoon the line of cars at each bridge was nearly two miles long. Then the shorter bridge was repaired, and slowly, one at a time, the cars crept over and met the other gaping space. Here more men labored, while on the other side the other line of cars waited.

At 6.10 the second bridge was replaced. For the first time in nearly 48 hours traffice flowed both east and west. Even yet, however, only one car at a time was allowed to pass over each bridge. Nearly two hours were spent by men from the department in directing the passage of the automobiles which had waited all afternoon. This did not take into consideration the number of motorists who were waiting in Oshawa and Port Hope for the way to be cleared.

These two bridges being out of order, isolated eastern Ontario from Toronto. All gravel roads are impassable, and it was impossible to divert traffic over side roads. The department of highways rushed materials to the scene, and nearly one hundred men were engaged all day Saturday and Sunday putting in a temporary structure.

Highway officials say that this was the only serious break on paved roads. Other provincial highways are impassable, but not in dense traffic districts. It may be a week before the highways through Grey, Bruce and Wellington are ready for traffic. A number of culverts are washed out, but no bridges.

Paved roads are the only ones north and east of Toronto fit for traffic. The pavements were damaged by the storm, but not so seriously as to nail motor cars.

Bridges Are Swept Away

Storms Cause Death and Destruction in Ontario—Eight Lives Lost.

HIGHWAYS IMPASSABLE.

Small Town Industries Are Forced to Close—Railway Service Halted.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8. (C.P.) — Swept for two days by the worst series of April storms on record the citizens of a great section of Ontario counted the damage last night and worked to restore essential services. The storm left in its wake damage estimated at more than a million dollars, a toll of eight known dead, disrupted rail and highway traffic and isolated communities.

The list of victims reported last night was:

Jack Burgman, Stratford, drowned when his boat capsized in the flood-swollen Maitland River.

Walter Northrop and Helen Wright of Peterborough, drowned when their automobile went through a washed-out bridge at Harmony.

Jack Miller of Scarboro, drowned when his truck went through a bridge spanning the Rouge River.

Orten Cook, Barrie, drowned when a bridge collapsed.

Henry Taylor Walkerton, drowned in the Saugeen River.

J. Kennedy, Toronto, and Robert Milne, of Belleville, killed in two separate railway accidents caused by the flood waters.

In the Allandale Division of the C. N. R. there were 22 washouts. Stratford and Belleville sub-divisions were hard hit. Altogether on both lines more than 50 washouts are reported.

Situation Is Serious.

With rain falling in many districts of Southern Ontario again to-day and thunder storms predicted in some localities, the situation brought about by a diversity of weather conditions during the past week continues to cause grave apprehension. Early reports indicate that the toll of lives through storm and flood remains at eight but in some quarters the figure of $1,000,000 set as the damage to property over the week-end is believed to be conservative in view of the widespread destruction.

Throughout the country innumerable bridges have been washed away by rivers surging at the highest levels in years, scores of washouts have disrupted railway services, telegraph and telephone communication has been seriously interfered with, while damage through flooded basements in factories and houses has been general in the affected areas.

FARMERS ARE GUESTS TO-DAY OF ROTARIANS

Hear Federal Member Review Business of Present Parliamentary Session.

A PINCH SPEAKER

Mr. Peck Substitutes When Called On at the Eleventh Hour.

To-day was Farmers' Day with the Peterborough Rotary Club and some forty residents of Smith and North Monaghan townships were guests of Rotary and heard E. A. Peck, M.P., give an interesting review of the business that has so far this season been considered by Parliament.

Called upon at the last moment to substitute for the announced speaker of the day who was unable to reach Peterborough, Mr. Peck gave the Rotarians and their guests a lot of valuable information about Parliamentary problems and issues, and his address was followed with close attention.

President W. R. Morris, in welcoming the guests, gave them a brief summary of Rotary's aims and objects and remarking that there was an opening in Rotary membership for a farmer representative, extended a hearty invitation for some one of the farmers present to become a Rotarian.

Rotarian George A. Gillespie, who was responsible for to-day's arrangements, then took charge of the meeting and welcomed the guests, pointing out that such gatherings were of value because they brought city people and farmers together and gave them a chance to see that they were very much alike. He expressed appreciation of the fact that Mr. Peck had consented at the eleventh hour to address the luncheon.

Mr. Peck, in the course of his address, took advantage of the opportunity to deny a published statement that he favored the amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways. He had never, he said, advocated such a policy nor did he believe it a necessary or desirable development. "Personally I think competition a good thing," said the Federal member.

Mr. Peck sketched some of the interesting things Parliament had discussed so far this session, including the Grain Act, the Kellogg peace pact, the return of natural resources to the Prairie Provinces, the titles question, the budget, and other features.

Of the ratification of the peace pact, the speaker said that while the treaty contained no teeth, he believed it would serve a very valuable purpose in preserving the peace of the world. It was the first time the United States had been associated

Naturalized Canadians Will Be Affected By Ruling Of Supreme Court Of United States

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 8.—(Canadian Press).— The Supreme Court to-day ruled that naturalized Canadians and other quota immigrants were prohibited from crossing the border to work or search for employment without presenting unexpired immigration visas. Naturalized Canadians were declared not entitled under the Jay Treaty of 1794 to cross the border freely regardless of immigration restriction. The controversy did not involve the status of native born Canadians who are exempt from the quota provision.

The highest court held that naturalized Canadians as distinguished from native born, were excluded under the immigration laws from freely crossing the borders in search of employment or to work upon the presentation of identification cards but were required to present unexpired consular immigration visas.

CRACK TRAINS OF TWO RAILWAYS BEING RE-ROUTED THROUGH CITY; ALL FREIGHT TRAFFIC IS HELD UP

Local Lines Being Taxed As They Never Were Before, Declares Agent.

ONE LARGE BRIDGE OUT.

Every Effort Being Made To Take Care of the Travel-tired Passengers.

Peterborough continues to be the hub of all railroad traffic on this division. All trains moving east and west from Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa are forced to pass through this city. Both stations are scenes of great activity.

The sidings are jammed with freight cars, which have been forced aside to allow a clear line to the crack passenger trains. All trains east and west have passed through this city since Saturday's big storm which caused washouts on both main lines.

"The local lines are being taxed now as they never have been before in the history of the railroads," said J. W. Anderson, C.P.R. agent, this morning when discussing conditions with The Examiner. The same state of affairs were reported at the C.N.R. Both staffs are working hard to handle satisfactorily the heavy duties that have fallen upon them. "Keep things moving" is the slogan of both lines.

Sent Via Orillia.

The C.P.R. are routing their trains through to Toronto via Lindsay and Orillia over the Port McNichol line, which adds at least four hours to the run. The C.N.R. are pushing their trains up from Belleville and around by Lindsay and Blackwater. The passenger trains are moving but slowly, while the freights are moving hardly at all.

The C.N.R. reported another washout at Agincourt last night, due to the heavy downpour that fell yesterday afternoon. However, by titanic efforts this washout was fully repaired by seven o'clock this morning and traffic was moving over it.

Every available man in the central division is working on the washouts between here and Toronto on the C.P.R. There are many washouts on the line, but the two main ones are one mile east of Rouge Hill and about the same distance on the west. Here thirty feet of bridge has been carried away, and the job facing the construction gang is gigantic. The work is in charge of George Sproule, roadmaster, and the large gangs are working night and day. Sixty-foot cement piles will have to be forced down to bed rock and a long gap has to be rebridged. The smaller washouts are being repaired by the road gangs. No definite time has yet been estimated on just how long the work of repair will take. The work is being pushed with great speed but the continuous downpour is making the difficulties increasingly great.

Trains Being Held.

Every effort is being made for the convenience and comfort of the travel-tired passengers. The C.N.R. held the trains from Toronto and Montreal here long enough to give the passengers sufficient time for lunch. The Empress Hotel reported that they had fed over 150 passengers on Saturday and to-day, and the hungry travellers are being supplied with sandwiches and coffee on the trains. The C.P.R. is carrying diners on all their trains through here.

Numbers 14 and 15 east and westbound respectively, the crack trains of the C.N.R. known as the International Limited, dashed through the city Sunday and to-day for the first time in history. The trains to-day are going via Uxbridge.

On the C.P.R. all the trains that normally ran down the lake front were necessarily routed through Peterborough since the big storm. There were four trains went through yesterday, including the 4.50 in the

HENDRY'S BODY FOUND IN POND

Police Are Endeavoring To Clear Up Mystery Surrounding Business Man's Death.

INQUEST TO BE HELD.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8 (C.P.).—Police were to-day endeavoring to clear up the various phases of the mysterious death of George M. Hendry, well known Toronto business men, who body was found in Grenadier Pond, High Park, Saturday afternoon, by two boys. His hands were clenched in his overcoat pockets, and in one pocket was a cheque for $2,500 made payable to "cash," and bearing the signature of a man whose name has not been divulged by police.

The preliminary examination of the body, which bore no marks of violence, had not been in the water more than two days, indicated Hendry had met his death by drowning. Police are working on the theory that he committed suicide because of financial troubles connected with the discovery just prior to his disappearance a week ago that he had been unwittingly giving financial assistance to a man connected with a defunct international liquor ring.

Inquest is Called

An inquest will be held, and the man to whom Hendry lent more than $30,000 "as an investment," is expected to be one of the chief witnesses. The man has been interviewed by police and is said to have made a statement.

On learning that his money had been put into the export liquor business, Hendry sought to have it returned to him, his friends state. Failure to get any definite decision on the return of his money is believed to have affected his mind. He is believed to have wandered around the city for about four days before wandering into the pond. He was subject to epileptic fits. Housewives in the vicinity of the park claim to have seen a man resembling Hendry in their neighborhood early last week.

Hendry disappeared March 31 after receiving a telephone call at his house. Whether or not this conversation was with one of the members

Band of Citizens Spend Whole Day Searching Creek

J. F. Fitzpatrick Conducts Search of Harmony Creek For Body of Miss Helen Wright, Who Was a Victim of Friday Night's Cloudburst.

REMAINS OF CEMENT PIERS ARE BROKEN UP, FULL LENGTH OF STREAM IS THOROUGHLY SEARCHED

Hundreds of Acres of Bottomless Bog Border Creek As It Empties Into Lake Ontario and it is Feared the Body Has Been Swept Into This Marsh.

A loyal band of Peterborough men searched the shifting sands and bogs of Harmony Creek from early dawn till dark yesterday in a vain attempt to recover the body of Miss Helen Wright, lost in the bridge cave-in early on Saturday morning.

At 12.30 on Saturday night this band of friends and relatives of Miss Wright, headed by J. F. Fitzpatrick, left the city for the scene of the accident. By the aid of many lanterns the searchers immediately began work breaking up the remains of the cement piers of the bridge, since it was thought by some that the body had been caught under the concrete when the bridge caved in. But after hours of work with pickaxe and shovel, and after having turned over nearly every piece of cement this idea had to be given up.

The search was then continued along the bank of the stream. The water by this time had receded until it had reached almost its normal level of a gentle brook. However, the sands had been turned into a morass by the water-soaking they had received. Tremendous difficulties faced the searchers, sinking at times up to their waists in the muddy sand. At times the men had to aid one another when they became too deeply sunk in the loose sand.

Search Full Length of Stream.

Digging into every nook along the shore the searchers made their way down the full stretch of the stream to the lake. Bordering the lake on both sides for hundreds of acres, the searchers found an impassable bog, which serves as a muskrat farm. Here in spite of their effort to press on they had to turn back. They continued up the other side of the creek. Slowly and painfully they moved in the heavy mud, yet they dug in the sands at every likely spot. At five o'clock in the evening they returned to the bridge, tired out by their hours of search, which was never once relented. But all their efforts had been fruitless.

The search for the body now seems hopeless, but still to-day it was being just as strenuously pressed. The Peterborough men were almost alone in their search, since the others that had crowded the stream earlier in the day had given it up. A few farmers and two detectives from the Oshawa police force were the only assistants that the Peterborough men had.

SHAW ESCAPES FROM HESPELER

Outlaw Stays Four Days in Abandoned Barn Far From Police.

BOARDS FREIGHT TRAIN.

BRANTFORD, April 8 (C.P.).—After four days' visiting Brant county, Orval Shaw has left for parts unknown. He is believed to have boarded a freight train near the village of St. George. The train was heading in the direction of Skunk's Misery.

For at least three of the days that provincial police last week were combing the swamps around Hespeler, Shaw was resting in the vicinity of St. George. Chief Constable H. D. Mitten of that village admitted last night. The chief was away for a couple of days and on his return was awaited by residents of the district to report the presence of Shaw.

As a result of Shaw's appearance here, the Hespeler swamps, flooded by the week-end rain, were deserted yesterday by searchers. Inspector Stringer personally visited St. George and was satisfied that Shaw had disappeared.

It was Friday morning that Chief Mitten started out to apprehend Shaw on the farm of Edgar Ayhart. Mitten arrived at 10.30. Cuthbert Burt, owner of the farm, had been talking to Shaw at 10 o'clock. At 10.40 the station agent saw him waiting on the tracks three-quarters of a mile away. At 11 o'clock a freight travelling west slowed to four miles an hour on the heavy grade where Shaw was waiting. He has not been seen since.

BOMBS EXPLODE IN LEGISLATURE AT DELHI, INDIA

Several Persons Are Injured and Panic Caused Among Assemblymen.

BENCHES TORN TO BITS.

Outrage Was Committed On Heels of Parliamentary Crisis in India.

DELHI, India, April 8 (C.P.).—Two bombs exploded in the Indian Legislative Assembly to-day, sharp on the heels of a parliamentary crisis, and injured several persons, and caused a panic among the assemblymen.

Among the injured was Sir George Schuster, Finance member of the Governor General's Executive Council. He, and the others injured were taken to a hospital. Sir John Simon, head of the Crown committee for constitutional reform in India, was standing with the President of the Assembly when the explosion occurred, but was not hurt.

Others injured were: Sir D. Raghvendra, Mr. Shanker, Mr. Dalal (seriously); I. N. Roy, Deputy Secretary of the Indian Central Committee, who was sitting in the officer's gallery. Roy bled profusely.

Three government benches were torn to bits by the bombs.

Confess to Outrage

Two men were arrested and were reported to have confessed after other bombs and pistols were found on their persons. They gave their names as Butukeskara Dutt, from Bengal, domiciled at Cawnport, and Bgagat Singh from Punjab.

Thrown into the crowded assembly room with the two bombs was a Red pamphlet entitled "Hindustan Socialist Republican Army," and signed by 'Balrajn, honorary chief." The effect of the bombs on the legislators was to drive them instantly into a panic. Police, who locked the doors to prevent the escape of the perpetrators, had difficulty in restraining the crowd containing both assemblymen and those in the gallaries.

V. G. Patel, President of the Assembly, had just risen to give a ruling of intense local interest when the first of the bombs was thrown, the second following a moment later. The Trades Dispute Bill had just been considered and the ruling had to do with whether discussion should be allowed on the Public Safety Bill.

Many Bitter Fights.

The Government's Public Safety Bill, occasion of many bitter fights in the Assembly and believed mainly responsible for the perpetration of the bomb outrage in the Assembly to-day, gives the government much greater powers in dealing with Communists. It provides for deportation of Communists and agitators who are not British subjects, and gives the government the right to confiscate or control remittances from Communist sources outside India.

The bill was defeated at the last session by a close margin but reintroduced some weeks ago. The government executive and the European group pressed for discussion on it immediately while the trials were proceeding at Meerult of the prisoners arrested in the recent widespread police raid on alleged centres of Communism in Calcutta, Poona, Bombay and Allahabad, but the President and the Nationalist members were against discussion, contending such would be prejulicial to the trials.

SEIZED CAR OF LIQUOR.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 8. (C.P.) — Chief of police Matt Moroney of Espanola, on Saturday night, between that town and Nairn, on the Soo-Sudbury highway, seized a high-powered sedan carrying a large quantity of liquor and arrested two of the occupants, a third making his getaway. The two arrested were N. Justi, driver of the car, who is held on $200 bail, and L. Valpato, of Sudbury, held on $2000 bail.

DECIMAL POINT MISPLACED

LONDON, April 8 (C.P.).—An inquest held to-day into the deaths of three boys who came up to London from Sudbury to be treated for ringworm last month, brought out in the course of testimony that a misplaced decimal point in a prescription caused the fatalities.

REVOLTS FOLLOW RESIGNATION CHANCELLOR SEIPEL IN AUSTRIA

Austrian Peasants' Parties Demand General Disarmament of Military Forces.

SEEK MORE POWER.

Rioting Yesterday Was Between Fascist Organizations and Republican Guards.

VIENNA, April 8. — (Canadian Press).—Austrian peasants parties to-day demanded general disarmament of all irregular military organizations to save the country from civil war, after injury of more than 12 persons in Fascist and anti-Fascist rioting yesterday.

Since resignation of Dr. Ignaz Seipel, Austria's Catholic priest premier, last week, the tension between the rival political and militant groups of Austria has become intensified with each making threats against the other.

To-day's Morgen says that retiring Chancellor Seipel is aiming at the establishment of a dictatorship. The Socialists, who control Vienna, are in a truculent mood, and declare that Dr. Seipel's "clericals" or "Christian Socialists" want more power.

The rioting yesterday was between Fascist organizations fighting to save Austria from Socialism and the republican guard equally determined to retreve the country from the aristocrats, and landlords. Clashes occurred in various parts of Austria, the most serious being at Hallein Nur Salburg, where six persons, including the chairman of the meeting, received ugly stab wounds and cuts and blows.

Orval Shaw's Name Found On Visitors Book

TORONTO, Ont., April 8.—(C.P.)—Under date of April 6, the name "Orval Shaw, Skunk's Misery," appears on the Ontario Government's visitors' book, placed in the main corridor of the Legislative Buildings, just a few paces from the office of the Commissioner of Police, whose officers have carried on a long search to apprehend the much-wanted man. The registration is thought to have been made by a joker.

Americans Without Passports Barred From Crossing Mexican Border Under New Ruling

NOGALES, Ariz., April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Mexican revolutionary leaders tightened up immigration rules here to-day, barring all Americans without passports. The move admittedly was in retaliation for an order by United States immigration authorities denying the rebel officers permission to enter this country. Heretofore Americans have been admitted into Mexican territory merely by identifying themselves as citizens of the United States.

The first pinch of the rebel order was felt by newspapermen covering the revolution at this point. There usual credentials were refused last evening and they were asked to present passports.

Described here as more pointed was the denial of entry to all United States Immigration and Border Patrol Inspectors. This was acknowledged to be a direct reply to the United States ban against rebel offic—

LINDSAY BECOMES BUSY CENTRE AS RESULT OF RAILWAY TIE-UP

Lakefront Trains On Both C.N. R. and C.P.R. Lines Pass Through Town.

CAFES BESEIGED

Washouts Reported On Canadian National at Stouffville and Washago.

LINDSAY, April 8.—(Special to The Examiner). —This town has been temporarily on the map as one of the leading railway centres in the country as a result of the demoralization of railway traffic on the two great national lines as a result of the heavy downpour of rain last week. All day Saturday and Sunday heavy main line trains passed through on both the C.N.R. and C.P.R. lines. Sunday morning at nine o'clock the hotels and cafes were beseiged by hundreds of travellers who were given an hour's stay in town in order to breakfast. All day Sunday crowds assembled at both stations to see the long trains pull in and go out. Late last night the International Limited one of the finest trains in the C.N.R. service steamed into the station.

According to reports this morning conditions have become more serious as a result of Sunday's rainfall. It was announced this morning that a washout has occurred on the C.N.R. line near Stouffville and also at Washago. The Canadian National had been using the Washago route in order to reach Toronto. The main street of this town presents an animated appearance this morning with scores of people pouring in from the station and crowding the hotels and cafes.

WINDSOR, April 8. (C.P.)—The Provincial Police shortly after midnight on Saturday, raided a banquet of the American Legion in a dining room at the Prince Edward Hotel, at Windsor. The police say that liquor was being consumed by the guests.

Edward Bethell, secretary of Post Number Fourteen, Canadian Legion, 211 Dougall avenue, Windsor, guest at the banquet, was arrested on a charge of having liquor in a place other than a private that he assumed responsibility for presence of liquor at the banquet.

Mystery Still Surrounds Death Of Youthful Winnipeg Bank Clerk Found Dead Saturday

WINNIPEG, Man., April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Official silence cloaks the death of Paul William Grimes Baker, 20 year old bank clerk, whose body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found on Saturday in the Fort Rouge suburban district. Coroner D. H. McCallman has refused to state whether or not an inquest will be held.

Though the body was discovered near the railway tracks on the outskirts of the city Saturday morning no information was made public until late Saturday. It is expected that more comprehensive details of the tragedy may be released by officials today. The youth was the son of the late George H. Baker one-time prominent as police magistrate in Winnipeg.

Railways Suffer Heavy Damage By Big Storm

Week-End Storms Take Heavy Toll Of Lives In Ontario

Countless Washouts Are Reported By Both Railway Companies—Solid Block of Township in Peel and York Badly Scarred By Storm.

ALL TRAFFIC HALTED IN EASTERN ONTARIO TWO RAILWAY ENGINEERS KILLED IN FLOODS

Two Men and Woman Are Badly Burned By Hydro Wire at Niagara Falls and Extensive Damage Is Done to the Substation.

TORONTO, April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Week-end train services were disrupted and at some points discontinued as a result of the unprecedented floods which swept over the province starting with Friday night's big storm, and caused two deaths in railway accidents and hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to rolling stock and rights-of-way.

The Toronto suburban area suffered severely. Early yesterday afternoon streets were flooded by one of the severest rain-storms of the period. Cellars were again flooded and highways—hastily repaired Saturday—were again rendered impassable.

The solid block of townships in the southern parts of the counties, east and west and those extending up north in York and Peel counties bore the brunt of the storm and last night were scarred their length and breadth with washed out bridges and culverts. The small village of Maple, a short distance from Toronto, has been without mail since Friday.

The valley of the Humber suffered severely. Brampton suffered severe loss. At Pickering the creek reached flood peak and swept away bridge foundations on the Kingston road. In North York county bridges were swept away and riverside propery damaged. On one of the small feeder streams running through Newmarket two small dams burst near Aurora and when the flood reached Fairy Lake dam at Newmarket the water shot over the sides of the retaining wall, undermined it and made a wide breach. A steel bridge crossing the stream near the dam collopsed and was totally wrecked.

In eastern Ontario cities and towns escaped severe damage but traffic was halted.

Two railway engineers, Jack Kennedy of Toronto, and Robert Milne, of Belleville, lost their lives Friday night when their engines were derailed at washouts. Milne was at the throttle of an eastbound Canadian National passenger train which struck a washout at Darlington, and Kennedy was driving an eastbound Canadian Pacific freight derailed at Bowmanville.

Carried away in the swollen Saugeen river at Walkerton, Henry Taylor, 19, is believed to have been drowned. Other fatalities were: Walter Northrop and Helen Wright of Peterborough, drowned when a bridge fell from beneath their car; Orton Fox, drowned as a result of the breaking of a dam at Barrie; and John Miller, of Ormorod, drowned when his truck broke through a bridge.

Practically every type of property suffered damage. Telephone lines were broken, telegraph service was interrupted, street cars were put out of commission, electric power failed, cellars were flooded, many buildings were struck by lightning, dams and bridges were washed away and motor traffic was hampered.

At Niagara Falls two men and a woman were badly burned by a Hydro wire and extensive damage was done to the Niagara Falls' Hydro substation. Irvine Pearson, a truck driver, came in contact with the wire while walking to get help for his vehicle which had broken down. Fred Cowan of Thorold, and his wife drove under the low hanging wire in their car which was partly destroyed by fire.

DIES FROM INJURIES

MIDLAND, April 8. (C.P.) — Roy Courtney died in St. Andrew's hospital yesterday as the result of injuries received when his car went into the ditch near the Midland-Simcoe elevator on the afternoon of April 3.

STORES CHANGE HALF HOLIDAY

Campbellford Merchants Decide to Close Shops on Wednesday Afternoon.

STARTS MAY 1ST.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8 (Examiner Staff Correspondence)—This year the local weekly half holiday has been changed from Friday to Wednesday afternoon. Since the latter was an open night, Thursday will be substituted in its place. For the past few days, local men have been circulating a petition requesting that this change be made, and after obtaining seventy-one signatures, considered that the list was sufficient and presented it to the council, who held a special meeting Friday night for its consideration. The amendment to the by-law governing the half-holiday was carried and the change will be effective as soon as the holidays begin, Wednesday, May 1st. The half day last year was continued till the end of the month of October.

For a number of years, the other towns and villages of the district have almost unanimously adopted Wednesday as their half doliday. Campbellford has held tenaciously to Friday afternoon. Commercial men have not found the odd day to their liking and for some time local business men have considered making the change. Apparently all that was required was someone to start the ball rolling. The petition was drawn up, signed and presented within the space of about two days.

PLAN CARD PARTY.

Friendly Bible Class Holds Regular Monthly Meeting.

The April business meeting of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Sunday School was held in the Parish House on Thursday evening, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. J. Vollans, presided and opened the meeting with prayer. Excellent reports of the month's activities and progress were given by the secretary, Mrs. C. Barton, and the treasurer, Mrs. J. Bacon. It was decided to have a "Peddler's Pack" at the May meeting, also to have a card party at the home of Mrs. Packenham, 737 Water Street, on Wednesday evening, April 17. A bridge and euchre party will be held in the Parish Hall on April 30, and it is hoped to make this a great success. The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and prayer.

TRAINS MANY HOURS OVERDUE

First Time in History, International Limited Passes Through Campbellford.

CRACK C.N.R. TRAIN.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Motor roads of the district are practically impassable, and the Easter visitors had arranged to return to their several places of occupation by train. Then came the series of rain storms and the deluge of Friday night and the railroad system has been crippled so that trains run late and some not at all. Those that are kept moving are being routed over whatever lines are available.

Fortunately the line through Campbellford has not up to the present been seriously effected, and during the last forty-eight hours it has been bearing the brunt of the traffic between Montreal and Toronto and Ottawa and Toronto. Trains that otherwise would never have seen this line have been passing through at all hours of the day and night. Some of them have made the town a stopping place to discharge and take on passengers. Mail has not been coming in regularly.

During the troubled period, the local railway officials have shown every courtesy to the patrons of the road. In spite of unusually long hours and the numerous inquiries regarding the train times with which no one seemed to be familiar, the local officials have done everything in their power to cater to the requirements of those who wished to travel. Yesterday afternoon there were a number of passengers for Peterborough, Toronto, Niagara Falls and North Bay. It was reported that there would be a train through for Toronto and west during the afternoon. Whether or not it would stop was another question. After considerable trouble, Major Bygott got assurance that it would stop to take on passengers, and immediately began to pass this information along to those whom he knew were waiting for news of train connections. If those who boarded that train yesterday afternoon pause for reflection, they will thank the Major for the fact that largely through his efforts they were able to ride out of Campbellford on the International Limited. This in itself is history, since the International is recognized generally as one of the crack trains of the Canadian National system. Never before has such a train been routed through Campbellford, and it is not to be expected that the event will happen again.

An instance which shows the delay which the numerous washouts have occasioned to passengers came to light when a woman arrived in Campbellford at one o'clock yesterday morning. She had left her home with her two-year-old child at five o'clock in the morning, expected to be in Campbellford at 1.30 in the afternoon. She arrived at one in the morning, twelve hours late.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

Fowlds and Company To Conduct Business of A. J. Jenkins.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Following the statement given to the press by A. J. Jenkins that he would be leaving town some time during the month of April to take a position in Montreal, his many friends will be interested to learn that the business which Mr. Jenkins has conducted here for a number of years has been purchased by its original owners, H. M. Fowlds and Company.

This company has been in business in Campbellford and Hastings for almost half a century, and the name will not be a new one in local business circles. The present arrangements for operating the local property are somewhat altered from those employed previously by the same company. J. D. McEachern, formerly of the staff of Armstrong's store, has accepted the position of local representative, and will be in charge of all dealings here. He will be directly responsible to the Hastings branch operated by Walter Fowlds of that place. As has always been the practice of the company, they will deal in coal, wood, lumber, builders' supplies, etc.

FOREIGN-BORN WESTERN CANADA ARE ABSORBING CANADIAN IDEAS

Imperial Order of Daughters of Empire Reports On Work in Alberta.

SPECIAL PRIZE AWARDED.

University of Alberta Has Organized a Special I.O.D.E. Course in Canadianization.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8.— (By The Canadian Press).—Success in the work of Canadianization being carried on in the Province of Alberta under the auspices of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire is recorded in the report received at headquarters here of the I.O.D.E. The work has been in progress for more than a year.

This special work is for the benefit of foreign-born children and their parents, the idea being to teach them British traditions and to aid them in every possible way to become patriotic and valuable citizens of Canada. In order that it should be as efficacious as possible, the Daughters of the Empire in Alberta decided to give special prizes and scholarships to the school teachers in the foreign settlement with the idea of encouraging and inspiring them to add to their already valuable work with these children in the schools.

The members of the I.O.D.E. in Alberta are of opinion that, by means of a sane and sympathetic approach, and bearing in mind the valuable contribution many of the new Canadians are making to Canada ,they will be able to arouse in them an interest in British ideals and traditions says the report. In Alberta as in other Prairie Provinces, there are many difficulties to be overcome before an entente cordiale is established, due partly to the fact that these new Canadians of foreign birth have been allowed to settle in communities by themselves where the English language is seldom heard except in the schools. It was on account of these difficulties that the Provincial Chapter of the I.O.D.E. decided to employ, for their purpose, the local teacher, believing that the most effective avenue of approach to the parents would be through the children.

It was found that many of the teachers in these foreign settlemnts were upon their own initiative and in addition to their regular schoolwork, quietly doing their share of the Empire building task and had already left their impress upon the conduct and character of the children under their care. With the idea of further encouraging and inspiring them in their efforts the provincial Chapter instituted a series of special prizes and scholarships to the value of 150 and $30 respectively.

Special Prize Awarded

The special prize of $150 is awarded upon the recommendation of the local school inspector, for two or more years service in a foreign settlement along this line. Already five of these special prizes have been awarded. Letters have been received from several of the prize winners which show their keen appreciation of having their efforts recognized. One of these letters is as follows:

"The problem of the foreigner is a great one; greater than we realize. In Alberta, we have over 60,000 Ukrainians who occupy, roughly speaking, a block of land sixty miles square. They have brought with them customs, morals and religions that are in many respects a century behind Anglo-Saxons. A Ukrainian missionary told me they had no traditions, or what we would call such. They had no King Arthur, or St. George. They only tradition was oppression. This oppression was somewhat lessened before they came to Canada but it

YOUNG MAN IS SHOT.

OWEN SOUND, April 8 (Canadian Press). — Walter Vamelon, 17, of Annan, died late on Saturday in the hospital here as the result of gunshot wounds received in his home during the afternoon. The young man had returned from hunting crows and laid the loaded shotgun on the table while he pumped some water. There were no witnesses to the shooting, but it is believed his young brother Robert, aged five, tried to take the gun off the table, though warned by the older boy, and let it fall. The shock discharged the gun, inflicting fatal wounds.

Marmora Villagers Feel Lack Of News

MARMORA, April 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—"My kingdom for a newspaper" might have been heard at the village hostelry on Saturday night. The value of a newspaper was never more acutely felt locally, for not a Toronto, Peterborough or Belleville publication had made its daily appearance.

The latest development in the Orval Shaw case and official news of the two railroad wrecks being thus withheld, a keen sense of disappointment pervaded the home where reading is a delight. To add to the woes of many, 'Ham and Eggs at the Front" could not be shown at the weekly picture show, for with railroad communication with Toronto cut off, the film could not arrive.

EUCHRE PARTY IS BIG SUCCESS

Social Affair Held Under Auspieces of Lakefield Fire Brigade.

LADIES' AID PROGRAM.

LAKEFIELD, April 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The euchre drive and dance given by the Volunteer Fire Brigade in the Town Hall on Monday evening was a tremendous success, in spite of very bad weather and worse roads. Thirty-six tables of euchre were played, the largest number at any card party held in the village. The tables were well arranged and the members of the brigade saw to punching tallies, and all the details of a well-managed card party for which the Firemen have become famous.

About eleven o'clock refreshments were served and immediately afterwards Reeve C. S. Tanner presented the prizes.

The first prizes went to Miss Valieta Preston and Roger Maloney, while Miss Dorothy Holmes and Dr. H. E. Moore won the consolation prizes.

Prizes were also announced in the ticket selling contest and as the first two winners were not present, they will be presented later. Mary Webdale won the first prize; Merle Webster was second, and Bernice Abrams third.

Reeve Tanner thanked all present for their patronage, on behalf of the Fire Brigade.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, with Miss Verna Payne at the piano and T. Sullivan with his violin provided music for the square dancing.

A large number arrived in time for the dance. In point of attendance, management and sociability, the party was an outstanding success.

The Fire Brigade is one of the strongest village assets, a real service club and they have proved that they can play as well as work and can run a card party as well as they can extinguish a fire.

About midnight a rather amusing incident occurred, a call was made for half a dozen firemen to go on duty at once. "Where was the fire?" was the cry as the boys responded promptly. The explanation was simple. A lady vainly trying to arouse the night central to summon a taxi, innocently rang the telephone three times. This is the fireman's signal and their response was prompt as usual. On learning the truth they returned to the festivities which continued till nearly three o'clock.

Entertainment Given

The dramatic entertainment put on by one of the committees of the Ladies' Aid of Regent Street Church on Tuesday evening in the school room of the church was a great success. The main feature of the program was a comedy entitled "Safety First," put on by the dramatic society of Mark Street United Church, Peterborough, under the direction of Mrs. E. Wand, with Leonard Agnew as stage manager. The play was a comedy of errors and was a laugh from start to finish and illustrated in its plot the truth of the old adage, "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive." The parts were well taken and the actors spoke clearly and distinctly, so that even at the rear of the hall, the audience could easily hear. The plot was fairly snappy and had many funny situations which were not lost on the audience, which was very appreciative. The honors fell to Miss Mabel Reynolds, whose interpretation of the Irish maid servant, "Mary Anne O'Finnerty," was quite an outstanding bit of acting. Never overdone and with not studied acting, she appeared to live the part and her appearance on the stage was the signal for a burst of applause. Douglas Bethune, who played the part of "Abou Ben Mocha," was the star among the men, for although his part was not a heavy one, much depended on the acting, and in that Mr. Bethune excelled. Mrs. Wand, who played the important part of "Mabel Montgomery," also showed dramatic talent and played her rather emotional part capably.

Between the first and second acts, Mrs. Wand sang a solo with Miss H. E. Moore as accompanist and between the second and third acts Miss Bernice Ferguson sang a solo with Mrs. Boorman at the piano.

The Regent Street Sunday School orchestra was in attendance and played several selections before the performance began and between the acts, adding much to the enjoyment. Constant practice and musical talent have combined to make the orchestra a very excellent organization and a decided asset to Regent Street United Church. The personnel includes Mrs. H. E. Moore, Walter and Ivan Madill, Kenneth and Ronald Kemp, J. Knox and Clayton Bullock.

Home-made candy was sold during the evening.

The cast of characters in the play was:

Jack Montgomery, husband of Mabel, Morgan Perry; Jerry Arnold, his friend, Harold Agnew; Mr. McNutt, a policeman, Cyril Agnew; Elmer Flannel, Jack's Cousin, in love with Zuleike, Gordon Agnew; Abou Ben Mocha, a terrible Turk, Douglas Bethune; Mabel Montgomery, a devoted wife, Mrs. E. Wand; Virginia Bridger, her sister, and Jerry's fiancee, Miss Bernice Ferguson; Mrs. Barrington-Bridger, mother of Mabel and Virginia, Mrs. V. Boorman; Zuleika, a daughter of the harem," Mrs. H. Hunter; Mary Anne O'Finnerty, Mabel's maid, Miss Mabel Reynolds

THREE ROBBERS ARE CAPTURED

Victim's Last Act Before Becoming Unconscious Gives Police a Clue.

TERRIFIC STRUGGLE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8 (C.P.).—Wilfred Hardy's last act before becoming unconscious from being thrown from an automobile here enabled police to capture the three men who are alleged to have thrown him from their car. Hardy grabbed the rear license plate and tore it from the car just before he lapsed into unconsciousness. He was found with the license plate clutched in his hand. The police located the car and arrested its occupants. They are now in custody on charges of aggravated assault and robbery. Hardy's pockets, it is alleged were rifled of $100 by the three men. The men are Leo Kelly, William Kelly, and John Curtain, all of Toronto.

According to the police Hardy was enticed into the car and taken for a ride. A terrific struggle took place before Hardy was hurled from the machine. The rear window was smashed and blood was spattered all over the inside of the car when found by the police.

Things that Simplify Washing Tasks

I always try to finish my cleaning and more active work in the morning and do the mending and sewing in the afternoon. This little rest makes dinner-getting easier. Years ago this would not have been possible, but now we have so many electrical helps — washing machines, irons, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, refrigerators, and so on.

And there are other real labour savers which every housewife can afford to use. Take washing, for instance—it is probably the heaviest and most wearying of all household tasks. But every washing task can be considerably lightened and more efficiently done by the use of proper soap.

If you want to purchase a good neutral soap for your home, get Princess Soap Flakes. It is safe to use them for anything that will stand plain tepid water. They will not harm your daintiest, filmiest things, nor give you red hands.

The Cause of Rust Stains on Clothes

Many times rustlike stains are the result of using poor soap. A good housewife cannot afford to use any but the best soap in her home. A soap which contains harsh caustic and chemicals fairly eats away the finely-woven threads of fabrics and quite often leaves stains which completely ruin the article that has been washed. And when it comes to woodwork, these harsh chemicals discolour and crack the enamel or paint.

You can't always judge the quality of soap by the appearance or price. When women ask my advice about soap, I always recommend Princess Soap Flakes—not only for the family washing but for every household washing task—dishes, floors, woodwork and windows. They contain no harsh chemicals or harmful free caustic and are inexpensive enough to use for everything.

In my work as Home Economics Counsellor I have made a special study of soaps. Not only have I tested soaps and experimented with them but I have been to the factory to investigate the ingredients used and the processes of manufacture.

I wish every housewife knew the value of using Princess Soap Flakes. If you will write me, enclosing 4c postage, I will see that you receive a free trial package. Write me about any of your washing problems. I will be glad to help you in any way I can. My address is 64 Natalie St., Toronto 8, Ont.

WORKMAN IS KILLED

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., April 8 (C.P.).—Fernley Bassett, 22, was killed here Saturday. The young man was working on the building of a new railway bridge over the canal, and apparently was riding a hoist. From what could be learned from contractors in charge of the work the hoist swung over to one side, throwing Bassett against the bridge. He was terribly injured and died within a few minutes. An inquest will be held here Wednesday.

VILLAGE IS FLOODED.

NEUSTADT, April 8. (C.P.)—The village of Neustadt suffered the worst flood in its history here on Friday night, heavy rains having caused the grist mill pond at the south end of Main street to break out allowing the water to pour down Main street. Some of the business places were badly damaged and the street was washed out. Much damage was also done to bridges and roads in the vicinity of the village.

COOK IS DROWNED.

OWEN SOUND, April 8 (Canadian Press).—Sid Hing, 23-year-old Chinese of Markdale, drowned himself in a small pool at that place on Sunday afternoon. Hing, who was employed as a cook by his brother, George Hing, proprietor of the restaurant here, had been acting queerly for several days.

WATER SUPPLY CUT OFF.

STRATFORD, Ont., April 8 (Canadian Press).—The village of Mildmay was one of the heaviest sufferers in Western Ontario from the week-end storms. Thousands of dollars worth of damage was done and it will take months to completely repair the damage. The water supply is cut off and cannot be restored for at least a couple of days. In the meantime the only source of water is the few wells which are scattered about the town.

TRAIN 13 HOURS LATE.

NORTH BAY, April 8. (C.P.) — Delayed by washout almost 13 hours, C. N. R. train No. 47, Toronto to Timmins, arrived here at 6.50 o'clock last night. The train-weary and hungry passengers heaved a sigh of relief when North Bay was reached with an opportunity of satisfying their hunger. There was no diner on the train and a great number of the passengers were unable to get anything to eat at the lunch counters at Gravenhurst and Scotia Junction. A diner was attached to the train here and there was an immediate rush for seats.

FILM

Spreads Over Teeth

and makes them unattractive

Remove it daily to keep teeth white and sound

DENTAL science knows what robs teeth of brilliant whiteness. It is film.

It clings to teeth and gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs stains from food and smoking to turn white teeth "off color" and cloud their brilliance. Film hardens into tartar. Germs by millions breed in it, and they, plus tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

To remove film, dentists prescribe the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

In a few days teeth grow whiter and begin to sparkle. Start today. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter, or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 191 George St., Toronto 2, Ont., Canada.

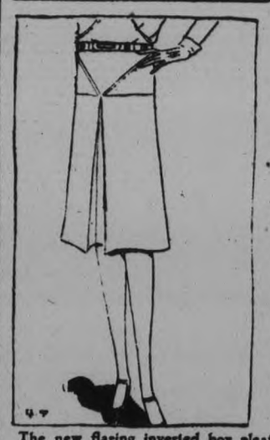
The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall



The new flaring inverted box pleat is seen on this sports frock of white crepe.

A season and more ago dressmakers strove to make skirts that were actually fuller but didn't appear to be. Women still clung to the traditions of the tubular silhouette. They were perfectly willing to have skirts that were fuller around the hem. They had discovered that the straight short skirt was a rather difficult thing to manage and that it had an ungraceful way of riding upward. Yes, they really did want this extra fullness around the knees but they wanted it introduced by way of skillful drapery and tucks and other devices that were as unobtrusive as possible.

But now the flare has actually arrived and it is increasingly difficult to find a skirt that does not in some way or other show its disposition to grow wider about the knees. It is here as a definite fact of fashion—an effect as well as a fact—and the most interesting thing about it is its diversity.

For the washable cotton frock the best flares are those achieved by a gathering of the material or wide pleats. Circular insets or flounces are better chosen for the chiffon or georgette frock. With daytime frocks of silk crepe or thin woolens, flares may be achieved by fine pleating, skillfully arranged tucks or shirrings. For sports skirts and frocks the favorite type of flare is that achieved by wide pleats—frequently of the inverted box sort. These new inverted box pleats are not persuaded to lie flat and they have no intention of doing so.

"I have my ups, I have my downs,
I have my ups and downs."

How often we hear that old quotation I guess that is the experience of most persons.

* * *

To a casual observer, many lives seem to be all ups, interpreted to mean success, while many seem to be all downs, interpreted to mean failure, but to the individual himself, it may be apparent that he has a mixture of both

I listened not long ago to an address given on Northern Ontario, and I thought how little we appreciate all the great comforts we have

It must have been exhausting as they followed the buffalo trail in their crude carts, to see the everlasting stretches of forests, mile after mile.

They are, it seems, going through such hardships as our forefathers had to bear when pioneering in our Eastern sections.

"Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days be dark and dreary."

Thus wrote Longfellow, and it rarely happens that any life is unclouded.

All sunshine makes a literal desert, and so, perhaps the mos fruitful lives are those which are not all bright, and yet, as few days are wholly dark but have some gleam of brightness, so few lives are absolutely sad, but there is surely something to make one glad.

* * *

Sometimes there is much of sadness because we dwell upon adverse circumstances unduly and refuse to take advantage of the opportunities for gladness which come our way, but seemingly prefer the valley of gloom and refrain from climbing to the hills of gladness even though we might

To some, their work is considered an adverse circumstance. They chafe under the 'daily grind,' as they term the monotony, the repetition, the endless recurrence of similar tasks, and yet no two days are identically alike.

Then too, the repeating of the duties makes them somewhat mechanical, whereby the mind may be busy along other lines, and subconsciously the accustomed work is performed with but little mental effort, while others whose brain must perforce attack new problems daily, must solve new mysteries constantly, have the greater burdens.

There are those, too, to whom work is not a necessity, and many who must needs toil consider such as highly favored. Many of the wealthiest of earth are the very happiest when they are the busiest; though they might be able to refrain from work, yet they would thus miss one of the greatest joys as well as one of the greatest blessings of life, hence they are habitually engaged in some useful occupation.

* * *

Those who spend their time in luxury and ease, in idleness and folly, are the victims of ennui, and frequently end their aimless existence which has become intolerable.

There are those who are physically unable to work, and how they envy those who are able to go out and earn their daily bread The bread they are forced to accept from another is not sweet to the taste.

The weary days and nights drag out their lingering hours from month to month throughout the dreary year, and gladly would they exchange places with the humblest laborer who can fare forth at break of day, exulting in his strength and, with the knowledge of a day's work conscientiously performed, can retire at night and enjoy refreshing and invigorating sleep which will enable him to again take his place among the honest toilers of earth

Let us then, take pride in our work, let us take a joy in achieving some useful task which needs doing. The kind of job does not matter; it is the spirit we bring to it that gives us the stature of men and women and makes our lives really count.

* * *

"Let me but do my work from day to day,
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring market-place or quiet room;
Let me but find it in my heart to say,
When vagrant wishes tempt me to go astray,
'This is my work, my blessing, not my doom,
Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work may best be done in the right way'."

Have you seen the new sleeve for the evening gown?

A new evening gown of black satin combined with modernistic insets of white satin, has long sleeve of very fine white net with deep cuffs of the black and white modernistically cut satin. They appear, from a distance to be cuffs without sleeve.

* * *

And then we have new collars and cuffs. Smart daytime frocks increase their use of collars and cuffs of white georgette, organde or batiste. Dressy afternoon gowns often have a frill of creamy lace ending in a flat jabot. Even strictly tailored suits are making use of soft lace touches at collar and cuff on their chic satin blouse.

SUBTLE CHIC

THE STYLE No. 2581 is a charming slender model that cleverly expresses French chic in slim straight lines in sheer woolen in grayish-blue tones, so appropriate for all-occasion wear. The vestee is of self fabric. A new and individual idea is the scalloped treatment at side securing a flat line through the hips, with belt slipped through bound openings holding in any surplus fullness. A plaited section below scalloped closing, provides flare to hem. Printed silk crepe, navy blue wool crepe, patterned wool jersey, plain jersey in purple, and almond green canton-faille silk crepe is also smart.

THE PATTERN is unbelievably easy to use, because there is a Picture Chart showing how each part appears after it is cut out, and exactly how it is put together, which saves considerable time for even the experienced sewer. It is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust, and is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

"I have read your page ever since it started and have certainly enjoyed it, and I feel selfish for not writing you long ago and thanking you for the lovely helps and recipes. I know you will be able to help me in a couple of matters.

"First, what do you think of hair dressing as a profession? I want your opinion about this and, second, about bridge. I am just learning the game and would love to get some helps from you and if you are not going to print them in The Examiner could you send them out privately? If so, I will send my name and address immediately. Well, here's hoping my pen-name isn't taken; if so, give me anything.

"I am sending you a recipe which I know is good for lemon tarts.

"JYCYNTH."

Thank you for the recipe, "Jycynth." I'm sorry I can't book your pen-name until you send your name and address. When you write again, mention the bridge and I will tell you, privately, the name of a splendid little 15-cent or 25-cent book to get.

I can't say much about hairdressing as a profession, "Jycynth," except that those whom I know in the business seem to be doing well. Why not enquire next time you are having your hair done?

"Dear Marion,—You certainly are having a time trying to get the readers to write about the housecleaning system. At last I have decided to answer the call. To some it may not be so much but it always gets me through.

I clean the attic first, then air and pack all the winter materials that are to be put away in the attic or wherever you store them. Next I go through each room and decide upon all changes and repairs to be done in each. If there are to be new curtains or cushions made, new mats bought, or rugs, I make or buy these and so have them ready to put in place after the washing, dusting and waxing is done. In this way you can finish up the small items as you do each room and not have to be coming back later on.

Even if you don't need new curtains, try changing them around from one room to another. This is a change of scenery at least. I usually try to have at least one new article in each room. I go through all drawers carefully, airing them well and putting away any articles that are not to be used in summer, as I don't believe in dusting a number of unnecessary nic-nacks in the hot summer days.

I also try and find time to clean all my cooking utensils before I clean the kitchen. Do this the day before, then when you come to cleaning out your cupboard, cabinet, etc., you can put pans in as soon as finished, thus saving the scrubbing part of it lasting a couple of days. Of course, if there is to be much painting to be done you can do this job while paint is drying.

As a number have said, I just love washing, ironing and hanging nice clean curtains (unless I don't get them straight).

I won't send my budget as it is the same amount for the two of us as the one published a short time ago. I always make out a menu for the week on Monday morning, and then buy in all the articles that I can keep for that length of time. This I believe saves time and money.

The Two of Us column isn't coming along very well, is it? I'll send a couple of recipes for it with this. I don't agree with Ansathman that you shouldn't publish patterns or recipes. I think you should try and interest the ladies in patterns to encourage them making their own clothes as much as possible because it is a great saving. If you have a new dress why not have it made in the fashion. It doesn't cost any more and certainly looks smarter.

As to the recipes isn't the idea of them, that we can have nourishing meals yet cheaper ones, and still have variety as well? Because there are three recipes doesn't mean we need try them all at once.

This is quite a lengthy letter but you ask for them. Here's hoping your new spring shoes don't hurt on Sunday.

Ella May."

Thank you for the recipes and for your splendid letter, "Ella May." You seem to be an ideal housekeeper—you have, at any rate, learned the value of planning.

There are many good hints for housecleaning in your letter, and I'm sure the neighbors all appreciate them. Come again.

"Dear Marion,—I am sorry I used Well Wisher's pen name. How about White Wings. They Never Grow Weary? You asked me to come again soon, so I have done so at your request.

Spring is here at last, and with it, the thought of spring cleaning once more. Neighbors are asking for hints. Let me suggest a few, though old as the hills, they are ever new. Why get the house from the attic to the basement looking as if a thunder bolt had struck it? There is no need for this untidiness, putting a brush away here, and duster there, etc., a certain amount of untidiness can be avoided. Then don't overdo your own strength and patience by working too long, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. is quite sufficient for a good day's work. On no account ask hubby to do too many chores for you after he's finished his supper, for he too is human and not a machine, and after his day's work needs rest, and there are limitations even to his goodness as regards carpet beating, etc. And take a lesson from what I heard a male say the other night. He didn't object to spring cleaning, but he did object strongly to having to find a fresh bedroom every night while housecleaning was going on. There are two sides to everything and this is what he is thinking perhaps at 4 o'clock in the afternoon:

"One hour more and my long day is through,
Gosh, I've had a million and one things to do,
But soon I'll be home, and leave all behind,
Never a worry or care on my mind.
I'll take a cool shower, a good soothing rub,
Coming out rosy, and feel fresh from the tub.
Then I'll sit in my den with my pipe and my book,
Shut in alone in my own cosy nook.
With my feet as high as a guy's feet can go,
My shoes and socks in an untidy row.
Oh, to take off this coat, collar and vest,
Slump on the couch, and thus simply REST."

This is what some of us are thinking:

"One hour more and my man will be home
From the city's great mart and its vast honeycomb,
I'll get him to put on his old working clothes
And sprinkle the lawn with the spray and the hose,
Then rake up the yard from winter's dead leaves,
And clean out the drain pipe that leaks from the eaves,
Then I'll ask him to hang up Aunt Bell's picture frame,
And teach little Junior to play his new game,
And help with the supper, the table's not set,
And find out what's making that kitchen floor wet;
Then re-set the trap where those nasty mice lurk,
One hour more and he'll be home from work, TO WORK."

If these are your thoughts think twice before you speak them, or there may be this possibility: Next year if you are spared and he hears you planning your spring cleaning, he'll pack his valise and plan also to take a vacation probably to Italy to find Jiggs' Maggie, with whom he'll find rest and 'Peace, Sweet Peace.'

Yours truly,
White Wings."

Thank you for your clever letter, "White Wings," and let me assure you we'll never grow weary of such interesting chats. Your hints are good, and the men, at least, will agree that your poetic effusion is splendid. Let's hope there won't be many upset houses in Peterborough district this spring cleaning time!

"Dear Marion:—

You were awfully kind to send me the little personal note and I didn't deserve it for being so careless. Here it is Easter and I don't feel the least bit like it. I've been sick all winter and just now have a fresh cold and the kiddies are real cross to-day.

The girl who wrote the clipping that 'Mother' sent in was a very self-centred girl. It is the ones who haven't had a mother's love that would be only too glad to have one, whether she nagged or not. My mother died when I was a baby.

I am sending in a couple of recipes. Some other neighbor is writing under the name that I wrote before, 'biddy' so just choose one for me.

Milly"

How is that, "Biddy—Milly"? I'm pleased to hear from you again, and hope you come often when summer drives away the memory of this last awful winter's sickness.

Thank you for your recipes, and for your thoughts about "Mother."

In the last issue of "The Echoes," the official organ of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, and of interest to every member of the I.O.D.E., appears a worth-while article entitled Mothercraft Homes," written by Stella E. Pines, an Australian who is at present in Canada, and who served as a Nursing Sister during the War.

The Mothercraft Homes, of which she is a strong advocate, have been established in New Zealand during the last half century They have as their primary object the education of mothers who are in difficulties over their apparent inability to feed their babies in Nature's way, and the general education of the family in domestic hygiene. The effect of the homes on mothers and infants and finally, the community as a whole, is said to be incalculable.

They were founded by Dr. Truby King, who was later knighted by the King, who for sixteen years carried on minute investigations tending toward the preservation of child life He made a special study of calves, for the reason that they are the only domestic animals deprived in infancy of their natural food He found that these animals did not develop as they should and were subject to the same diseases as children who were artificially fed—rickets, diarrhoea, etc. He also made a study of the feeding of monkeys, and found that when they were fed on dried milk, few of them survived. Some would recover when the diet was changed to fresh milk but they never equalled the standard of those which had been naturally fed.

As a result of his investigations, Dr. King found that to be successful in the rearing of any kind of living thing, natural laws must be obeyed,—all need water, air, sunshine and the food Nature intended for them.

Adam's rib may be described as a small part which had developed into a loud speaker."

Talking on color and its influences, to women who assembled in St. John's Church on Thursday afternoon, Miss Ernestine Baker asserted that experiments had been made which demonstrated without a doubt that yellow was disliked by mosquitoes to such an extent that they even refuse to bite the wearer of this bright shade, especially if it be the sort of yellow known as chrome

Miss Baker also advocated the trying out of an experiment which shows just how insects react to color. She said that a small box filled with grass and earth, with wasps or bees or any other insects, and angle worms, could be used for this experiment. If an electric light bulb covered by blue cloth or paper were waved above this receptacle there would be no sign of life of any sort, but the use of a red-covered light would immediately cause the insects and worms to move about with great rapidity.

Red is the color of excitement and attraction," she said. If a homely girl puts on a red dress and goes to a dance, she may be able to get a lot of partners away from her prettier sisters."

THE PETERBOROUGH OF YESTERDAY.

The suggestion made in these columns a few nights ago as to the desirability of a corps of volunteer guides to assist visitors during Old Home Week to locate some of the places they knew when they lived here is perhaps regarded as a little fanciful, and yet made residents who pride themselves upon knowing Peterorough might find themselves stumped by some of the questions they may be asked.

How about Goose Island, "The Jacks," Bertram's, the quarry—all old swimming holes beloved by the boys of a generation or two ago?

Suppose you were asked how to get to Boswell's field, or the cricket field, or the P.A.A.A. grounds—the playing grounds of yesteryear?

These places and dozens of others unknown to many of our present-day citizens are the things our old boys and girls will want to see—and among older residents there are scores who recall the old days and could direct or take them to the spots they have cherished in memory.

It should be possible to list a squad of such citizens willing to donate their knowledge of the Peterborough of yesterday to the good of the cause.

OUTLAWING POISON GAS.

A sign of the times and a striking illustration that the efforts of the League of Nations are bearing fruit is the agreement lately approved by Germany for the renunciation of poison gas in future wars.

The other great powers have generally approved this procedure, but it is worthy of more than passing notice that the country which instigated this dreadful method of warfare should publicly declare against its barbarity and the terrible suffering it brings to the individual combatant.

The paramount interest of the league is to prevent all war and to substitute arbitration for appeals to force, but every mitigation of the horrors of such wars as may occur despite all its efforts is another major ideal in its humanitarian program.

Even the most sanguine optimist cannot expect this great league will banish war within a few years. Since this great body came into existence there have been no less than twelve minor wars waged in various parts of the world, three of which are in progress at the present time. But there is every reason to believe that the league will be a potent factor in preventing great international conflicts and in banishing many of the horrors which made the last catastrophe the most horrible in history.

THE PURSUIT OF SHAW.

In the section where Orval Shaw is reported to have been circulating there is said to be a feeling among the residents that the pursuit of the elusive jail-breaker should be abandoned.

The Toronto Globe, viewing the matter from another angle, deprecates the methods used and suggests that instead of hunting Shaw with brass bands the police should follow the example of the mounties and detail a man or two to round up the slippery gentleman from Skunk's Misery.

While most of Ontario refuses to accept the affair as little more than a good joke, there is a serious side to the case.

There can be no question of giving up the pursuit. Shaw is a law-breaker who should be punished, and the police will have to keep on until they get him.

At the same time there is a good deal in the Globe's contention that there is too much noise and publicity about the pursuit methods adopted, and again, the spectacle of large numbers of Provincial Police being taken away from more important duties to aid in the hunt is not one that appeals to the public as a proof of efficiency and good judgment.

Fewer men and less publicity might wind up the chase in quick style.

THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER.

Of all the factors entering into the argument as to whether or not left-hand turning should be permitted at the intersection of George and Charlotte streets, the one entitled to least consideration is the convenience of the motorist.

Surely it is no particular hardship to have to drive an extra block—yet there are some car-owners who protest as vigorously as if they had to crawl the extra distance on their hands and knees.

It is an amusing commentary upon changed conditions in this county that people whose grandfathers thought little of tramping 30 miles through a forest trail to Port Hope with a bag of grain on their shoulders should complain because they have to drive a motor car a few hundred feet farther as a contribution toward safer conditions.

If the abolition of the left turn reduces accident hazards—and there does not seem any doubt as to that point—the motorists' plea of inconvenience can be dismissed without a second thought.

It is impossible to work up much sympathy over car-owners being asked to detour a block—and The Examiner is convinced that the majority of drivers would prefer to accept the trifling inconvenience as a contribution to the general safety.

The whole question boils down to the old basis of the greatest good to the greatest number, and from that angle the no-left-turn regulation should remain in force.

TOO EXPENSIVE.

Speculation regarding a successor to Colonel Myron T. Herrick, late American ambassador to France, discloses the fact that only an extremely wealthy man can hold down this post. It is said that the diplomatic representative of the United States in Paris must be possessed of a private fortune and be ready to spend a large share of it in his country's service. The same is true of similar posts in London and Buenos Aires and, to a lesser extent, in other capitals of the world.

The rather anomalous situation thus disclosed may be rectified, to some extent, by President Hoover, who is anxious that his country's foreign ministers have indemnities more in keeping with their expenditures. Under the most favorable conditions it is expected the representative of a powerful nation would have to meet heavy demands on his private purse. But it is shocking to learn that these inroads are so serious that the man who fills Mr. Herrick's shoes must be worth something like $5,000,000 or more.

It is rather amusing to note that American diplomats blame most of their financial troubles upon tourists from their own country. These visitors descend on London and Paris in droves. They are wished on the American minister by senators and congressmen back home who furnish letters of introduction without consideration for the imposition involved. Bills for entertaining these unsolicited guests are so preposterous that Uncle Sam is finding it increasingly hard to get properly qualified men willing to make the financial sacrifice entailed by representing him abroad.

The abuse complained of in connection with the post so ably filled by Mr. Herrick is not confined to the diplomatic service. In a petty way it may be seen operating in every constituency and city of Canada. Members of Federal, Provincial and lesser elective bodies are constantly bludgeoned into contribution toward community movements on pain of defeat at the next election. They pay dearly for the honor of holding office. And there is no doubt that this form of persecution keeps many able men out of public life.—Border Cities Star.

REORGANIZING THE SCHOOLS.

Premier Ferguson has again declared his intention of staying on the job until he revises the educational system of the Province, with special stress on his township school board scheme and all that it implies in the way of reorganization. Since this revision has been pending for several years and, to date, can show only "some progress," Mr. Ferguson must be classed with the optimists. He is persistent—and especially is he hopeful—in looking forward to the time when the people will be prepared to accept something new—if not his plan, then an alternative.

His proposals have been referred to as a reform, which suggests that the school system has fallen upon evil days. Perhaps the word which has come into such common use in industry would be more suitable, if it were not too new for adoption under educational methods which have persisted in clinging to traditional conditions. Industrial genius gets a great deal of comfort out of the thought that it is "rationalizing" things—by which is meant, evidently, reorganizing in larger and more economical units, cutting out waste, eliminating the weak, applying intensive methods in placing the product where it should go, and taking better care of the human element involved all down the payroll. It is doubtful if the educational system has gone backward, but it has not kept pace with modern development.

During every convention of the Ontario Educational Association and allied groups it is made manifest that there is room for improvements. Suggestions looking to progress come from teachers and trustees, and they are so varied in their outlook that at times they are almost appalling. Complaints are made that the curriculum is not sufficiently elastic, that too much of one subject is required or not enough of another, that teachers cannot exercise initiative, that the teaching profession is not remunerative, that rural education is not helpful from the standpoint of the community, that all pupils are turned out on the cold world uniformly moulded like so many peas in a pod, that education, as applied, is not education anyway.

There is no lack of analysis of conditions, although there is not a general agreement on the objective and the means of reaching it. Would it make the road easier to adopt the moderate reorganization which the Minister of Education proposes?

It is a fair assumption that in educational affairs as in others steady progress must be made, and that this progress calls for better teachers, improved facilities, an understanding of changing requirements and a willingness to measure up to them—not improvements and changes as compared with a decade or two ago, but as compared with last year and last month. School training and teaching should keep ahead of the times, for they are the foundation-stone. Therefore control of education should be in the hands of men and women capable of anticipating and preparing for the future.

Leaving out of consideration the wastefulness due to the maintenance of so many small schools, which is altogether inexcusable, would the creation of township boards of trustees bring into contact with the schools a class of men more far-sighted and generous in the treatment of educational matters, establish more certain means of adopting progressive methods, and weld the educational system of the Province into a more advanced unit? These are considerations more important than the maximum salary of a district school teacher or the honor of being a district school trustee.

Mr. Ferguson's suggestion is a step in the right direction. It is a question whether it is more than a step—but, offering an opportunity for bigger and better schools, trustees and teachers, it is a move which should be adopted. Looking farther ahead, however, it is possible to see the educational system of the Province, and possibly of the country, in the hands of a non-political commission of experts, with a thoroughly organized system controlling inspectors, teachers and salaries, working to give the youth of the land the best training that can be had, adapting it to the indivjdual, and even guiding the boys and girls into vocations. This would be a big jump from the present system. But, after all, education is not a matter affecting school districts alone; it is a national concern, and ought to be so viewed.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Our two great railway systems are to be congratulated upon being able to maintain any kind of a service in the face of the difficulties of the past few days.

Some ninety members of the House of Commons have taken part in the Budget debate. How many people can remember anything any of them said?

A white robin has been reported at Windsor. From the color it is presumed that it has only just arrived there.

Parliament still has to battle over the estimates, so that the backbenchers have something to which they can look forward.

Evidently Mr. Ferguson's resignation is not to be an event of the near future. He says he's going to remain until rural school education has been reformed.

The average age of the members of President Hoover's Cabinet is sixty, and we're waiting with an open mind to see whether this proves that men ought to be chloroformed at that age or not.—Ohio State Journal.

A Thought

SILVER LINING

Tell me, what's the use of fretting
when we think that things go wrong?
It never makes them better; but I've heard it said a song
Makes the heavy load seem lighter and will cheer the troubled heart
Till it quite forgets its worries, and its vexing cares depart—
As the wind that sweeps the marshes where the fog hangs, chill and gray,
Moves the mists that mar the morning
till it blows them all away.

So, whenever storm-clouds gather till they hide the sun from sight,
And it's darker in the morning than
it ought to be at night,
Then let's sing about the sunshine that is on the other side
Of the darkest cloud, my comrade.
Let the sing ring far and wide
On the listening ear of others who climb the hill with you.
Till the rifted clouds are scattered, and the gray old world seems new

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

LITTLE ME

Across the sky some mighty hand
Has flung a million stars,
The beauty of a Venus and
The majesty of Mars,
And through them whirled
My little world,
A little land and sea,
A little earth
Of little girth,
And on it little me

But I am very, very wise,
And very old in years,
Though not as ancient as the skies,
As aged as the spheres,
And I'll explain
The thing again,
As plain as plain can be,
The question solve—
They all revolve
Around just little me.

Though I was born just yesterday
Upon this little spot,
I'm fully qualified to say
If there's a God or not,
You stars that fill
The sky, be still,
And, space and time, let's see:
Well, God I doubt,
We'll leave Him out—
There's nothing sure but me.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

Anthony Hambledon swung his long legs down from the couch almost violently and stood up.

His face felt hot, and the little room seemed to cramp him. He pushed open the window and leaned out.

It was raining steadily now, and the sky was an unbroken mass of gray.

Perhaps Drake and Ana would come back.

What was the sense in fearing round the country on such a day? He went out to the front door. He felt restless and unhappy. He hoped Drake was a careful driver; there were some beastly hills round about Lyme.

Supposing they had an accident? brakes wouldn't act or something. With an effort he controlled his thoughts.

"Like a lovesick boy," he told himself savagely.

He went back to the sitting room and lit a pipe.

"Oh, don't—you mustn't."

It was here in this very room that Ana had said those words to him, and he knew that she was right.

He mustn't love her, or at any rate if he could not help it, he must never say so again, or show it. He had to lock it all away in his heart and pretend.

"Might as well tell a starving man he can't eat," Anthony muttered. He sat down on the edge of the table, his pipe hanging limply from between his teeth.

She wasn't in the least pretty—he had never thought her at all pretty—as a matter of fact, now he came to think of it, her appearance had meant nothing to him. He had not been conscious of it at all; he had only been conscious of her.

Next to Mollie he supposed nobody would have looked twice at Ana, and yet he—a married man with a son six years old—would have given his soul to take her in his arms and—— "Hullo" said the General at the door.

Hambledon started and flushed.

"Hullo, young man."

Beneath the General's frank eyes he felt uncomfortably ashamed. He turned away and made a great business of knocking his pipe out in the grate.

"It's raining," said the General solemnly.

"So I see."

"And Auntie Ana has gone out."

"She has."

"What for?"

Hambledon shrugged his shoulders.

"I didn't ask her. She's gone with the Flying Corps."

The General came into the room.

"I'd rather ride a horse," he said confidently.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean, rather ride a horse than drive an aeroplane."

"Oh, I see."

Hambledon looked down at his small son.

"Unfortunately we can't all do what we like best in this world," he said.

The General sidled up closer. He only permitted himself to be affectionate with his father when there was no possibility of an audience.

"What would you like to do best?" he asked.

Hambledon looked away from the boy to the window against which the rain was beating fitfully.

He wondered what would happen if he answered truthfully.

"Spend the rest of my life with Ana." Then he shook his shoulders and laughed.

"What would you like me to do?" he asked, knowing quite well what would come.

The General beamed.

"Read to me," he said.

"Right-oh! Get the book then."

The General stumped away and returned with his favourite book.

"It's about Lord Byron," he commanded.

But Anthony had only just found the page when there was a knock on the little front door.

Father and son looked at each other inquiringly.

"Ellen's out," the General announced. "She's gone to get some butter." He liked to think that he was cognizant of the domestic workings of the cottage.

"And your mother's probably asleep," Hambledon said. "So we'd better go and answer the door."

They went together.

"Perhaps it's Auntie Ana come back," the General suggested hopefully.

"She wouldn't knock," she'd walk in," Hambledon said, but there was a faint hope in his heart as he pulled back the latch, then there was a little silence.

"Oh, it's you, is it" he said, in not a very friendly tone.

Ralph Mahon stood on the step, the rain dripping from his shoulders.

"Yes. I won't come in, thanks"—he had not been asked. "I only brought a message from Phillis. It's such a rotten day, and looks like lasting, so she wondered if you wouldn't come down to dinner to-night. We can play cards or do something."

"I'll ask Mollie. Come in, won't you?"

It was not a very pressing invitation, and Mahon refused.

"I'm wet through. I'm in a hurry as well. If you'll just ask Mrs Hambledon."

Anthony turned to the stairs, then hesitated, and looked back to say:

"Miss Fabian is with us, you know. We can't very well leave her at home."

"My wife particularly wishes Miss Fabian to come."

"Thanks. I'll just—oh, there you are."

Mollie had appeared at the bend in the little staircase.

"Here I am. I heard the knock, and I was just coming down to see who it was. Ellen's out. Won't you come in, Mr Mahon?"

"No, thanks. I've just called to bring a message from Phillis. She wants you all to come to dinner to-night."

"Oh, we shou'd love to shouldn't we, Anthony?"

Hambledon muttered something unintelligible.

"We'll expect you about half-past seven, then," Mahon said. He looked at Mollie and smiled.

He was a dark, rather sallow man somewhere about forty-five years of age, and he had an air of determined cheerfulness which somehow did not ring true.

"Shall I send the car for you?" he asked, turning at the gate.

"We've got our own car, thanks," Hambledon answered.

"You were rather curt with him, weren't you?" Mollie asked uncomfortably when Mahon had gone. "And you might have let him send his car. It's a closed one, and they've got a chauffeur."

"I prefer my own car."

Mollie stood at the foot of the stairs. "I think it's kind of them to ask us," she said. "The cottage is deadly on a night like this. Don't you think it's kind of them, Tony?"

"I'm not keen to go. It means dressing, I suppose?"

"Of course."

"Damn it."

Mollie sighed and climbed the stairs again.

"You really are very trying," she murmured.

"They've asked Ana as well," Anthony called after her.

"Of course. If she's back in time she'll be pleased to come."

"Of course she'll be back in time," Hambledon answered.

He went into the sitting room where the General was patiently waiting for him, and took up the book again, but his thoughts were all with Ana, and once, quite unconsciously, he stopped dead in the middle of a sentence, and was silent so long that the General touched his arm.

"Are you sleep?" he asked, amazed.

Hambledon laughed rather shamefacedly.

"Dreaming," he admitted, and hurriedly went on with the story.

But Ana did not come back in time to go to the Mahons, and at a quarter past seven Mollie declared they could wait no longer.

"We must go on. Ana won't mind, and if she's too late to come to dinner, Ellen will get some supper for her."

Hambledon ran a finger round the inside of his collar.

"The damn thing's choking me," he growled, and then— Something may have happened to them. It was a rotten bus. Supposing they've had a smash?"

Mollie smiled serenely.

"My dear boy, the only thing that has happened to them is that they are enjoying themselves too much to hurry back home. It's peculiar taste, I admit, especially on such a dreadful evening as this. I really think we must go now, Tony."

Anthony followed her to the car in silence.

The rain had stopped but it was cold and cheerless, with a pale, watery sunset struggling to show itself now behind the clouds.

Mollie shivered and drew the rugs more closely around her.

"I wish you'd let Mr. Mahon send his car for us," she complained.

"I don't like Mahon, and I don't want his car," Anthony answered obstinately. "I'm only going at all to please you, and because I couldn't very well get out of it. I object to favours and hospitality from people I don't like."

Mollie flushed and bit her lip.

"He's been very kind to me," she said.

Her husband turned his head sharply and looked at her.

"What do you mean—'kind' to you?"

"Silly" she patted his arm with her white hand. "Don't be such a bear. I only meant that he was kind to us on the boat when the General and I came home."

Anthony drove on in silence for a few minutes, then he broke out again: "I don't like the fellow, and I don't want to know him."

Mollie laughed softly.

"Tony, I believe you're jealous," she accused him.

"Jealous!" There was a blank amazement in his voice. "Jealous! of that fellow! Good God, what next!"

"You're not very polite."

"And you're not very complimentary to think I should condescend to be jealous of a man like Mahon."

There was another silence, longer this time, which Mollie broke.

"We turn to the left here," she said frigidly.

Anthony swung the car about with an impatient hand. He tried not to think of Ana, but his thoughts were all with her. Why was she so late? had anything happened? and if not, what the devil did Drake mean by keeping her out so long?

I'll take care she doesn't go with the fellow again," Hambledon thought savagely, then realized with a sudden shock that it was no concern of his and that he had no control over her actions.

And yet she had admitted that she loved him; she had answered—

You know I do" when he had pleaded with her to tell him.

"You're driving dreadfully fast," Mollie said suddenly; she caught at his arm with nervous fingers. "What are you doing, Anthony? you'll have us over."

Hambledon brought the speed down and apologized. "I thought we were late."

She looked up at him with resentment in her pretty eyes.

"If you'd gone on like that we should never have got there at all, we should have been in the ditch," she said sharply.

Anthony laughed grimly.

"I don't know that it wouldn't have been preferable to dinner with the Mahons," he answered.

He drew up at the Mahons' door and topped.

"I'm sorry if you were frightened, Mollie," he said, rather ashamedly, with a glance at his wife.

Anyone would think you had been drinking" Mollie answered witheringly.

They entered the house in silence.

Ana not come?" was Phillis Mahon's first question. She looked past Mollie with disappointed eyes.

She's out with an attendant swain," Mollie said laughingly. They have been out since quite early this afternoon—motoring. I left a message with Ellen, telling her to come on."

They must be very interested in one another to motor on such a day," Phillis complained.

She was beautifully dressed, and she wore some of the diamonds of which Mollie had spoken to Ana so enviously, but she looked terribly ill and there were lines of pain in her face which seemed doubly pathetic by contrast with her expensive clothes and jewels.

Mollie looked at her and thought what waste it was. She glanced at herself in the mirror and ached to see those diamonds gleaming on her own hands and throat.

When she met Mahon's eyes, she seemed to read her own thoughts reflected there, and she coloured nervously and looked hurriedly at her husband.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY MISTAKE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily stood beside the Little Puddle and looked down on it. The Little Puddle, as I told you in the story before this, was one made by the rain in a hole of the green field. But the Little Puddle was unhappy and wanted to grow big, when Bully and Bawly, the frogs, made fun of it and said such a tiny bit of water wasn't enough for them to go swimming in.

"So you want to grow into a Big Puddle, do you, little chap?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh, very much!" murmured the water. "And you said you would help me. Did you mean it?"

"Of course I meant it!" answered Mr. Longears. "I don't want to see anybody unhappy. Though, if I were you, I should be satisfied to remain a Little Puddle. You are so cute and pretty, with the green grass growing all around you. And soon there will be May flowers for you to water. Besides, if you turn into a Big Puddle, no one will see the pretty stones that now you only partly cover."

"Oh, no! No!" whispered the Little Puddle. "I want to grow big, like the frog pond, or even like a lake. Or as big as the brook I hear chattering over there where Bully and Bawly went wimming. Please, Uncle Wiggily, help me to grow big!"

Uncle Wiggily scratched his pink twinkling nose.

"Very well," answered the rabbit gentleman. "You shall have your wish. But don't blame me if it doesn't turn out as you hope."

"I shan't blame you!" cried the Little Puddle as the wind ruffled its top, making it look like a piece of lace amid the green grass. "I want to be as big and noisy as the brook."

"I am going to make you a part of the brook," said the rabbit.

"Oh, are you?" exclaimed the Little Puddle. How jolly! How wonderful. How surprising!" It was all excited.

"Yes," went on Uncle Wiggily, "the only way to make a Little Puddle become a Big Puddle is to put more water in it. Now you said you asked the rain to make you bigger, but it didn't."

"No," answered the Little Puddle, "it didn't."

"Then," went on the rabbit gentleman, "the brook shall do it."

"But I don't understand," sighed the Little Puddle. "The brook is on the other side of the field, and I am here. How can the brook help me to become big?"

"I will dig a ditch, or canal, through the earth, from you to the brook," said Mr. Longears. "I have often seen my little rabbit boys and girls digging ditches, on rainy days, to let water from one puddle run into another. I shall do that now. The ground is soft and I am a good digger. As soon as I have made a little canal from the brook to you, water from the brook will run over here and you will soon swell up big, though I hope you do not grow too proud."

"Oh, no, I promise you I shall not!" said the Little Puddle quickly. "Dear Uncle Wiggily! How big do you think I shall be when you have dug the ditch so the brook water can run into me? How big?"

"Quite big enough, I'm sure," said the rabbit.

So he began to dig with his paws, as all rabbits can, and as some dogs do. How the dirt flew! There was quite a shower of gravel so that the green grass asked:

"What is going on?"

"I am making Little Puddle into a Big Puddle," said the bunny.

At last the ditch was finished, all but a little dirt at the edge of the puddle and a little more dirt at the edge of the brook. Uncle Wiggily quickly broke away these dirt walls and presto! In an instant the water began to flow!

But Uncle Wiggily had made a funny mistake. He did not know that the Puddle was on top of a little hill and that the brook was at the bottom of the hill. And water always runs down hill. So, instead of the brook running into the puddle, the puddle ran into the brook!

Away through the ditch that the rabbit had dug flowed all the water of the Little Puddle and into the brook it ran.

"Oh, Oh! Oh! dear!" cried the Puddle, "I am growing smaller, not bigger! Oh, dear!" And as the last of its water flowed down into the brook, which made it welcome, Uncle Wiggily scratched his pink, twinkling nose and said:

"What a very funny mistake! Well that's the last of the Little Puddle!" And so it was, though it lived for many years in the water of the brook and really, was quite as happy as it had been before.

And now, if the piece of cheese will kindly help the apple pie jump over the sugar bowl, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's brass buttons.

Around the City

Peterborough Council of the Knights of Columbus received Communion in a body at St. Peter's Cathedral at the first Mass on Sunday, and at their club-rooms in the evening they held their annual memorial service in respect to the five members who died during the year. D. A. McKinnon, Grand Knight, presided.

HUDSON BAY ADVANCES IN QUIET SESSION

Slightly Weaker Undertone Prevails Throughout List On Standard Exchange.

McINTYRE UNCHANGED.

Kirkland Lake and Hollinger Among Issues To Suffer Setbacks.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8 (Canadian Press). — Only occasional strong spots stood out in a quiet list on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, when a slightly weaker undertone prevailed in moderate trading. About the largest gains registered were those of 45 cents in Ventures, at 11.00, 50 cents in Home Oil at 18.50, and 25 cents in Hudson Bay at 19.00. Ajax sharing the general firmness among oil issues climbed 4½ points at 45.

Wainwell firmed a point at 40 and Vipond a like amount at 107.

Losses were also negligible in extent. Kirkland Lake eased three at 112, but most other Kirkland Lake issues were steady. Hollinger softened 20 at 7.30, while Dome and McIntyre were both unchanged from Saturday. Arno at 38, Amulet at 165, Malartic at 52, and Central Manitoba at 51 were all slightly easier. Noranda weakened half a dollar at 53 and Pend Oreille lost 20 at 8.65. Big Missouri softened seven at 120.

ACME BUILDING IS DAMAGED

Flames, Smoke and Water Sweep Through Seven Floors in Toronto.

CONDUCT INVESTIGATION.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8 (Canadian Press). — Fire of a mysterious origin caused damage estimated at $80,000 to $100,000 here on Saturday night when flames, smoke and water teemed through the seven floors of the Acme Building. Fourteen firms which were housed in the building suffered losses.

Fire companies answering the alarm found all doors locked with one exception. The door to the office on the top floor, where the fire is believed to have originated, was not fastened.

Ten sprinkler heads having capacities of from 20 to 25 gallons of water a minute poured their contents into the building from above and the water soaked through the seven floors flooding every one and doing damage which the various firms have not yet been able to ascertain. An investigation will be held.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 8 (Canadian Press). — Foreign exchange steady; demands rates (in cents): Great Britain, 4.85; Canadian dollars at 5-8 of one per cent. discount.

OIL ISSUES LEAD TRADE AT TORONTO

Imperial Registers Slight Gain in Heavy Turnover at Noon Quotations.

QUIET SESSION.

Great Majority of Other List Stocks Unchanged From Saturday's Close.

TORONTO, Ont., April 8 (C.P.).— Oil stocks were strong leaders in an otherwise quiet market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, with Imperial Oil the outstanding feature. On a fairly large turnover Imperial climbed to 110½, and at noon was selling around 108¾ for a net gain of three points. The new stock improved accordingly to 28½, ¾ higher.

International Petroleum firmed ⅞ at 55⅞ and British American Oil gained a full point at 49. Super test at 34 and Service Stations at 76¾ were, however, fractionally easier.

The great majority of other issues were unchanged from Saturday's close in quiet trading. Stronger stocks, however, included Canadian Gypsum, two points higher at 11, Brazilian, fractionally firmer at 59, and Steel of Canada, slightly higher at 54¼.

Slight weakness was shown in Massey-Harris at 70, with the Rights losing a quarter at 4.00. City Dairy eased a point and a half at 63, and International Nickel, the listed leader, sold down ⅝ at 48. Hayes Wheels at 56, British Columbia Power at 48¼, and Bell Telephone at 161 were all easier.

WORLD SUFFRAGISTS TO MEET AT BERLIN

International Alliance to Celebrate 25th Birthday in German Capital in June.

BERLIN, April 6.—(C.P.)— More than a thousand delegates and unofficial guests representing 44 different countries, will attend the congress of the World Suffragist Alliance to be held here from June 17 to 23. The congress will celebrate the 25th birthday of the Alliance, which was founded in Berlin.

Preparations for the congress and the anniversary celebration are being made on a large scale. They are in charge of Mrs. Margaret Corbett Ashby of London, chairman, and Frau Adele Schreiberkrieger of Berlin, vice-chairman of the executive committee. Mrs. Schreiber-Krieger is a member of the Reichstag.

The convention will discuss many questions of interest to the women of all countries. While, after the victory of Women Suffrage in many countries as a consequence of the political changes of 1918, the existence of the Alliance seemed in doubt for a time, since its main purpose had been achieved, the fact is that it is now stronger than ever, and that its scope has been considerably extended. Among other things it has focused its attention on the education and development of youth. Consequently a youth congress will be held in connection with the June gathering. Highly interesting discussions and studies are expected in this connection, especially as the modern youth movement is probably in no other country as far advanced as in Germany.

Frau Hermann Mueller, wife of the German Chancellor, is president of the honorary committee. Frau Klara Mende is at the head of the Press committee, which will conduct inspections of Berlin's social institutions.

NEW YORK LIST FLUCTUATES ON NARROW SCALE

Market Becomes Firmer in Afternoon Session After Early Declines.

CALL RATE UNCHANGED.

Wall Street Anticipates Another "Money Squeeze" Around Middle of Month.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 8. (C.P.)— The stock market alternately grew hot and cold to-day as control of the price movement shifted between the "bull" and "bear" forces. Neither faction was able to gain a decided advantage, due to the apparent disinclination of the outside public either to add to their commitments or to sell those already owned, with the result that the day's trading was largely professional in character.

The market headed upward at the opening, turned heavy just before midday when heavy selling cropped out in the coppers and then moved higher in the early afternoon under the leadership of the merchandising shares.

There was no change in the credit situation to-day. Call money renewed at 7 per cent and appeared to be in fair supply at that figure but Wall street was anticipating another "squeeze" around the middle of the month. The time money market was quiet with nine per cent. quoted for all maturities.

SHARP ADVANCE WHEAT PRICES

Farm Relief Legislation Report Responsible For Upward Market Swing.

PROVISIONS EASIER.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 8 (C.P.).— Grain prices took a decided upward swing to-day after a wavering start. Buying was associated largely with current report that broad plans of farm relief legislation were taking definite shape rapidly. Opening at ⅞ decline to ⅛ rise, wheat later scored a sharp general advance. Corn, oats and provisions also were firmer, with corn starting ⅛ off to ½ up, and subsequently showing gains all around.

OFFERED POST.

Chief Justice J. L. Brown, of Saskatchewan, who, it is stated, has been offered the chairmanship of the Canada Grain Board, reorganization of which is reported as imminent.

HUGE AVIATION MERGER PLANNED

New $140,000,000 Accessory Corporation Will Unite Interests of Large Companies.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 8. (C.P.)— Wall street heard to-day that the organization of a new $140,000,000 aviation accessory corporation to unite the aviation interests of several large companies was to be announced soon. It will take the form of a holding company, which will own the Bendix Corporation, Stromberg Carburetor Company of America, Scintilla Magneto Company and a new corporation now being formed to take over developments of Delco Remy, a General Motors subsidiary making aircraft appliances.

BAND OF CITIZENS SPEND WHOLE DAY

The height that the water reached while at full tide could be easily gauged. Pieces of weeds and moss were seen hanging on the branches of trees, which normally were many yards from the bank of the stream. The muskrat swamps at the mouth of the creek had, during the height of the flood, been fully covered by six feet of water.

The difficulties of the search are made greater because the water did not run in a straight course nor did it run steadily. Deeply written in the sands is the story of the angry waters. First the waters would flow in one direction and then it would break and spread over in the other, and the marks of these eddies can be seen in the sand.

Miss Wright's body may be anywhere in the hundreds of acres of bottomless bog that borders the creek on either side as it approaches the lake. If it is here it will not be found for many days since anyone walking on this morass in its present condition would encounter the grave danger of sinking in the quick sands.

The rushing water dug out deep holes in the sides of its banks and these from time to time caved in. The opinion is held that the body may be beneath one of these cave-ins.

Within close distance of the fatality every pool and lagoon was thoroughly dragged and searched, but further down the creek there are still many deep pools where the body may be lying. These will have to be dragged.

To-day the search was being continued by the tired, nerve-wracked men, and it will be pressed on until the body is recovered.

Centre of Heavy Traffic

The town of Bowmanville was on Sunday the centre of heavy traffic and a confusion of hundreds of people, attracted to that vicinity by the spectacle of two main railroad lines being cleared of crumpled wreckage, and of an anxious search for the body of Helen Wright, lost somewhere in Harmony Creek,—all the aftermath of Friday night's storm and rains that had swept away in flood, the road beds of both C. P. R. and Canadian National lines, and the concrete bridge over Harmony creek into which the motor car, carrying a party of four Peterborough folk had crashed. Two drowned in the car crash, and two trainmen killed in the wrecks on both railroad lines was the toll taken. All the bodies save that of the young Peterborough girl, Helen Wright, have been recovered.

Many Peterborough people, to all of whom the late Miss Wright had been so favorably known, drove to the scene of the drowning, a mile east of Bowmanville—and turning from that sorrowful scene, drove to those points ten miles westward where the wrecking crews of both companies worked among the almost meaningless tangle of wreckage, that had meant the turning of all main line traffic through Peterborough for the first time in years.

Those hundreds of people, curious, yet sympathetic, could help but little in the search for the missing body of Helen Wright, and on leaving that scene, sympathy gave way to curiosity entirely, as they gathered at the scene of the train wrecks, one slightly over a mile distant from the other. There were still the damaged motor cars that had been part of the freight of one; a number of dead horses formed a dismal part of the scene—but the work of clearing the lines was what attracted most attention. At one wreck that on the C.P.R. it was found necessary to dump much of the wreckage into a gully on one side, while the big locomotive, firmly embedded in the earth where it had struck, challenged removal.

As the day wore on, the work progressed so that by night, there was some indication of completion within the next twenty-four hours. The work continued throughout the night and railroad officials, visiting the scene, predicted that traffic would again be moving within that period.

Car Is Total Wreck.

The car that carried Miss Helen Wright and Walter Northrop to their death in the icy waters of the Harmony Creek flood may lie forever on the sandy bottom of that creek. It has been placed beyond repair by the buffeting it received from the tide waters of the flood and is not worth salvaging.

Sidney Ruston and Donald Dickson of the Manning Garage made the trip to the scene of the fatality yesterday in an effort to remove the car from the creek. After a close inspection it was discovered that the car had been thoroughly demolished and was not worth dragging from its resting place deep in the muddy sands.

CHURCH SOCIETY HOLDS BAZAAR

Jolly Affair Held By Junior Auxiliary of Campbellford Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Friday afternoon and evening the Junior Auxiliary of Christ Church held a bazaar in the Parish hall, Rear street, which was a success from every point of view. The little girls who compose the organization, had for sale practically everything that is to be found at similar affairs arranged and conducted by older people. The hall was daintily decorated for the occasion, and an interesting program was presented both afternoon and evening. This consisted of a series of recitations, "The Pledges," by seven of the girls; a reading by Vera Wood; reciation by Jeanne Moore; and a short play, "The Guides to Helpers' Hill," presented by a cast of eleven little girls. The entire program was presented in the evening, only the play being given in the afternoon.

The success of the bazaar is in no small measure due to Mrs. Harry Moore and her assistants, Miss Lillian Benor and Mrs. S. Smith, who have devoted much of their time to training the little members of the auxilary who conducted themselves with such excellent both afternoon and evening.

LODGE PRESIDENT VISITS SOCIETY

Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge No. 176 Holds Special Session at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, April 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, held a special session in the I.O.O.F. Hall on Wednesday evening for the purpose of welcoming Sister Mae Thomas, of Lindsay, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, on her first official visit to the local lodge, the gathering being at 8 o'clock.

The Noble Grand, Sister Maud Armstrong, occupied the chair and the meeting was marked by a spirit of interest and good fellowship, though the attendance was much smaller than the importance of the occasion warranted, owing to the very unfavorable state of the roads, and the amount of sickness in the village and vicinity.

In her address the Assembly President gave much helpful information relative to the workings and growth of the Rebekah Sisterhood, and also outlined the extension of activities which it is expected will be ratified by the Assembly when it meets in June of this year.

A very interesting account of her many trips, chiefly by motor, since last September when the President began her round of official visits to the lodges of the province, was included in Mrs. Thomas' remarks, and held the close attention of her hearers, giving them a new idea of the work which devolves upon the head officer of their organization during her term of office.

Several tables were in use for cards at the conclusion of the formal session, the prize winners being: Mrs. Thomas Harkness and H. A. Fallis, for the highest score; and for the consolations a hearty laugh greeted the announcement that one of these went to the guest of honor, Sister Thomas, and the other to Brother E. Morden.

The dining hall, where the supper was served, was attractively decorated with the Rebekah colors, pink and green, these being featured in the overhead streamers, the flower, the serviettes, and the table runners. The menu was both dainty and satisfying, and a very pelasant social time was spent about the well-laden tables, the social committee looking after the service. The members of the committee included: Sisters Mabel Fallis, P.N.G.; Zella Bentley, P.N.G.; Caroline Harkness, P.N.G.; Irene Fallis, P.N.G.; Irene Yake; and Lillie Syer.

IN FLANDERS FIELDS IS SET TO MUSIC

Martin B. Chenhall Has Set Wonderful Canadian War Poem To Music.

During the Great War, a Canadian Soldier, Lt.-Col. John McCrae composed immortal lines to the soldiers who had given their lives and left a last behest to the nation, these thoughts being embodied in the poem, "In Flanders' Fields.". It appeared in print, and in Cobourg at that time was a musician, whose vision was far-seeing enough to promise one of the undying literary works of the war—to be used for all time. This was the view of no less a personage than Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Referring to the setting of the poem to music, Mr. Chenhall invoked the assistance of a Canadian music house, but they pooh-pooed the idea, and gave the life of the poem as "one week."

Mr. Chenhall went to work, and in a short time had the words set to music—the first musician in Canada to accomplish this work. Though not put on the market he kept his copies, and on Monday evening this number will be heard for the first time here, rendered by the choir. The music breathes the spirit of the words, and pulsates with the war's surroundings and happenings when "the fight is on."

The music is bold and tuneful with the fugue effect interspersed, giving real life and tone to the whole composition.

Mr. Chenhall is to be congratulated on his great talent, and in presenting this work to the public on this auspicious occasion, "Canadian night," and Peterborough is proud to have within her gates a musician of such high aims and aspirations—a man who gives so freely of his time and ability for the benefit of the community.

FOREIGN-BORN ARE ABSORBING CANADIAN IDEAS

left such a scar on their characters that it will take generations to erase. From oppression they came to freedom —the freedom of this vast Western Canada, and as one would naturally expect, many do not know how to use their liberty. These people are in such a solid block that they cannot change in one generation. The only points of contact are the few English and half-breeds amongst them, and many of these have not been very good examples. It remains for the few Canadian teachers to carry the best of our Canadian culture to this great mass of people; teachers with a true British spirit who will sympathize and be of practical service."

From another teacher comes the following.

"In regard to conditions in this district my pupils are Roumanians and Ruthenians but principally the former. There is not an English-speaking family in the district. We have a two-roomed school and one hundred pupils of school age. The other teachers have usually been New Canadians, and I have found them willing and really quite anxious to help in every way they can to make the children more like English Canadians. I can do very little with the older women in the community, as very few of them understand English and I, of course, do not speak either Ruthenian or Roumanian, but through the children they can be greatly helped. In addition to our regular school work, we taught some music and nearly all the young people enjoy singing. We also teach them knitting, patching, larning, and cooking. I hope by another year the school trustees may build a cottage and make the present teachers' Shack into a kitchen, where we may do something in the way of providing a hot lunch, as the children have come from long distances, and very often carry only a piece of bread for lunch."

Special Course Organized

As an incentive to other teachers to take up this work, as well as helping those already in the field the University of Alberta has arranged a special I.O.D.E. course in Canadianization at their summer school, where the teacher is given special instruction in the following subjects:—

Special methods of teaching in Non-English schools; Primary English to pupils of foreign origin; Industrial art methods for rural schools.

In addition to the above, students are permitted to choose a fourth subject from the regular curriculum which they think would be of the most service to them in their work. Fifteen teachers have already taken this training and ten scholarships valued at $30.00 each have been awarded.

In addition to these awards, the personal touch is being maintained through the Chapters of the I.O.D.E. who correspond with the teacher and in this way find out means of helping her in her work. Gifts of books and pictures have been found particularly acceptable in these foreign settlements as the only opportunity that the children have of becoming familiar with English literature is in school.

A further development of the work among the foreign-born is the formation of an I.O.D.E. prize fund for the purpose of stimulating and encouraging native arts and handicrafts, several prizes having already been awarded.

Miss Helen Ross gave two readings, "The Fairies of Caldeon Low" and "In the Second Minuet," which were much enjoyed. The meeting closed with the Mispah benediction.

EASTER MEETING CHURCH SOCIETY

Millbrook Gathering Held Under Auspices of Christian Fellowship Society.

MILLBROOK, April 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Easter meeting of the Young People's Society of the United Church was under the auspices of the Christian Fellowship Committee, the convenor, Miss Margaret Luxon, being in the chair.

The scriptural lesson was taken by Miss L. Croker, and included the Easter story as told by the synoptic gospels; this provoked discussion and proved a very helpful and instructive feature of the program.

A reading, "The Resurrection of the Roses," by Mrs. P. Stinson, took the place of a devotional talk, the lessons taught being plainly carried by the story.

Holding in his hands a bouquet of snowdrops, picked that day in the garden of Miss Luxon's home, Gordon Jones, recited "The Snowdrop," and Jack Stinson followed with "Life's Arithmetic," both these numbers being heartily appreciated. Miss Francis Jones read "The Risen Christ," and Miss Gertrude Spence contributed "He is Risen," the entire program being planned to carry out the Easter message and leave a lasting impression on the hearts and minds of the listeners.

The hymns were all in keeping with the resurrection theme, and the prayers offered also emphasized the request for newness of life, and a renewed consecration to the Saviour.

The usual recreational hour was enjoyed at the close.

Entertains Society.

Miss May Duncan was hostess for the Easter meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church, the gathering being held at her home, Anne Street, on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the president, Mrs. J. McKnight, occupying the chair.

During the discussion of business items, the president announced that the Young People's Society intends holding a banquet about the middle of April, and had preferred a request that the Aid should cater for the event. One hundred plates were guaranteed, and the price definitely mentioned.

On motion it was decided to do this service for the young people. The contest between the boys and girls for the largest attendance through March having been won by the latter, the losers are penalized by having to provide the banquet. Committees were appointed to attend to the details for the menu, and the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, announced that if the speaker can be secured for Monday, April 15, that date will be definitely fixed for the supper.

The treasurer, Miss Duncan, gave a report showing more than ten dollars realized from the afternoon tea served at the March meeting of the society, when Mrs. J. Albert Brown was hostess for the gathering. The invitation of Mrs. G. E. Burnham to hold the May meeting at her home was accepted, and it was decided not to serve tea on that occasion, as the date comes so soon after the one set for the Y.P.S. banquet, for which the Aid will provide the eatables.

After some discussion it was decided to make some improvements in the curtain separating the choir loft from the pulpit platform, and also to do some work at the parsonage, the Aid having assumed the financial responsibility for necessary papering, painting, etc., in the minister's home. The parsonage committee will have the matter in charge, the members being: Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. P. Stinson, Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, Mrs. G. E. Burnham, Mrs. G. Locke, and Mrs. C. C. Garside.

Afternoon tea was served and a delightful social hour was enjoyed. A number of guests came in for the pleasant hour when the tea was in progress, music being provided by Misses Frances and Beatrice Jones, and by Bryer Edmunds and Mary Burnham.

Constipation is doubly Dangerous

ITS effects are not always immediately visible. The daily absorption of body-poisons caused by clogged digestion, sooner or later, saps the vitality.

Yet so many need not suffer from faulty elimination. When it is caused by lack of roughage the remedy is simple: eat more roughage of the right kind in your diet. Eat Post's Bran Flakes regularly. You'll delight in the flavour of each golden, crisp-toasted flake.

Make this two weeks' test and note the difference

Constipation must not be neglected. Start a two weeks' test now. Order a package of Post's Bran Flakes from your grocer.

Start by eating a dish of Post's Bran Flakes for breakfast. Eat it as a cereal, with milk or cream. You will find it as delicious as it is effective.

Do this every day for two weeks. We predict you will find a real difference in the way you feel, and that you have been "regular" all the time.

But don't stop at the end of two weeks. Eat Post's Bran Flakes every morning for health and regularity.

Post's Bran Flakes is sold by all grocers, in a wax-wrapped package. Ready to eat.

Write for free trial package to Canadian Postum Co., Limited, Sterling Tower, Toronto 2, Ont.

Cases of recurrent constipation associated with too little bulk in the diet should yield to Post's Bran Flakes. If your case is abnormal consult a competent physician at once and follow his advice.

A. Hilmer of Oakville Elected O.B.A.A. President

Baseball Moguls Gather

Amendment Passed Whereby Senior and Intermediate Certificates Pay 25 Cents Each.

LIVELY ARGUMENT.

Old Opposition Against Toronto Delegates Apparent On Several Questions.

LONDON, Ont., April 8.—Arthur Hilmer, of Oakville, who has been a worker in the interests of amateur baseball for nearly thirty years, received fitting recognition here on Saturday by being unanimously elected president of the Ontario Baseball Amateur association at the eleventh annual meeting which proved to be an entirely sucessful and profitable session. President G. S. Martin and R. A. Elliott, both withdrew from the contest. Other officers elected were: First vice-president, R. A. Elliott, Deloro (re-elected unanimously); second vice-president, Jack Turner, of Toronto; executive, A. J. Walsh, Toronto; Bruce Chick, Walkerville; H. C. Maguire, St. Catherines, and W. A. Smith, Galt. Others who stood for office on the executive were: T. J. Birney, Copper Cliff; A. Clunis, Blenheim; W. C. Hunt, Toronto, and B. Watson, Leamington. Four members are yet to be appointed to the executive by the president. The following officers were re-appointed: Secretary, W. J. Snyder, Hamilton; trasurer, C. K. Jutten of Hamilton, A.A.U. of C. governor; P. M. Kennedy of Toronto.

This was the first annual meeting of the amateur ball solons to be held outside of Toronto and that they evidently intend to keep moving around was shown by the fact that St. Catherines defeated Toronto by a big majority to secure next year's meeting.

About sixty delegates began their enthusiastic but careful deliberation at ten o'clock in the morning in the Hotel London and did not get through until late in the afternoon. Although the debates were often spirited the best of harmony prevailed and all showed a truly wonderful interest in the come-back of baseball and especially in the fostering of the game among boys of minor age.

Toronto Amendments Defeated

Consideration of proposed amendments on the agenda calculated to provide more funds of the association during the coming season took up most of the time but were all finally carried by large majorities. These three amendments were the meeting's only dissentious points and Toronto and Hamilton delegates were outvoted.

Amendment number 1, the proposed 25-cent charge of playing certificates for senior and intermediate players was finally carried 34 to 7. It was made clear that the amendment's first clause, "All players in all series must sign O.B.A.A. certificates" meant that T.A.B.A., H.A.B.A. and Niagara district certificates are to be accepted as such.

The amendment proposing that the association will take ten per cent. of the gross gates in all senior and intermediate championship games was also carried, 42 to 2 and the amendment to equalize the mileage grant for visiting clubs in championship games at ten cents a mile for both senior and intermediate clubs was finally carried unanimously.

A little tempest was stirred up by the T.A.B.A.'s proposed amendment to make all junior, juvenile, midget and bantam players born in the province produce a birth certificate issued by the registrar-general of Ontario or by the clerk of the municipalities. The Toronto sponsors of the amendment said it was aimed to do away with the acceptance of birth certificates issued by any church. This brought rather a storm of protest led by delegates from Essex, Kent and Guelph, who pointed out that children of the Roman Catholic faith are not required to be registered with the provincial authorities, and that there is no way to get their birth certificates except from the church. The amendment was lost by a big majority.

Costly Birth Certificates.

However, a substitute amendment was carried untnimously that Premier Ferguson be asked to reduce the charge of securing these provincial birth certificates when they are to be used for atheletic purposes.

Another amendment sponsored by Toronto proposing to make all minor semi-final games sudden-death affairs went down to defeat after long argument. A compromise amendment to this amendment was moved by W. C. LaMarsh of Chatham, seconded by M. O. Walton of Hamilton, and finally carried by 41 to 3. It read "All minor semi-final games shall be sudden-death affairs where the distance to be travelled is over 100 miles. Teams to agree if possible on the grounds of either; and if they are unable to agree on same the grounds of either shall be chosen by a toss of a coin in the presence of a representative of both teams and a representative of the O.B.A. Otherwise all games shall be home-and-home. Finals shall be home-and-home. If where the distance is over 100 miles both clubs agree to play home-and-home at their own expense they may do so. Where there is a sudden-death game in the minor series, if the receipts exceed the actual expenses, including actual travelling expenses and hotel bills, the balance shall be divided equally, and should the expenses exceed the receipts each club shall share the deficiency equally."

The two amendments sponsored by the Southern Ontario league and dealing with a proposed change in semi-final play-offs and certain wordings were both lost.

Amendment No. 3, sponsored by the Nickel Belt Association, was withdrawn, and an amendment proposed by the Intercounty league regarding umpires in minor semi-final and final games was withdrawn in favor of the T.A.B.A.'s amendment which came next on the list and met with more general favor in dealing with the same subject.

JAMES GAY IS ELECTED HEAD CURLING CLUB

Officers Elected at Annual Meeting of Campbellford Curling Club.

ROUTINE BUSINESS.

Members Discuss Resolution For Withdrawing From Tankard Series.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence)—Last season was a profitable one for the local curling club. This was evidenced Friday night when the members met at the rink for the regular annual business. C. W. Palliser the retiring president kept the meeting going along at a smart pace till the business was concluded and then allowed the members to continue their fish stories where they had left off when the meeting was called to order. Although the attendance was not as large as might have been expected, the gathering was representative of the most vitally interested parties.

When the minutes had been read and adopted on motion of D. E. Tait and W. S. Wiggins the secretary-treasurer, Ross Ryder, read a brief financial statement. This was most satisfactory to the curlers since it showed a decided increase in the financial standing of the club as compared with that of a year ago. The report was officially accepted and the secretary tendered a unanimous vote of appreciation for the effort he had expended. Much of the success was attributed to him.

Officers Elected

There was a motion that the same list of officers retain their respective positions for another term, but it was not voted on since the president and secretary were unwilling to assume the responsibilities which they claimed they could not properly handle for another season. This state of affairs demanded an election. Where there was more than one nomination, the vote was taken by ballott. Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Tait, were again appointed Patron and Patroness of the club. Charles W. Palliser, the retiring president, was elected to the honorary presidency. James Gay, last year's vice president will be this year's president. J. R. Smith, manager of the Bank of Montreal, was appointed vice president, and R. N. Morrison will be secretary-treasurer. S. J. Moore, having resigned as a member of the committee of management due to his having accepted a position out of town, F. C. Bonnycastle was appointed to fill the vacany. The other members of the committee are W. S. Wiggins, J. P. Archer, Harry Denike and N. A. MacCall.

General Business

The fees for the coming season will remain unchanged. Last year two of the local clergymen had their fees refunded and made honorary members. At the same time, the other ministers were notified that they had been granted the same privileges. This year, the clergymen have already been placed in the book as honorary members with full privileges of the club.

F. J. Smith presented a resolution to the effect that the local club withdraw from the Tankard series and only enter the district bonspiel. This matter to be brought to the attention of the secretary of the association. In speaking to his resolution, Smith believed that it was impossible to form enough rinks of sufficiently high calibre to enter both series. He also pointed out that the club had not played in the Tankard for some time. There was much opposition to the resolution with W. S. Wiggins the principal speaker. He did not think it advisable to withdraw since there were undoubtedly many members who would like to play in the Tankard, and would, if the resolution passed, be unable to do so. He claimed that he himself hoped to play in it some time. So far there had been no seconder and in the face of the opposition, Smith withdrew the resolution.

Just before the meeting adjourned it was decided to hold an informal dance early in the month of May. The arrangments were left in the hands of the committee of management.

MAY ENTER JUNIOR TEAM

Many Matters Discussed at Open Meeting of Campbellford Hockey Fans.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8.—(Exiner Correspondence). — Although there was much discussion of hockey matters, the open meeting of the local hockey association and any interested citizens, held in the council chamber in the public library at eight o'clock Friday night, dealt with practically only three matters of importance. These were the election of officers, a decision to attempt to have a Junior O. H. A. team next winter and to make final arrangements for the player's banquet next Tuesday evening. The plan of bringing on local talent and not importing players was also generally favored. Regarding the O.H.A. team, nothing definite was done except to call an executive meeting for Friday evening of next week.

This year, two more names were added to the list of honorary presidents of the club. The list now stands, Chas. H. Nadon; Mayor Davidson; G. A. Kingston; Reeve Bygott, Chas. Gillespie, Chas. K. Stephens and Mr. Sykes of the Campbellford Cloth Company. George A. Ironside was elected to his third term of office as president of the association. A. J. Meyers and H. T. Scott are the first and second vice presidents, respectively. B. H. Beatty is secretary for another year and S. A. Maguire is treasurer. The executive committee consists of Les Stover, John Sutherland, Chas. Speedie and Dr. S. L. O'Hara. After considerable discussion it was decided to attempt to enter a Junior O.H.A. team from the town as well as maintain an entry in the Trent Valley Hockey League for the past two seasons. During the winter of 1927-8, the team played a single schedule in the league' Last season they played a double schedule, home and home games, with the other members of the league except Madoc and Marmora who were on a single schedule. More definite arrangements will be made at the executive meeting next week.

The players banquet will be held in the Clifton Tea rooms next Tuesday at six-thirty. The tickets are now on sale since only a limited number are available, any fans who wish to attend should get their cardboards without the least delay. They are going at a dollar each, and the evening is expected to be well worth the cash outlay.

ADVENTURERS WILL ATTEMPT TO CROSS CONTINENT BY CANOE

Pair Expected To Be In Vicinity of Peterborough Early in September.

WEST TO EAST.

Scientific Research One of the Principal Objects of the Trip.

MONTREAL, April 8.—(Special to The Examiner. — An echo of the pioneer spirit of the days of Sir Alexander Mackenzie was aroused last night by the departure from Montreal of two young adventurers, Paul Paquin and Dick Lesage for Vancouver from which they will attempt to cross the Dominion from coast to coast, a distance of 4,500 miles in a 24-foot canoe. Provided they are able to follow their tentative schedule of the journey, which is expected to take at least eight months, the pair may be in the vicinity of Peterborough early in September, if they elect to travel by way of the Trent Waterway to the St. Lawrence. Paquin, who is twenty-seven years of age and runs a business as a building contractor in Monreal, conceived the idea several months ago and mapped out a route, differing only slightly from that followed by the intrepid Scotsman and pioneer of Canadian history, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, when he carved his way to fame and a niche in the annals of Canadian exploration by his unprecedented feat in 1792 in crossing the continent, covering the greater part of the journey in a canoe. With his plan still new, Paquin met Lesage who was Montreal's only representative in C. C. Pyle's famous cross continental derby hike last year. Lesage became interested in the plan and agreed to become Paquin's manager in the proposed enterprise. Long traverses, dangerous rapids, lonely, and in some cases entirely uninhabited stretches of barren country and the fickle impulses of the elements will all be encountered during the daring effort.

Two Indian Guides.

At Vancouver they will purchase a canoe and will be met by a government photographer who will be Paquin's companion on the trip. Lesage will not be in the canoe but will keep in close touch wenever possible with the participants. Two Indian Guides will also accompany them during most of the journey through Western Canada. The financing of the trip has been made possible through grants from the Dominion and several Provincial governments, including that of Ontario and Quebec. Several companies and a number of private individuals have also lent their aid. The chief objects of the trip, as described by Mr. Lesage are scientific research, historical significance and the sporting element that the hazardous undertaking holds forth. In this connection the photographer will lend his share of co-operation in the success of the proposition.

The route will commence near Vancouver and will take its way northward slanting inland toward the forbidding and almost impassable Rocky Mountains. After passing Kamloops, the adventurers will encounter what is considered to the be the most difficult part of the journey. At the heart of the mountains is approached the task will assume difficulties which will test the grit of the voyagers and may even wreck the attempt. The streams become narrower and narrower and eventually they are mere trickles, necessitating arduous work in lifting the canoe and its contents long distances to the next short stretch of navigable water. If this hurdle is surmounted the rest of the trip may be made in comparative ease and safety. Large rivers will aid progress and the streams will all be running in the same direction as the canoeists are following, adding miles daily to the time schedule and easing the monotonous work of paddling. Here too, will be given opportunity to hoist the sail of the canoe and when the wind is in the right direction the weary arms and aching backs will receive a little respite. Some of the waters to be traversed are: the Fraser river, the North Saskatchewan and the Saskatchewan proper, the Winnipeg river, Georgian Bay and the Trent Waterway, the St. Lawrence, the St. John river, and finaly the Bay of Fundy.

Many letters of commendation for the task he has undertaken have been received by Paquin from the governments of the various provinces. Included among these are letters from L. A. Taschereau, Prime Minister of Quebec; Arthur Sauve, Conservative Leader in Quebec; C. H. Cahan, M.P., C. G. Aitken, chief geographer, Department of Lands and Forests, British Columbia, and Honore Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, Quebec, and Mayor Houde of Montreal.

Mr. Paquin will transmit all notes of his findings to the Dominion government and all his pictures have already been contracted for by a private film company.

Canadian Pro Final At Fort Erie Arena

WINDSOR, April 8. — The Windsor Bulldogs and the Detroit Olympics are to play the fifth and deciding game of the Canpro championship series in the Fort Erie arena on Wednesday night. This ruling was made by Charles S. King, president of the Canadian Professional Hockey League, when Frank Foyston, manager of the Detroit team refused to flip a coin to decide if the game should be played in Windsor or Detroit.

"Foyston absolutely refused to play in the Windsor arena under any consideration," Pres. King said last night. "Herb Mitchell was willing to toss up a coin with him but he held out for the game to be played in Detroit. Foyston and other heads of the Detroit team, referred to the Windsor arena as 'a woodshed.' I consider that a most un-called for statement in view of the fact that the Detroit teams were accommodated in our arena while their's was being built.

INDIANS BOAST STRONG INFIELD

Cleveland in American League Shows Big Improvement Over Last Year.

SIGN NEW HURLER.

NEW ORLEANS, April 8 (Canadian Press). — Baseball wise railbirds who compare the Cleveland Indians of 1929 with the 1928 edition declare the club has been improved more than any other outfit in the American League. However, this diagnosis, if correct, will not necessarily insure the Red Skins a high place in baseball for they had more room for improvement than most of the other clubs.

There seems no reasonable doubt that Manager Roger Peckinpaugh's re-made team will offer a far bolder front than he was able to present last season. His infield has been strengthened by the addition of the little but rugged Jack Tavener and transfer of Joey Sewell to third base and a much-needed punch in the outfield has been supplied by the addition of two promising recruits and an established star. Dick Porter and Earl Averill have shown indications of living up to their minor league reputations and Bib Falk, the former Chicago White Sox, can swap base hits with most of the major league batsmen.

No radical changes have been made in the battery forces, but Jim Zinn, who has pitched good ball for several years in A. A. baseball, will have a chance to see if he can do half as well higher up.

Luke Sewell, junior of the Sewell brothers, and Glenn Myatt, will do the catching, with Grover Hartley, a veteran who is listed as a coach, acting as emergency relief unless General Manager Billy Evans finds a likely prospect unattached.

Zinn and Ken Holloway, late of Detroit, seems to be the best of the new pitchers on the staff, but Wesley Ferrell, who has farmed to Terre Haute, is back evidently to stay with an even better fast ball than he had last spring. Verne Underhill, another farm hand, probably will make the grade this time.

Willis Hudlin, Walter Miller, Joe Shaute, George Grant, Mark Harder and John Miljus are retained from the 1928 staff. Miller has shown decided improvement over his previous performances, and Hudlin has worked long and hard at a control machine. He has a target set up in the infield of the Pelicans' ball park where the Indians train, and spends hours throwing at it. If he gets control he is expected to take his place beside the leading pitchers of the league. Shaute, the big left-hander, has a brand new delivery which may increase his effectiveness. He pulls the ball out of his hip pocket much on the order of Earl Moore, the famous Phillie pitcher of two decades ago.

Three-fourths of the infield is set. Joe Sewell, although he has never played third base, is already at home and seems to have conquered the queer angles a shortstop finds at a corner of the infield. Tavener, who gets as many extra base hits as singles in a year's work, will play shortstop with Oar Lind, the double play expert, at second base. Lew Fonseca and Johnny Hodapp are available for first base with Fonseca, the Portugues song bird, having the call. The infield fight in the Indian camp is for the reserve places. Ray Gardner, New Orleans shortstop, can field, but his hitting remains in doubt. John Burnett, big and fast, who is a product of the University of Florida, has made a good impression and may be kept as he is a versatile performer.

Porter and Averill seem destined to start the season in right and centre, as both have hit well in the spring. The clever Jamieson is in a contest with the hard hitting Bib Falk for the other field. One will be an extra outfielder with Ed. Morgan, the only right-handed hitter in the first five outfielders.

WINDSOR BULLDOGS BLANK OLYMPICS

Final Score 3-0, and Results Make Necessary Playing of Fifth Game.

WINDSOR, April 8. — Detroit Olympics and Windsor Bulldogs will settle the championship of the Canadian Professional Hockey League for the 1928-1929 season by playing a fifth and deciding game at Fort Erie on Wednesday night. The Bulldogs tied up the round again here on Saturday night by whipping the Detroiters 3 to 0.

The battle was waged under the most unfortunate conditions imaginable. The ice was good enough at the start, in spite of summer weather outside, but it softened up when the crowd heated the rink. In the second and third periods fog bothered both teams and the ice was covered with water.

There was no doubt about Windsor's superiority, however. "Hap" Emms put the Bulldogs in front 1 to 0 six minutes after the start when he converted a pass from Stan Brown. The Olympics had both regular defence men off at the time, Rockburn and Fraser having drawn minors.

Outplaying the visitors throughout the second period, the Windsorites should have added two more markers but Carson and Rodden failed to beat Stuart when right on top of him. But in the third session Carson and Neville banged in two more goals. First Carson picked up a puck where Neville dropped it to make the count 2 to 0, and then Neville trailed in after Carson to score on an identically similar play.

The Olympics had few scoring chances, and found Cox unbeatable when in close. Bellemer and Foyston drew major penalties and each team served 11 minors.

The teams

Detroit — Goal, Stuart; defence, Fraser and Rockburn; centre, Goodfellow; wings, Gillie and Filmore; subs, Foyston, McCabe, McInenly and Hinsperger.

Windsor — Goal, Cox; defence, Brown and Arbour; centre, Neville; wings, Emms and Carson; subs., Rodden, Sorrell, Gregg and Bellemer.

Referees—Marsh and Hewitson.

The Summary.

1—Windsor, Emms (Brown), 6.05.

Second Period—

No score.

Third Period—

2—Windsor, Carson (Neville), 1.25.

3—Windsor, Neville (Carson), 14.40.

Penalties — First period, Rockburn 2, Fraser, Bellemer 2, Emms, McCabe and Rodden 2; second period, Bellemer major, Foyston major, Filmore, Gillie, Brown, and McInenly; third period, Emms 2, Fraser 2, McInenly, Rodden, Carson, Arbour, and Goodfellow.

I'm never too tired to sleep now—

Rested nerves make all the difference

After a real hard day, nerves often get overstrung—excited—jumpy. They simply won't let you sleep. They must be calmed.

Soothe frayed nerves by the use of Wrigley's. Your doctor will tell you how the act of chewing relieves nervous tension, how the healthful cleansing action of Wrigley's refreshes the mouth and tones you up. Nerves are calmed. So you sleep soundly.

Dentists and medical men also recommend the use of Wrigley's after every meal—because it aids digestion, removes all trace of eating or smoking, and sweetens the breath.

No other sweet does so much or costs so little.

Leo Diegel, Mount Vernon, famous American professional, is the present holder of the Canadian open golf title, which in recent years has attracted an increaseing number of United States professionals.

The Canadian amateur title is at present in the possession of that quiet Scotchman of the London Hunt Club, Ross (Sandy) Summerville. If Sandy shows as much improvement in his game this year as last he may have a good chance for the American amatur title, which he very neatly captured last year from John Beck.

LIMESTONE CITY MAY ENTER LOOP

Kingston Baseball Fans Discuss Plans For Entry Into C.O.B.L.

KINGSTON, April 8. — Although interest has been lacking in baseball, there is now a chance of Kingston being represented in the Central Ontario league. It is learned that a local organization is ready to step in and act as a foster-father for the orphaned C.O.B.L. club. There doesn't seem to be much worry over players, even though "Yammy" Jamieson and Harold Buck are out of the city, for such players as Del Cherry, Bernard Tetro, Jim Arniel, Jerry Arniel, Hewitt Smith, George Ada, "Hoop" Gibson and Charlie Fournier, to say nothing of promising juniors who are ready for bigger company, are here for the summer and would welcome the chance to get into the game again.

Just what will be done remains to be seen, but the C.O.B.L. is to meet in Belleville shortly, when they will complete plans for the year, and if Kingston is not represented at the meeting the Limestone city will be dropped for this year at least.

Several prominent members of the organization in question when spoken to regarding the matter admitted that it was under consideration and that some action might be taken the early part of next week.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

Old Sol will have to put in a lot of drying work before baseball will be announced here.

TWO SPORTS EVENTS ON WEEK'S PROGRAM.

Two events stand out on the sports program this week. The "Y" gym. will be the scene of both entertainments. On Thursday night the long-expected boxing tournament wil be held and on Friday night the city basketball championship will be decided. A good card of boxing has been drawn up for the tourney, and the fans will see in action only those boxers who have made the greatest progress, and are considered to be in real condition. Pains will be taken, too, to see that the boys are evenly matched. Each bout will go three rounds.

* * * * * * *

FINAL SERIES FOR BASKETBALL HONORS.

Harrison's, winners of the first half, and the Westclox, victors in the first, will be the teams that will battle for the City Basketball championship. Westclox and Harrison's met in the finals of the first half and the Westclox won out. The north end crew have been coming along in great fashion in the second half, while the Westclox were content to keep out of the cellar. Both teams will be out in full force with marshalled strength for the final game on Friday night.

O.B.A.A. HAD BIG YEAR.

Now that the big O.B.A.A. meeting is over, if weather permits, baseball will soon start in real earnest. Last year was a big year for the game judging by the figures announced at the meeting in London. Last season the association had 48 leagues, 239 clubs, and 6,745 playing certificates issued. The intermediate series formed the largest division with 17 leagues, 64 teams, and 2700 players signed up. Besides these figures there are 1600 players in Toronto who are affiliated with the association.

* * * * * * *

YOUNGSTERS TAKING TO BASEBALL.

The fact about these figures that deserves the greatest credit is that baseball is being encouraged among the youth and in the juvenile and bantam there were some 1500 players participating. While baseball is being developed among the youngsters there is no danger for the game.

* * * * * * *

NEW TWENTY-FIVE CENT CHARGE.

However, for senior and intermediate baseball clubs who are forced to play on open lots and whose source of revenue is derived from passing the "coffee pot," and counting the buttons and plugged nickels, the O.B.A.A. charge of 25 cents a playing certificate is not going to be received favorably. True, the tax will fatten the O.B.A.A. treasury, which already has more than $2000 in the bank, but the O.H.A., who have been doing business much longer than the O.B.A.A., never sought revenue in this manner. Had they charged for every certificate issued the past season the hockey association would have added more than $500, for more than 2000 players were registered in these two series. The O.A.L.A., at its annual meeting a year ago put through a fee on playing certificates, after a certain number had been issued in each club.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

JOAN CRAWFORD IN "OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS" AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT. BETTER COME EARLY, AS ALL PETERBOROUGH HAS BEEN WAITING FOR THIS ONE.

If you want to keep ahead of the times see "Our Dancing Daughters" at the Capitol Theatre to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday.

For in this exotic production of youth having its fling, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has presented the very latest in screen achievements and has set a mark that will not be passed for many pictures to come.

This is because M-G-M has blazed a new film trail by introducing through this great picture the use of the newly-perfected incandescent lighting that is now replacing the old Kleig equipment in the studio.

The incandescent lighting is not entirely unknown to the screen, but has never been used exclusively in any production until "Our Dancing Daughters" was filmed with the first battery of improved lamps made in Eastern laboratories.

Again the exotic exquisiteness of the ultra-modernistic settings designed especially for the production by Cedric Gibbons will startle you with their lavish splendor. The enormous effort and expense of creating entirely new decorative effects was justified by the photographing with the incandescent lights and use of panchromatic film.

The architectural designs of these sets and the specially made furniture and interior decorative panels are said to represent many months of creative work in the M-G-M art studios and have attracted wide comment. The color schemes of solid blacks, silver and gold never could have been attempted had not the new lighting film been used to bring out its striking effectiveness upon the screen.

With Joan Crawford, Johnny Mack Brown, Dorothy Sebastian and Anita Page in the leading roles, "Our Dancing Daughters" has a cast as scintillating as its spectacular settings. Supporting these featured players is a stellar support cast which includes Kathlyn Williams, Nils Asther, Eddie Nugent, Dorothy Cummings, Huntley Gordon, Evelyn Hall and Sam De Grasse.

The story is an original by Josephine Lovett and written especially for M-G-M. It concerns three very modern girls, each choosing a different path on life's highway.

In directing this remarkable study of modern youth Harry Beaumont triumphs as a master of subtlety, and in symbolizing the gay-free buoyancy of the jazz-age generation has made some of the most unusual scenes ever filmed.

Guelph Anglers Begin Fishing Season Early

GALT, Ont., April 8.—(Canadian Press.)— Two fish were caught in Galt yesterday. Struggling through the torrents which swept Water street, one man noticed a 15 inch sucker. Unable to procure rod and line he plunged into the stream and after a battle with the waters reached and secured his prey.

Another sucker was caught in the cellar of a house this morning. Chickens, swept from their comfortable quarters, floated about the streets on blocks of wood and many rescues were affected by enterprising canoeists.

In Police Court

A too strong belief in the principle of profit-sharing and the development of an esprit de corps involved a man and a couple of his employees in police court proceedings this morning, from which he and two of his employees escaped, only on payment of $10.00 and costs each. From the explanation given by the accused men's counsel, the proprietor had purchased some beer on Saturday last, and with the week's work over, had proceeded to refresh his tired men, along with himself. This morning they faced charges of consuming liquor in a place other than their own private residences.

A resident of North Monaghan appeared on a charge of having and consuming liquor not acquired by him on his own permit, pleaded not guilty and through his counsel asked and was granted an adjournment to Friday, April 12. Another man, resident of Peterborough, who had been picked up in an intoxicated condition on Howden street, pleaded guilty but on request of the crown an adjournment to Friday, was granted.

Association President Predicts Thrilling Race

CHICAGO, April 8. — The chase for the American Association baseball pennant usually a thriller, will be even closer this season, Thomas J. Hickey, veteran president of the league, predicted Saturday on his return from the various spring training camps.

At least six teams—Indianapolis, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Kansas City and Toledo—are certain contenders for the flag, while Louisville and Columbus, which finished last in 1928 have stronger teams and may surprise their rivals, Hickey said.

"The American association pennant race usually is a fast tight one, but I believe the 1929 edition will be one of the hardest fought in its 29 years of play," Hickey said. "I saw every team in action during my training trip except Milwaukee and from their enthusiasm and splendid condition everything looks bright for a fast race again.

of the defunct liquor ring, police are endeavoring to find out.

To thoroughly investigate every phase of the cause of Mr. Hendry's death, Prof. J. L. Rogers, Provincial Analyst, is preparing a report on the stomach contents for presentation to the coroner and jury. The possibility that Hendry was poisoned and his body thrown into the pond, is not being overlooked, although it has authoritatively stated there was water in his lungs.

Water Only Two Feet Deep

Relatives and business associates of Hendry are not convinced he took his own life, and Superintendent Hillard Lang of the Life-Saving Service, gave it as his opinion it would be impossible to get a person who was conscious to voluntary drown in two feet of water with his hands in his pockets.

Among those who expressed suspicion of foul play was the brother of Hendry, Dr. W. S. Hendry, who did not think the circumstances of his Walker, chartered accountant, business Walker, chartered accountant, business associate of Hendry, also thought the circumstances would require "a tremendous amount of explaining."

"How could a man who was begging cups of coffee, as related by housewives, in the condition he was described as being in, turn up in a pond next day well dressed and with money?" Walker asked.

"Everything will be brought out at the inquest," police stated when questioned regarding the conference they have had with a local bond salesman. A slight discoloration on the left side of Hendry's face will be investigated. The medical examiner would not say it was a bruise or a wound.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED.

DES MOINES, Ia, April 6. — (C.P.)—Police reports at 5 a.m. today said five persons were killed in a fire that swept the Kirwood hotel, a four-storey building at Fourth and Walnut streets. At that hour the fire was still raging on the upper floors.

It's hard to excuse Dishpan Hands

"Guests arriving—everything perfect except . . ."

"MY dinner table, set with all my best china for our dinner to Jim's new friends, had never looked prettier. But it made my poor hands look dreadfully coarse by comparison. They simply broadcasted 'Dishpan!'

"And because I know it's just such little things that others judge us by, I became self-conscious . . . ill at ease . . . at my own dinner table.

"Of course it was foolish of me. With Lux always in the house I was still using old-fashioned harsh soap for the dishes. Until that night I had not realized just how pitifully rough and red it made my hands look.

"Now I use Lux for all my dishes. And for cleaning, too! - My hands no longer are reddened and coarse. I'm really PROUD now of my dinner-table hands."

Many household soaps—flakes, chips and cakes—are made in the old-fashioned way. They contain harmful alkali that makes the skin rough.

There is no injurious alkali in Lux. Made by a remarkable process, Lux actually SOOTHES the skin, leaves it a little whiter and softer than before.*

Instant, sparkling Lux suds, ready before you ever put your hands in, are so rich and CLEANSING that the dishes seem almost to wash themselves!

The big package of Lux washes six weeks' dishes! Lovely hands for so small a price!

* Many beauty parlors use Lux in manicuring the nails, to soften and whiten the fingers.

Lux keeps lovely the hands that wash dishes

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. JAMES' UNITED

The evangelistic services being held in St. James United Church for the coming two weeks, under the direction of Rev. George Dibble and Mrs. Dibble with Harold Mustaine as accompanist, were begun yesterday morning with a splendid opening service, to a very large congregation.

The evangelists were introduced by Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, and Rev. Mr. Dibble, in a few remarks, expressed his pleasure at being in Canada and also a sincere hope that these services might bring about a real revival which would greatly enrich the spiritual life of the church and of the whole city. He declared that they had no hobbie and used no "clap-trap" methods, but depended on the power of Christ to bring forth great results from their simple efforts.

Rev. Mr. Dibble demonstrated his wonderful gift of song ,showing that he well deserves the title of the "Caruso of America," first singing a simple but very effective song, "Pray Your Way to Victory," followed by a wonderful interpretation of "A Voice Crying in the Wilderness."

Morning Service

Mrs. Dibble, the preacher of the party, in her inspiring message, took for her subject, "Prayer," basing her remarks upon the third chapter of Acts, which she termed the "first apostolic miracle." This is the story of Peter and John, who upon approaching the temple, beheld a crippled beggar who asked alms of them. In reply Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none," but went on to offer that which he had—and gave the poor man health and strength.

In preparing for a revival the people must ask themselves, "What are the conditions upon which God will send a revival?" We must look in God's Word for the answer to this question, and we will find it to be "prayer." Every great revival recorded in the Bible has been preceded by prayer.

Pentecost came as a direct answer to prayer—it might be termed "God's blue print" for a church. First came the supper room where the disciples, fearful and trembling, gathered together in prayer, and such prayer that the Holy Ghost came upon them and they became bold and unafraid. Peter, who had before been afraid to claim Jesus as his Lord, now boldly told the throngs that they had slain their King. At such a time, the windows of heaven open and the flood tides of God's spirit flowed down.

No great revival can ever take place without prayer. Jerusalem was never shaken until the disciples themselves felt the power of God. "When Zion travails, she brings forth children."

Jesus, when he was going to see the little, sick daughter of the ruler, was crowded and jostled about by a throng of people. In this throng, there was one woman who tried to touch just the hem of His garment that she might receive healing. At last, she succeeded, and at once Jesus stopped, asking who had touched Him. The disciples thought this a foolish question, but Jesus had recognized the touch of faith. Hundreds had touched Him that day, but only one did so with the proper faith.

Peter and John had found their opportunity at the place of prayer.

The church that prays is a "going" church and a "going" church is a "growing" one. Prayer and power are linked together, just as salvation and Christ cannot be separated. Prayer clears vision: first, of Jesus; second, of the need of those around us, and lastly, it gives a clearer vision of our own needs.

Peter said to the poor man, "Look on us." We should see Jesus in the life of every Christian. Peter gave what he had and it was God's best.

In the name of Jesus, we must pray for a mighty revival."

Evening Service

At the evening service, Mrs. Dibble spoke on the "Power of Faith," bringing a message of great benefit and inspiration to all. Rev. Mr. Dibble led the singing of both Senior and Junior choirs, and sang the beautiful solo, "The Lord is My Light and My Salvation." The church was again filled with a large congregation.

Though new perhaps to Peterborough this is a "Singing Revival" and song has power to reach and hold the heart. Mr. Dibble, in announcing said, 'Monday will be 'Musical Night and Broadcasting Night.' Come along with your receiving sets, which are your ears, and your open heart, and receive a blessing." Mr. Dibble also promised to sing during the first half hour, on request, any song in reason.

Many remarked that if the interest and attendance continued it would soon be found necessary to provide larger quarters for the Dibble meetings.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Dibble will address the Women's Missionary Society in St. James' Church, to which all women of all churches in the city are cordially invited.

WORK STARTS ON NEW STATION

McIntyre Brothers Received Contract From Imperial Oil Company..

COST $11,000.

While the razing of two old houses to give place to the new Imperial Oil Company's service station at 550-552 George street, has been going on for some time, first sod was turned toward the erection of the new service building this morning by members of the staff of McIntyre Brothers, contractors, whose tender was received and accepted on Friday last by Arthur Blade, local manager of the Imperial Company.

The new station, according to Mr. Blade, will be one of the finest yet built by his company, and will cost in the neighborhood of $11,000 rather than the figure, considerably below that sum, which was the original estimate. McIntyre Brothers expect to have from ten to twelve men busy on the scene almost immediately and hope to have the new service station completed within the next two months.

OBITUARY

JOBIN MORTY KERR.

TORONTO, April 8.— (Special to The Examiner.)—Jobin Morty Kerr, brother of F. D. Kerr, K.C., of Peterborough, died in this city to-day.

FARMERS BUSY

with other nations in such a movement, and Mr. Peck felt that good result would be obtained.

The desire of the railways to get into Northern Canada in view of recent discoveries of rich minerals there was referred to by Mr. Peck as occasioning considerable discussion in Parliament and he explained the arrangement by which a joint holding company, representing both railways, was taking over a line from the Alberta government.

A great future for Canada was prophesied by the speaker in his closinb remarks.

Rotarian Dr. A. Moir expressed the thanks of the gathering to Mr. Peck for his interesting address.

Before the gathering adjourned, the Rotarians sang, "They're Jolly Good Fellows," and gave three cheers in honor of their farmer guests.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

A revelation was provided the congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian church on Saturday morning—an insight of the manner of conducting the Sunday school and the responses given to this tuition. The scholars gave evidence of careful training by the able and willing staff of teachers under O. M. Steer, superintendent, and his assistant, Harry Taylor.

Special Program.

A printed program had been prepared and on the frontispiece the morning service was termed Church and Sunday school Day—scholars "showing the congregation a few things," to use an everyday colloquialism. Every grade was represented, except the little tots, and a fine showing was made in each class.

Children's Chorus.

The church choir at this service took seats in the gallery, their places in the choir loft being occupied by a children's chorus, boys and girls. This body of youthful choristers, with a precision and volume and quality of tone becoming a more experienced chorus, sang "I've a Story to tell to the Nations," in splendid fashion, as one voice.

Responses by Grade Classes.

Another section of the school under the direction of Mrs. Stacey, repeated with feeling and appeal what is seldom heard in our churches, the Apostles' Creed. Mr. Chenhall softly accompanying the young voices with the organ.

The Primary Department, under Miss Waddell, answered several questions from the Bible and Shorter Catechism, all the grades entering into the spirit of the service with keen delight.

An Oriental Meal.

Rev. Mr. Allan's subject was an unusual one, insofar as his surroundings were concerned, that his attendant in the pulpit (Donald Howson) was in Oriental garb (wine-colored headpiece tightly swathing him, and a sort of rug or blanket draping his body, with his right arm free.) The subject was "There is a Lad Here," the words used by Andrew when telling our Lord of the amount of food to be had at the time when the five thousand were to be fed by the Sea of Galilee. Donald handed Mr. Allan a platter, on which were the small loaves and two fishes, this act giving a realistic touch to an object lesson splendidly delivered and portrayed by the speaker, and listened to by an attentive congregation.

An Annual Observance.

So successful was the service that the hope was expressed to have Church and Sunday school Day observed yearly.

The choir in the gallery rendered the anthem "Christ, Whose Glory Fills the Skies," and processional and recessional hymns also added much to an interesting and effective service.

KNOX UNITED

Rev. George E. Morley, B.A., was a visiting speaker yesterday at both services of Knox United Church. At the morning service he speak on "The Life Abundant," while at the evening service he gave a dramatic recital entitled "The Shepherd King."

In the recital the history of King David was presented in a most interesting manner. Mr. Morley began the story of this interesting Biblical character by telling of the coming of the shepherd boy into the household of Saul, King of Israel, as a musician, whose sweet music upon the harp had power to charm away the attacks of acute melancholia from which Saul frequently suffered.

The speaker traced the remarkable rise to prominence of the young David and was at his best when he dramatically presented the meeting of the young Israelite with the ten-foot, armour-clad Goliath, and in recounting the boastings an dthreats of the giant and the sturdy replies of the shepherd boy, confident in the power of Jehovah to deliver him from this formidable enemy. The victory was described as the earliest example on record of the advantage of the projectile over the hand-wielded weapon.

An account of Saul's envy of David and his unreasonable hatred, resulting in frequent attempts on the young lad's life was presented, followed by an historic account of the beautiful friendship of David and Jonathan which lasted until the latter's death. Mr. Morley's impressive recital of the dirge of David over the passing of his beloved friends, was one of the most remarkable features of his discourse.

The history of the Shepherd King continued with his exile into the land of the Philistines where,with his six hundred followers, he was practically the leader of a band of outlaws until after the tragic death of Saul, when he was recalled to his own land and was anointed king of the northern tribes. A surviving son of Saul's ruling for a time the southern tribes. Later all became united under the rule of David.

Mr. Morley depicted the tragedy of the later years of the life of David. At the zenith of his popularity he committed sin, which cast its shadow over the rest of his career. David's remorse and penitence were dramatically presented by the speaker. Further tragedy followed and another touching scene was portrayed in which the aged king sat at the gate of the city in which he was forced to take refuge having fled before his rebellious son from Jerusalem. Here he receives the sorrowful news that his false but dearly beloved son, Absalom, had been slain.

The speaker concluded his splendid recital of "The Shepherd King" by pointing out that while David, being human, erred grievously in the sight of God and man, yet the dominant aim of his life was to rule over the people as Jehovah willed. The God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob was also the God of the son of Jesse and in the main he had been a man after God's own heart.

Mr. Douglas Carlisle was soloist at the morning service. Mrs. Ross Williamson at the evening service sang sweetly what is probably considered the favorite of the psalms of the Shepherd King, "The Lord is My Shepherd." The Conservatory String Quartet, under the direction of Mr. Arnold Spencer, also assisted at the evening service.

The choir rendered in anthem, another of David's psalms, "Life Up Mine Eyes," with Mr. A. Pitchford taking a bass solo part and Miss Annie Crocker and Mrs. H. Wood a duet.

Mr. Morley, assisted by other artists, is giving an entertainment in Knox Church this evening.

CRACK TRAINS

morning. To-day the C.P.R. is making every effort to increase the train service, and is was hoped that the 11.55 from Toronto and the 3.30 from Montreal would be running through here on schedule to-day.

The large trains were travelling in two sections, and both lines were lamenting the fact that their lines were only single.

"It was the worst tie-up we have ever had but everything is moving now, and we do not contemplate further trouble," was the way Postmaster Charles Lacheur summed up the manner in which his department of public service was affected by the railroad wrecks incidental to the heavy rains of Friday night last.

"Our trouble started when the Canadian Pacific train due to leave Toronto at 11.30 Friday night was cancelled," said the Postmaster. "That meant that no mail was received in Peterborough over the C.P.R. lines on Friday night, though it should have arrived at 1 a.m. Saturday. However, it did arrive here at 8.30 Sunday morning, as did that from the train which should have got in here at noon on Saturday. By the same arrangement the mail that should have been in here on C.P.R. at midnight last night did not arrive until 8.30 this morning.

Speaking of the Canadian National mail carrying trains, Mr. Lacheur stated that there had not been so much trouble over this line, though the mail from Toronto due here at 11.58 this morning did not arrive until 2.30 this afternoon and was therefore too late for the afternoon delivery. Mails going east had also been delayed on both lines, but this afternoon the regular C.P.R. train left, with orders to go as far as the wreck scene, near Bowmanville, and there transfer mail and passengers to a train from Toronto down to meet it.

Internal Pains Ended

"About six years ago my wife suggested a trial of Kruschen Salts—for nearly 20 years before then I had regularly suffered from internal pains at more or less frequent intervals, and various names had been given to my trouble by different doctors. Since using your very valuable production I have not had a single attack of my old trouble, and having made such an extended test I think it only fair to add my testimony to that of others who have benefited by the regular use of Kruschen."

A. J. W.

Original letter on file for inspection.

Kruschen is a perfect blend of those six natural salts which are vital to your bodily well being. The analysis is on the bottle. There are sodium and magnesium to clear away the waste matter that clogs your system and poisons your blood. To feed your tissues, there's the tonic potassium. The daily dose of Kruschen will keep you in constant good health. Buy a bottle to-day and start a new life to-morrow.

Kruschen Salts

At Drug and Dept. Stores at 75c. a bottle. Manufactured by E. Griffiths Hughes, Ltd., Manchester, England (Estab. 1760). Importers: McGillivray Bros., Ltd., Toronto.

Free Trial Offer

If you have never tried Kruschen—try it Now at our expense. We have distributed a great many special "GIANT" packages which make it easy for you to prove our claim for yourself. Ask your druggist for the new "GIANT" 75c package.

This consists of our regular 75c bottle together with a separate trial bottle—sufficient for about one week. Open the trial bottle first, put it to the test, and then, if not entirely convinced that Kruschen does everything we claim it to do, the regular bottle is still as good as new. Take it back. Your druggist is authorized to return your 75c immediately and without question. You have tried Kruschen free, at our expense. What could be fairer?

CONCERT WELL ATTENDED

Sum of $42.62 Was Realized Towards Radio Or Gramaphone For House of Refuge.

The Sacred Concert presented at the Regent Theatre last evening in aid of a fund to secure a gramaphone or radio for the House of Refuge in Lakefield was a very successful event and was well attended. The program appeared in Saturday's issue. Those in charge wish to thank sincerely all who took part in an event planned for a good cause, as the placing of a musical instrument of mechanical type in a home for elderly people is something calculated to give them a great deal of pleasure. The sum of $42.62 was realized from the concert. As this is not sufficient for the purpose in view, sufficient tions would be welcomed. They may be sent to Dr. J. J. Craig, to Mrs. J. Bell at 451 Water street, or to Miss Cathleen McCarthy at The Examiner office.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

Right-thinking individuals must admit that to uproot error and proclaim truth is doing good. The Scriptures state man is a living soul, and the new Webster dictionary gives as the meaning of soul: a person, of body; a person, of spirit-life. A living body and a living soul are one and the same thing. There can be no activity of soul or mind, if there is no living, organized body. The words body, soul and spirit represent one living person, and not three separate units. For convenience sake different parts or names of the whole man are spoken of as being or doing, for instance, we say: my soul is glad, or my spirit rejoiceth, or my mind solved the problem, or my feet trampled out the incipient blaze, or my body received the blow, etc., etc. In reality it was the man, the living soul that felt, or did the work.—M. T. Butcher.

IN MEMORIAM

GAULD—In loving memory of our dear son, John Borden Gauld, who was shot on April, 1928 and passed away on April 8, 1928, aged 15 years.

Out of this world of sin into God's care, but not forgotten by all who knew him.

As we loved him, we will never forget him, till we meet at the Golden Gates of Heaven.

One must be first, but let us all prepare to meet our God.

We who loved you sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of you are ever near.

The world may change from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory pass away.

Southern Cross Is Safe

Reports From Drysdale Mission Say Missing Airplane Is Found.

LEFT MARCH 31.

Aviators Were Attempting Flight From Australia To London.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 9. — (C. P.) — The Airplane "Southern Cross" missing for nearly ten days, with Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and three companions, on an attempted flight to England, from Sydney, was reported to-day by the Drysdale Mission Station in Western Australia to have been found on the coast, 30 miles southwest of the station.

A boat was standing by to take off the aviators, according to the mission report, which was forwarded by way of Derby.

Caution in accepting this report, however, was urged by Captain Chater, who has been prominent in the search for the missing "Southern Cross." Captain Chater expressed some skepticism as to its authenticity.

Relief Expeditions Sent Out.

Relief expeditions, composed of airplanes, launches and native runners have been searching for the "Southern Cross" since Captain Kingsford-Smith sent out a radio message on March 31, that the airplane was making a forced landing in the wild Australian bush "about 100 miles east of Wyndham."

Wyndham, Western Australia, was their destination on the first lap of a Sydney to London flight in the plane which made the first successful crossing of the Pacific Ocean, from California to Australia.

Keen Anxiety Felt.

All search has been hitherto fruitless. Keen anxiety has been felt throughout Australia as to the fate of the aviators, who were short of provisions when they landed, and were unlikely to have met with hospitality at the hands of hostile natives in the sparsely settled wilderness near Wyndham.

The Drysdale Mission Station, which reported their discovery today, had previously informed airplane searchers that an airplane had passed in a southwesterly direction over the station on March 31 at about the time the "Southern Cross" should have been in that neighborhood.

FEW CANADIANS TO BE AFFECTED

Residents of Windsor Had Already Their Visas Allowing Entry to States.

NO NON-QUOTA IMMIGRANTS

WINDSOR, Ont., April 9.—(Canadian Press). — The immigration rule to be put into effect by the United States Government on the strength of the Supreme Court decision in the case of Mary Cook and Antonio Danelon, handed down in Washington yesterday and compelling those who seek employment in the United States to have unexpired consular immigration visas will have little effect here.

The only effect of the decision will be to definitely bar non-quota immigrants of foreign extraction from trying to break down the legal barriers against their working in Detroit. Non-quota immigrants have always been barred from the United States, except as their quota numbers were issued from time to time. The Supreme Court's decision therefore is merely a reiteration of the law as it has stood for some years.

RUSSIAN COMMUNISTIC PLOTTING BEING BLAMED BY BRITISH PRESS FOR RECENT OUTRAGES IN INDIA

Battles Now in Progress Are Said To Be Part of World Revolution Plan.

BOMBS AMATEURISH.

Ruling On Public Safety Bill Is Expected To Be Considerably Modified.

LONDON, April 9. — (Canadian Press).—Charges of Russian Communistic plotting were made by a section of the British press to-day in connection with yesterday's bomb outrages in the Indian assembly chamber at New Delhi.

The Daily Mail quoted a recent issue of Pravada, Moscow, as saying: "The battles now in progress in India are part of the world revolution, organized and lead by the Communist International" — an agency which, Pravada said, would "strain all its energies for the destruction of British Imperialism."

Papers here cited among other things the announcement of the Moscow congress of last August, of the International's intention to form a strong native Communist party in India.

NEW DELHI, India, April 9. — (Canadian Press).—Police officials believe failure of the two bombs dropped in the legislative assembly yesterday to cause more casualtes than they did was due to their amateurish construction. Both bombs were made from preserve cans, filled with scraps of metal and explosives. They were nevertheless powerful enough to hurl fragments into all parts of the chamber.

There was much sympathy expressed to-day for Sir Bomanjee Dalalal, benevolent 60 year old Parsee merchant from Bombay, who had employed much of his wealth in philanthropic works. He has a deep three inch wound in his thigh and was suffering from severe shock. Sir George Schuster suffered from a splinter wound which was not regarded as serious.

There was a possibility that when the assembly reconvenes Thursday V. J. Patel, its president, will modify his ruling on the public safety bill. This he was about to make when yesterday's disturbance occurred. The decision it was understood, would have had the effect of cutting off debate on the bill, which would authorize deportation of non-Indians convicted of Communistic agitation.

Heavy April Downpours Advance Spring Two Weeks

TORONTO, Ont., April 9. (C. P.) — The April downpours which carried destruction over a wide section of Ontario, have left the province clothed in a blanket of green. It is years since spring was so far advanced at so early a date, and in that advance another source of danger exists. Heavy frosts which nearly every year occur in April, may catch the budding fruit trees, the farmers state. Up until May 24, the frost danger exists in the province. Spring is at least a fortnight ahead of the average schedule.

AIMEE'S MOTHER FACES LAW SUIT

Minister Brings $50,000 Breach of Promise Suit Against Mrs. Kennedy.

KNOWN AS MARY E. CLARKE.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 9 (Canadian Press). — Charges that Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, made "violent and passionate love" to him and then refused to marry him were on fyle here to-day in a $50,000 breach of promise suit by the Rev. H. H. Clark, middle-aged minister of the Christian denomination here.

The minister, who fyled the suit yesterday, alleged that Mrs. Kennedy came into his life under the assumed name of Mary E. Clark last December in Seattle. Mr. Clark averred that Mrs. Kennedy rented a hotel apartment here, where they could "talk undisturbed."

Established a Tabernacle.

The suit set forth that while they talked of establishing a tabernacle for Mr. Clark in Seattle and outfitting a "gospel ship" for missionary work in Alaska and along the Pacific coast, Mrs. Kennedy persuaded him to visit the apartment and another hotel room.

The minister asserted that Mrs. Kennedy proposed marriage, promising to finance the tabernacle and "gospel ship" after their wedding. Mr. Clark represented himself to be hesitant at first about the marriage proposed, but declared he finally consented.

Mr. Clark set forth that he first learned that "Mary E. Clark" really was Mrs. Kennedy when he saw her picture in a newspaper last February. Thereafter, he alleged, Mrs. Kennedy abandoned him, and about two weeks later admitted her true identity. The minister alleged that Mrs. Kennedy then informed him she would not wed him.

Mr. Clark also alleged he had given up his position on the strength of the agreement to start the tabernacle and "gospel ship." Mrs. Kennedy's refusal to marry him, he declared, had left him heartbroken.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 9—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, last night charcterized the $50,000 heart balm suit brought against her in Seattle by the Rev. H. H. Clark as a case of "biting the hand that feeds him."

"I have nothing to say about this case," was her first declaration. Then she augmented her statement in strongly worded phrases with references to "blackmailing" and "hypocrisy."

MADE CHIEF OF INDIAN TRIBE.

TOFINO, West Coast of Vancouver Island, B.C., April 9.—(Canadian Press.) — On the arrival of the steamer Princess Norah here yesterday, His Excellency Lord Willingdon was made a chief of the Clayoquet Indians.

BODY OF GIRL STILL MISSING

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Appeals to Department of Highways For Help.

DYNAMITE USED.

No effort is being spared in the continued search for the body of Miss Helen Wright. Despite the difficulties that impede the searchers, the muddy banks and the bottomless bog at the mouth of the creek, every nook is being thoroughly combed.

The searchers were joined yesterday by workmen sent by the Ontario Department of Public Highways at the request of W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. Mr. Bradburn phoned R. M. Smith, Deputy-Minister of the Department, yesterday, urging him to send some assistance to the searchers. The Department Minister, it is said, readily agreed to do all in his power to help, and men were sent out yesterday morning to join in the search.

This morning Mr. Bradburn again phoned Mr. Smith, asking if a diver could not be secured to hunt out the deep pools in the creek.

It is said that dynamite was used yesterday in bringing up the broken piers of the bridge to make definitely sure that the body had not been caught beneath them when they caved in.

Several Peterborough men are spending all their time at the creek and are determined that they shall not leave until the body has been found.

AUSTRALIAN BOYS IN OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Ont., April 9. —(Canadian Press). — On a mission of goodwill that will carry them half around the globe, 160 Australian boys are paying their first visit to Canada's capital. They arrived last night to receive an official welcome from Mayor Arthur Ellis and a spontaneous public acclaim. They will remain as guests of the city, the board of trade and a group of service clubs until Friday morning when they entrain for Toronto for a four day visit.

Driver Of Local Bus Lends a Helping Hand

It was noon hour—his vehicle was crowded almost to capacity and there was a schedule to be complied with. He might well have been excused for the instention had he seen fit to commit it—instead, the driver of a north George Street bus brought it to a halt, climbed out and patiently escorted an elderly lady across the intersection and to a seat in the bus. Somehow, no one seemed to mind the delay.

HARMONY CREEK BRIDGE

Walter Northrop and Helen Wright of Peterborough, were overcome by death on the Provincial Highway, a mile east of Oshawa early Saturday morning last, when the car in which they were riding with Mr. Northrop's two sons, plunged into the swollen waters of Harmony Creek that had swept away the concrete bridge, as shown in the accompanying photo. The search for Miss Wright's body has now been in progress almost four days.

GREAT POLITICAL PARTIES DECLARE AGAINST ALL PACTS IN COMING GENERAL ELECTION

Election Battle Has Begun in Full Ernest in Great Britain.

AWAIT BUDGET SPEECH.

Liberals, Stimulated By Recent Results, are Conducting Hot Campaign.

LONDON, April 9 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—The general election battle has begun. By radio, motor cars, caravans, speeches, pamphlets and cartoons the three main parties of British politics are out to persuade the electorate. And the battle has begun with formal declarations from both the Conservatives and Liberals against election pacts with each other.

Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health, yesterday called a policy of such a pact "A policy of cowardice and futility." He declared: "Speaking for myself, I have no hesitation in saying that not even the pleasure of getting alongside Lloyd George in the Cabinet would induce me to support him in putting into operation ideas which I am convinced are utterly impracticable, and which if embarked upon would involve the country in inevitable disaster."

He was referring to the Liberal leader's scheme of solving the unemployment problem by widespread construction and development of British roads.

Issues Denial

Down at Land's End, where John Wesley began his great revival 150 years ago, Sir Herbert Samuel, Chief Liberal organizer ,was equally emphatic. "Sometimes," he said, "the suggestion is made for an arrangement with Labor, and sometimes with the Conservatives. The Liberal party has not for a moment contemplated any such understanding.

"As chairman of the Liberal Party organization, I say catergorically, that the party has not made and will not make any such compacts with either of its opponents," Sir Samuel asserted.

Stimulated by their capture of two seats from the Conservatives in recent by-elections, the Liberals are hotly campaigning. While Ser Herbert Samuel continues his motor car pilgrimage through Cornwall, the Earl of Beauchamp, with a fleet of 20 cars, is raising what the Liberal papers call "The Fiery Torch of Liberalism" in the south of England. Lloyd George's coming speech at Manchester will be relayed to 28 other meetings, stretching from Hull to Carnavon.

.. Remember Flapper Vote

Nor in these radio and relay appeals will the new "flapper vote" be forgotten. The Labor party has suggested that in view of the addition of five million women voters to the electorate, women representatives of the three parties should be permitted to broadcast addresses. The parties are strictly limited, however, by the British Broadcasting Company, which has divided radio time between the Conservatives on one hand, and Liberal and Labor on the other.

And while the campaigners battle, the country is waiting eagerly for the budget which Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill will present in the House of Commons next Monday, and also for Premier Stanley Baldwin's expected statement on the Conservative's appeal at the polls. Gossip has it that a scheme for lessening the shadow of the sluins is foreshadowed in the "election budget."

Costs 15.95 Cents Per Day To Feed Hamilton Prisoners

HAMILTON, Ont., April 9 (C.P.).—Thrifty housewives will be forced to admit that Governor Lalonder of the local jail "takes the cake." Yesterday, in a report covering the first three months of the year, the governor announces that the cost per day per prisoner was 15.95 cents, and plain wholesome food was provided. Bread is the chief ration with beef second, and milk is also consumed in large quantities. Jam is given in place of butter, the latter only being supplied on doctor's orders. Cereals are used in liberal quantities, also vegetables.

REBELS MOVE INTO SONORA

Fate of Revolution Hangs in Ability of Escola To Co-ordinate His Forces.

FEDERALS MARCH WEST.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 9 (Canadian Press).—The fate of the Mexican revolution appeared to hang to-day on the ability of the rebel Commander-in-Chief, General J. Gonzalo Escobar, to co-ordinate his forces in Sonora in time to meet the advancing Federals under General P. Elias Calles, Federal Generalissimo.

Indications that the opposing commanders were gathering their forces for a supreme effort against each other in Sonora appeared when it was announced here that Escobar was expected to arrive in Nogales, Sonora, to-day from the State of Chihuahua by airplane, preceding his principal army, which was racing westward from Juarez and other Chihuahua points.

This, together with word from Mexico City that General Calles was headed for Culiacan, Sinaloa, to take personal command of a drive northward into Sonora, the heart of the rebel country, indicated that the principal theatre of war has been shifted to the west.

At least two important obstacles appeared in Escobar's path. The first was the uncertainty as to whether his main army will be able to enter Sonora from Chihuahua before it is intercepted by Federals. Forces from General Cardenas also were reported to be heading toward Pulpeto Pass, through which Escobar's rebels were expected to enter Sonora.

Another obstacle to the apparent rebel consolidation move is the Federal garrison at Naco, Sonora, on the Arizona border east of here.

Less than 1,200 loyal Federals under General Lucas Gonzalez have held the Naco fortifications against repeated attacks by the rebel General Fausto Topete. The latter made an intense effort to take the garrison by storm last Saturday but was forced to give up. His troops, said to number more than 2,000, remain encamped a short distance south of Naco.

Shivering causes contraction of the muscles and like exercise it can increase the appetite.

Action is Withdrawn Against Members of Schooner 'I'm Alone'

Captain Thomas Randell and His Crew of the Canadian Schooner Are Permitted To Go When Request of District Attorney To Have Charges Dismissed Is Granted.

NO REASON FOR SUCH ACTION IS GIVEN; DEFENDANTS' COUNSEL FYLES PLEA OF JURISPRUDENCE

Demand Is Made That Position of Schooner When First Fired Upon Be Established—Attorney Claims Action in No Way Affects Claim of Right To Search Rum Runners.

NEW ORLEANS, April 9.—(Canadian Press)—Captain Thomas Randell and his crew of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone which was sunk by coast guard craft as a rum runner in the Gulf of Mexico, were dismissed to-day by the United States commissioner at the request of the district attorney.

In requesting the dismissal, District Attorney Edmond E. Talbot said he wished to have it understood that the dismissal did not "in any way prejudice the right of the coast guard to fire upon and sink rum smugglers." This action was understood to have been directed by the Department of Justice from Washington.

"This in no way prejudices or affects the right of the coast guard to seize and search rum runners" added the district Attorney. "This is merely disposal of the criminal side of the case with the civil side affecting the right of search and seizure or any indemnities growing out of the I'm Alone being a matter for the governments to settle."

No Reason is Given

The district attorney gave no reason for requesting the dismissal. His request was made immediately at the opening of the case before those assembled had ever been seated. Commissioner Reginald H. Barter then signed the papers of dismissal, the whole procedure lasting less than five minutes.

Edwin H. Grace, counsel for the defendants, fyled a plea of jurisprudence setting forth that the issue at stake involved whether the Canadian schooner was more than one huor's steaming distance from the Louisiana coast and declaring that ten mile limit had no bearing on the case. This is provided for, he said, by the treoty between the United States and British governments.

The crew, many of them in shirt sleeves, made preparations for leaving New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9. — (Canadian Press).— Department of Justice officals declined to-day to discuss the dismissal of charges against the Captain and crew of the Canadian Schooner, "I'm Alone." It was known, however, that officials of the Department felt that there was insufficient evidence to warrant proceedings against the men under the Federal law.

The sinking of the schooner sent to the bottom of the Gulf any evidence of an attempt to violate the prohibition law. It was expected that the Department might make public the cause of its action after it received a report from the district attorney at New Orlean.

The Canadian Legation planned meanwhile to present its point of view on the sinking of the "I'm Alone" to the State Department later in the day.

FOUR DANCES ARE PLANNED

Dance Committee For Old Home Week Planning Community Affairs.

PARADE WILL BE BEST EVER

Plans and preparations for Old Home Week are gaining apace judging by the two enthusiastic committee meetings held in the Council Chambers last evening. The community dancing committee and parade commitee each showed that they have their work well in hand and their part of the gigantic celebration is already taking definite form.

Fractically a full turnout of the community dancing committee under the chairmanship of D. A. Costello discussed and cleared up some weighty problems to do with their work and the same was true of the parade committee with E. F. Mason as chairman.

It was decided that on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights from 10.30 until 1 a.m. the block between Charlotte street and King street on Aylmer would be roped off and free community dancing would be held. At least one large orchestra and perhaps two will supply the music, and steps will be taken to try to secure amplifiers so that the music may be heard plainly at every part of the block. There will be square dancing and round dancing alternately or on separate ends of the block.

Secure Large Hall

Wednesday a hall, suitable to hold the big crowd that is expected will attend, is being secured for one of the feature events of the whole week, a big dance. The dance committee is calling in all its reserve ideas and plans to put this affair over in a manner fitting the great occasion. Already it is planning the decorations and all the members of committee are "on their toes."

A separate committee was appointed to see about securing a suitable hall or building for community dancing in case of rain. This committee will interview the Quaker Oats, the Brinton Carpet and similar firms where it is thought that a floor suitable for dancing might be secured.

On the night of the costume parade the dancing will also likely be in costume.

Every Monday evening at 7.30 in the Council Chambers has been laid aside for the community dancing committee, and this committee is doing much of its work through separate committees who report to the committee as a whole to have their suggestions passed.

Parade Taking Shape

That the Old Home Week parade will be the biggest parade ever held in Peterborough could not be doubted after hearing the discussion and plans that were passed across the

Hold-up Man Secures Mea Before Robbing the Ti

TORONTO, April 9. — (Canadian Press). — A hold-up man who escaped with $50 from a Chinese restaurant early to-day set a new mark for resourcefulness. He ordered a meal and a taxicab at the same time and when he finished the meal the taxi was waiting. The robber thrust a revolver at the restaurant proprietor, Fong Ton, Queen street east, grabbed $50 from the till and leaped into the taxi, forcing the driver to take him at fifty miles an hour to a point many blocks away, where he left the cab and disappeared.

"Old Dobbin's" Drinking Fountain Being Removed From Water Street

Drinking in a public place—that offence for which humans must pay dearly in the courts of the land—seems to have been made, in spirit at least, to apply to the many faithful "Dobbins" which yet serve the carter's purpose despite motorized competition. It appears that they have been drinking in a too public place, to wit, on Water street, near the police station, to the detriment of traffic, that in an effort to avoid repetition of the offence—which has been occurring year in and year out beyond the age of the oldest drinker—the horse-watering trough, an old landmark, has been removed and will likely be re-installed on Simcoe street, east of Water street.

City Engineer Parsons, speaking of the change, intimated that within a short time a new drinking fountain would replace the old one which will be removed along with the watering trough.

Epidemic Of Typhoid Fever Breaks Out Amongst Settlers On Northern Crown Lands

TORONTO, Ont., April 9 (Canadian Press). — Word was received here yesterday of an outbreak of typhoid fever among the settlers on Crown lands just outside the town of Kapuskasing, Ont. Hon. Dr. F. Godfrey, Provincial Minister of Health, has assigned Dr. McKay, Provincial Epidemiologist, and Dr. Berry, Chief Sanitary Inspector, of the Department, to go north and take measures to fight the outbreak.

Fifteen cases have been reported. The news of the outbreak was conveyed to Dr. Godfrey in a telegram from Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, who is in the district on a tour of inspection. The epidemic, Dr. Godfrey believes, was caused by the settlers using creek water when their wells went dry.

LINDSAY JUDGE DISMISSES CASE

Provincial Officers Freed

Judge Swayze Dismisses Action Against Provincial Constables.

BRENNAN SHOOTING.

Written Judgment Is Given To Mayor Moore, Defendants' Counsel.

LINDSAY, April 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — His Honor Judge Swayze of Lindsay yesterday handed down a written judgment to Mayor Moore, counsel for Provincial Officers Cook and Purvis, dismissing the action preferred against them on the charge of shooting to maim. This charge was laid, following the shooting of Pete Brennan, chum of Orval Shaw, near Bolsover, Victoria County, about five weeks ago. The two officers, it will be remembered, were arrested and dismissed, following the inquest which inquired into the cause of Brennan's death. The two officers were given preliminary hearing before Magistrate Jordan and were sent up for trial before the County Judge. The hearing took place a week ago in the local courthouse, the Crown Attorney of Lindsay prosecuting, with Mayor Moore and J. Tudhope of Orillia acting for the defendants. The outcome has been awaited with great interest, not only locally but throughout the Province.

W.M.S. MEETS.

Interesting Program Provided at Meeting of Madoc Church Society.

MADOC, April 9.—The members of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. T. Dafoe on Thursday afternoon.

The program was in charge of Mrs. R. C. Fair and Mrs. W. Kelly and was much enjoyed by all. Mrs. M. Maybee gave a very comprehensive paper in the form of question and answer on "systematice and proportionate giving" and the chapter on the study book was taken by Mrs. Duncan Brown. Mrs. W. Hulin gave a beautiful solo, "The Old Rugged Cross" with accompaniment by Mrs. L. Ashley. Mrs. Ludbrook and Misses Helen and Kathleen Ludbrook gave a very pleasing instrumental number. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Fair. Mrs. Kelly took charge of the program in which several took part and Mrs. Ashley, the president, took charge of the business part of the program. It was decided to hold an afternoon tea at Mrs. D. Brown's some time in April, also to continue the use of the monthly envelopes. The Easter offering was about thirty-five dollars, beside the regular March envelopes. A social half hour followed in which the summer program was discussed and many plans made.

Diplomatic Corps Asks Secretary Stimson For Ruling On Social Status Of Mrs. Gann

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 9(Canadian Press). — The Diplomatic Corps at a meeting at the British Embassy last night agreed that Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador and dean of the corps, immediately should ask the State Department for a definite ruling on the social status of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, half-sister of Vice-President Curtis.

The diplomatic representatives were called together by the British Ambassador. The discussion over what action should be taken lasted nearly two hours.

The corps decided that since Vice-President Curtis had protested to the State Department against a ruling by former Secretary Kellogg, placing Mrs. Gann at social functions after the wives of the heads of foreign missions, it would be better to have Mrs. Gann's status definitely established by Secretary of State Stimson.

It was pointed out that a large number of outstanding social functions are expected before the vacation season starts and that a ruling by Secretary Stimson would eliminate the possibility of hostesses offending either the Vice-President's party or foreign diplomats whom they might entertain.

MINISTER OF JUSTICE PROTESTS AGAINST ANY HIGHER TARIFFS

Claims Protection Endangers the Peace of the World.

CRITICIZES MEMBERS.

Refers To Findings of Economic Conference of League of Nations.

OTTAWA, April 9 (C.P.).—A new note was struck in the budget debate yesterday when Hon. Ernest Lapointe Minister of Justice, protested against high protective tariffs on the ground that they endanger the peace of the world. Mr. Lapointe drew his inspiration from conclusions reached at the Economic Conference called under the auspices of the League of Nations in 1927. This conference had found that international conditions would improve by removing trade barriers and encouraging free circulation of the products of agriculture and industry, he said.

"What better evidence could we have of the danger of high protective tariffs, of their inherent menace for the peace of the world and to good international relations, than the words which have been uttered in this house at the mere suggestion of a possible increase of customs duties by the country to the south of us?" queried Mr. Lepointe. "Appeals have been made to 'red-blooded Canadians' for retalitaory action, suggestions have been made that Parliament ought to adjourn or to prolong its sittings to take counter-action. It has even been suggested that the Governor-in-Council should be empowered to increase our tariff schedules, should the necessity arise."

SHAW MAKES GOOD HIS ESCAPE

Officers Are at a Loss to Know Where Fugitive Has Gone.

LAST SEEN FRIDAY.

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 9.—(Canadian Press).—That the persistence of the Provincial Police who are at present pestering the life of Orval Shaw, is bound to have its effect, is the opinion of those who are in touch with the situation. Following up the clues that Shaw had been seen in St. George, positive identification being made by Arthur Kay, St. George farmer, who claims that the man has been pointed out to him as the chap who ran from the Earhart farm, compared to the photographs and description shown him by the Provincial officers, they are patrolling that section of the province. "His luck cannot last forever pursuers are said to have declared.

After a long search of the section the officers followed up the story that Shaw had left St. George via the C.N.R. tracks Friday afternoon. That was the last report of the fugitive who has from that time avoided the public eye in these parts.

Combined District.

Saturday night, and Sunday night were spent in the district by the officers who have combed every possible corner for the man. It is now believed that the 12 hour start has been made use of and that a freight train carried Shaw away.

During the daylight hours of Sunday and Monday the officers made a wide sweep covering St. George, Blue Lake, the environs of Paris, Princeton, Drumbo and Waterbury in an attempt to locate the man. They were unsuccessful. It is not known what Shaw is going for food, as farmers in this district were questioned and all state that no person has applied for food lately. The food stolen at St. George, would not have been sufficient to keep him going, more than a couple of days.

Reeve Of Bothwell Claims Skunk's Misery Is Less Than Fifteen Acres In Extent

BOTHWELL, April 9 (Canadian Press). — Reeve Golding, of Bothwell, Champion of Orval Shaw, last night blasted what he termed the Skunk's Misery myth. The area made famous last summer by the first man hunt for the outlaw caveman is less than 15 instead of 10,000 acres in extent, the Reeve stated. There is more swamp around Toronto than there is in the whole Misery, the Reeve claims. And as for caves, the Reeve says there aren't any. The name itself, he adds, is just a joke, almost as big a joke locally as the barnyard derby across Ontario for the capture of Shaw.

ST. ALBANS CATHEDRAL CHANCEL IS GUTTED BY FIRE IN TORONTO; DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT $50,000

Many of the Altar and Floor Furnishings Are Destroyed Late Yesterday.

LOSS IS COVERED.

Bishop Sweeney Is Able To Save Many Important Records and Cathedral Bible.

TORONTO, Ont., April 9 (C.P.). The chancel of the Anglican Cathedral of St. Alban the Martyr, at Howland and Barton avenues, was gutted by fire late yesterday afternoon. Many of the altar and floor furnishings were destroyed, the memorial organ was seriously damaged and several costly windows ruined. The damage is estimated at between $40,000 and $50,000, covered by insurance.

Three firemen were precipitated to the basement level when the floor of the burning building gave way while they were plying the hose. There was considerable excitement as their comrades rushed to save them. They were quickly rescued. It was found their injuries were not very serious.

Started in Book Rooms

It is believed the flames started in the book and paper rooms in the basement of the edifice. Two small boys gave the alarm. In a short time dense clouds of smoke were issuing from the windows and the flames could be seen leaping up in the interior of the cathedral.

Right Rev. Bishop Sweeney was on the scene shortly after the alarm was given and, aided by some of the firemen, was able to recover the Cathedral Bible, the register of marriages and deaths, and other books. The chancel soon afterwards became a seething furnace and the firemen had difficulty in getting the flames extinguished. Fourteen lines of hose were laid in through the windows by the firement on ladders against the walls, and the fire was finally got under control.

Constructed in 1886

The chancel of St. Alban's, where the fire occurred yesterday afternoon, was, with the choir, the only completed portion of the Cathedral. Construction of the edifice began in 1886 under the late Archbishop Sweatman. There were further enlargements in 1891. Shortly before the war the foundations of the nave were laid and the walls completed to the floor level. Work was suspended on account of war conditions, and has not been resumed.

St. Alban's was established as the Cathedral Church of the Anglican Diocese of Toronto; St. James' Cathedral downtown being known as the pro-cathedral.

Reconstruction of the damaged interior of the chancel will, it is expected, be commenced immediately. It is probable services will be held meanwhile in the Diocesan Hall, near the Cathedral.

Body Of New-born Babe Found In Wiarton Creek

WIARTON, April 29. — (C.P.) —An oilcloth sack containing the body of a newly born baby was found in Baylor street creek here yesterday, by Thomas Cordick, a town employee. It is believed that the infant had been in the water since last Thursday's flood.

Police Chief Bone ordered the removal of the body to Dr.Hough's office, where an examination will be made. The doctor said that the remains had been in the creek for four or five days. No clue has been found to the identity of the person who committed the act and an inquest has been ordered.

Twells is alleged to have killed his two sons, Kenneth and Colin, at his home last November. He is also alleged to have attempted to shoot Arthur Corfield, a brother-in-law.

The case will be laid over until the autumn sitting of the Assize Court in order to give defence counsel, Fred L. Ward, Picton, ample time to visit England to trace the family history of the accused man.

FLOOD DAMAGE BEING REPAIRED

C.N.R. and C.P.R. Trains Are Again Operating On Main Line.

BELL SUFFERS HEAVILY.

TORONTO, Ont., April 9 (Canadian Press).—The storm-stricken districts of Ontario were generally favored with warm weather and drying winds yesterday, and last night reports told of improved conditions. Flood waters were receding, damage was being repaired, and interrupted transportation and communication facilities rapidly restored.

Railways were still operating under difficulties and gangs of workmen were re-stringing telegraph and telephone wires.

Officials of the Bell Telephone Company announced to-day that 800 poles and 1,500,000 feet of wire would be required to repair the damage to their lines. The company estimate of damage throughout the system placed the amount at approximately $300,000. Railway officials have not attempted to estimate the damage to roadbeds and equipment.

Service Resumed To-Day.

An official statement issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway stated that a revised schedule put into operation Sunday evening had enabled them to give, under the circumstances, a satisfactory service. C.P.R. trains for Ottawa and Montreal were run over the Canadian National lines as far as Port Hope. Service over the regular lines will be resumed in the morning.

The Canadian National Railway reported resumption of regular train operations over the main line between Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. Exceptional progress was reported in repairing lines throughout Southern and Northern Ontario. Traffic was resumed between Burlington and Boston last night on the Milton subdivision, but was still suspended between Beeton and Allandale. Traffic will be discontinued on the Alliston sub-division until Thursday. On the Durham sub-division buses were still in use for the transportation of passengers with a resumption of train service expected to-day.

Oshawa, Newmarket, Orono and Owen Sound sub-divisions were reported re-opened, with Port Perry sub-division re-opening to-day.

DAWES MAY GO TO ST. JAMES

Former Vice-President of United States May Be Next Ambassador.

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 9 (Canadian Press). — Appointment of Charles Gates Dawes as Ambassador to the Court of St. James is expected in a few days. Financial matters are recognized as the chief diplomatic problem between England and the United States for the first time since colonists, some of whom were sent from English jails because they could not pay their debts, won their freedom from financial oppression. In Washington's view, the fight now is between London and New York for world financial supremacy. A private mission is in England now trying to get Britain's General Electric to admit its securities to free trade. The British radio monopoly is being fought and protested, and London's grip on South American finance is nettling New York. This task elevates financial battles to the peak of diplomacy.

Mr. Dawes, merely a former Vice-President of the United States, but everything in the world to Europe through authorship of the Dawes plan of reparations, is believed to have gone over the entire problem with President Hoover before departing for Santo Domingo as head of an American commission to put that country on its financial feet. The delegation, when it sailed, expected to finish its task in six weeks.

District Rebekah Lodges Hold Annual Meeting

MEMBERS GATHER AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF THE NINETEENTH BIRTHDAY OF HAVELOCK LODGE

District Is Well Represented With the Exception of Little Britain.

REPORT READ.

Entertaining Musical Program Presented at Close of Business Session.

HAVELOCK, April 9.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The annual meeting of the Rebekah Lodges for district No. 22 was held in the lodge rooms of Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98 on Thursday afternoon when Mrs. M. Thomas, of Lindsay, president of Rebekah Assembly of Ontario was present. Mrs. M. Sexsmith, District Deputy President, presided and gave a very interesting report of her work during the year among the lodges of the district, all of whom had representatives at the meeting with the exception of Little Britain.

The lodges were represented as follows:

Lindsay— Mrs. Flack, Assembly Marshal, and Mrs. S. Botting; Millbrook—Mrs. P. I. Bentley and Mrs. A. Fallis; Peterborough—Mrs. Sisson and Mrs. Henderson; Havelock—Mrs. T. Easterbrook and Mrs W. Woodbeck.

Celebrate Birthday.

It was also the occasion of the nineteenth birthday of the local order, which was celebrated by a banquet in the lodge dining hall at seven o'clock when a large number of members, the district representatives and other friends from Smith Falls, Marmora, Toronto, Lindsay and Campbellford were present. Floral decorations gave the tables a very attractive appearance, the centre of attraction being the three-storey birthday cake surmounted with nineteen candles.

Following the banquet the Dorcas Rebekah Lodge exemplified the degree in a truly magnificent manner. Mrs. A. Russell being the soloist for the degree.

After the close of the lodge, Joseph Faulkner took the chair for a short program consisting of two readings by Mrs. Jean Moore and a vocal duet by Miss Minnie Williams and Mrs. A. Russell. A game of "Jumbles" and the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought the evening's entertainment to a close.

Presentation Made.

A very pleasing feature of the proceedings was the presentation to Mrs. M. Thomas, President of Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, of a tea plate, bread and butter plate and cup and saucer in Macada Crown derby china, as a slight memento of her visit to Havelock.

Beside the district representatives the following from out of town were in attendance: Mrs. W. Buchanan and Mrs. J. Hart of Smith Falls; Mrs. W. Forsythe, of Marmora; Mrs. R. Phillips, of Campbellford; Mrs. J. White and Mrs. E. McMillan, of Toronto, and Mrs. H. Adams of Lindsay.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 9.—Reports of farm relief measures in the United States showed wheat prices higher on the wheat market yesterday. Following in Chicago footsteps, Winnipeg closed the day with net gains of 2⅛c to 2 5-8c. No great amount of export business was done yesterday, the trading being largely local.

Low grades of cash wheat were in good demand, with prices holding firm with the exception of No. 3 Northern, which eased off about ¼c.

Very little trading was done in the coarse grain. Flax moved higher fractionally, but the other grains held unchanged.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 9—The strength that characterized the butter market last week was again the feature of the trade yesterday and values were advanced another cent per lb. This was attributed to the continued scarcity of supplies and the good demand. Receipts were 453 boxes.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade, but the tone of the market was steady. Receipts were 38 boxes.

An easier feeling developed in eggs and values were shaded one cent per dozen. The demand continued fair. Receipts were 1,502 cases.

The inquiry for potatoes was moderate and the undertone was firm. New Brunswick Green Mountains sold at 50c per 90 lbs., in bulk; while Prince Edward Island whites were quoted at 60c to 65c, and Green Mountains at 65c to 70c per 90 lbs., in bags.

Cheese, Westerns, 22½c. Butter, No. 1 pasteurized, 46c to 47c. Eggs, fresh extras, 34c to 35c; fresh firsts, 32c to 33c.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 9.—The shortage of supply in the Montreal butter market is being felt locally, and dealers raised their prices approximately 2c per lb. yesterday. The supply on spot is sufficient to meet the demands of the retail trade, but Montreal buyers are in the local market for an immediate source of supply, and consequently higher prices have been effected during the past week.

Shipments from New Zealand are expected to reach local wholesale dealers in the course of one week, and the present squeeze for supplies is looked on as only temporary. No. 1 finest creamery was quoted at from 45c to 45¼c per lb. Quotations to the retail trade were not increased accordingly, and dealers were asking 45c per lb. for No. 1 finest creamery.

There was very little activity in the local egg market, and prices held steady with the close of last week. Receipts were light, as is usual for a Monday, and dealers do not expect heavy shipments to arrive this week on account of the flooded condition of the roads throughout the country.

Wholesale dealers were quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered and cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras 27c per dozen; firsts, 25c and seconds 22c. Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, April 9.—Lively speculative buying based on reports that broad plans of farm relief are fast taking definite shape, hoisted wheat more than 4 cents a bushel yesterday. Heavy profit-taking sales on the bulge, however, caused something of a reaction at the last.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 3⅜ to 3⅝c net advance; Corn finished 2¼ to 2⅝c up; oats at ⅞c to 2¼c gain, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 7c.

Except at the opening and again in the final transactions, offerings of wheat yesterday were scarce compared to the demand. Some uncertainty prevailed at the start, Liverpool prices being lower than were looked for, and there was also considerable selling temporarily on account of favorable domestic crop reports. It soon became apparent, though, that Washington advices about progress of farm relief plans were the outstanding influence in the market, and that a major upward movement of values was under way.

Day's News

The vital point of the reports circulated here yesterday about farm relief progress was that the House and Senate Committees were planning to provide more than $300,000,000 revolving fund for operations of a Federal farm board with sweeping authority to work out its own solution of problems. The plan was also said to assure the purchase and storage of grain in any quantity deemed advisable in the judgment of the farm relief board which is to be established.

General Advance

Corn and oats advanced with wheat. Besides, corn receipts in the West were small, and arrivals of oats everywhere were scant. There were also intimations of some corn export business being done from the United States. Meanwhile, boats were loading 240,000 bushels of corn here yesterday for the East, and heavy clearances by lake in the immediate future were expected.

Provisions were responsible for upturns both in hog values and in grain.

The reeve and clerk were appointed a committee to see the county road superintendent regarding the moving of the fences back to the line purchased by the county and returned back to the township. Also to see a solicitor with regards to the account for boundary line work between the townships of Percy and Alnwick.

It was decided to pay fifty cents an hour for man and team to work on roads.

A bylaw to provide for the collection of the poll tax was introduced by James Webb.

The following accounts were ordered paid: James Mattress, road across farm, $5; William Arnold, 3 hours work on road, 75c; Lawson Taylor, 3 hours work, 75c; Lawson Taylor, 10 hours work with team, $4.50; William Taylor, winter road damage to crop, $2; Percy Parker, 4 hours work on road, $1; Earl Thackeray, Canadian Engineer, $2; William Killingbeck, wiring sheds, $11.85; Richard McCracken, rebate statute labor, $1813. R. A. Nichols, balance of salary as constable, $5.

The council adjourned to meet on April 27, at 2 o'clock p.m.

REO GROUP HOLDS LEAD

Zion League Service Conducted Under Leadership of Devotional Convenor.

CLOSE RACE.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, April 9—(Examiner Correspondence).—Zion League service on Thursday evening under the leadership of Thomas Fry, devotional convenor, drew an attendance of forty-six. The Reo group had a small lead in points. In spite of the long lead obtained by the Packards early in the year, the standing now shows that all groups are in a contending position. Rev. F. G. MacTavish gave a splendid devotional talk on 'Honesty." A reading by Fred Barnum and the devotional topic by Thomas Fry preceded a song service of Easter songs led by the president.

The next meeting is in charge of Laura Watson, junior convenor, owing to the illness of the missionary convenor, Gladys Petherick.

Roads In Bad Condition.

Roads are not getting better, in fact some spots are worse than last week. Motorists are running a decided risk and so rough are some sectfons of the road that spare tires are being lost.

Report Great Success.

Trappers report unusual success this year though the recent rise in the water, due to heavy rains, has played havoc with some of the sets.

DEAD MOTHS Never Eat Holes

WAGE war against moths now, and remember this:

Buy something that will kill moths—get FLY-TOX, a spray that seeps in, penetrates, and kills all eggs, moth worms and moth millers it touches.

You run too much risk with sprays and preventatives that merely make fabrics "proof" against moths. Such sprays and preventatives only drive moths to unprotected fabrics. And the irreparable damage goes on.

Therefore, make sure of real protection. Kill moths, for dead moths never eat holes.

You have real protection with FLY-TOX. It is a clean, pure, fragrant liquid that may be sprayed freely and often, and if used according to directions, you need never worry about moth-damage.

For full directions get FLY-TOX moth circular from your dealer, or send to—

Yes - It's safe - though Mortgaged!

I FEEL good about it—even though I had to give a big mortgage to secure our home. You see, I figured on paying off the mortgage in 10 years time. Then I began to think—if it takes me 10 years to pay off the mortgage how long would it take my wife to pay it if I died? Her name wouldn't stay on the firm's pay roll!

What did I do? Talked the matter over with Dad. He said a mortgage is fine to help you get a home but it can take away just as readily. Advised me to take out an Imperial Mortgage Protection Policy—as he did when he was younger—and cover the mortgage dollar for dollar.

I did it—I've drawn the teeth of that Mortgage. I know now that Elsie and Bob will be sure of their home whether I'm here or not.

And the cost is not so great! Its like paying just a little higher interest rate on the mortgage itself. And I know that my deposits are not like money spent, either; they will come back to me nicely increased. There is also a total disability clause in the Policy that is mighty re-assuring.

Reader—is there a Mortgage on YOUR home? Write today for the very interesting facts about the Imperial Mortgage Protection Policy.

A REASONABLE REQUEST.

The Ontario Baseball Amateur Association at its annual meeting on Saturday decided to ask the Ontario Government to materially reduce the fee charged for birth certificates when required by amateur sporting organizations.

That is a concession that might well be granted as an encouragement to amateur athletics in this Province.

Nearly all leagues require official proof of the age of their players in the minor series, and the fee usually charged for the necessary birth notice adds considerably to the cost of operating teams, especially when fourteen or fifteen such certificates are needed.

It should be possible to authorize a smaller fee for this service.

In addition, the waiving of the amusement tax in the case of amateur sports might also be authorized.

The Province is not so badly off for revenue that it needs to dip into the meagre gate receipts of village ball clubs or hockey teams and pick off a percentage for provincial purposes.

The O.B.A.A.'s request is entirely reasonable and should be granted by the Government as a friendly gesture toward amateur sport in Ontario.

THE RAILWAYS' BIG TASK.

It is generally agreed that Canada's two great railways, dealing with an unexpected and unprecedented situation as a result of Friday night's disastrous storm, have accomplished all that could be expected of executive and working personnel.

The situation in Ontario following the torrential rains has been a heavy strain upon the operating forces, and it is a matter for congratulation that the emergency operations have been carried on without accidents.

Delays and inconvenience were inevitable, but the railway managements have succeeded, under great difficulties, in maintaining a service with the safety of passengers and train personnel given first consideration.

Locally these days will be remembered by railwaymen as bringing about the peak load upon the lines running through Peterborough, the crack trains of both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways having been routed through this city.

It is a period of great strain and difficulty for the transortation companies, and they deserve thanks for what they have been able to accomplish in the face of unusual obstacles and conditions never thought possible in this part of the country.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

A coast to coast drive for new members for the League of Nations Society in Canada is announced for next Tuesday, when it is hoped that the membership of this splendid organization will be materially augmented.

At this late date it does not seem that Canadians should need any further education as to the purposes for which the society was organized, or as to what is aimed at and what has been accomplished by the League of Nations itself, but there is not perhaps the same general realization of the importance of active co-operation in the work, and it is on this point that the League of Nations Day effort should be concentrated.

Obviously the more solidly public opinion in the participating countries is lined up behind the league, the more assured is the organization of being able to accomplish the desired results in the direction of world peace and international good.

Canadians, by becoming members of the League of Nations Society in Canada, will be in a position to cooperate and assist in this great movement, and there is no reason, save indifference, why the membership in all parts of the country should not be greatly increased by next week's campaign, which deserves to succeed.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Some forty farmers were guests of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the annual farmers' day luncheon of that organization yesterday.

These entente cordiale sessions between city and rural dwellers havebeen featured by service clubs, and form a very commendable item in the list of activities carried on by Rotary and Kiwanis.

They serve a very useful and desirable purpose in bringing together for a short time around a common table two classes in the community who have common interests, and should have a closer understanding of each other and a better appreciation of the problems and difficulties with which the other fellow has to deal.

The automobile the radio, rural free mail delivery and other things have done much to bring country and city closer together, but important as are all these agencies nothing accomplishes so much as personal contacts.

When men lunch together and discuss their problems informally around the table they often find that earlier impressions have to be discarded and that the other fellow is quite different from what they once thought him.

Sessions such as yesterday's successful gathering establish a better atmosphere and should be continued.

CANADIAN INVESTMENTS ABROAD.

The widely prevalent belief that Canada is entirely dependent upon capital from outside sources to finance her development is rudely dissipated by the disclosure that the Dominion is exporting more capital than she is importing, and has been doing so for the past four years. Canada has always had considerable investments abroad in the form of banking balances in London and New York, railway lines in the United States, and investments in foreign securities by banks, insurance companies, as well as by private individuals who require well diversified lists of securities. A rising Canadian prosperity, however, with a greater volume of funds seeking investment outlet, has resulted in a situation where the capital to leave the country exceeds by a substantial margin that coming in.

In 1925 the figures of Canada's capital exports over capital imports in round millions were $150,000,000; in 1926, $90,000,000; in 1927, $30,000,000; and in 1928, $25,000,000. The decline in these figures for the last two years is explained by a growing Canadian interest in domestic securities. An increasing absorption on Canada's part of her own bond issues has been a feature of the past few years. In both 1927 and 1928 the Dominion accounted for roughly 50 per cent. of the total bond sales, in the former year exceeding the purchases of these issues by the United States. In 1925 Canada had even an export balance in capital with the United States, and in each of the last three years Canadian capital account with the Republic has practically balanced.

After careful compilations Canadian investment abroad in 1928 is placed by the "Financial Post" at $177,000,000, as compared with $207,000,000 in the previous year. Of the 1928 total $112,000,000 went to the United States, $63,000,000 to other foreign countries, and $2,000,000 to the United Kingdom. Taking into account the decreases in government and bank balances due to the expansion of business at home, a net new investment of $157,500,000 is left, as against a net of $184,000,000 in 1927. A total of $11,000,000 for this account to be deducted from the investment aggregate in the United States leaves a net increase of $101,000,000 in Canadian investments in that country, and $35,000,000 from other countries leaves a net increase of $50,500,000. A deduction of $5,000,000 for decrease in government and bank balances from the total going to the United Kingdom results in a net loss of $3,000,000 in new Canadian investment in that country.

Based on figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics covering the situation as at January 1st, 1927, careful estimates made upon information from most reliable sources by the same authority give the total of Canadian investments abroad on January 1st, 1928, at $1,514,500,000 and on January 1st, 1929, at $1,672,000,000. Thus the aggregate of Canadian investments in other countries represents more than 50 per cent. of what other countries have invested in Canada. Of this total at the opening of the present year Canada had $939,000,000 invested in the United States; $112,500,000 in the United Kingdom; and $620,500,000 in other countries.

The above survey furnishes further proof of Canada's advance among the creditor countries of the world, as a factor in international finance, with capital furthering industrial developments of many kinds in many distant parts. Investments by Canadian insurance companies in diversified foreign securities continue to increase rapidly with the development of both their domestic and foreign business. Direct Canadian investments in branch plants in the United States commercial field and elsewhere are growing steadily. Canadian holdings of New York stocks and of European and South American government bonds have increased enormously.

Altogether the record testifies most eloquently to Canadian prosperity and world progress.—C.P.R. Monthly Bulletin.

THE ROMANCE OF GOVERNOR CARROLL AND MINISTER LAPOINTE.

The scoffers and cynics notwithstanding, there's sentiment in politics, and romance.

Nearly thirty years ago, in the little tin-spired town of Fraserville, there was a struggling, briefless young lawyer. He had come from the rocky, inhospitable hills of Kamouraska, singled out by a wise and kindly Cure, but although at Rimouski College he had won the Prince of Wales scholarship and a course of law in Laval University, his future was not bright. His name was Ernest Lapointe.

Lapointe, in those far days, was a long way from eminence in Canada's public life. He had no influential friends in Montreal or Quebec who could help him; was not of those young men that French-Canadian leaders single out for preferment; had not even the oratorical gift so common with his race. The career of a village advocate was perhaps all that he could vision.

The Crown prosecutor in the Fraserville district in those days was H. G. Carroll. He took an interest in the young lawyer. The interest ripened into friendship, and when, some years later, Carroll became member for Kamouraska, he made Lapointe one of his lieutenants.

A few years later, Carroll having risen to the Solicitor-Generalship, there was a banquet in Fraserville in his honor. There were distinguished figures from Montreal and Ottawa; numerous speeches; stately orations. But the speech of the evening, the note that stirred everybody to wonder and enthusiasm, came from the young lawyer, Ernest Lapointe.

Two years afterwards, when Carroll left Parliament and the Solicitor-Generalship for the High Court bench of Quebec, Lapointe—on Carroll's suggestion—succeeded him as M.P. for Kamouraska.

That was twenty-five years ago. Lapointe came to Ottawa, passed years in back bench obscurity, emerged as one of Laurier's captains, became Quebec's chief lieutenant for Mackenzie King; became orator, statesman, Canada's Minister of Justice.

Carroll disappeared from politics, remained some years as a judge, resigned with a pension, took a job from Premier Taschereau as chief of Quebec's Liquor Commission.

But the two men, following different walks in life, and with the pupil now much greater than his old political master, remained friends.

This week Ernest Lapointe, political power in French Canada, to Mr. King what Lafontaine was to Baldwin, what Cartier was to Macdonald, was called upon to suggest a Governor for Quebec.

Mr. Lapointe remembered. One likes to think of him going back in memory to those far days when H. G. Carroll was his benefactor. At all events, the once poor, obscure young lawyer of Fraserville, now a power in the land, gave his Prime Miniseter the name of his old friend. The man who had put him into Parliament he now placed in the highest post in the gift of his Province.

For such things in life, for a touch of romance and sentiment in the sometimes hard sphere of politics, one may be thankful. For they show that, no matter what some say and think, there is still in all human relationships much of loyalty and friendship and brave comradeships that endure.—Ottawa Journal.

A Thought

PLAY TO WIN

Who plays to win—but on the square—
Will move along Life's Thoroughfare,
The peer of Princes. For his sort
Shall ever be in good report
Among brave fellows everywhere.
What though he gain no riches rare?
Friends he shall have who do not court
His wealth, but only seek to share
The love and faith he has to spare
Who play to win—but on the square.
He shall have heart and strength to bear
The battle with defeat, despair
And be the conflict long or short.
He shall be, to the end, a Sport;
Who plays to win—but on the square!

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A WORD OF PRAISE

I told Walt Wolf the other day
About Frank Morse, about the way
He took a certain fellow's part
And helped him get another start.
Walt told Art Hurd, and Art Joe Kent,
And so the rounds the story went,
For Joe before he'd walked two blocks
Spoke well of Frank to Charlie Fox.

Lew Martin told Al Hammer, he Told Charlie Shinn, who presently
Told Lester Bush. Men like to speed
The story of good word or deed.
I think it mighty fine—don't you?—
The way that such good fellows do,
Who stop to speak a word of praise
About some brother on life's ways.

Yes, every time I heard again
That tale, I thought how fine are men
A word of hottest praise to tell,
To speak so kindly and so well.
And then Frank Morse himself I met,
The man that men were praising yet,
But I was rather shocked of course,
To find not one had told Frank Morse.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

Hambledon was standing near the fire, which was lit not so much because the evening was cold, as for the sake of Phillis. She was never warm, so she always complained; she often declared there must be ice and not blood in her veins.

Hambledon was talking to her. Like most big men he had a curiously gentle manner when he spoke to anyone ill, or to a child.

"I particularly wanted Ana to come," Mrs. Mahon was saying peevishly. 'She is like a tonic to me. I wish I could have her with me always. I asked her the other day if she would like to come and live with me, but she said she could not leave her aunt."

Mollie laughed scornfully.

'Ana would be only too thankful to get away from her aunt," she declared.

"Not to come to me," Mrs. Mahon said. "I suppose anything is better than living with a sick woman," she added bitterly.

"Now you know you're much better, Phillis," her husband said. He spoke with the patience of a bored man, and he frowned a little as he spoke. "And what about dinner? I thought you said half-past seven?"

"We ought to wait for Ana," his wife declared. "It looks so rude to begin without her."

"She may not come," Hambledon said. "And I am sure she would not expect you to wait for her."

They went in to dinner, Hambledon and Mahon supporting Phillis between them. Although she had a chair which was the easiest thing in the world to propel, Phillis always insisted on walking whenever she could, no matter how much it pained her to move.

"I'll not give in till I'm absolutely forced to," she said now, her eyes on Hambledon.

"If that's how you feel about it, you'll never have to give in," he assured her. "It's pluck and courage that will make you well."

The dinner was not a success. It was not well cooked, and Mahon complained.

"I do my best," his wife answered painfully. "But maids are most difficult in places like this, and I have to take what I can get."

"You are too easy-going. They take advantage of you," Mahon answered unfeelingly.

Phillis flushed.

"It's easy enough to take advantage of a woman who cannot move a step without help," she said. She looked again at Hambledon. "Perhaps I don't trouble enough about things," she apologized pathetically. "You see, food doesn't interest me very much—there are so few things I am allowed to eat."

"You've spoiled your husband, that's what it is," Hambledon said cheerily. "You want to treat him as Mollie treats me."

"And how do I treat you, pray?" Mollie inquired.

"You rule me with a rod of iron," Anthony answered with a twinkle. "All the world knows that I cannot call my soul my own."

"Such nonsense!" Mollie declared. "You look like a hen-pecked man, don't you?"

"At any rate, I allow you to have your own way in everything," he insisted. "Did I say a word this afternoon when you said you wanted to go to town again for the week-end?"

"Perhaps he wanted to get rid of you, Mrs. Hambledon," Phillis said maliciously.

"Perhaps he did," Mollie agreed lightly. "He and Ana are very great friends, you know," she added smilingly, "though now it rather looks as if he is to be cut out."

"If I am, I shall be able to bear it with fortitude," Hambledon said calmly, though he did not raise his eyes.

"Who is the new admirer?" Phillis asked.

She was pathetically interested in other people's affairs—possibly because her own consisted only of suffering and trying to be brave.

"His name is Drake—Tom Drake," Mollie said. "He's really rather nice."

Mahon glanced up quickly.

"Drake! Why I know the fellow! at least I've met him, and I know his sister very well indeed—Florrie Inglis. You remember, Phillis, we met her two years ago at Monte Carlo."

"Yes, I remember." There was a subtle change in Phillis's voice. "Ralph has so many women friends," she explained rather bitterly.

"I thought she was a friend of yours," her husband said pointedly.

Phillis looked up, her eyes dark with jealousy.

"Yes, I thought so too," she answered eloquently.

There was an uncomfortable silence.

"I've never been to Monte Carlo," Mollie struck in. "It must be too wonderful."

"You ought to go," Mahon said. "Get Hambledon to take you before you go back."

"No, thank you," Hambledon said quickly. "I should loathe it."

Mollie sighed.

"He won't go anywhere I want to go," she declared. "And yet he says I always get my own way. You don't suppose it's my choice that we're spending all our time in Lyme, do you?"

"It certainly is," Anthony answered quietly. "You chose this place before I came home—you chose the cottage and settle down there before I knew anything about it. I understood that you came in order to be near Mrs. Mahon. Isn't that what you told me?"

It was only afterward that he remembered how his wife flushed at the time he put it down to mere annoyance.

"I think you flatter us," Mrs. Mahon said. "At least, you flatter me."

A servant came into the room.

"If you please, sir, you are wanted on the telephone."

He spoke to Mahon, and Mahon rose at once.

"If you will excuse me——"

"Who can it be?" Phillis asked fretfully. "He gets so few calls at this house. I don't believe half his friends know he is here at all."

"Perhaps it's Ana," Mollie said. "They may have had a breakdown."

"She would hardly ring up here, would she?" Anthony asked quickly.

"She might, to get them to send us a message. She can't 'phone to the cottage, can she? because there isn't a 'phone."

"It won't be Ana," Phillis said. She moved restlessly. "Ralph knows so many people I don't know—people I've never heard of," she complained. "Only the other day some woman rang him up and he was out, so I told Mitchell to say that I was in if she would care to speak to me or leave a message, and do you know," she appealed to Hambledon, "she seemed so amazed that I don't believe she even knew Ralph had a wife."

Mollie laughed.

"How very funny!"

"You wouldn't think it funny if you were in my place," Phillis said sharply. "Of course Ralph said it was all nonsense, and all my imagination, but I'm not so sure——" She glanced toward the door and sighed. "What a long time he is! I wonder who it can be?"

"If it's a long-distance call, it takes some time to get through, you know," Hambledon said.

He spoke quietly, but his nerves were on edge with anxiety. Supposing it was anything to do with Ana?—supposing—— With a great effort he controlled himself.

"It's not your concern anyway, you fool," he told himself, and tried to think of some other topic of conversation. But there seemed no other subject possible but Ana—nothing else in the world that counted.

What was she doing? had anything happened? It was nearly nine o'clock, and owing to the bad weather it had grown dark unusually early. The dining room overlooked the garden, so the curtains had not been drawn, and outside everything looked terribly depressing. Rain was falling again, and now and then little fitful gusts of wind beat sharply against the window.

"And this is an English summer!" Hambledon said, trying to rouse himself and speak cheerfily.

"It's better than Rhodesia anyway," Mollie said sharply. "I'd rather be here in any weather than out there with the hateful sun shining on nothing all the time."

"I rather loved it," Phillis said wistfully. "I felt better there than I have felt for years."

"You should have stayed longer," Hambledon told her.

"I wanted to," she answered, "but Ralph said he must come home and of course I could not let him come alone."

Mollie's lip curled. She could not understand how this woman could be so blind. As if it was not perfectly patent to everyone that Ralph Mahon had long since wearied of his wife.

Mahon came back into the room at that moment.

"It's all rather a muddle," he said. He looked at Anthony. "It's someone ringing through from a village the other side of Honiton, but the line is so bad I couldn't hear half they said, and they rang off before I could ask for the number. There has been an accident."

Mollie gave a little cry. "Ana! I knew it!"

Hambledon sat very still, his eyes fixed on Mahon's face. "Well?" he said sharply.

"I couldn't get the details at all," Mahon admitted. "I did my best, but as I say, it was so indistinct. Someone had been asked by Drake to ring me up and take a message to you. I gather it's not anything serious, but they can't get home yet, and they evidently thought you might be anxious."

"Oh, poor Ana!" Phillis said. She was on the verge of tears. "Supposing she's badly hurt? Someone ought to go."

"Yes, but where to?" Mahon asked. "I was given no name or address to go to. I tried to get one, but I suppose they couldn't hear me any better than I could hear them. I suppose I ought to have called you, Hambledon, but I——"

"Yes," Anthony agreed quietly. "It would have been better." He was a little pale, but he spoke steadily enough.

"I'm awfully sorry, Mrs. Hambledon," Mahon apologized. "I feel that I ought to have done better. Perhaps if we ring up the exchange they can tell us where the call came from."

"I don't think I should worry," Anthony said. "They would have asked one of us to go at once if it had been anything serious." But his heart was beating so fast he felt as if it must choke him.

If anything happened to Ana——

"I think we'd better go in the other room if everyone has finished," Phillis said. "I'm so cold——"

They went back to the fire and coffee was brought, but Anthony left his untouched.

"It's no use worrying," Mollie said unkindly. "That is if you are worrying! It's Ana's own fault. She hardly knew the man, and she went off with him quite of her own free will—she can only blame herself if anything has happened."

"All the same it's our responsibility," Hambledon said.

"What nonsense!" Mollie looked angry. "Ana isn't a child."

"I quite understand how Mr. Hambledon feels about it," Phillis said. "After all, she is staying with you."

"If that's how you feel, you had better get the car and go and find out where they are, Tony," Mollie suggested.

"I'm afraid it would be rather like looking for a needle in a haystack," Mahon answered. "And really I don't think things can be bad, or the message would have been more urgent."

But the evening was quite spoiled, and before eleven O'clock Mollie herself suggested they should go home.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BRASS BUTTONS.

(Copyright, 1929 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Clitter, clatter, bang!"

That was Jingle running up the front steps of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one day after school.

"Bunkity, binkity boom!"

That was Jingle's sister, Jangle, hopping up the back steps of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one day after school.

"My goodness! What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily himself, who was just about to hop out of the front parlor window to go adventuring. "Why are you in such a rush, my dears?" he asked the two little rabbit girls as they bumped together in the front hall.

"Oh, I want Nurse Jane's button bag!" cried Jangle.

"So do I!" cried Jingle.

"Oh ho and ah ha!" says the Bob Cat to himself.

"Well, you both can't have it!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily, wondering if his pink, twinkling nose needed any talcum powder. "What's the matter? Have you burst all the buttons off your dresses that you want Nurse Jane's bag to sew new ones on?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh, no, Daddicums!" laughed Jingle. "We're going over to Jennie Chipmunk's house to play a game called 'Button! Button! Who's got the button,' Daddicums," explained Jangle. "And we want some of the buttons Nurse Jane keeps in her bag."

"Oh, I see," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "Well, a little while ago I saw Miss Fuzzy with her button bag in the kitchen. Perhaps you'll find her there now. But if you take her bag of buttons be sure to bring it back."

"We will!" promised Jingle as she and her sister hurried out to the kitchen where, surely enough, they found Nurse Jane's bag of buttons in the rocking chair where the muskrat lady housekeeper had been sewing.

So with the rattling bag of buttons, the two little rabbit girls hopped over the fields and through the woods to the home of Jennie Chipmunk in a mossy old log.

As for Uncle Wiggily, he laughed to think of the fun Jingle and Jangle were going to have and then the old rabbit gentleman hopped over the fields and through the woods to look for an adventure.

Now this story is about Uncle Wiggily, and one of the Bad Chaps, so all I can say about Jingle, Jangle and the buttons is that they had a lot of fun. I mean the two little rabbit girls did, though, I suppose, the buttons may have enjoyed it, too.

Anyhow, Uncle Wiggily hopped along and along and, as he hopped, all of a sudden there came, poking his head out of the dark bushes beside the road, the Bob Cat with his nonsensical little tail no bigger than your thumb.

"Oh ho and ah ha!" said the Bob Cat to himself. "There goes Uncle Wiggily! Well, what goes up must come down, and what goes out must come back. So he'll be coming back this way and I'll hide here and catch him. Yes, indeed I'll catch him!"

So saying the Bob Cat snuggled himself down under a big rock where a Wogglejig was making his new spring home. The Bob Cat shoved the Wogglejig out of the way.

"Here, look out, if you please!" said the Wogglejig. "Be careful who you're shoving, please!"

"Bah!" snarled the Bob Cat. "Get out of my way! I'm going to hide here to catch Uncle Wiggily when he comes back!"

"Oh, are you!" thought the Wogglejig. "Well, I'll have something to say about that." Then, being a friend of Uncle Wiggily, the Wogglejig hurried off down the path to warn the rabbit gentleman.

Meanwhile, Uncle Wiggily, not finding any adventure, had turned around to go home. And on his way back he passed Jennie Chipmunk's house and saw the bag of buttons where Jingle and Jangle had forgotten it after their game.

"I'll take this button bag to Nurse Jane," thought Uncle Wiggily. He was hopping merrily along when he met the Wogglejig.

"Don't go past the big rock!" whispered the Wogglejig. "The Bob Cat is hiding there waiting to catch you!"

"Is he!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "Well, I'll fool him." So the bunny took a lot of brass buttons out of Nurse Jane's bag and fastened them on his coat so he looked like a policeman. Then Uncle Wiggily hopped down the path, with the sun shining on his brass buttons. The Bob Cat looked out, saw the sun shining on the buttons and cried:

"Oh, here comes the Police Dog after me! I'm going to run!" So he ran home and didn't catch the bunny, thanks to the Wogglejig and the brass buttons.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE GROW OLD

By Mehren K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action.

"Does applicant look older than age stated?" is frequently found on the insurance blank addressed to the examining physician. People do not always look and act their age. How often you are astounded to discover that some friend or acquaintance is ten or more years younger or older than you supposed.

Age is usually reckoned according to the calendar. But the calendar gives you merely the legal age of a person and only approximations of the mental and physical age.

It used to be assumed that if a man lived thirty years according to the calendar he was thirty years old physically, mentally and in every other way. But modern psychology makes a distinction between a man's chronological age and his mental age. Theoretically they are the same in the normal person. In reality there is often a wide margin. An unusually intelligent boy of ten may have the mental age of eighteen or over; while a man of thirty may have the mentality and hence the mental age, of a child of three.

Similarly there may be a difference between the chronological age and the physical age. The physical age is the state of your body relative to the time it has been a going concern. We expect a certain amount of progress and development in the young and a corresponding amount of wear and tear in the adult and those nearing so-called old age. In real life, however, you are likely to find a difference in the physical and mental condition of several persons born on the same day, just as you are likely to find a difference in the condition of two automobiles placed in use on the same day.

Some people age faster than others. It all depends on heredity and experience. A single experience may turn the hair grey or give a person diabetes.

There are many causes for growing old before one's time. The one direct factor concerns the glands of internal secretion. Not a great deal is known about these glands, but enough is known to show that they are very closely related to conditioning those factors which give the characteristic physical effects of age, such as loss of pigmentation in the hair, wrinkling of the skin, loss of strength and vitality, nervous disorders, general debility, etc.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

GENERAL LIST SLIGHTLY LOWER IN MODERATELY ACTIVE SESSION

OIL GOSSIP

Through Solloway, Mills and Company.

McDougall-Segur 2 was drilling in a very hard formation 96 feet in the lime last Thursday and the gas was reported wetter as addition footage was made. Officials of the company believe that underneath this some production might be obtained and they have pointed out that this is borne out by the fact that the well is logging with Royalite No. 8, which is nearby.

Spooner No. 2 was 95 feet in the lime Thursday, according to a wire from Miller, Court and Company's Calgary office, and drilling was proceeding in very hard formation in which only a couple of feet of hole was possible a day. There has been no increase in the gas flow and officials of the company are not looking for any production until they are in 100 feet in the lime.

Devenish No. 3 has been drilled to around 10 feet in the producing sand but it had been bailed dry from oil up until Thursday, according to officials. The crew are now awaiting the arrival of a boiler.

Home No. 2 well is being cemented in the lime. The well has been drilled a few feet in the lime and casing has been run to the bottom. A few days has been allowed for the cement to harden before drilling to completion is resumed.

Rigs are being erected at three wells by the Imperial Oil Limited at the present time. These rigs are for wells recently located by the Toronto office of the company and are for Dalhousie, Royalite 25, between the East Crest and Mayland wells in the south end of the field and the Foothills No. 4.

Preparations are underway to run tools back in to the Royalite 14 well to drill it deeper. This well had become partially choked off with a reduction in the recovery possible and was decided to deepen the hole somewhat. Some time it will be necessary to complete plans for a resumption of drilling.

A shot of nitro glycerine was fired in McLeod No. 3 Saturday in order to thrust aside the obstruction in the hole but last night the result was not known as the crew were still cleaning the hole. Twenty quarts of explosive were fired in the first shot and three or four more shots will be fired, the hole being cleaned each time. As the shots are exploded lower in the hole they will be heavier.

Regent No. 1, though it is now giving more than 100 barrels of naptha a day, it is being drilled deeper for greater production, according to officials of the company.

Good showings of oil have been encountered by the Ranchmen's well in the Fernie at a depth of 3170 feet and the hole is now entering a sand similar to the Dalhousie sands in the Turner Valley. Drilling is proceeding at a fair speed about twenty feet of hole having been made on each of the last two or three days and casing is being carried.

Rigging has been started for Regent No. 2, which is to be spudded in shortly on the company's lease.

LIST DROPS UNDER HEAVY LIQUIDATION

Break Down Coupled With Increased Tenseness of Credit Situation.

CALL MONEY ADVANCES.

Set at Eight Per Cent As $40,000,000 in Loans Called in.

By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 9.—(A.P.) —The stock market ran into some real liquidation to-day, and prices broke sharply after an early interval of irregularity. Failure of speculators for the advance to attract an outside following, coupled with the increasing tenseness of the credit situation, led to a resumption of heavy "bear" attacks, which dislodged a number of "stop loss' orders placed by cautious investors and traders.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent. but advanced to 8 as banks called 340,000,000 in loans, and threatened to go higher. Time money held firm at 9 per cent. with little business done at that figure.

American Express, which established a new high record at 409 yesterday in anticipation of the announcement that it will be taken over by the Chase National Bank, broke to 343 on the traditional "selling on the good news.' Adams Express dropped 44 points to 625. Federal Mining and Smelting, which dropped 16 points yesterday, fell 25 more to-day to a new low for the year at 225.

Wright Aeronautical dropped 10 points and Kolster Radio, which was sold as high as 78¾ this year, fell 8 points to 41. Columbia Carbon, Advance Rumely, common and preferred, National Cash Register, Allis Chalmers, Safeway Stores, Radio and Baldwin sold down 4 to 7 points.

UNCERTAINTY PREVAILS ON MINE MARKET

BARRY HOLLINGER UP.

Pend Oreille and Hudson Bay Receive Slight Setbacks.

TORONTO, Ont., April 9. —(Canadian Press). — Uncertainty again prevailed on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day but the proportion of gains increased in heavier trading. No outstaanding price changes either way were recorded after Wainwell Oil had climbed to 55 and then reacted to 46 1-2 , the mark at which it had closed yesterday.

Western issues fluctuated to some extent, with Pend Oreille losing half a dollar at 8.00, Hudson Bay the same at 18.50, Big Missouri three at 117 and Sherritt-Gordon five at 865 Some of these were affected by the decline in copper prices, which also resulted in a loss of 1.40 in Noranda at 51.00.

Advances of a point or more occurred in Arno at 39 1-2, Barry-Hollinger at 33, Graham-Bousquet at 19, Dalhousie at 590 and Abana at 166. Many of the Kirkland Lake issues were firmer, with Lake Shore in particular gaining 20 at 26.50. Home Oil climbed 75 cents a share at 20.00.

There is only one manual fire engine to serve the rural district of Williton, in Somerset, England, which contains property worth over $10,000,000 and a population of 12,000 spread over 100,000 acres.

GOOD PROGRAM PRESENTED AT CHOIR CONCERT

Canadian Night, the Last of National Presentations, Observed in St. Paul's Church.

IDEAL SETTINGS.

William Fox, Jr., Delivers An Inspiring Address on "Canada's Future."

Amid surroundings typical of the early settlement of Canada—the Indian wig-wam, the Indian chief, the camp fire, the spruce, the French-Canadian rivermen with paddles pulling against the tide and guiding over the rapids, the immigrant arriving in the new land; Evangeline of the Nova Scotia valley; the voyageurs and petit maidens; the Scots, English, Irish were there, who have helped to build this Dominion; the songs and the singers were there. Canadian songs all of them—Canadian night, the last of the four national presentations, was observed in St. Paul's Church last night, and was voted by a fine audience "the best affair of all."

The Boy Orator.

With the choir selections was included an oration by William Fox, Jr., of London, Ont. (now with a Toronto contemporary), whose address, "Canada's Future," breathed the outpourings of a young, enthusiastic and loyal Canadian. The future of this young lad—he is but a lad, with no affectation whatever, an open countenance, and a free and friendly manner which bespeaks for him a full and wide open entry into the life of the business and country he is choosing as his special study.

Our Heritage.

Dealing with the topic which has been the theme of his championship oratory, "Canada's Future," William Fox from the outset dealt with the problems of the youth to-day, viewing the opportunity lying ahead for the manhood of this young and progressive nation to prepare themselves for duties which may come to them. He stressed the path carved by the great men of the past, men with far-seeing vision, who had left such a heritage as we should be proud to seize the opportunity to advance.

Men like Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir John A. MacDonald, who 'was a British subject and wanted to die a British subject,' were true Canadians and labored towards a grander Canada," said the speaker, "and were British to the core, with a love for the Mother Land which dimmed not with the fleeting years."

Proceeding with his clean-cut and appealing address, he gave figures regarding the possibilities of Canada's wealth—her coal resources, her nickel deposits, her gold, silver, zinc, lead and other minerals, telling of the position of the Dominion in the world's markets.

Politics were touched upon, and the hope of our future lay in the government of our country being in the hands of God-fearing men, who were keenly alive to the best needs, and economical requirements of the various sections of the Commonwealth. With the highest ideals always before the officials elected by our people, Canada could not but forge ahead and become greater than in past days.

No Success Without Great Britain

Three points were introduced to his hearers by William Fox—First, could Canada afford to allow herself to be annexed by the United States and maintain her status? No, she could not afford to be enmeshed by syndicates across the line who would monopolize her great possibilities, and thereby lose our dignity and identity with Great Britain; second, we could not afford to become an independent country; we could not again countenance the idea of separation, and having the protection of our shores on three sides withdrawn; third point, we are better off with the knowledge that behind us stands the pioneer of a great Mother Land, ready to assist and defend us against the foe which would usurp us.

The Last Thought

The concluding words of the address were of encouragement and hope to the men and women, especially the younger element, to take a deep interest in all that pertains to the welfare of Canada and her people, socially, politically, and nationally, with a great outlook, a far vision, and with faith and love of country, instead of doubts and hate in our minds. With these evils banished, we can press onward and become greater in ourselves by doing our duty to our beloved land.

Thanks His Audience

William Fox, prior to his address, expressed thanks for the privilege of visiting St Paul's church and Peterborough.

John McNabb, in pleasant terms, introduced the orator, and later, on behalf of the men of St Paul's, presented him with a wrist watch, to which Mr Fox uttered his thanks.

The Canadian Program.

Ere William Fox arrived, part of the musical program was carried through, the first half comprising the following numbers, every selection going over with a "bang, bang."

In front of the wigwam was George East (Chief Flying Cloud) who delivered his prologue telling in prophetic mein the coming of the pale face and the passing glory of the red skin.

The second item was ushered in with the entry of several Boy Scouts, under comamnd of A. S. M. Garfield Johnson, with Scouts Marsh, MacKay, Wheeler, Millard, and Cubs Ross and Flitton. At the first notes of "The Maple Leaf' the lads, behind the pulpit, formed at attention, while the Union Jack and Canadian ensign were unfurled, and the audience stood, until the closing notes of "The Maple Leaf" and "O Canada."

"The Land of Glad To-morrows" was sung by Charlie Clark, the choir joining in the chorus.

Two selections (a) "Dear Lad o' Mine" (solo and chorus, and (b) "In Flanders Fields," (chorus and duet) were give a fine rendering by Mrs. G. Byers, Jessie Pattison, George East and John Anderson; and Mrs. Byers and William Grieves. The music to the latter was composed by Martin B. Chenhall, the church organist.

Harold Coulson sang 'The Land of the Maple Leaf."

Oration by William Fox, Jr.

The duet (a) "My Ain Folk" (Jessie Pattison and John Anderson) and (b) "Canada Ever" by the chorus.

Then followed three French-Canadian boat songs, the while seven "boatmen" sat astride a plank and acted the splash of the paddles, kindly loaned for the occasion by the Peterborough Canoe Co.

Harry Flowers sang "The Raftmen," Horace Hope, "Send Her Along," and William Grieves, "Youpe! You-pe! River Along!" Choruses by male voices, and an echo quartet.

The concluding item was the tit-bit of the evening, "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise," Mrs. Byers as solist, and the subdued voices of the choir joining in the catchy refrain. Mr. Chenhall, accompanied on the organ, with Miss Emma Lou Chenhall at the piano.

Prior to the singing of the National Anthem, Rev. Mr. Allan was called upon to move votes of thanks to choir and organist and orator, and did so in a very racy and entertaining manner, giving praise, unstinted, to the choir for the splendid program, rehearsed in two nights under Mr. Chenhall—a record for this or any other body of singers.

Adam Sands manipulated the spotlight effect, which added to the charm of the presentation by the choir.

The choir was entertained to lunch by the Ladies' Aid, as a fitting conclusion to Canadian Night.

What is said to be the strongest ore ever opened up on the property is reported disclosed in the crosscutting of the new south vein at the Sylvanite Gold Mines, Kirkland Lake. This deposit was first said to have been located south of the shaft on the 1,500 foot horizon. Diamond drilling operations from the 1,250-foot level also indicated the body. It is understood that crosscut are now being driven to intersect it on the 1,750 and 2,000-foot levels. Reports are that the indicated length of this vein is around 700 feet to date with widths up to $12. Monthly production at the property is being maintained at around $65,000.

COPPERS DROP HEAVY SELLING

Decline of £8 a Ton Registered On London Metal Exchange.

LONDON, April 9. —(A.P.). —Copper on the metal exchange became almost demoralized under general selling pressure to-day and declined £8 a ton, spot being quoted at £79. 5s against £87 yesterday and three months at £77 15s against £86 10s.

The chief factors prompting offerings were yesterday's Wall Street selling of copper shares which was taken to indicate a coming decline in metal and the fact that second hand electrolytic also was being offered.

The turnover to-day was about 4,000 tons.

The market hardened a fraction later and closed at £80 15s for spot and £79 5s for three months.

table at the committee meeting last evening.

The 48th Highland Regiment with its two bands will likely head the parade, followed by the Peterborough regiment and the Lindsay detachment. The schools, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. will also take a big part and then there will be the floats of industrial and historical nature interspersed with clowns, grotesque shapes, dragons and other spectacular features that will brighten the parade and ensure its success.

The committee is reaching out in every direction to gather up every thing that will make the parade the best ever, and when the separate committees report on their arrangements every feature will be incorporated.

THE ADVENTURES OF SECKATARY HAWKINS AND HIS CLUB

Little Gil Tells Something

"This meeting will please come to order!"

Bam! Dick's wooden hammer put the period to that sentence, as he glanced around at the faces of us boys who sat at that long pine table in our little clubhouse on the river bank. And he was perhaps a bit disappointed when he found that not one pair of eyes were looking at him, not one boy seemed to have heard a word that he had said.

They had heard it, all right enough. But they had heard the same words from Dick's lips time and again, and they were nothing new to them. Today they only meant that a meeting had come to order at which a new member sat in for the first time. And so, naturally, they were all watching the new member.

Little Gil was the new one. What a contrast he was, to all the boys who sat in with him! Every one of us boys in this club noticed it. Little Gil was a hobo's boy. He belonged to Old Daddy Joe, the tramp. It just goes to show that, no matter who a fellow is, if he can make people like him, he is one of them. Little Gil made us all like him; maybe he didn't know that he was making us like him; but he did it, just the same. And the greatest proof of that was his presence today at our table, when we held our meeting, and he sat in as a member of our club. Every other boy was neatly dressed; but Little Gil—poor Gil!—he wore the same old ragged clothes in which we had seen him a few weeks before Christmas, when he first showed up around here. His long, faded coat—so faded that its backish color had turned grenish, and so misfit that it hung like an unsightly drape to his ankles; so torn and ragged that one sleeve, slit from wrist to armpit, hung like the wounded wing of a bird—it couldn't help but make us all look steadily and expectantly at its wearer, while our captain hit the table with his wooden hammer, and announced that the meeting was in order—the first meeting for Little Gil.

"Go on—make a motion, somebody!" called out Little Gil, "I want'a see how you do these things. Gee rickets! I got a lot to learn I have. I want to know something when I grow up, I do. I been so dumb all my life, nuthin' but bums an' mulligan-stew—say, wotcha think? Dat ol' geezer sent us a grouse!"

Little Gil talked too much and too fast for us boys.

"Do I understand that you wish to make a motion?" asked our captain, Dick Ferris, as he bent forward and looked Gil in the face.

"Uh-uh!" answered Gil, with a shake of his tousled head. "I want'a see somebody make a motion—then I want'a see how you do after that—so's I kin learn how, y'know."

"What about that grouse?" asked Jerry Moore, leaning across the table toward Gil. "What about it?"

"Well, what about it?" repeated Little Gil.

"The grouse!" said Jerry, a little louder.

"I hear'd ya, but what about it?"

"I asked you—what about it?"

"You mean I should tell you what about it?"

"Of course, what about it!"

"Well, we eat it up!"

"Oh!"

Jerry nodded his head as though he understood. But every one of us knew he didn't. And it wasn't long until Jerry showed that he didn't understand, either.

"What's a grouse?" he asked, suddenly. "That's what I mean. What's it look like, and why did you have to go to the trouble o'tellin' us about it?"

Looks like a chicken!" exclaimed Little Gil, nodding his head. 'Some o' you guys might think it was a chicken. I thought it was myself. Never heard tell o' a grouse befor. But the old geezer said 'I send you this grouse,' so we eat it up for a grouse. Tasted good, anyhow. What I care, if it was a chicken. Good grouse, I said to Old Daddy Joe, and he looks at Happer Nam and they both laugh and say yes. Hap and I got a drum-bone—"

"A what?"

"Drum-bone! Don't you know the legs of a chicken—"

"You mean drumsticks—"

"No, I don't—I mean drum-bones. They ain't no sticks in chickens—those things are bones, an' we call everything by its right name, when we eat—"

"Who started this?" demanded our captain, as he banged the table again with his wooden hammer. "What you guys think this meeting is, something to make fun of? Well, let's stop it right now."

"I didn't mean no harm, your honor!" Little Gil hurried to say, with a nod to our captain. And then he took his seat in a hurry.

Dick had to smile. Even though he was certain of our club, he had to mind, because every one of us boys were laughing now. But the laugh came quickly to an end.

"Gil," said Dick, "we excuse you this time, because it is your first meeting as a member of our club. But don't ever bring up any new names, will you? It always starts an argument—you see, the fellows in our club don't know what a grouse is, do, of course. It's some kind of a bird—"

"Oh, of course!" exclaimed Jerry Moore. "You knew that when you heard him talking about drumsticks—"

"I didn't say drumsticks!" broke in Little Gil, in a shrill voice. "Drum-bones, I said—"

"Jerry Moore!" exclaimed our captain, ignoring Little Gil's last remark as he glared at Jerry, "you are fined a nickel for talking—"

"I've got the fine down," I called out, as I bent and made a notation of the five-cent penalty.

"You don't have to write it down," said Jerry, as he tossed a nickel over to me. "I expected this. I always have to pay for what I say. But it was worth it."

"Little Gil!" came Dick's voice, "we don't need you to tell us what a grouse is—some kind of a bird, like a chicken, that you can eat—but what we want to know is this, who gave it to you and who called it a grouse—"

"Sir Eustace!" replied Little Gil, without waiting for our captain to finish. "That old Englishman. He likes us guys. You know Old Daddy Joe keeps fer him. And Happer Nam—he keeps for the other gent—the surly one in the low stone castle. But listen! Stick to me, you guys—don't you dare to give me away—Sir Eustace doesn't know, you see, that Happer Nam lives with Old Daddy Joe and me—"

"That's not exactly fair and square to Sir Eustace, is it, Gil?" I cut in.

"No. But Daddy Joe didn't want Happer Nam to leave—you see, we been separated so long—Old Daddy Joe is gettin' old—we nearly lost him in the cave—that time when he was sick, couldn't git no food for hisself, y'see—Old Daddy Joe knows. Any day Old Father Time might say—'This is the day, Daddy Joe'—then Daddy Joe say—he told me hisself—says Old Daddy Joe—"

He paused.

"Go on, Gil," I exclaimed softly.

Gil was very sad faced.

"I ain't thinkin' about myself," he said slowly, in a low tone. 'But I'm thinkin' o' old Daddy Joe. Gee rickets! How good that man's been to me! Nobody knows, nobody but me! An' I don't want Old Father Time to say 'Now' to him, y'see?"

Poor Little Gil! How sad he looked now! I could see by the faces of the boys around our table that the little tramp had them all feeling sorry for him. Maybe some of them fe't rather guilty about something—about the way they felt, for instance, toward their own daddies. We boys all had it so good, you see—so comfortable, our daddies giving us almost everything we could wish for. Did we think of them as much as Little Gil, this hobo's boy, thought of his Old Daddy Joe, who could not give him anything, except himself, his company, his comradeship and his rough kind of love?

How good that man has been to me!" repeated Little Gil. "You boys won't never know. But Old Daddy Joe—I'd do anything fer him. He likes me. Once I didn't know anything for a long time; I kep' on sleepin' an' knowin' nothin' fer day in and day out, and then I woke up. And wot did I see? I ask ya, wot did I see? Fust thing, wot did I see but Old Daddy Joe's face bendin' over me, smilin' like—he always smiled, wit' dose red whiskers on his chin stickin' out like weeds 'cause he never shaved 'cepe once a month—he was smilin' an' he says—"

Gil paused. He had been staring straight in front of him while he had been talking, at a certain ink spot on the table, as though he had been talking to himself all the while.

I'll never fergit wot he said," he went on, and there was a faint smile about his thin lipline now. Only two words he said; 'Thank God!'"

Once more he paused, and, still seeming to be talking to himself, he drew an imaginary circle on the tabletop with his forefinger.

'Sleepin' fer days and days," he continued; "dat's wot I was. An' him a-bendin' over me all that time, Happer Nam says. Bendin' over me and askin' God to wake me up again, some time, soon. Cryin' like his heart would break—Happer Nam told me all afterwards, don't tell me, I know! I'd 'a' known it, anyway. You can't fool me erbout Daddy Joe. Even if Happer Nam hadn't said so—I'd'a' known. He's been a good daddy to me, an' I ain't goin' ter fergit it. An' he's been good to Happer Nam, too. Happer Nam punched a guy once, for sassin' Daddy Joe. You can't fool Happer about Daddy Joe, nuther. He likes him, 'cause he knows him. Anybody who knows my Old Daddy Joe—well, I jest guess he's the finest man in the world, my Daddy Joe is. You got to like a man like him. You just got to."

He paused again. This time he looked up, and his eyes rested on me.

"You say it ain't fair an' square to let Happer Nam stay in our lodgekeeper's shack when the old Englishman doesn't know about it. Well, if you knew how Daddy Joe likes Happer Nam, you'd say it was all right—seein' how Happer Nam likes Daddy Joe, too. He done so much for Happer an' me, y'see, Daddy Joe has, we just want him to have wot he wants, we does."

* * *

By Jinks! What could I say to him? Here was this little ragpicker sticking up for his raggedy old daddy who had given him nothing but—what? Well, all I could see, he had given him love. That's all Old Daddy Joe could give. We boys all felt rather sheepish, as we were reminded of how much more besides love our daddies had given us. And I wondered whether or not we had appreciated all of it as much as Little Gil did, that poor little tramp's boy who had none of the comforts of life nor the pleasures that we all knew.

"Once," Gil's voice began again, before I had a chance to say a word, "Old Jacobi was sittin' at our campfire—it was in a glen near Buckingham, and the hobos had a council—old Jacobi took me there. Happer Nam was gone, somewhere, nobody knows where he's goin'—he just has to travel, Happer Joes, because it's in his blood, Daddy Joe says, and once you git that fever you got to travel an' keep on and on and on till it leaves yer. Jacobi took me to the council of the hobos—that was the time when they made my Old Daddy Joe King of the Hobos—"

"What?" interrupted our captain. He turned to me a glance, full of meaning: here was Little Gil admitting that Old Daddy Joe was King of the Hoboes. And Jeckerson, the detective from Watertown, was looking for that very person, and had ordered us to find him.

"Let Gil tell his story," I said, with a nod.

"Yeah," said Little Gil, nodding to me, "that was the time they made Daddy Joe the King. Well, old Jacobi took me there, you see, 'cause Daddy Joe had to go some place before he could come to it, and so I had to go with Jacobi. And Jacobi wanted them to make him King of the Hoboes before my Old Daddy Joe came, you see. But the tramps didn't want Jacobi, you see. Then Jacobi started cussin' and—Gee rickets. It was awfu'—an' then Old Daddy Joe come up, all sudden like, he steps up in front of Jacobi, and says, 'Wot you mean, talkin'-like that before my boy? Don't you know I don't want him to grow up to be no tramp, no miser'ble bum like you!' And wham! he punches Jacobi in the jaw. Jacobi fell."

There was a smile on Little Gil's face, and a strange light of enthusiasm in his eyes.

Oh boy! I tell you my Daddy Joe kin fight! He knocked Jacobi down. You see what he did it fer, don't you? 'Cause he liked me, Daddy Joe did. He didn't want me to grow up no tramp, no miser'ble bum like Jacobi. Well, I'm Daddy Joe's boy. You all know that. Daddy Joe is a hobo. Once he was King of the Hoboes. But never no more. No. He cut that out. Fer me, he did it. He says I got to have a respectable pappy now, an' grow up ter be a big man, like George Washington and them kind. I guess he's right, but it's a hard job—think I'd rather be a tramp. Then some day, maybe, I would be King of the Hoboes—like Old Daddy Joe was."

We all smiled as he paused.

Well, Gil," I said, 'you're a member of our club now. And we want to help you all we can. That's why I said it wasn't fair and square to the man your daddy's working for, if he doesn't know Happer Nam is staying with you, while he keeps the grounds of the house next to it."

"I can't see any harm in it," spoke up Jerry Moore, gruffly. "That old Sir Eustace—what right has he got around here, anyway? Just because he rented that big red and green mansion he isn't going to chase me off the place. It runs down to the river, and I can walk past it any time I want to, if I feel like it. And Happer Nam's got a right to make a living, and if Old Daddy Joe wants him to stay—"

"Why doesn't the owner of the other house give Happer Nam a place to live," I asked. "If Happer Nam is his lodge-keeper, why doesn't he give him a sleeping place, anyhow? Who is this fellow Happer Nam is working for, Gil?"

"Ugly guy," said Gil, with a twist of his lip. "Happer don't like him. First night he did stay in the low stone house—sure ugly fellow the old, ugly one is, Happer says. And listen—"

He paused, bent forward and motioned us all to come closer to him; then, dropping his voice to a whisper, he said:

"When Happer came back next morning, his hair—well, you boys saw Happer, you know what shiny, black hair he had, you saw it for yourself—well, next morning, when he came back, it was all gray around here—"

He tapped the temple of his forehead.

"Gray. Iron gray—a most white. Daddy Joe got scared. He says: 'Holy heaven, Happer. What went wrong?' But Happer wouldn't say anything. He shook his head and walked away and sat down. He hasn't said ten words since Old Daddy Joe is puzzled. This morning I talked to him. He says: 'Gil, you belong to that bunch of boys now, the bunch with Seckatary Hawkins?' An' I says: 'Yes, I am a member of the club. They asked me to join, and I did.' So he says: 'Well, for heaven's sake, ask them what they know about Sir Eustace's house, the place we are working fer, and the house next door. Tell Seckatary Hawkins, he says, 'tell him I told you to ask, an' git him to tell you all he knows, 'cause we got to save Happer Nam from gittin' all gray on top o' his head.' An' I says, yes, I would ask Seckatary Hawkins, could he tell us anything. And there you have it."

I was looking little Gil straight in the eye when he finished. Goodness knows I had been stumped by plenty of mysteries around this river bank, from the time this little ragged lad had shown up until now, and now he presented me with another mystery—a mystery that made me begin to worry as I had never done before.

"You say Happer Nam's hair turned gray—overnight—that one time when he stayed in the low stone house next to your lodge?"

Gil's head bobbed up and down.

"I wouldn't tell you no lie, Hawkins," he said quickly, holding out to me a flattened hand. One thing you will have to say about me, after you kick me out of your club, that I did live up to your motto, fair and square. I like that motto. Fair and square. The only way. And when I can't live up to it, well—I'll resign from the club. Only fair and square that I should. You can't fool me. Nor do I think I'm so smart I kin fool you. No."

'That's all right, Gil. We know you are fair and square. We are glad you belong to our club—else we wouldn't have asked you to join. And we want to help you, too. Happer Nam's a friend of yours. Well, one night he wandered in here, in this clubhouse while we were holding our singing practice, and we all got to like him—and if what you say is true—"

"Wot you think—I'd tell a lie, fust time I sit in a meeting?" broke in Little Gil. 'I'm tellin' you the truth. Daddy Joe got the job of lodge-keeper to Sir Eustace the same day Happer Nam got hired by—by—by—"

"Well, by whom? What's the man's name who lives in the low stone house?"

Little Gil shook his head.

"I dunno," he said; "ain't remember—I did know it, too—can't think on't now—but you'll know him when you see him, 'cause—'cause—"

Well, because what?"

'He's got a blue beard and a green eye—"

'Bluebeard" exclaimed Shadow Loomis. 'A green eye? Say, what are you giving us—"

"Never mind!" I cut in, sharply. "Little Gil has told us enough. We'll find out about this fellow pretty soon, I think."

Which we did.

Omemee

OMEMEE, April 9 (Examiner Correspondence) During the fine spring-like days of last week, farmers whose land is high or sandy commenced working on the field. Leith Laidley and Wesley Wilson were the first noticed in this vicinity.

Roads Impassable

The Omemee to Peterborough highway is impassable for motors below Fowler's Corners near the cheese factory, without the aid of a team of horses. Motorists cannot remember having seen the road in such a condition before. The Peterborough-Lindsay bus broke down while being drawn through one of the bad spots on Friday, and a garage man from Omemee came to the rescue of the passengers and conveyed them to Lindsay.

Much Damage Done

The storm on Monday played havoc with the Hydro wires and also the phones in this vicinity. The power was off all day Monday until the supper hour. The rural phone lines have been undergoing repair all week and as yet they are not all completed.

Guns Removed

The machine guns, which were disturbed on Hallowe'en night and left on church property, were removed on Friday to the government lot where the armouries were situated. Captain W. J. Thorne directed the moving of same and it is expected they will be cemented in place, as they have always been a favorite play toy for the boys on Hallowe'en night.

Impressive Services

Following the impressive Easter service in Christ's Church on Sunday morning the Sunday School service was marked with interest. Instead of the usual lessons, lantern slides depicting the scenes of Holy week and the first Easter were given and were much appreciated by the scholars and many friends who were present. The Lenten missionary boxes were opened and the offering presented, which amounted to $71.54. These boxes were given out to the scholars six weeks ago, and the amount returned in them is a credit to the school. The Sunday school helps to support a boy and girl in Indian schools.

Chicago Bandits Hold Up Rumanian Congregation

FIVE CURSING THIEVES ROB 80 MEMBERS

$75,000 in Money and Jewels Is Taken From the Congregation.

VICE CONSUL ESCAPES

Silence of Church Frequently Broken With Curses—Faces Masked.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 9. — (C.P.)—Five snarling, cursing thieves, masked and armed, held up 80 members of the First Rumanian Synagogue congregation last night, taking $75,000 in money and jewels. It was the first instance in Chicago police records of a hold-up inside of a place of worship.

Laurence Bungardean, Rumanian vice-consul, was among the few to escape loss. He was mistaken for one who already had been searched and was ordered to one side.

Searched for Half an Hour

For nearly half an hour, the robbers, some with pistols, some with shot guns, moved among the congregation, which had been ordered to line up against a wall. From the arms and hands of the women the robbers snatched bracelets and rings. The men's pockets yielded billfolds and watches.

The robbers, frequently breaking the silence of the church with curses, held handkerchiefs to their faces, but before the robbery was finished two of them had abandoned this method of concealment. Some of the members of the congregation said they recognized these two, and their names were later given to the police.

Special Meeting being Held.

A special meeting was being held to hear Victor Phillips of Bucharest, a representative of the Rumanian government in the tenth anniversary celebration of United Rumania to be observed in Bucharest in May. The meeting was in the church parlors, where Queen Marie of Rumania was a guest during her Chicago visit.

Mr. Phillips was nearing the end of his address when the robbers ran down the aisle from the front entrance. The speaker stopped in the middle of a sentence and the startled congregation huddled silent in their pews.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD BANQUET

Rev. J. E. Todd Speaker at Gathering of Murray Street Church Society.

INSPIRING ADDRESS.

The Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of George Street United Church, was speaker at the annual banquet of the B.Y.P.U. of Murray Street Baptist Church, held last evening in the banquet hall.

During the past month a membership contest has been running and the two losing groups providing the splendid banquet held last evening, under the direction of Miss Ethel Smedmor and Miss Marion Armstrong. The tables looked lovely in mauve and yellow, with daffodils and yellow candles in silver holders. The alcove, where a ten-piece orchestra supplied splendid music during the banquet and gave selections during the program, was attractively draped in curtain effect with mauve crepe paper with yellow tie-backs. Balloons of every hue also comprised the decorations and floated in the air during the supper.

Fred Ward was the chairman for the evening, and proposed the toast to the King; while the toast to our Church was proposed by Miss Ethel Smedmor and replied to by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe; to the Sunday School by Dr. W. D. Scott and A. J. Madill; to the B.Y.P.U. by Mrs. J. Wearing and Miss Genevieve Foster, and to the guests, by Miss Marion Armstrong.

Vocal solos given by Miss Phyllis Rome with Arthur Collison as accompanist were much enjoyed.

The Rev. J. E. Todd, in speaking to the young people, was desirous of leaving the thought with them, that they, to-morrow, would be the church. "Our life to-morrow will be what we make it to-day." He said he had discovered that there were no bargains at the counter of life; we have to work and strive hard for everything which is worth while in life. The speaker spoke in his usual interesting manner and with sincerity and left a thought with the young people which will remain for some time. He concluded with the quoting of Kipling's "If."

The guests for the evening included the Rev. J. E. Todd, the Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Sutcliffe, Dr. W. D. and Mrs. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Madill, Mrs. J. A. Morgan and Mrs. Joseph Wearing.

BIRTH OF FOUNDER TO BE CELEBRATED

Local Salvation Army Will Hold Big Rally To-morrow Night.

The 100th Anniversary of the birth of William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, will be celebrated to-morrow. In Peterborough, the local Salvationists and their friends will gather in the local temple at Aylmer and Simcoe Street, where, through the courtesy of the J. M. Greene Music Company, a Rogers Batteryless Radio set will convey to them the message of Commander Eva Booth, to be broadcast from W. J. Z. New York, at nine o'clock in the evening.

As commander of the Home forces prior to her appointment to a similar position in the United States, and as a central figure in the recent High Council proceedings in London, England, Commander Eva Booth has become noted for her assistance to the Salvation Army, and to-morrow night her address will contain accounts of many incidents in the life of her famous father. Major and Mrs. H. C. Kendall, Territorial Revivalists of Toronto will lead the service which will be held in Peterboro prior to the evening broadcast, with the band and songsters contributing suitable selections. The local service will begin at 7.45 and the general public will be welcomed.

The smoke from a great forest fire near Duluth, Minn., was timed by observers and in three days was found as far south as Texas where the odor was quite noticeable.

BOARD REPORTS FINE PROGRESS

Sixty-one Have United With Trinity Church Since First of Year.

WELL ORGANIZED.

At the regular Quarterly Official Board meeting of Trinity United Church held last night in Reid Street Hall very optimistic reports were presented in connection with the work of the church. Trinity church is now in a very flourishing condition and the board are very enthusiastic for the future. Reid street hall has been undergoing very considerable improvements under the direction of the Woman's Association and plans were presented for further extension of this work to make the hall more attractive, and more convenient for the growing needs of the work of the church. The pastor Rev. David Wren, reported that since the first of this present year sixty-one had united with the church on profession of faith and by letter. The communion service of last Sunday morning was one of the largest in years, and at this service thirty-six united with the church, nearly all of them on professions of faith. The steadily growing congregations, and the deep interest in all the departments of the church work was fittingly recognized by the baord, in extending to the pastor a very hearty and unanimous invitation to return for another year. The pastor in reply expresed his great delight in the deep spirit of interest now manifest in the congregation in all departments of the church life, and was very glad to continue as the pastor of this flourishing cause.

The finances of the church show signs of increase, and in every way the church was never more thoroughly organized than at the present time. Deep sorrow was expressed in the tragic death of Miss Helen Wright, for some years a member of the choir. Plans were made for a more efficient method og keeping in touch with the members of the church and congregation who have gone out to other places. A correspondence executive was appointed to look after this very important work. The Old Home Week was recognized and the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Langford were extended a very unanimous invitation to be the guests of Trinity church, and for Mr. Langford to preach on the Sunday of Home Week. This board meeting was one of the most enthusiastic held in some time and the church through its executives, looks forward with great confidence to the future.

The allocation for the Omemee branch for the ensuing year is $465.

The responsive Easter service leaflet was used, after which prayer was offered by Mrs. Blanchard. Misses Florence Rutherford and Lillian Race sang a pretty duet, "Welcome Easter Day." The devotional leaflet entitled "Money Talks" what does it say to you" was read by Mrs. F. G. Sandy. The study book "Drums in the Darkness" was dealt with in three parts by Mesdames W. Henderson, J. Bushnell and L. Mahood. This chapter was on the daughters of Africa and proved very interesting.

The meeting was brought to a close in the usual manner after which Mrs. Blanchard was taken completely by surprise, was presented with a box of chocolates the day of meeting having fallen on her birthday, the presentation being made on behalf of the society.

A social time was enjoyed with Mrs. G. Overholt, Mrs. P. Race and Mrs. H. Lamb as hostesses.

Gordon gave a reading on "Temperance"; Mrs. Ezra Thurston one on "Work among the Indians" and J. F. Everson gave a paper on "The lot of a Chinese woman." Has Completed Haul

Harry Sherriff who has cut lumber here for the past eleven seasons has completed this year's haul of logs and states that while there is a few thousand feet short of what was sawn a year ago the cut is well up to the average. Mr. Sherriff sawed 115,000 feet of lumber this year beside a considerable amount of timber squared. The cut has been as low as 80,000 feet while last year it ran nearly 125,000 feet. There was also more timber squared last year. The mill is a great convenience to the farmers in the outlying district and more especially to those who are engaged in building.

Report Good Run

Mr. Martin Thurston, Burwell Kennedy and Arthur Whetong are busily engaged trapping rats and report a good run which it is anticipated will continue for a week or more yet.

OBITUARY

FREDERICK WHEELER

OWENBROOK, April 9 (Examiner Corresponence).—The funeral took place at St. Andrew's Church, Owenbrook, on Thursday, of Frederick Wheeler, a former resident, who died in Seymour Township, near Havelock, an Tuesday. Owing to the telephone line being out of commission on account of Monday's storms, friends in Owenbrook could not be notified, so on Wednesday evening two men drove the forty miles to Lasswade with horse and buggy, arriving there in the morning, and having phoned to Apsley, after a brief rest drove on to Owenbrook to dig the grave. The Rev. C. A. G. Spence drove from Apsley to Owenbrook, fifteen miles, to conduct the service, which took place in the church about 5 p.m. The journey from Havelock with a team took eleven hours, the roads being in many places almost impassable.

Mr. Wheeler lived at Owenbrook over thirty years, where he was postmaster until four years ago, when due to failing health he removed to Seymour Township and lived with Mr. and Mrs. James McAlpine, Jr., until his death. His removal from Owenbrook was a distinct loss to St. Andrew's Anglican Church, of which he was a loyal member, having been churchwarden continuously since it was built nearly thirty-five years ago, in the building of which he also took a prominent part. His hospitality to the clergy and students of the mission was proverbial, all ranks of the sacred profession from bishops down having been entertained at his home. He was respected by the whole community and was neighbor to all in the highest sense of the word. A memorial service will be held in the church on Sunday, April 21.

WILLIAM HERBERT McKELVIE

CAMPBELLFORD, April 9.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—The remains of the late William Herbert McKelvie were brought from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Stewart, Foxboro, Sunday afternoon for interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The service in Foxboro was conducted by the Rev. Snell of the United Church, while the Rev. W. J. Mark, D.D., officiated at the service at the grave. The pall bearers were Harry Watters, Marshall Keir, Charles Keir, H. E. Cassan, Walter Lowe and Elsee Stillman. The members of the Duke of Clarence Lodge, L.T.B. 35, Campbellford, also performed the last rites of their order for a departed brother. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

The late William McKelvie was in his fifty-seventh year. He was born in the township of Seymour, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKelvie. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Charles Stewart, Foxboro, and Miss Alice McKelvie, of town, also one brother, Charles of town. During his lifetime, deceased was a devout member of the Presbyterian church and until recent years was a regular attendant at the services. He was also a member of the True Blue Association.

MRS. JOSEPH BRADLEY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, April 9. — There passed away on Monday morning, April 8, following a lingering illness, Mrs. Joseph Bradley, at her home in Emily township.

Left to mourn her passing is her sorrowing husband, one daughter, Mrs. Harold Graham, of Omemee, and four sons, Fred of Brighton, Dr. Harry Bradley of Wheatley, Orville of Detroit, and Gordon of Omemee.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon from her late residence, with interment in Emily cemetery.

MATTHEW WILSON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, April 9. — There passed away at the home of his son, George Wilson in Omemee, an aged and highly respected resident in the person of Matthew Wilson, on Sunday evening, March 31, 1929, in his 80th year.

The late Mr. Wilson was born on a farm a short distance east of the village, where his brother Langton now resides and where the deceased spent his youthful days. After his marriage he lived for some time near Dunsford. He then moved to a farm west of Omemee, where he resided until he retired and took up residence in the village several years ago.

The late Mr. Wilson was of a quiet and kind disposition and was always ready to do a kindly act or help those who needed comfort. He was a true Christian, having been converted when a young man, and linked himself up with those things in life which count. He was a consistent member of the former Methodist church, and later the United church, and until recently, when health and strength failed, was always found at Divine worship on the Sabbath day.

Three years ago, on March 28, the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in Omemee.

On March 8, 1928, Mrs. Wilson passed to the better land, and since that time the late Matthew Wilson has been gradually failing. For almost three months he was confined to his bed and was tenderly cared for by his children until his spirit took its flight to its celestial home.

The funeral which was under the auspices of the Orange order, was held on Wednesday afternoon, April 3. A short service was held at the home after which the remains were conveyed to Trinity United Church. The brethren of L.O.L. No. 13, of which the deceased was a member marched in a body. Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, of Trinity United Church, conducted the service, and spoke from the words in John 21, 1: "And there shall be no more sea." Six brethren of the Orange order were pall bearers, W. J. Kennedy, Wesley Wilson, John White, I. H. Fee, Alonzo Moncrief and William Magee. Interment was made in Emily cemetery beside his late wife.

Many beautiful floral tributes were placed on the casket.

He leaves to mour nthe loss of a kind father and brother, two sons, Bert, of Chicago, who was present at the funeral, and George, of Omemee; one daughter, Mrs. Harold Laidley of Omemee, three brothers, Bert, of Manitoba, Thomas of Dunsford, Langton of Omemee, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Bryans, of Maidstone, Sask., and Mrs. H. Thurston, of Ops.

Among those who attended the funeral from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. J. Hall and daugther, Mrs. M. Irvine of Lindsay, Mr. Thomas Wilson, of Dunsford.

Tired Nerves and Heavy Head

So many women complain of both. Nerves are all unstrung. Restless and irritable. Can't sleep well. Get up in the morning without that feeling of freshness and cheerfulness that a good night's sleep should bring. Usually, this unhappy condition is the result of a number of little things, rather than one serious ailment.

Indigestion, sour stomach, biliousness, lazy liver, constipation — these are the usual things that upset the nerves, make the head ache and keep you feeling miserable.

And these are the troubles that ABBEY'S corrects so quickly. Just a glass in the morning is sufficient to sweeten the stomach, clean the system of waste, neutralize acidity, send pure, rich blood flowing through the body and put your whole system in an orderly natural condition. It's surely worth while to

C. N. R. LINES ARE OPENED

C.P.R. Inagurates a Train Service Between Montreal and Burketon.

MAIN LINES FIXED.

There is general jubilation among the employees of the C.N.R. here today. The main ines of the National, along the lake front, has been repaired at all points of the disastrous washouts, caused by the cloudburst Friday night, and the heavy traffic which had been forced to run on the local lines is now removed, taking its usual course along the front.

Except for a slight delay caused by a wash-out at Stouffville this morning, which slowed up the noon train, all C. N. R. passenger trains are now running on schedule. The freights, too, which were held up during the past three days, are now being pushed along at a rapid rate and within a short time, it was said, all transportation on local C. N.R. lines will be back to normal.

On the C.P.R. there is no service as yet to Toronto, but a train to Montreal has been inaugurated. This train will run between Montreal and Burketon Junction daily and will be equipped with sleepers, arriving here westbound at 5.50 a.m. and eastbound at 12.34 a.m.

BIG EXHIBITION OF CASTING IS BEING PLANNED

Toronto Anglers Will Visit the City Wednesday Night.

GIVE DEMONSTRATION.

Fly Casting is Considered to be the Sport of Kings in Trout Streams.

Peterborough district anglers, and sportsmen generally are looking forward with a good deal of interest to the exhibition which members of the Toronto Angler's Association will put on in the Armouries here to-morrow night. The event promses to be as cleverly presented as it is unusual in this city.

Through the efforts of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, Messrs. Jull, Ward, Galbraith, Cooper and possibly Gregory Clark, all members of the Toronto association, have promised to put on the exhibition, which will include demonstrations of bait and fly casting, at both of which these men are adept, while there will be events for local anglers as well. The Peterborough Association looks for a large turn-out of men and rods.

The idea of bait and fly casting has grown of late years to an enormous popularity, replacing, to a formidable degree, the irksome and sometimes considered unsportsmanlike trolling method. The element of chance that puts a kick in it, is provided by the fine line and delicate equipment against which the big fellows have a fighting chance, in comparison with the sturdy trolling lines. While fly casting is not seen in this district to any such degree as bait casting, it is the sport of kings in the more northerly trout streams and well worthy of careful study.

REVOLUTION PLANS FOUND BY POLICE

Sixteen Filipinos Are Placed Under Arrest in Manilla.

MANILA, April 9. — (Canadian Press).—Sixteen Filipinos were under arrest to-day charged with planning a "grand revolutionary army" to overthrow the present government and substitute an independent administration.

Police, however, say the scheme was not serious in its intent and that it probably would have gone little farther than the swindling of a number of natives into purchasing officers' commissions in the "revolution."

A raid yesterday netted 21 men, a large quantity of literature, bolos and daggers. Five of those arrested are being held as witnesses.

Revolutionary pamphlets asserting that Japan would send its navy and supply arms to help the cause were found.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:—

It has been a long time since I have written to you, but as usual, I have kept putting off until 'to-morrow' and have never got it done. I am making my final attempt. I never neglect your page and am enjoying it better each night. I am going to ask a favor of you. Please send me the helps I have marked, and thanks.

The neighbors are having quite a time over the bridge question. I am going to chirp in. I would very much like to have the bridge lessons. I am not the only one it seems. I am not an expert at the bridge table and a few lessons would help to brighten up my partners.

I am sending you a few recipes and I hope they prove eatable to the ones who attempt to devour them.

Although I am not an old Peterborough girl, I intend going for the week's celebration with my Mother and Father who are old Peterborough people. Well Marion, as I am not too fond of corresponding I will close. Wishing you continued success, I remain

Garry Ann."

I'm glad that at last you decided to write again, "Garry Ann". Thank you for the recipes, which seem quite appetising. Will be glad to have you back for Old Home Week.

• • •

"Dear Marion:—

Those who wear glasses will find this a easy way to polish them. Just let cold water run over them and polish with a clean cloth. You will be astonished at the result.

Marion's Mother."

Thank you for your hint, "Marion's Mother". Glad to hear from you again, ever so briefly.

• • •

"Dear Marion:—

I am a long time time writing to thank you for the helps I asked for but better late than never. I enjoy reading the Whatnot and all the rest of the women's page. I have tried some of the recipes and found them good and seeing a request for Jam Jams, will send mine which I hope some of the neighbors will like. I would like the helps which I have marked. Will send some more recipes later on.

M.M."

It's nice to know that you like our pages "M.M.". Thank you for your promise of recipes—and for the one you sent.

• • •

"Dear Marion:—

Some few days ago one of your correspondents signing herself "Virginie" asked for the words of the song entitled, "In the Heart of the City that has no heart." I happen to have it on a victrola record, and am enclosing it to you (the words, not the record). I do not know if this is complete but am sending all that the record contains.

Yours truly,

F.W.B."

Thank you for your help, 'F.W.B.'

• • •

"Dear Marion:—

I suppose you thought I was never going to write to you, but I have written letters and haven't posted them. I wonder if we girls could start a teen age column and write letters to one another? I am enclosing a recipe for Chocolate Layer Cake.

May I change my name to Flossie? I hope no one else has chosen this name as it is provoking when you choose another person's pen name. I remain,

Yours truly,

Flossie."

Go ahead with your column, "Flossie". I've invited you younger girls to start it—but nothing happens. I've changed your pen name as requested.

"Dear Marion:

Is it not wonderful how time flies at this season of the year? As everybody seems to be planning or doing so many important things that so often puzzled our brains to accomplish, but I suppose such is life! So we must, therefore, make the best of it. Here is an illustration the majority of us will soon be doing.

CLEANING

Round the house there's something doing; and I think that work is brewing; For the wife is makin' plans that come each year. With the Springtime now in season, There's no doubt that that's the reason why the dustin', cleanin' scrurbbin' job is here. All engagements we are droppin' 'stead of steppin' out we're moppin'. To a married man the thought is understood. As the front rug is hangin' for its beatin' and its bangin'—When the wife says "Beat it"; Gee, I wish I could. E'en the yard with dirt appalling, needs a thorough overhaulin'. And the shovel, rake and hoe are put to use. Little gardens must be planned on, are the places where real labor's put to use. Up on ladders then a-kneeling, washing baseboard, tile and ceiling; till your knees, your arms and mental power are dumb. Yep, it's up to you—Get busy? plough until you're fairly dizzy. That's the penalty you pay 'cause Spring has come.

I enjoyed reading that poem called a "Peaceful Nest" that "Lucinda" sent in recently. It was my ideal of a perfect home where peace should ever abide. I do wish more of our neighbors would include some poem's occasionally, to help cheer us up.

I also noticed in last night's paper, "Diana" speaks of having a Victrola. I wonder if she or any of the neighbors have heard the new Victor record called "The Cuckoo Waltz" and "Lena Schottische," a novelty orchestra selection. If you like brilliant music it will certainly charm you as it did me. So be sure and hear it.

By the way, Marion, have you tried the new kind of biscuits called "Vegetized Wafers"? They are a vegetable product, containing food value which makes them a health biscuit for young or old. You can buy a package at any store here, and I am sure you will like them.

I wonder if any of the neighbors could supply me with the words of an old song called "She Stands Between Love and Duty" Also the song namely, "Gathering the Myrtle With Mary"?

They were both old favorites of mine in days gone by. And I would consider it a great favor if anyone would oblige me in sending the words of either one. I was sorry I did not obtain the song I asked for in my last letter. However I trust I will have better luck this time.

As I have not seen anything about babies lately in your pages, Marion, I though it would be a good idea to send you a list of definitions concerning the wee tots, which I hope will amuse all mothers and fathers who chance to read them.

Trust you will find space in your page to insert them with my letter, when you find it convenient to do so. Wishing you success.

Sincerely yours,

"Virgie."

Thank you for your contributions, "Virgie," which are greatly appreciated. We're always pleased to see a letter from you.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

"This is my first step into your neighborly circle, but I just wish to tell you of how much we enjoy your page. The Whatnots are so entertaining and I like reading the neighbors' letters too!

"There is quite an argument over this bridge question, isn't there? Well, Marion, you are the editor of our page, aren't you? Why don't you use your own judgment and settle this question yourself? I am sure the neighbors would be quite willing to this and it would seem far superior to this continual talk about a bridge column.

"The neighbors send in such wonderful helps, I am going to ask their assistance in the matter of cleaning the spots off velvet goods.

"I see the committee has gone right ahead with your wonderful suggestions regarding the famous Peterborough corner cutters, haven't they? That is a splendid campaign, Marion, and I do hope everyone heeds the 'Please keep off' signs this summer.

"When I write again I will enclose some recipes for luncheon dishes which perhaps some neighbor might like. Meanwhile, awaiting a reply to my SOS, I am,

"Sincerely, ROSE ELLEN."

I'm inserting your SOS, "Rose Ellen," and hope you get good hints. I, too, hope for success from the better lawns campaign—and I want every neighbor to help.

"Dear Marion:

"Your letter was a delightful surprise—the block of wood, hammer and nails idea for son, I had tried. No doubt you have heard of Dr. Blatz of Toronto University—well, he favors the hammer and nails, paints, and blackboard, and other good ideas, but as T. R. Wylie would put it, 'Dis chile craves action.'

"I have been allowing him to cut out of a seed catalogue and trust he will get interested in vegetables and eat a greater variety. As I said, this lad needs action, he is so different from my other three children. When I was busy the other day he got the damp mop and was trailing it across the dining-room floor and I called, 'Son, don't do that,' and he did it again several times and I asked, 'Didn't you hear mother say, "Please don't do it"?' Promptly the reply came back, 'Didn't hear "please,' Mommie, will do now.' You see I have to watch myself and not forget with a quick-thinking young thing like this one. Don't you think sometimes mothers need as much discipline and training as the child to do our mother's job right? It is so easy to give in to tears and coaxing when the children are little. I firmly believe a mother can lead her children into right actions and thoughts and she will be rewarded in their later views on the problems of life. When little ones first go to school there should be a close watch kept on their play and speech for signs of the evil influences that begin when a child first goes independently out, finding new situations to meet, companions who on the surface are such nice children of good families, but filling little minds full of vile stuff and who practise tricky sly lies. Children need constant supervision and should be taught the right and wrong of things in a right way. Wouldn't it save sorrow and trouble later?

"I have heard mothers say their children never bring home tales and never pester them with their little scraps and quarrels and are quite independent. We must gain their confidence early and keep it. I greatly fear if we don't gain it when they are children we won't when they have grown older and beyond us. I try to keep in touch with all their doings. We had an experience that proved to me that, in all ages, at all times, we never know just when our children are put to the greatest temptations and if they are not taught the dangers of the way before these things come as tests, who is to blame? Surely not the innocent child; many of the older boys and girls who lead others astray were the children whose childhood was lax and who had practised wicked, terrible things as children. Marion, it is a delicate subject, but it's vital—mothers should shoulder their responsibility and each mother knows or ought to know when their children's companions are not what they ought to be.

"Fortunately, my girl, 9, and boy, 7, had been warned and were prepared to meet the situation when it arrived—they told me things I blushed to hear, and I thank God they were warned. They judge their friends now by a high standard and a few of the mothers would be shocked to know what I do.

"Your Whatnot on the Home was good. It is absolutely funny how some people get ideas and then explode them and they grow to be a topic in towns and cities everywhere. I once went to a lecture in Saskatoon given by an American, I have forgotten his name, and he said the home was almost extinct. The next generation would not know much about a home. I was sorry for that man; he certainly missed a great deal. Now, I am sorry for the writer who wrote the article, that was so annoying, but such things aren't written by understanding hearts.

"For the Daily Reading some time would it be suitable to give The Ideal Woman? Proverbs 31:10-28.

"I have written a great deal but maybe the supervision of children will make a topic of discussion some time.

"Yours, PETER."

What you write is very interesting, "Peter," and instructive, and I am looking forward to seeing many letters from other neighbors on the subject of training children. It is a great pity when children don't feel they can tell mother their problems.

"Dear Marion:

"Thank you very much for the blueprint of the cabinet, and your nice letter. We did not follow the blue-print entirely, as we built our cabinet to suit our needs here best. But we got some splendid ideas from it just the same, particularly in making the drawers. We have no bins in our cabinet as I have another idea for bins, which I will send another time.

"I have two drawers (divided as you told us), one for a recipe cabinet, the other as a cabinet for farm information. Our farm papers and journals have experts who advise and answer questions on all branches of farming. This information often proves valuable when we have the same problems, but a scrap-book is a real nuisance when you are looking for a particular item or recipe. So you see how your idea for a recipe cabinet worked out in two ways for us. I made divisions for poultry, live stock, field crops, gardening and horticulture, etc. Perhaps some farm reader will be interested.

"I can see the city neighbors smile at a cabinet like that in the kitchen cabinet, but the farmer's wife (with a few exceptions) can claim the title of home manager, and assistant farm manager also. Naturally her kitchen cabinet is the most convenient place to have such information when it is needed.

"I enjoyed 'Kelly's' letter to-night as I have the very same old trunk full of 'nothings' out of which I make some very good 'somethings.' In fact, I enjoy all the letters, and particularly your Whatnots. Three cheers for your campaign for nice gardens and beautiful lawns. Why not have an exchange between the neighbors of bulbs, seeds, plants, etc.? Some have more than they need of some kinds, and none of others, and may not feel they can afford any extras this spring. Of course this is an idea for city neighbors.

"I am sending this clipping for a neighbor (I think it was 'Marleigh'). You might forward it to her, as it is lengthy (like my letter) and your city readers would not be interested. I am no expert in this line, 'Marleigh,' but have gotten some knowledge from experienced growers and will gladly answer any questions you ask me, if you care to write personally. Aren't you glad my visits are few and far between, Marion, as I say too much altogether?

"Sincerely, DORY."

Your idea for the two drawers is splendid, "Dory," and I'm glad the blueprint helped. One of the great things helping toward success in life is the ability to ADAPT ideas instead of merely ADOPTING them. If you can take someone else's idea and make it fit your particular needs, you are clever.

Thank you for your ideas, and helps. I DO NOT appreciate the space between your letters—and I'm sure the neighbors agree that you should write oftener.

When the blueprint comes back, some other neighbor may be interested in having it for a while.

To walk on Fifth Ave., New York, on Easter Sunday was to get kaleidoscopic pictures of the new mode. Above are a few impressions caught by Miss Eileen Wedd, Canadian artist. (1) Two of the season's silhouettes, showing tiers and the low flare which features the mode. One is of black moire worn with a three skin sable scarf. The second is a deep red cloth tailleur. (2) A brown velour de laine skirt, hat and bag, with a jacket of brown and beige checked velveteen. The wire-haired terrier on a leash adds the last chic touch. (3) One of the new fur cravats, fashioned of beige galyak. (4) Three types of capes, short, medium and long, which are a distinctive feature of the mode. (5) A long black coat showing width at the shoulder and a flare below the hips. (6) Illustrates the split shoulder cape, edged with black galyak and the double sleeve. It is an oxford grey covert tailleur.

THE CHIC SPORTS MODE

THE STYLE No. 3256 is a conspicuous new type for sports in sheer tweed in flattering beige tone overplaided in a rather large diagonal check in hairline brown stripe. The contrasting is of plain brown woolen, used for collar, cuffs, belt and inset pocket. Inverted plaits at front of skirt create a panel which adds considerable length to the silhouette. It's also very smart in printed silk crepe, jersey, printed linen or plain silk crepe.

THE PATTERN is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust, and illustrates in Pictures exactly how to join each seam, which makes it easily possible to copy it, even if you haven't had any previous experience in sewing. It takes but 3 yards of 40-inch material with 5-8 yard of 40-inch contrasting for the 36-inch bust measure. It is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the new Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

MOLLY'S BIT OF REAL LIFE.

By WILLIAM MARSH

Molly Lang had been usher at the Empire Moving Picture Palace for almost three years, and she was thinking of changing her occupation.

"Believe me, Charlie," she confided to the ticket taker in a slack moment toward the close of the evening's performance, "at first I thought it was great. Gee! I thought I'd never get tired of a chance to see all the movies I wanted. But now I'm sick of it."

"If you're thinking of changing jobs," retorted Charlie, "I got a dandy—making a home for two!"

"If it's marrying you you're talking about, nothing doing," cried Molly, stifling a yawn with a slim hand of a delicate pinkness and well kept finger nails. Then she grabbed his arm. "Get on to that couple going out. Isn't he a peach—and hasn't she got the eyes! Say, Charley, they come here as regular as clockwork two nights a week. Been doing it two years now and I expect any time to see her with a wedding ring and a 'I've got him now' look in her eyes."

Molly watched for the pair on Monday and Thursday evenings and when they did not appear on the Monday night following the one when she had pointed them out to Charlie, she was worried. Then she decided that she had not happened to see them come in. But the following week they did not appear, nor the next.

Then the following week as Molly leaned with folded arms against the back wall of the little theatre, she nearly gasped. There was the girl, looking as beautiful as ever, but accompanied by a perfectly strange young man!

Sometimes the Girl came in alone—sometimes the Man. Sometimes she was accompanied, sometimes he brought another girl—and all this after two years of always coming together!

Then one evening Molly saw the Girl slip in at the very beginning of the picture. She wondered if she had been drawn by the title, "Love Reconciliation." As she ushered her down into a seat at exactly the right distance from the front, Molly was reflecting cynically on the ease with which lovers and their loves can be brought together in screen and.

A moment later, she started. There at the door, handing his ticket to the altogether unexcited Charlie, was the Man. Molly's brain acted with surprising quickness. She tiptoed swiftly down the aisle. How unfortunate—there was no vacant seat beside the Girl. She turned back, disappointed. No doubt the Man was already seated—but no, he was standing against the partition which separated the seats from the hall, watching the picture.

Molly flew to Charlie. "Look here, Charlie, do something for me! There's nobody coming in now. If they do, I'll tend door. That girl's in the eleventh row, next to the end. You tell the man on the end there's a better seat down front—and see that you find one and show him to it. Don't wait to talk about it!" Before he knew it, Charlie was obeying Molly's commands.

Molly herself sauntered over to the Man. "Let me show you a seat, sir," she said sedately. "Got just one good one left down front."

"All right, lead me to it," he replied, half smiling. "I wasn't sure I was going to stay."

And presently Molly showed him to the seat beside the Girl, and for her reward she had the look of startled surprise with which the Girl greeted him. Molly would have liked to linger, but to her credit she did not, feeling no doubt that there should be no witnesses of that unexpected reunion.

"They're together for the first time in months—and oh, Charlie, it's such a wonderful scene here. Don't you remember how she says to him, 'Whatever our mistakes, dear one, aren't we happier together than we should ever be apart?' And he says, 'Forgive me, dear, even as I forgive you!'"

"It seems to me," said the unimpressionable Charlie, "that anybody who could take so much interest in other people's love affairs could take a little interest in her own."

But Molly held up a warning finger. "Sh!" she said. "There it begins now. Doesn't she look just wonderful in that ermine dressing gown?"

Together they leaned over the partition and watched, and certainly to at least two pairs of eyes in the theatre that scene got over as the producer intended it should, helped out by the rippling accompaniment of a Nevin love song on the player piano.

When it was over and a magical pencil had traced "The End," Molly turned to Charlie with softened eyes. "Charlie, I won't make fun of you any more for making love to me. I—I—I'm sure I love you, too!"

There was only time for a whispered "Wait for me after the show is over" from Charlie and then more people were coming in and a whole stream flowing out.

Molly had almost forgotten the Man and the Girl, as she thought over her capitulation to Charlie and wondered how long it would be before he could marry her.

Then somebody touched her on the arm. She looked up into two sparkling, happy brown eyes belonging to the Girl, who was holding tight to the arm of the Man.

"Thank you," said the Girl gently, then was swept on with the crowd.

Molly looked after them. Then she drew a deep sigh. "The movies are great," she said, "but give me Real Life!"

BELINDA'S WINDOW

By MARGARET WIDDEMER.

(Contributed by "Dory")

From out of the kitchen window
Belinda feeds the birds.
Her hair is blossom-yellow,
And oh, her singing words!
The snow is newly fallen,
The winds are strong and chill,
But by Belinda's window
The birds find summer still.

The sun is low and sullen,
The fruiting trees seem dead,
But still there shines her yellow hair
And still her lips are red,
And where her flowered dresses
Go fluttering morning-long,
They think that roses flourish still
And greet them with a song.

Beside the kitchen window
Belinda turns away,
And all the summer is shut in
Until another day.
The birds must stay with winter,
All huddled on their tree,
But I have summer always, while
Belinda dwells with me!

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

IS WATER ALWAYS HELPFUL?

Perhaps you wonder why most health writers advise drinking plenty of water, especially between meals.

Now the advice is worth following most of the time because as a people we do not drink enough water, and living an inactive life, as most of us do, we need plenty of water to accompany material along the intestine.

Water is necessary because the intestine is many feet long, and liquids get absorbed from this food as it passes along.

Now if there is any delay anywhere along the large intestine the waste material remains in this one place so long that most of the liquid portion gets drained out of it by the blood.

By the time the waste gets to the end of the intestine to be removed from the body, it has lost so much water that it is hard and thus more difficult to remove from the body.

This is what is called constipation.

Now will the drinking of water prevent constipation?

There is no question but that it helps to carry away wastes by the kidneys, and to some extent also by the skin, but liquid does not act on the intestines as do foods or drugs.

Its main use therefore is to make the final removal from the body less difficult.

Further, if you decide to drink a number of pints or quarts of water daily, don't take more than one glass or two, at the most, at one time, whether it is at or between meals.

Two or three glasses of water, a cup of tea or milk, together with the food you eat at meal time, may be just too much" for your particular stomach, and it has a tendency to make it drop" a little.

This dropping makes it a little more difficult for the food to climb up and out of the stomach into the small intestine.

Now cold water does very often help movement along the intestine because the coldness itself gives the stomach a shock or impulse and this impulse continues down the small intestine and then on downward throughout the large intestine.

So if you are depending on water to prevent constipation and are having no success, then eat the foods that will stimulate the intestine to action. These are fruit juices, bran, cereal, whole wheat bread, stewed figs, prunes, green vegetables, apples if they agree with you. Mineral oil is usually of help.

If you are willing to take regular exercise, especially bending movements, it is not likely that you will have to give much thought to diet to correct constipation.

FAVORITE RECIPE.

BACHELOR'S WAY OF COOKING RICE.

(Contributed by "Genella.")

Half cup rice; 1 cup wheat bran; 1 cup raisins; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 quart water.

cup raisins; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 quart

Served hot with plenty of butter or with cream it is delicious. The bran is a substitute for the part that has been removed from rice; it keeps the grains from sticking together.

BROWNIES.

("Molly Brown")

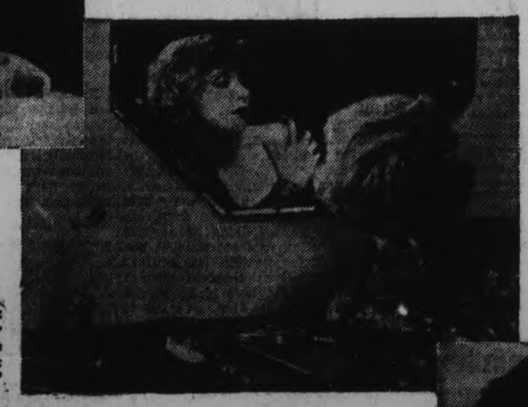
Half cup butter; 1 cup brown sugar; 2 eggs; 1 cup flour; ½ tsp. salt; 2 sq. melted chocolate; ¾ cup chopped walnuts; vanilla.

This can be baked in a square cake tin and then cut into little bars.

Jeanette Loff, charming Pathé star, says: "No matter what climate my pictures take me to, or how hard the water, I have found that Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin enviably smooth."

"I am utterly enthusiastic about Lux Toilet Soap," says pretty Mary Nolan, Universal star. "Even the most expensive French soaps have not kept my skin so beautifully smooth."

9 out of 10 screen stars use it to keep their skin soft and smooth



Nancy Carroll, Paramount — "Lux Toilet Soap is delightful for the skin."

REALLY exquisite skin does win hearts—Hollywood knows how surely it wins them!

"If a girl wants popularity she must have a lovely smooth skin," says William K. Howard, Pathé director. "Without rare beauty of skin a screen star can never hope to win her public, no matter what else she may have."

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. You have only to look at Jeannette Loff's skin, or Mary Nolan's, or Nancy Carroll's, to see how exquisite this delicately fragrant white soap keeps the skin. Small wonder that every one of the great film studios has made Lux Toilet Soap the official soap in all dressing rooms! You'll love it yourself — its generous lather is so caressing, and leaves your skin so velvety. Use it in your bath, too—and for the shampoo, as the screen stars do.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

HAVE YOU EVER been the guest at a home where the hostess was very precise? Sometimes it is embarrassing, isn't it?

• • • • • • •

I was the guest at a home once where the hostess kept her home rigidly in order. No matter when you went, into the dining room, or any room, in fact, there would not be one thing out of order.

• • • • • • •

This seemed terrible because I had to be so careful. Every cushion had to be in a certain position—every book in a certain place, there was a certain arrangement on the mantlepiece, and so on.

• • • • • • •

Really it was nerve-racking. I was really afraid to touch anything, to look at a book, for fear I would not replace it exactly as I found it.

• • • • • • •

There were never things on her bureau that you would find on some women's such as a handkerchief or a pair of gloves. These do not seem out of place, but they were, according to this woman.

• • • • • • •

There were no touches of personal disorder anywhere. I am sure that if I called on this lady to-day, I would find things in exactly the same order. Perhaps you would think this impossible.

• • • • • • •

One afternoon this lady was hostess at a tea when a number of her schoolgirl friends were guests. I had the opportunity then, to find out more about my hostess.

• • • • • • •

I asked if she had always been so precise and orderly and was somewhat amazed at the answer given.

• • • • • • •

This woman, whose home is so riddidly kept now, was very disorderly when she was a girl. At school her desk was always untidy.

• • • • • • •

One of the guests said she had asked the hotess one day why it was she was like this now and this was her answer: "I have to keep things like that because I am temperamentally untidy."

• • • • • • •

She explained that it is only the women with inborn talent for orderliness who could manage to leave anything lying around. Somehow they seem to know just what things can be left lying around without being disorderly.

• • • • • • •

She said if she permitted herself to leave things out of order, she would probably leave her hat and gloves on the buffet, or her slippers on the bureau table.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps you know some women in Peterborough like the one I know—there are lots of women like that. They are very precise and this is due, perhaps, to the fact that they can not make a settlement between rigid formality and confusion.

• • • • • • •

Then there are many women in Peterborough who can place their furnishings to excellent advantage; they may be out of order, but they do not seem so.

• • • • • • •

Their homes seem attractive and homelike because they have the feminine ability to regulate their disorder with a very sure sense of the fitness of things.

• • • • • • •

To prevent dates from sticking to the fingers when you are cutting them, butter the fingers occasionally.

• • • • • • •

Rhubarb is a new arrival on the market at this season of the year. Hemegrown rhubarb is beginning to make its appearance on the market and many Peterborough housewives take this opportunity to use the rhubarb which we all know is a spring tonic.

• • • • • • •

Most housewives cook it too long. It should only be cooked for a few minutes and then sweetened with sugar. If it is cooked too long, the rhubarb becomes strong and stringy. And don't use too much water when cooking.

• • • • • • •

It is always better to leave the red skin on the rhubarb, if it is tender, and it should be at this time of the year. Have you ever been guilty of using soda to save sugar, when cooking rhubarb?

• • • • • • •

I hope you aren't. Do you know that this spoils the taste, besides lowering the value of it as a tonic? Don't put too much sugar with the rhubarb and if you desire a little variety, you could add orange juice to it.

• • • • • • •

There are many housewives who dislike very much washing dishes. Some declare they would rather scrub a floor, or do some other harder piece of work, than wash the dishes.

• • • • • • •

They consider when they get the dishes done after each meal, a great deal has been accomplished. Really, these people mak it harder for themselves.

• • • • • • •

An expert on this subject says that the first step in easy dish washing has nothing to do with the washing. "It is a matter of scraping all food from the plates, and stacking the dishes in piles near the sink.

• • • • • • •

You must have plenty of hot water at hand, and soap. When the water becomes cold and the suds become flat, replace them with clean hot water and soap.

• • • • • • •

This expert says that when the dishes have been thoroughly washed you should place them in a wire drain on a deep tray and pour boiling water over them, and the job is completed.

• • • • • • •

The boiling water dries them quickly and they are left free from any bacteria. You know hand drying has this danger of spreading bacteria on the dishes.

• • • • • • •

This lessens a great deal the drudgery of dish washing and many housewives will welcome the idea.

OLD SONGS

HOW PRAYER WAS ANSWERED

(Contributed by "Lucinda.")

"Madam, we miss the train at Peterborough.
"But can't we make it, sir?" she gasped.
"Impossible; it leaves at three,
And we are due at quarter past."
"Is there no way? Oh, tell me then,
Are you a Christian?" "I am not."
And are there none among the men
Who run the train?" "No—I forgot—
I think this fellow over here,
Oiling the engine, claims to be."
She threw upon the engineer

A fair face white with agony.

"Are you a Christian?" "Yes, I am."
"Then O sir, won't you pray with me,
All the way, that God will stay,
That God will hold the train at Peterborough?"
"'Twill do no good, 'tis due at three.
And—yes, but God can hold the train?
"My dying child is calling me,
And I must see his face again.
Oh, won't you pray?" "I will," a nod
Emphatic, as he takes his place.
When Christians grasp the arm of God
They grasp the power that rules the rod.

Out from the station swept the train,
On time, swept on past wood and lea;
The engineer, with cheeks aflame,
Prayed, "Oh Lord hold the train at Peterborough."
Then, flung the throttle wide, and like
Some great monster of the plain,
With panting sides and mighty strides,
Past hill and valley swept the train.

A half a minute, two are gained;
Along those burnished lines of steel,
His glances leap, each nerve is strained,
And still he prays with fervent zeal.
Heart, hand and brain, with one accord,
Work while his pray'r ascends to heaven.
"Just hold the train eight minutes, Lord,
And I'll make up the other seven."

With rush and roar through meadow lands,
Past cottage homes, and green hillsides,
The panting thing obeys his hands,
And speeds along with giant strides.
They say an accident delayed
The train a little while; but He
Who listened while his children prayed,
In answer, held the train at Peterborough.

The Mirror of the Mode

Crepe de chine blousette trimmed with drawn work, to be worn under a jacket.

A rather fine line is drawn this spring between sleeveless blouses and vestees—for these accessories are sometimes called now "blousettes." There are sleeveless blouses that are essentially like the pique vestees. The practical difference, of course, is that the sleeveless blouses are sold in a blouse department and the vestees and blousettes are to be found at the neckwear counter

All sorts of neckwear accessories—collars, cuffs, vestees, gumpes, etc., are making their appearance in colored editions. Even the conventional tailored pique vestee is seen in bright blue or rose color, and often there are colored pipings on the vestees and guimpes of white or ecru material.

Checked material is used for neckwear as well as blouses. There are blouses of small-checked gingham or taffeta that have found favor with well-dressed women. Checked chiffon flowers for evening wear are approved in Paris. Checks this spring carry with them the air of smartness that polka dots did last year or stripes a few seasons earlier.

Ruffling and pleating four or five inches in width—sold by the yard—is used to give the lingerie touch to blouses and frocks that was so prominently stressed this spring by the well-known French dressmakers. This may be arranged straight around the youthful round-neck collar line or may follow the outline of the neck with one end extending down the front of the blouse in jabot style. Pieces of the pleating or ruffling may form little turn-back cuffs or may be introduced in the form of little up and down sleeve frills at the lower part of the sleeve. Patou sponsors this type of sleeve trimming.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Women of another generation were convinced that soup made from meat stock was a concentrated form of nourishment—and that muscle and bone could actually be produced by it. Now we have learned that there isn't much actual nourishment in soup—save thickened milk soups, and we have also learned that soups contain few vitamines. The result is that many housewives don't bother with soup—at least for dinner. The thick soup that contains a good deal of actual nourishment they serve for luncheon, but not for dinner, since it takes away the appetite for the second course. The sort of soup that doesn't take away the appetite—well, what good is it anyway?

Grandmother may have been all wrong in thinking that meat soups build bone and brawn—but she was perfectly right in thinking that they were most wholesome. It really is a pity that we do not serve them oftener than we do. Soup made from meat or vegetable stock contains what for lack of a better term we call "extractives" and these extractives stimulate the gastric juices in the stomach, stimulate the digestive activities and therefore soup provides an excellent first course for dinner. Experts now tell us that the extractives found in most soups somehow increase resisance to infection. Possibly soup does not provide much additional nourishment but it helps us to make use of the nourishment obtained in other foods.

Don't make the mistake of giving up soup in warmer weather. True, on a very hot day hot soup is not very tempting but throughout the spring and early summer an appetizing dish of soup is a good preface for dinner three or four nights a week. It is an excellent plan to get into the habit of serving too much.

MME. DE NEUVILLE

Internationally acclaimed beauty expert of St. Moritz and Zurich offers this advice on skin care

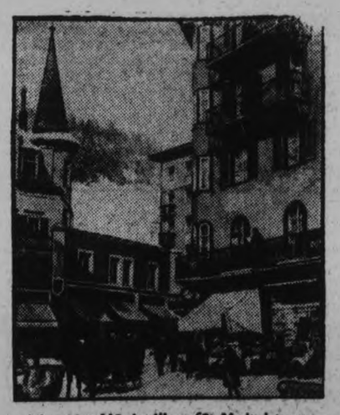
"We advise all our patrons to use Palmolive Soap—combining, in a special blend, oils of palm and olives, because this soap definitely helps the beauty expert in his work of complexion improvement."

P. de Neuville

PALACE HOTEL, ST. MORITZ, SWITZERLAND
ZURICH, SWITZERLAND

From a watercolor painting of Madame de Neuville, beauty specialist known to the smart world of St. Moritz and Zurich as supreme in her field. Mme. de Neuville insists on the use of Palmolive Soap for home care of the skin "because this soap definitely helps the beauty expert in his work of complexion improvement."



The quaint old Swiss village of St. Moritz is transformed in winter into a brilliantly chic colony, with a most cosmopolitan guest list. The heart of the town still clings to its old world color and charm, despite the annual influx of world travelers.

SMART women at the winter sports colony at briliant St. Moritz are well acquainted with the beauty salon of Mme. de Neuville, in the Palace Hotel. This chic studio de beauté is a rendezvous for society women who take extra precautions to guard priceless complexions from the cold winter winds of this famous Swiss resort. Presided over by Madame's daughter, the lovely Mademoiselle Marza, this salon is well known to women from all over the world. Mme. de Neuville, herself, heads the Zurich establishment, a tremendously chic salon decorated in jade green and varnished red.

"The one great truth about skin that women do not know," says de Neuville, "is the rapidity with which a poor complexion can become a lovely one . . . Much depends upon how the skin is treated at home."

What Mme. de Neuville tells her patrons in St. Moritz and Zurich

"We advise all our clients to use the following home method," says G. de Neuville. "First, they must use Palmolive Soap, because this soap definitely helps the beauty expert in his work of complexion improvement.

"Palm and olive oils, as expertly combined in Palmolive Soap, have a most healing effect and yet provide the deep cleansing which is the very foundation of beauty.

"In addition to Palmolive we prescribe the use of Lotion Camphor 240, Lotion Printinieze for sensitive skins and three of our cremes—"

Other specialists agree

When Mme. de Neuville stresses "the bad results of improper home cleansing" she is echoing the opinion of every famous beauty specialist in Europe. No matter where one travels, one finds the same enthusiasm for a treatment which originated in America. Seiler, of Geneva; Pessl, of Vienna; Elise Bock, of Berlin; in England, Madame Jacobson; in Paris, Massé, Vincent, Payot, the exquisite Lina Cavalieri—here are just a few of the scores of celebrated names endorsing "foundation cleansing by one means—and one means only, the use of Palmolive Soap!"

Canadian experts, too, warn against the danger of leaving the pores clogged with dirt and make-up. They join foreign specialists in advising twice-a-day cleansing with the soap blended of palm and olive oils.

This treatment twice a day

This 2-minute treatment recommended by both European and Canadian experts is so simple, so effective: with both hands make a rich lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. Massage it gently into the skin, permitting it to penetrate the pores, to free them of all impurities. Then rinse, first with warm water, later cold. An ice massage is invigorating.

After this treatment, a touch of cold cream on dry skin. Day cream or a good astringent on any oily skin, before powder and make-up.

If you have not yet discovered the advantages of Palmolive Soap, you will appreciate the advice of these distinguished leaders in beauty culture. Try the Palmolive treatment tonight. Then you'll see why the Palmolive treatment soap of the world.

A priceless formula embodying the precious oils of palm and olive, famous since the days of Cleopatra for prolonging health and beauty.

Belleville Would Affiliate With Local League

E. A. PECK PRESENTS CLUB BAGS 6 TEAMS IN LOCAL SOCCER LEAGUE

Twelve Players Will Receive Souvenirs As 1929 Soccer League Winners.

BELLEVILLE WANTS TO JOIN.

Canadian General, Brinton Peterborough, Auburn, Canadian Packing, Quaker Oats and Deloro.

A very successful organization meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association was held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, with President Vincent Stewart in the chair and a full board present, along with six club representatives.

It is many years since that the local body has had such an enthusiastic number of fans present who were taking an active part in the proceedings, so that the teams may get an early start in the season.

Club Bags Presented to the Association by E. A. Peck

Through the kindness of E. A. Peck, M.P., the local association will be able to give the winners of the Peterborough league a splendid gift that will prove suitable at all times, as well as on and off the field. He informed a member of the board that he would donate to the board of directors, twelve club bags that would be given to the winners of the proposed league. A sample bag was inspected by the members and all were highly delighted with the souvenir; in fact, one fan stated that in all the years that he has been associated with the soccer game, he never viewed such a splendid gift and concluded that it would give the players great encouragement to play the game.

Belleville Wants to Play in Cup Ties

A communication was received from the Belleville Football Club wishing the necessary information, so that they may be able to take part in the cup games during the season. The secretary was instructed to write the essential data, all information desired in the letter, and desire further communication from them so that it may be considered at the next meeting.

Deloro Not Represented

Deloro was not represented at the meeting, but they had endeavored to get to Peterborough, but had to turn back again. When they got back home again they got in communication with the president and informed him that they would be in the league, also that the finance would be forwarded immediately. They will be entitled to sign sixteen players.

First Game an Exhibition

Arrangements were made that the first game of the season be a "friendly match" between two selected elevens and the proceeds will go to the association. It is expected that the fans will respond to the appeal when they sell tickets for this game.

Six Teams in the League

This is the first year that the local executive had such an encouraging start; in fact, they never had the good fortune to get six elevens. Of course the prospects look bright from every angle, more so now, when they know that the winning participants will receive suitable recognition. Official declaration from the Quaker Oats was received in writing, but no official news from the De Laval, thereby making the local league composed of Canadian General, Brinton Peterborough A. A., Canadian Packing, Auburn, Deloro and Quaker Oats, who received a great welcome.

Favor Daylight Saving

It was carried unanimously, "That the Peterborough and District Football Association do all in their power to aid the Daylight Saving vote, so that it may become a prosperous issue." If the vote proves successful it will give the soccer fans ample time to get to the evening games that may be scheduled.

Referees Suggested

When the discussion in regards to referees was brought forward, the secretary was informed Alex. McKinley, Jack Clark, Frank McKinley and J. C. Russell would act in the capacity as "knights of the whistle" during the 1929 season. A motion was passed that the association recompense the referees at the end of the season according to the number of games handled and services rendered.

Arrange Schedule Next Monday

The executive will meet next Monday night, so as to draw up the schedule for the coming season and report at the meeting at eight o'clock the same evening. Three members were appointed to go to King Edward Park on Wednesday evening to inspect the playing pitch, so that it may be in perfect order for the opening encounter.

TOO RIDICULOUS.

MONTREAL, Que., April 9. — "Too ridiculous for denial," said Manager Cecil Hart of Montreal Canadiens, regarding a story which appeared in a local week-end newspaper to the effect that Howie Morenz would be traded to Boston Bruins for Lionel Hitchman and $50,000.

"It looks like a deliberate effort to create discord in the team. First they have us selling Morenz to Rangers, now to Boston. Put this down: Morenz won't be sold to anybody. He will finish his professional hockey career, where he started it, with the Canadiens. We are buying players, not selling," the manager concluded.

CHICAGO HAS SPEEDY TEAM

Sox Can Show Heels To Many of Fellow American League Athletes.

YOUTHFUL ROSTER.

DALLAS, Texas, April 9 (Canadian Press). — If the championship of the American League depended on a relay race instead of a long baseball stretch, probably players wearing the uniforms of the Chicago White Sox would win it. The Sox are blessed with two assets—speed and youth. Whether they can run into the first division will be decided later.

Led by the fleet-footed Carl Reynolds who will be one-two-three in any foot race restricted to baseball players, the Chicago athletes can show their heels to many of their fellows.

Russell (Lena) Blackburne, starting his first season as manager of the club, points with pride to the racing gears installed in his baseball machine and expects speed to carry him to managerial fame.

Manager Blackburne in a measure is staking his reputation on the ability of Johnny Kerr, his new second baseman. With previous major league trials with Detroit behind him Kerr was drafted from the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League. He jumped into instant favor with Blackburne and has been given the second base assignment.

The remainder of the infield will be unchanged from the arrangement in force at the close of last season, Bill Kamm at third base; Chalmers Cissell, short, and Art Shires first. Shires, although only 21 years old and a major league player of record for only 33 games, will captain the team, succeeding Kamm, the veteran of the infield at 29. Kamm has been with the Sox seven years. Shires did well with his limited opportunities last autumn and has unlimited confidence in himself.

There is no outfield famine at Chicago. In addition to Reynolds, who shows promise of being one of the game's great stars, Alex. Metzler, Johnny Mostil and Mill Barrett, who is at home in either the outfield or infield, are back again. Mostil has been a double victim of injuries with an infected foot followed by a broken thumb, but will be ready for the opening.

Randolph Moore, with the club a while last season and later in Texas, George Blackerby, who finished the season in Chicago, Clarence Hoffman, high priced addition from the Pacific Coast League, and John C. Watwood, late of Alexandria and Shreveport, La., must be reckoned with before all the places are filled. Hoffman seems certain to stay, as he has shown that he can hit.

Martin Autry, a catcher who had little chance to catch on the Cleveland club, top heavy with good receivers, came to the Sox in exchange for Bib Falk and was at once installed as first string battery man. Autry, a big fellow who thrives on work, will be assisted by Morris Berg reformed infielder, and Clyde Crouse, near veteran.

The White Sox have little experimental work to do in discovering additional pitching talent. The main task will be getting effective results from the workmen at the bench.

Ted Lyons and Alphonse Thomas, great pitcher when right, Urban Faber, 40 years old but still going strong, Grady Adkins, with a puzzling delivery, Ed. Walsh, Jr., son of a star of other days but lacking for the time at least his father's control, the Georges, Connally and Cox, who did little work in 1928, and Ted Blankenship, threatening to become a star, make up the hold-overs.

Long Shy, a capable left-hander, the club's search may have been rewarded by the acquisition of Bob Weiland, a giant, from the Moline club of the Mississippi Valley League. If the big fellow, who is four inches over six feet and weighs more than 200 pounds, can subdue the curse of the southpaw's wildness he should be able to take his turn. He won the only game he has ever pitched in the major leagues. A college campus, St. Louis University, has supplied another southpaw, Dan Dugan, who shows promise but may need patience as well.

George Redfearn, a player of parts, John William Clancy, who was the regular first baseman until Shires reported, and Bill Hunnefield make up a trio of infield reserves. Hunnefield, who is an able hitter, is one of the few surviving holdouts in the majors, and may be traded.

The annual earning power of employed boys 14, 15 and 16 years of age, who are attending day continuation schools in the state of New York, approximates $50,000,000.

Schneider Cup Course To Have Seven Laps

Yachts From All Over World Will Go To See Air Races at the Isle Of Wight in the Fall

LONDON, April 9.—More spectacular than ever will be the seaplane race for the Schneider trophy this year. The course around which ten of the fastest aircraft in the world battle next September for the blue ribbon of the air will be flown in the shelter of the Isle of Wight in seven laps of fifty kilometers (about thirty-one miles) each, instead of five laps over a longer course.

From the west of Cowes to Seaview in the Isle of Wight, and from Lee-on-Solent to the east of Southsea on the mainland, spectators will be able to follow most of the race. The huge crowds which are expected to assemble on the esplanades at Portsmouth and Southsea will now have a close-up of the seaplanes flying past at a speed of between 300 and 350 miles an hour and maybe higher. Great Britain won the trophy last year at a speed of 281 miles an hour, but vast improvements in the design of aircraft have been made since then.

Four nations, Great Britain, Italy, France and the United States, have entered machines. The race will start and finish at Ryde on the Isle of Wight. The Orient liner Oxford will be moored opposite the Ryde pier and used throughout the meeting, which will last four days, as a floating hotel. Private yachts from all over the world are taking parties to see the race, and such a large fleet is expected that applications for mooring berths must be made to the Portsmouth harbor master before June 1.

A new arrangement will preserve the quadrilateral shape of the course and reduce the sharpness of the turns, which are a source of great danger at such high speeds.

STEVE ROCCO IS AWARDED DECISION OVER CHILEAN

Toronto Flyweight Comes Back After Knock-down in Seventh.

DEFEATS ROUTIER PARRA.

Hackett Continues String of Victories By Stopping Lee of Buffalo.

TORONTO, Ont., April 9.—(Canadian Press).—Steve Rocco, Toronto, former Canadian flyweight champion, defeated Routier Parra, Chilean titleholder, over the ten round route at the Coliseum here last night. Except for the seventh round, when Rocco took a nine count, the Toronto boy was always on top, taking all the other rounds but one which was even. Rocco was the more clever boxer and cleaner hitter, but both showed a willingness to mix it. Parra took plenty of punishment with little signs of wear. A wild right swing to the jaw after a left hook in the seventh sent Rocco down. He came to one knee at the count of five and then four more before coming up. Parra failed to follow up his advantage and Rocco weathered the storm, winning the last two rounds by his superior punching ability.

Rocco weighed 111½ and Parra 111¼.

Black Bill of Cuba earned the decision over Johnny McCoy, Rochester, N.Y., in the eight-round semi-final. The Cuban negro was the aggressor practically all the way, McCoy preferring in fighting and falling repeatedly into clinches. Neither boxer did much damage, although Black Bill opened up an old cut over McCoy's eye and pounded away at the optic, varying his style with a solid body punch. Each man weighed 112½.

Billy Ayrton, Toronto, 116¾, slugged his way to a well-earned decision over Frank Edgerton, Toronto, 114, formerly of the United States army, in a six round affair. Each body scored a knockdown without a count, but Ayrton proved the more rugged battler and had a fair margin at the finish after a poor start.

Tommy Mitchell, Toronto, 138, won a six round decision over Al Jennings, Buffalo Negro, 145. Jennings proved a clever defensive fighter, but Mitchell led all the way and piled up enough points to give him the decision easily.

Sam Hacket, Toronto, 126½, scored a technical knockout over Mickey Lee, Buffalo, 129¼, in the fourth round of the six round curtain raiser. Lee took considerable punishment from hard swings to the head and jaw and was out on his feet when the mix was stopped.

GRADS NOT TO PLAY FOR DOMINION TITLE

Satisfactory Dates Cannot Be Arranged For Basketball Play-off Series.

EDMONTON, April 9.—Edmonton Commercial Grads, who won the Canadian women's basketball championship seven times in succession, will not compete for this title the present year, at least.

According to Coach J. Percy Page of the Grads, his team agreed to play in Vancouver, and the intention was that, in the event the Grads won at the Coast, Toronto Lakesides were to be brought here for the Dominion championship.

The dates for the Vancouver series were suggested to President Aldritt of the Canadian Basketball Association, and these dates were agreeable to both the President and the Vancouver Menalamas. However, the dates apparently were not acceptable to the B. C. Association. Another set of dates were selected, and these, too, went by the board.

The Grads then notified President Aldritt they would be unable to play the two middle weeks of April, but were willing to go to the coast at the end of the month.

"We were amazed," said Coach Page, "to receive a wire from President Aldritt to the effect that we must play during the very period we had pointed out as being entirely unsuitable by reason of two of the girls writing examinations. Under the circumstances we did the only thing possible and withdrew from further competition."

AWARDED DECISION

STEVE ROCCO.

Former flyweight champion of the Dominion, who was awarded a decision over Routier Parra in a gruelling battle at the Coliseum last night.

LAWYER REFUSES TO PAY HEAD TAX

Hamilton Man Will Invoke Jay Treaty in Defense in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 9 (C.P.).—The old Jay Treaty between Canada and the United States, executed in 1794, will be invoked in Federal Court in defense of Harry D. Petrie, Hamilton, Ont., lawyer.

Petrie is charged with failure to pay head tax during thirteen months resident in Chicago. He came here from Hamilton in January, 1928. Following his arrest last week he was released on bond of $1,000 and hearing was set for next Friday, April 12, before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

Under the terms of the old treaty, Petrie will contend, Canadians are free to come and go in the United States without time limitation or tax. Immigration officials will prosecute on the theory that the Jay or any other treaty is abrogated by subsequent Congressional regulations, which require that Canadians entering the United States pay the head tax.

If Petrie loses the contest, he will be deported.

JUDGMENT DAY FOR SPORTSMEN

Jockey Club Ready To "Clean House" With Owners, Jockeys and Trainers.

ROUT INCOMPETENTS.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 9. — Momentous days, in the lives of many horsemen and riders, are crossing the horizon.

Days that will mean the future of these folks, days that will bring extreme joy or abject sorrow. The culmination will take place this Thursday when the Jockey Club, the solemn tribunal of the turf, sits and decides who are entitled to be enrolled in the fold of owners, trainers and jockeys.

There will be a rude awakening for many, a shock that will stupefy quite a few. The solons have allowed these lads to play out their strings and are now going to jerk them to land with startling rapidity. The controllers of the hoss racing game are prepared to clean house. When they finish their dusting and shifting around many a familiar face will be missing.

It is known that a list comprising over two dozen manipulators has been forwarded to the various racing associations by the monarchs of the sport. These folks will be denied the privileges of the paddock and will not be allowed to pose as trainers. It is the latter farce — incompetents posing as trainers — that the Jockey Club will wipe out of existence. No more will some wise lad be able to sign an application blank and receive a trainer's license when he hardly knows the difference between the horse's head and tail.

Screaming Comedy.

Within the past few years the list of trainers was one screaming comedy. Names were printed on programmes and practically everybody knew these folks were more acquainted with autos, shoe-shining, bootlegging and anything else than conditioning a hoss.

Their ace in the hole was having a smart man in their employ who knew all about training. He played the leading part behind the curtain. No more, decrees the Jockey Club In the meantime real honest to goodness trainers sat around idle and bemoaning the downfall of their profession.

The remedy is simple, when an applicatiion is filed it must acrry the signature of a bonafide trainer. His guarantee stands behind the application. If he is foolish enough to speak for an incompetent he will suffer accordingly. The alleged trainer will lose his license and so will his sponsor. It will be demanding too much of a friend for him to jeopardize his livelihood as a favor. That will remove these incompetents from the scene and give a genuine trainer a chance.

There will be much quivering in the ranks of the riders. There will be hardly any drastic action taken however, in this division. The boys have received warning that rides that were passed over last season will not go this season. There is, and always has been, talk of a riding combination manipulated by one of the present stars. The authorities know this and are prepared The first wrong move and farewell to some leading jockeys. Down here the officials are on the alert and have passed along warnings.

Positive Evidence Needed.

It takes the Jockey Club a long time before it takes any startling action. It cleaves along the path of caution, and never makes a move until it has positive evidence of guilt. When it is satisfied, it strikes and the culprit is outlawed. Once banished it is next to impossible for one to be reinstated.

That is the reason it has waited so long before jacking up those who thought they were outsmarting everybody. The distant peal of irate thunder has caused quite a few shivers and the bolts of lightning will convince them it is better to play the straight game than deal from the bottom.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The soccer meeting last night was a glorious success all around. A favorable year is looked forward to.

SOCCER PLAYERS TAKE THE FIELD.

The soccer players couldn't restrain themselves any longer and on Saturday afternoon a big squad was out booting the ball around King Edward Park. Every soccer player and fan is carrying a big smile of good cheer after last night's soccer meeting. All indications point to the most successful season for the kicking game yet in Peterborough. Six teams have joined up, the Quaker Oats coming back into the fold. Belleville is anxious to get into the league, and they, too, will likely be welcomed into the fray. To top all the cheery prospect, E. A. Peck, M.P., will present handsome club bags to the members of the winning team.

OSHAWA TEAM IN HOT WATER.

The Oshawa General Motors Soccer Team is in hot water. At a meeting of the National League, the Oshawa team was suspended, and fined $100, for joining the Major League of the T. and D., without asking permission from the National League. Then the General Motors gave the case another twist when they stated that they would not sponsor a team this year. It looks as though the Oshawa outfit is without their $100 and without the handsome patronage of the big motor company.

SNAPPY CARD IN BOXING TOURNEY.

The bouts for the boxing tourney at the "Y" gym. have been drawn up and present a snappy card. Here is the list: W. Taylor vs. K. Copping; R. Sturgeon vs. R. Lesurf; L. Tomkins vs. L. Brein; O. Laderach vs. H. Darling; Meagher vs. W. Westren; H. McLeod vs. L. Hedger; W. Gordon vs. N. Gemmell, and R. Jones vs. M. Pepin. Most of these boys are in first-class shape and they have been taking their lessons for the last four months. The bouts will all be carried out in the friendliest feeling of sportsmanship, but that should not prevent them from being snappy affairs.

VISITING ANGLERS HERE TO-MORROW.

Fishermen of this city will get an opportunity to improve their casting, at the armouries to-morrow night. The Peterborough Fish and Game Association are bringing down some expert casters from Toronto, and these men will give a demonstration of the best methods. In Toronto indoor casting during the winter is becoming a great sport for fishermen. There is an added thrill to fishing when a cast is made that is entirely lacking in ordinary still fishing.

VOLLEY BALL IS BECOMING FAVORITE.

There may be faster games in the world, but a large circle of business and professional men in this city are finding volley ball just about their speed. Practically any afternoon these panting players may be found wafting the ball over the big net in the "Y" gym. They have the game down to a system now, and play it right smartly. In Toronto volley ball tournaments are quite the thing and before the season is over, there could be one here made up of about four good teams from the seasoned players.

AT THE REGENT

BILLIE DOVE IN "ADORATION"

Romance, a dash of intrigue, revolution, love, sorrow, parting, reunion—they all have their say in the brewing of the dramatic and interesting picture entitled "Adoration" that makes the feature production at the Regent Theatre for the first half of this week, and is offered under the auspices of the Local Council of Women.

This is a story of the Russian Revolution with the main emphasis on the gorgeous, exotic existence lived by the nobility of the White Kingdom before the Reds came into power. It has that admirable quality of smoothness in production which makes it run liquidly through a series of dramatic episodes. But love, the "adoration" of a man for a beautiful woman, is the main atmosphere of the tale, and Billie Dove, with Antonio Moreno playing opposite, is really a very beautiful and vital actress, as the Princess Elena Orloff, with Moreno as her husband and Nicholas Soussanin as an unwanted suitor, the Count Vladimir Zouzov.

The tale makes the lady virtuous as well as beautiful. Her love for her husband takes her straight along a narrow path, giving the story a likeable trend that might easily have been changed by a contrasting handling of the human elements. Virtue triumphs finally, and Elena and her husband are re-united. But not before he has nearly killed her and the man whom he fancies jealously to have been her lover. A maid, Ninette, wears her mistress' cloak when she seeks refuge with Nicholas on the night of the Red uprising, and Orloff, spying upon them, thinks it is his wife. Later, when the aristocrats of Russia are working in Paris, Elena is a waitress in the Cafe Russe, and Serge, her husband, is a hack in a Montmartre cafe. He still cherishes revenge in his heart, but the right action of Nicholas, at a critical moment, haves them all for a happy ending.

"Adoration" is an extremely fine picture and it gives a striking demonstration of a type of handling which makes the puppet actors go straight instead of crooked. In the picture of Erich von Stroheim entitled "The Wedding March," the characters go wrong at every opportunity and the inevitable ending awaits them. But "Adoration" does not leave a bad taste in the mouth, even while contriving to be extremely and dramatically romantic. It is an exotic love story, finely filmed.

Perhaps just as interesting as the feature picture is the exquisite short technicolor production which precedes it, "Love's Springtime," with Hope Hamilton as the beautiful heroine of a tale of the French Court in the days when Watteau lived and ladies were useless, but extraordinarily ornamental. The coloring of this superb bit of photography is gorgeous, and the glittering brilliancy of the picture is enhanced by the lovely music played by M. Yokome and his snappy orchestra. Running through the beauty of the picture is the golden thread of music that accompanies it the harmony of love and springtime in the romantic duett from "Samson and Delilah," "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," the dreamy "Barcarolle" from "The Tales of Hoffman," 'Just a Wearyin' for You," "The Sunrise Reminds Me of You," "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," and the famous Minuet of Paderewski for the springtime dance on the greensward.

AT THE CAPITOL

"OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS."

Action is the keynote of this feature picture. The young people and the older ones too, for that matter, are on the go every minute. They dance swiftly and walk swiftly, and think swiftly. The jazz mania that affects the younger crowd, or at least did affect them ,because we are told that the jazz era is on the wane, seems just a little bit futile when it appears on the screen. It looks like an effort to be in the limelight, rather than an expression of any real inner urge.

However, "Our Dancing Daughters" is comparatively innocuous. It pictures the efforts of two young things of the feminine gender to land a rich young man. The poor fish is somewhat bewildered by the rival attentions of two exceedingly peppy young women but the little blonde who plays up to his preconceived ideas and then goes in for a "big time" after she gets him, is the victor over the sophisticated damsel who has a passion for verity and doesn't try to conceal the desire of her heart, which is mainly an effort to get married to this particular youth.

Joan Crawford is Diana Medford, the "Dangerous Diana" of the piece, and she is euchred completely in the race by the soft small Anne who doesn't smoke or drink when Elaine is around. Anne has a mamma with a kleptomaniac tendency which exerts itself in the pilfering of her daughter's belongings and the two disagree bitterly, in private.

When Anne gets tired of honeymooning with her captive, she turns to Freddy, the gigolo youth, who assuages her passion for movement and thrills. They both get drunk and "crash" a party where Blaine is making a pallid sort of love to Diana. Then Anne runs amuck and denounces her husband and his charmer. A hectic scene ensues which ends by Anne falling downstairs and breaking her neck. Diano goes away for two years, then returns and marries Blaine. The watchers presume that they live happily ever after.

It is an effort, somewhat pallid, in a way, unless the picture has been scissored ruthlessly, to place on the screen a picture of what is perhaps only an episode in the life of this generation, and it doesn't appeal to any extent. Diana, who is jazz mad, loses out in the game of life and the little lady who tries to live up to what her husband wishes, gets tired and breaks her neck. So that's that. The man of the piece is merely a pawn in the plans of the ladies.

There is a very funny comedy with this feature, which had a large audience last night, and some truly wonderful little colored pictures that are marvellously interesting.—Jeanette.

RUNNERS FACE TOUGH STRETCH

Pyle's Cross Country Bunioneers Crossing Appalachian Range To-day.

SEATTLE NEGRO LEADS.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 9. — (Canadian Press). — C. C. Pyle's cross country marathoners to-day had one of the hardest tasks of the whole trip and the toughest they will be called on to face before striking the desert country of the west.

Up over the highest portion of the Appalachian range, the bunioneers had 63 miles to go to the next control point, Uniontown, Pa., cooling showers were forecast. The last three days men have plugged under a beaming sun which has held the temperature near and above the 90 degree mark.

Ed. Gardner, Seattle negro runner, led the field this morning, finishing in the lead the last two laps, the dusky Pacific coast star yesterday wrested the lead from John Salo, Passaic, N.J. policeman had a 34 minutes advance in total elapsed time. Gardner won Sunday's jaunt from Frederick Hancock to pull within 21 minutes of Salo, and passed him yesterday, when the Passaic cop finished sixth.

Ken Mullan of Philadelphia and Dr. Arne Suominen, of Chicago, have dropped out. Dr. Suominen, a Finn was leading the race last year when he was forced out.

Will James McCall Be Oldest Present?

The following is taken from the "Personal" column of the Mount Forest (Ontario) Confederate:

"Mr. James McCall, our oldest citizen, 92, when down town yesterday morning as usual, informed us that the city of Peterborough is to have an old boys' reunion next summer. Mr. McCall thinks he will have a right to attend as he attended school there in 1851. Very likely he will be the oldest surviving citizen."

Beauty Of Old Home Lingers In Memory

"For beauty, Peterborough holds its own with any city its size in the country, and for friendliness there is no place like home," says Hugh A. Darke, Box 52, Redford Sta., Detroit, who adds that for progressiveness Detroit leads America.

Mr. Darke, who formerly resided at 124 Rubidge street and married Mary Bolton, is now sales manager in a wholesale fur establishment. He left here in 1915.

From Toronto.

W. H. McCarthy, 106 Duplex avenue, Toronto, left Peterborough in 1895, and is now vice-president and general manager of a flour manufacturing company. He lived on Concession street.

Renew Old Acquaintances.

"Peterborough was my home for thirty years in my young days, and I have never forgotten my old home town," says William W. Lang, Poplar Point, Man. "I hope to renew old acquaintances this summer."

Mr. Lang, who left here on November 8, 1898, is now postmaster and insurance agent. He married May Swanston, of Fenelon Falls. His home here was on Park street, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. T. A. Lang, resides at 544 Elm street.

From Winnipeg.

Gordon Stanley Knowlton, 412 Oxford street, Winnipeg, Man., formerly of 67 Harvey street, Peterborough, is endeavouring to arrange a trip home during Old Home Week. He left here in 1904, and is now a barrister-at-law in the firm of Chapman, Thornton & Chapman. His wife was formerly Ethel M. Matchett, of Lindsay.

"Don't Get Sore."

In standing up for the virtues of his present home, while admitting it can't compare with Peterborough for beauty, H. B. Hill, 500 Anderson apartments, Calgary, adds, "Don't get sore."

Mr. Hill, who left here in 1912 or 1913, is owner and manager of a wholesale paint and oil concern. His wife was formerly Lettie A. Shearer, of Gilmour street.

He's Diplomatic.

Good judgment is shown by R. E. Harrison in answering the embarrassing questions asked on the information sheet sent out with the last mailing. "Peterborough and Lamont are the only two places in the world," he says. "Both are equal."

Mr. Harrison, who left here in 1900 after serving in the drug business with Wm. Madill, is now a druggist, operating the Lamont (Alberta) Drug Store. He remarks that his father, Joseph Harrison, may be in Peterborough this summer.

HOME

Home! Think what that means to the old boys and girls who are coming to Peterborough for the reunion.

It means the place where they were born, many of them; the place where they went to school; where they first attended church; where they made their first friends.

It means the old swimming hole, and the tree they climbed for birds' eggs, and the roads where they walked under the maples in love-making time.

It means the sweetest, most enjoyable period of their lives.

Let us bring it all back to them in memory when they visit us. Let us make it really home—and as like the home they remember as we possibly can!

A MEMORY

Old boys and girls will look in vain for the old Dixon Mill, built about 1842 by the grandfather of Mrs. W. F. Nelson, immediately above the bridge across the creek in what is now Jackson Park. The mill was driven by an undershot water wheel, and supplied lumber and shingles in the early days.

How about having the factories and stores hold reunions of former employes?

Well, what idea have you for the Old Home Week Committee to-day?

Committees Working Toward Big Success

The reports of the two committee meetings held last night indicate that the work of preparation for Peterborough's big week is well in hand.

The Dance Committee, which made so great a hit last Thursday by its well prepared report, is going on to new heights. Business organization ensures the greatest efficiency of operation, and the system of weekly meetings assures the chairman that ideas will be brought up while fresh in mind. The idea of having a big night as a frolic will be commended by most citizens, and the plan to have old-fashioned dancing as well as the more modern steps will create interest and enthusiasm. This committee has the right idea in endeavouring to incorporate something of the olden days in its program, for after all that is what the visitors are coming home for.

The Parade Committee is off to a good start. This committee has charge of probably the most spectacular feature of the entire week, and has one of the most difficult tasks. Whereas the work of the other committees will stand for the week, this committee prepares a "passing show." But it must be non-the-less perfect because of its temporary nature.

Like the others, this committee should bear in mind the central theme of Old Home Week, and doubtless floats will be included to portray in graphic manner the early days of Peterborough's settlement—and even those more recent days of forty or so years ago, which will be so familiar to many visitors.

Mr. Mason's committee, especially, needs the co-operation of citizens, especially those in position to enter floats or help in their preparation, and this assistance should be willingly offered.

Publicity Succeeding.

Reports received from many old boys and girls indicate that the Publicity Committee is succeeding in its work of arousing interest in the big event. The work will continue right up to the dawn of Old Home Week.

At this evening's meeting of the committee there will be presented a design for a four-page folder to be sent to all the 8,000 or more old boys and girls listed. This will give a synopsis of the proposed program, with pictures of the old and new in Peterborough.

Legion Plans.

At last night's meeting of the Legion Board of Directors, a committee was named to form plans for Old Home Week. The committee will meet in the board room of the Dominion Bank on Wednesday at 5 o'clock to consider legion activity. The proposals of the committee will come before the general meeting on Monday evening next.

The board also granted free use of the Legion Hall to the St. John's Ambulance men, who propose to be on hand to render first aid during the week.

The Legion Old Home Week Committee will meet in the board room of the Dominion Bank on Wednesday at 5 o'clock.

No Noah's Ark!

BY ANNE STEWART

In the rush hour around five o'clock on Friday afternoon, with a crowd, we were waiting for a Dundas car at the City Hall corner, when a dash of cold wind and a few scattering raindrops made people hasten their steps, jostling umbrellas in the stampede for a seat in the car. It seemed just a minute till the air was rent with thunder and lightning, and the storm settled into a downpour, which increased in velocity with every second. By the time Bloor Street was reached, we were forced to believe that another flood had come. Policemen with high rubber boots were carrying women and children from street cars and automobiles from a foot or more of water to places of safety. The street was a river of swirling, rushing water, pouring over the sidewalks into store doors and buildings along the way.

The electric fireworks kept right on accompanied by heavy thunder all night long. The morning dawned on a clear sky, but a murky, sultry atmosphere prevailed.

Scores of students, teachers, clergymen and laymen spending the last remnant of the Easter holiday in the big city thronged the new Union Station as early as seven o'clock, to find themselves stranded so far as eastbound trains were concerned. It was here that the first intimation of the great damage done by the storm was found in the morning papers—washouts, bridges down and miles of track under water. Information clerks were beside themselves with the persistent queries regarding trains. When it began to dawn upon the travellers that all C.P.R. trains east were cancelled and that no guarantee could be given that any C.N.R. train could get through farther than Lindsay, pandemonium reigned.

A large crowd bound for Peterborough persistently besieged the train officials. They were stopped at the entrance to the stairs with the information that positively no trains were going to Peterborough either Saturday or Sunday, and possibly not for several days. The crowd went from one Information Bureau to another demanding "Why and Wherefore." Finally a few of the most persistent filtered through and managed to reach the 1.30 train, only to be blocked by other distracted officials. When questioned, one large perspiring conductor took off his cap, wiped his brow ,and uttered in exasperated tones, "Oh Lord, I don't know where I'm going." One determined male passenger boarded the train declaring it must go to Peterborough, and muttered, "There no place else for it to go."

All the while trainmen were clutching at his coat tails. The last we saw was an official boarding the train to eject this misguided individual.

The crowd at last dispersed to await further news of the damage and the possibility of getting home. After hours of waiting the glad news came that a train would leave at 4.50 for Peterborough via Atherley, Orillia, and Lindsay, but that no guarantee of its arrival at destination could be given.

Two wedding parties attracted the notice of the crowd, but their spirits seemed not at all dampened by the fact that their matrimonial venture had started under difficulties.

Strangers exchanged confidences. Some took the situation coolly and in good part, while other, evidently in great trouble, were seen unrestrainedly crying.

At length the 4.50 train pulled slowly out of the station with its load of holiday-seekers, happy to at last be homeward bound, though in no way certain of the route or the probable hour of arrival. The train crept at snail's pace covering some thirty miles in the first three hours.

The most exciting moments of the journey came between Agincourt and Stouffville, where a bridge had been washed away. The crew were still repairing the damage and the train was held up till the work was completed.

While waiting an inquisitive girl ventured outside the car only to find herself and her pretty satin shoes mired in a foot of mud.

With many misgivings on part of the passengers, we barely crept over the rickety makeshift, the train tilting at a seemingly dangerous angle and going over a dip of approximately eight feet.

Sighs of relief, especially from the ladies on board, burst forth when we were safely over the danger zone, and the travellers took on new life as the train sped along with no further mishaps and all the more since we found that our route was shortened by about five hours.

Many new acquaintances were formed and cemented by the sharing of lunches. Prim school-marms forgot their dignity and nibbled all-day suckers while recalling experiences (amusing and otherwise) for the benefit of their listeners. A clergyman had evidently taken under his wing three lady teachers (whose appearance gave away their profession). In return for a sumptuous lunch the parson entertained his fair audience (and incidentally the rest of the car) with selections ranging from Drummond and Service to Tennyson's 'In Memoriam," interspersed by many a "have you heard this one?" followed by the usual line of jokes. One of these was quite appropriate to the danger of the trip.

"A wee boy was saying his prayers. God bless muvver and favver, God bless dranpa and dranma, God bless the hired dirl wif a broken leg, and O God, take care of yourself, for if anything happened you, we'd all be in the soup."

The artistic eye of the travellers was regaled by the appearance of a new Easter bonnet, accompanied by violent red rain-boots, donned by their pretty owner as we at last neared our destination, tired and dirty and hungry, but glad and thankful to be home again "in the country," as Peterborough is known to Torontonians.

The largest valley is the Great Rift of Africa, which begins in the north of Palestine and stretches nearly as far south as Natal, a total of 5000 miles.

RETIRING PRESIDENT IS GIVEN FERNERY

Queen Alexander Home and School Association Holds Monthly Meeting.

The April meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, April 8. In the absence of the president, Mrs. H. H. Graham, 1st vice-president, conducted the meeting.

Arrangements were completed for the oratorical contest which takes place at the "Teachers at Home" to be held on Wednesday, April 17th.

A donation of $10 was voted to the Well Babies' clinic.

Hawaiian guitar selections by Rodney Theobald and vocal solos by Mrs. Foster, were enjoyed by all.

The attendance picture was again won by Miss Walker's room.

The main feature of the evening was the presentation of a wicker fernery filled with ferns and begonias to Mrs. R. Parnell, the retiring president, as a token of esteem and appreciation of the members for her faithful services during the past two years. The address was read by Mrs. H. G. Walker and the presentation was made by Mrs. H. Vance and Mrs. S. Kingdom.

ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Routine Business Transacted By Members of Central School Society.

A business meeting of the Home and School Association of Central School was held last evening in the kindergarten room of the school. Mrs. W. Flannery, president, occupied the chair.

The reports of the secretary and the treasurer were read and showed the association to be in a good financial standing. Miss Buck's room again won the banner for the largest representation of parents present. This is the fifth month in succession that the banner has gone to this room. Some good relief work has been attended to, through which many children are able to attend school. A very successful paper collection was held, and the two rooms holding the largest collections are to receive plants from the society.

Next month a concert is to be presented, and parents are asked to make this a success by their presence. Further announcements about this will be published later.

Scout News and Notices

Third Peterborough "Vimy" Troop.

In spite of the downpour of rain last Friday evening ten Scouts of the Third attended the meeting and put in a useful and interesting evening.

The Wolves started out at the top of the competition again and are on their way to win the third successive race as they have a three point lead over their nearest rivals. Four of the Wolves are practically Second Class Scouts, having only one or two more tests to pass. They are working hard on these so that in a month or so the whole Wolf Patrol should be composed of Second Class Scouts. The Hawks have two who are practically First Class, and inside of a month they should have their coveted badges.

Several Proficiency Badges have been earned in the last two weeks, two Cyclist and three Ambulance Badges being won. Two Scouts are trying the Camp Cook Badge in order that they may be qualified to attend the Jamboree this summer over in England.

Good Friday found fifteen Scouts of the Third out at the Green Hill, near Wallace's Grove. The whole day was spent in Scouting games and practices, five Scouts passing Firelighting, five passed second class Cooking, and two passed first class Cooking. For most of these Scouts it was the third or fourth time they had successfully passed the test under different conditions, so that they have earned their certificates. Some time was spent in Signalling, and it was found that two of the Scouts are ready to pass the First Class Test, i.e., sending and receiving at 20 letters a minute.

At the Council Fire last Friday evening a very important matter was brought up for discussion by the whole troop. It has been decided to hold a Parents' Night, on Friday, May 11th. We are very anxious to have all the parents of all the boys present on that evening. A regular Troop meeting will be run with special displays of different Scout activities. It was also decided to hold a reunion of all members of the Third who have dropped out in the last four years. We are hoping to have a good crowd out to see the progress the Scouts have made and the work they can do.

CLUB MEETNG.

New Members Enrolled At Business Session of Caledonian Club.

Routine business was discussed and reports of various committees were received at the monthly meeting of the Caledonian Club held in their rooms in the Woodmen of the World Hall.

Several new members were enrolled, and the activities of the club for the month were arranged. These meetings promise to be very entertaining, and the members are looking forward to them.

After the business the executive served a dainty luncheon, and a social hour was spent in cards and dancing.

TORONTO, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—Miss Louise Marchese, Vancouver, won the Canadian Amateur Typewriting Championship here Saturday from 14 other entrants in the competition. Miss Marchese made a net rate of 104 words per minute.

Miss Elsie Korniston, Gananoque, Ont., won second place with a rate of 100 words per minute, while Miss Ann Kreutzer, Winnipeg, was third with 95 words a minute.

Miss Agnes MacLennan, Toronto, won the Dominion and Ontario novice championship when she made a rate of 69 words a minute for 15 minutes.

CONGRATULATES HAMILTON BROS.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Allow me to congratulate the Hamilton Bros. upon the nice, clear-cut way that they have the grade tickets on exhibition in their display of clover, timothy and alsafia. Sometimes the farmer does not understand the grade ticket he sees on a bag. For instance, we sometimes see in a bag of pine tree timothy a ticket with Purity No. 1 on it, and we conclude the timothy is grade No. 1, whereas the grade of pine tree timothy is Government standard No. 1. Personally, I think that the Seed Act should be changed so as to indicate the percentage of purity and the percentage of germination on every ticket, and also all official samples should be taken and certified by a witness. As it is, seed man or farmer has no guarantee that the sample taken is the same sample that arrives at the laboratory. I am not saying this as any reflection on the inspectors, and only that the farmers and seed men may have the protection that they should, as they are at the mercy of the inspectors very often. Two samples taken from the same container will not always agree—one might be just low enough to pass the maximum in grade No. 1, and the other may be just high grade No. 2. Now in order that the different grades may be understood, they are as follows:

1st Grade	Registered
2nd Grade	No. 1
3rd Grade	No. 1
4th Grade	No. 2
5th Grade	No. 3

And many a man is surprised to find that grade Government standard No. 2 will stand 200 weed seeds to the ounce, that is, including noxious and harmless weeds combined, and the germination power of a No. 2 seed is 75 per cent.

Thanking you, I remain,

Yours, etc.,

W. H. MERRELL.

IN MEMORIAM.

RUSSELL — In loving memory of George Russell, who passed away, April 9, 1926:

Just a thought of you, dear father,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of affection
That we still remember you.

The flowers we place upon his grave
May wither and decay,
But the memory of him who sleeps beneath,
Shall never fade away.

Sadly missed by Mrs. Russell and her family.

IN MEMORIAM.

CREELMAN.—In loving memory of Lizzie Lauder Creelman, who passed away at Seattle December 24th, 1928.

"You've reached sweet heaven, sister,
Led by the Saviour's hand,
And joined among the holy,
The missing of our band.

Released from pain and sorrow,
All sin and harm unknown,
There comes no sad to-morrow
Where Jesus reigns alone.

But you will not forget us,
There is no loss of love,
In passing o'er the threshold,
Into the home above.

Deep in our hearts lies the picture
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we will keep it
Because she was one of the best."

Wedding Bells

WHALEN—STEELE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Thursday, April the fourth, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Steele, Villiers, Ontario, in the presence of about forty relatives and friends, when their youngest daughter, Gladys Marion was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick D. Whalen, of Keene, Ontario. The Rev. Mr. McNeely, of Keene United church, officiated.

At five o'clock the bride, charmingly gowned in ivory satin and georgette, wearing a long white veil with coronet of orange blossoms, and carrying a sheaf of Easter lilies and ferns, was given in marriage by her father. Under a pretty white arch overhung by a bell, the vows were taken by the contracting parties.

Following the signing of the register the bridal party led the way to the dining room, which was prettily decorated in pink and white. A buffet luncheon was served and the evening was spent in music and dancing.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. Among these was a set of dishes in Limoges china, the gift of the groom. The groom's gift to the bride's sister, Ethyl, who played Lohengrin's Wedding March, was a beautiful pair of candlesticks.

Mr. and Mrs. Whalen will reside in Keene.

CHURCH CONCERT IS BIG SUCCESS

Pleasing Program Presented By Rev. George Morley in Knox Church Hall

Presenting a most entertaining program, the Rev. George E. Morley acted as principal artist at a well-attended concert presented in Knox church hall under the auspices of the board of management, last night.

Mr. Morley is well known as a dramatic entertainer to Peterborough audiences, and the hearty rounds of applause with which each selection was received evinced the appreciation and pleasure of his hearers. His first group included "Corporal Dick's Promotion," from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, a touching story in poetry of the heroism of an English corporal who, meeting with an hostile Arab band, sacrificed his chance of escape to his companion, a young recruit. There followed an exceedingly funny selection, "Somebody Did," in which Mr. Morley most successfully depicted a little boy who did not know how certain mishaps took place, such as fallen cookie-jars, spilled ink, and mud tracks on the floor. He did not know how disasters happened, but "Somebody Did."

Mr. Morley gave as the first selection of his second group "The Quitter," from Robert W. Service, in which an eloquent sermon is preached. As a second number he chose "Casey's Comeback," by Bryce, which is a sequel to "Casey at the Bat," and in which the sermon in "The Quitter" is applied by the persistent Casey who after repeated failure "comes back" into popular esteem of baseball fans of Mudville.

Then followed a humorous recital in Irish dialect of "The Courtship of Larry O'Dee."

One of the most pleasing selections was the first of the third groups, "Au Italia," from Lord Lytton, relating the fantastic appearance of a former loved one to one of the audience at L'Opera in Paris, the vision of the loved one being recalled by the song "Let Me Remembered Be," from the opera "Il Trovatore," which was being presented. It was followed by a much enjoyed little Scotch piece of Owen Smilie, called "Ah Hae Ma Douts," and Dr. Drummond's poem in French-Canadian dialect, "De Red Canoe."

Mr. Morley had his audience convulsed in laughter with his last two selections, "The Donegal Christenings," in which a stammering minister played a humorous role. In "Interviewing the Old Man," Mr. Morley was in turns, Old Man Thompson and Young Mr. Smith, who came to ask the former for his daughter. The difficulty of Smith in reciting the carefully-prepared speech at which he had numerous attempts without success in making his request known, caused much merriment.

Miss Aileen Rose and Miss Frances McFadden contributed piano numbers. Mrs. Ross Williamson, Master Roy Pitchford and E. Rowe rendered vocal solos. Violin numbers were given by Alex. Robertson. Accompanists were Miss Alma Blanchard, Mrs. H. Carey, Mrs. E. Rowe, and R. J. Devey.

MUSIC NIGHT AT BIG REVIVAL

Many Attend Special Services Being Conducted in St. James' Church.

GIFTED EVANGELIST.

On Monday evening, in St. James' United Church, where Rev. George Dibble and Mrs. Dibble are conducting the "Singing Revival," a splendid crowd was again in attendance. As announced, it was "musical night," and Rev. Mr. Dibble easily proved his right to the title, "America's Caruso."

In his beautiful songs he won his way straight into the hearts of his hearers, carrying the message of salvation through the love of Christ.

Mr. Dibble's solo, "The Lord is my Light" (Allitson), and Mr. Mustaine's piano solo, Rachimaninoff's C Sharp Minor, during the offertory, were a musical feast.

Other numbers were a duet, "When Jesus came into my heart," in which the audience joined, was effectively sung by Mrs. E. Kitney and Mr. Dibble. Mr. Dibble then generously responded to requests for favorites with "The Holy City," "The Old Rugged Cross," "Jesus is all the world to me," "The Stranger of Galilee," "In the Garden," and many other sweet old songs. Two full choirs assisted in making this service one of great blessing.

Peterborough is indeed privileged in having these gifted evangelists, radio artists, well known throughout America, for the coming two weeks in St. James' United Church.

To-night, Mrs. Dibble will again speak, and the theme of her message will be "The Marks of a Christian."

The messages throughout the week will be directed especially to the Church and to Christians.

An invitation is extended to every citizen of Peterborough to attend these services and to share in their joy and inspiration.

LIFELESS BODY FOUND IN HOME

Father and Son Are Found Asphyxiated When Neighbors Break Down Door.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 9—(Canadian Press).—Two lifeless bodies, those of John Dutton, a sawmill worker and his nine-year-old son, Teddy, were discovered in a gas filled room of a residence here Sunday.

Led by the smell of gas, two fellow residents of the house battered down the locked door of Dutton's room to find the victims. The father lay on the floor covered with a blanket and a rubber tube leading from a gas jet clutched in his hand. A few feet away lay the body of his son on a bed. Both had been asphyxiated.

Attempt to Capture Naco

Federal Garrison Is Being Surrounded On Three Sides.

ESCOBAR IN COMMAND

Loyal Force Is Marching East From Baja, California.

NACO, Ariz., April 10—(Canadian Press).—General J. Gonzalo Escobar, revolutionary commander in chief, assumed personal command of rebel armies in Sonora to-day as his forces, retreating from Chihuahua and Sinaloa, came pouring into the state from two directions. Apparently they were heading for Naco, Sonora held by a little garrison of federal soldiers.

General Escobar arrived at Auga Prieta, 16 miles east of here, last night by airplane, having flown from Casas Grandes, Chihuahua. He was met by General Fausto Topete, rebel commander who attacked the Naco garrison without success. Topete's troops remained encamped just south of the garrison.

Going Through Pass

Behind Escobar was his Chihuahua army, the advance guard of which was reported to be moving through the mountains that divide Chihuahua and Sonora.

On the other side of Naco, rebel troops retreating from Sinaloa were moving closer to the federal border garrison, which is menaced by rebel forces on three sides, with Arizona to the north. Early to-day several hundred rebel soldiers and four 75 millimetre guns were reported to have passed through Nogales, Sonora, en route to Naco.

Reports reached the little town of Sasbe, Sonora, held by 45 rebel soldiers, that a federal force under the command of General Abelardo Rodriguez, was marching east from Baja, California, to reinforce the Naco Loyal Garrison. A squad of United States infantrymen camped at Sasbe, Ariz., said they had checked the movement of these federal troops with a field radio set as far as San Miguel, Sonora.

CANADA REQUIRES AT THIS TIME "COOL-HEADED" ATTITUDE SAYS PREMIER KING IN BUDGET SPEECH

Gives Direct Answer To "Red Blooded" Policy Sponsored By Conservative Party.

REFERS TO ST. LAWRENCE.

Claims Relating Waterway and Tariff Questions Would Be Great Misfortune.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 10. (C.P.)—The attitude which the government of Canada will assume towards the United States on tariff matters was indicated by Premier King yesterday. Canada will assume a "cool-headed attitude."

"It is not a red-blooded attitude that is needed at the present moment so much as a cool-headed attitude," asserted the Prime Minister, addressing his remarks directly to the Conservative opposition.

"And a cool-headed attitude is the attitude which this administration has taken with regard to all tariff matters from the time it came into office; and that is the attitude which we intend to take during the time we are serving the people in the posts which we now occupy."

Great Misfortune.

Mr. King, who was speaking on the budget, made direct reference to the St. Lawrence Waterway.

"I want to make this further position clear," he stated to the House. "Of late there has been brought into the discussion of the possible adjustments of the tariff, reference to the St. Lawrence Waterway. Representations have been made to the effect that, in some way or other, these two questions are being discussed together, that the one question is being made to relate in some measure to the other. May I say that I can conceive of no greater misfortune than that the question of the St. Lawrence Waterway should be mixed up in any way with the question of the tariff of this country; or that the question of the tariff of Canada should be in any way related to the question of the development of the St. Lawrence."

Premier King spoke for nearly three hours, and his speech was followed by crowded galleries and a fairly well filled House. He devoted the greater part of his speech to answering statements made by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, who on March 7th moved the Conservative amendment to the budget. Consequently the Prime Minister's address to-day went exhaustively into the financial progress of the Dominion, and compared conditions now with those prevailing under the former administration. He informed the House that the Government looked upon the Conservative amendment, and also the U.F.A. sub-amendment, as want of confidence motions.

The remarks of the Prime Minister bearing on the sub-amendment which calls for consideration of an increase in the British preference, were significant.

Increase British Preference.

"Year after year," he said, "we have considered carefully wherein we could extend and increase the British preference. And I may say to my honorable friends, we intend to do that from this time onward. I want no misunderstanding as to why we have to reject their resolution. It is not because we are not strongly in favor of the British preference. It is not because we have not considered it. We have made some increase in the British preference in the present budget. But I have to tell my honorable friends frankly and firmly, and I think they must in their hearts agree with me, that there are strong reason why, in this session above all sessions, we should do as little as possible to change the tariff. I think that is the wisest course we can pursue. Next session we will, as I have already said, deal with the situation as we find it at that particular time."

Mr. King took the ground that it would be unwise at the present time to take any action with respect to the Canadian tariff which might be regarded as "provocative" by the people of the United States. When it came to the working out of any international problem, the success or failure of the negotiations would depend more than anything else on the atmosphere of trust and good will between the peoples interested.

"I think it is all-important," said Mr. King, "that with respect to the tariff, as with respect to everything else, we should not strive to create an atmosphere that is hostile, but, as far as we can, to preserve an atmosphere of good will between this country and our neighbors to the south."

The House of Commons adjourned at eleven o'clock last night with the debate on the budget still in progress.

C.N.R. FAMILY IS PROUD OF 94

Train From Toronto to Port Hope Via Blackwater Never Fails.

SEVEN WASHOUTS.

In the local C. N. R. family there is a new and deeper feeling of pride centering around the Peterborough to Toronto train, by way of Lindsay, because of its performance in remaining on its regular course, in spite of all the vicissitudes of the troublesome week-end.

West of Blackwater Junction Saturday morning reconstruction squads were struggling with six or seven washouts. So well did they work that the evening train, No. 94, leaving the Toronto Union station for Port Hope, arrived in Peterborough shortly after 11 p.m., about half an hour ahead of another passenger train, which left Toronto much earlier in the afternoon, but was routed by way of the Washago-Atherly loop. It took the regular train more than six hours to make the trip to Peterborough, and over some of the hurriedly repaired roadbed the coaches lurched ever so slightly as they tested the work that bridged the emergency.

New Gap in Road.

Sunday, however, brought a new gap in the line near Stouffville, but this washout was repaired by 7 a.m., Monday, and again the afternoon C. N.R. passenger train for Port Hope,

OLD COXSWAIN GIVES LOGBOOK TO KING GEORGE

William King, Old Shipmate of His Majesty, Visits Craigwell House.

RAIN AT BOGNOR.

Duke and Duchess of York Pay Visit to Their Majesties.

BOGNOR, Sussex, April 10 (C.P.) The King was deprived of a morning in the grounds of Craigwell House yesterday by rain, which fell shortly after he had entered the gardens in brilliant sunshine. The Duke and Duchess of York visited Their Majesties and a big crowd cheered them on their arrival at the Bognor railway station. This was the first time the Duchess had seen her father-in-law since he was taken ill last November. During the last week or two the King was ill in London the Duchess herself was suffering from influenza and unable to visit Buckingham Palace.

Dr. Hewitt and Dr. Woods again applied the diathemy electric ray treatment to His Majesty's shoulder in the afternoon, the treatment taking place on alternate days to overcome rheumatism.

An old shipmate of the King, who lives at Bognor, was invited to Craigwell House by Major the Hon. Alexander Hardcabe, assistant private secretary to His Majesty. William King who is 75 years of age, served on H.M.S. Bacchante as coxswain when the present ruler was a midshipman on the vessel from July 1879, to August, 1882. Recently he wrote to Craigwell House saying he had sailed 54,000 miles with the King, and asked permission to bring the log book he had kept posted through all his naval service. Major Hardinge took the log book and pictures of the Bacchante to His Majesty, who was very interested in them.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., April 10. — (C.P.) — Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed here at 9.30 a.m. to-day from the interior of Mexico where he spent the night after taking off from Mexico City yesterday.

The flyer said it was of interest to himself and no one else where he had spent the night, and explained that he had no intention of flying beyond the border of Mexico yesterday when he left Mexico City.

Friends of Lindbergh here said they believed he might have stopped at a ranch near Tampico.

"I regret very much that the press has seen fit by an unauthorized statement, to cause unnecessary anxiety for my safety," Lindbergh said.

TRUCK DRIVER CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Morganston Woman Dies After Being Injured in Motor Accident.

ONE CAR MISSING.

Inquest Will Be Held On Friday Night, With Preliminary On Saturday.

BRIGHTON, April 10 (Special to The Examiner).—Mrs. Herman Reynolds, aged 55 years, and a resident of Morganston, near here, is dead and buried and W. A. Stiver, 26-year-old driver of a Quinte transport truck from Trenton is held here on a charge of manslaughter—the aftermath to a serious motor accident which occurred about 6.30 Thursday night last on the highway two miles east of Morganston. From information given The Examiner by Provincial Constable McBrien, of Brighton, it appears that the late Mrs. Reynolds and her daughter (who is a teacher at Frankford) were driving west when the Quinte company truck, coming east, swung out to pass another car, proceeding in the same direction. Both eastbound car and truck were believed to have been travelling at a considerable speed; the truck failed to get around the car and side-swiped the car in which Mrs. Reynolds was riding. Her injuries were so serious that she could not be removed to hospital and she died at five o'clock Saturday evening at the home of Mr. Fritz, near the scene of the accident, whence she had been immediately removed following her injuries. Doctors Sundle and Dure of Brighton were in attendance.

While the other motor car which figured in the accident to some extent, could not be located afterward, Stiver, the truck driver, is held here and will come up for preliminary hearing on the manslaughter charge this Saturday, April 13. The inquest into Mrs. Reynolds' death will take place Friday evening, April 12.

President's Friends Claim That Force Will Be Used

International Rum Running Negotiations Are Again Subject of Correspondence Between Canada and United States.

RUMOR SAYS CANADIAN NOTE IS NOT SATISFACTORY; BUSINESS IS GOING MERRILY ON OFFICIALS CLAIM

In Last Week of March No Less Than 18 Carloads of Canadian Whiskey For Export Arrived at Walkerville Over Canada's Publicly Owned Railways.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 10 (Special to The Examiner). — International negotiations regarding rum-running on the border between Canada and the United States are again in the correspondence stage. Following the conference held at Ottawa early in January by representatives of both countries and the submission at that time of a request by the United States Government that Canada would stop the clearance from Canadian ports of boats carrying liquor, the Canadian note in reply to this request has, it is reported, been received, but the contents have not been made public.

Rumor has it that the reply is not satisfactory, that the whole matter is still open, and that the writing of the last chapter is some way off yet.

The whole story of inception, development and present activity of rum running and of the steps taken to deal with the matter is a long one. In the meantime the business is going merrily on. In the last week of March no less than 18 carloads of Canadian whiskey for export to the U. S. arrived at Walkerville over Canada's public owned railway. This is apart from the enormous shipments made by Hiram Walker's distillery. While all of this liquor was shipped from Walkerville, presumably in accordance with Canadian law, not a bottle of it could be, or was legally landed in the U. S.

If nothing comes of the present negotiations there would seem to be only one course left open to the U. S. authorities, and that is to increase the border prohibition force to such a strength that it will be able to do the job. Those who know President Hoover say that when he starts a thing he generally finishes it. If and when he thinks the time has come that diplomacy has failed to stop rum running, and that force is the only means left to turn off the border liquor tap, he will use force, and sufficient force to do it, they claim. It is further said that the country will back him in even most drastic measures to make the international border booze-tight.

BISHOP O'BRIEN GOING TO ROME

Priests of Diocese Present His Lordship With a Cheque For $2,400.

LEFT LAST NIGHT.

The priests of the diocese assembled at St. Peter's Rectory at noon yesterday for a farewell dinner to His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, who left by motor for Toronto last evening, en route to Rome, to make a visit to the Holy Pontiff, on the occasion of the celebration of the Pope's Jubilee anniversary.

The priests presented His Lordship with a cheque for $2,400 and extended to him their best wishes for a successful voyage and safe return. During his absence, the Bishop will visit many of the famous shrines of Europe and expects to return to the city about July 1st.

He is eaccompanied on his visit to Rome by the Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore and the Rev. Dean T. Crowley of Sault Ste. Marie.

A gesture of affection in farewell to their pastor was tendered by the pupils of the Separate Schools of the city, assembled at the Cathedral yesterday afternoon for the service of Benediction and to hear the parting words of the Bishop to the youthful members of his flock. In the morning the children presented His Lordship with a spiritual bouquet of prayers promised for his welfare and safe return.

NOTES WILL BE MADE PUBLIC

American Reply To Canadian Memorandum Being Drawn Up.

CONCILIATORY NATURE.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 10 (C.P.).—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson said to-day that the United States reply to the Canadian Government's memorandum on the sinking of the Lunenburg schooner I'm Alone, was being prepared and that as soon as it had been delivered to the Canadian minister, Vincent Massey, both notes would be made public.

Mr. Stimson said the tone of the Canadian note was most temperate and conciliatory. Newspaper accounts giving an impression that the note was truculent, he said, were in error and that the reverse was the truth. The delivery of the note to the Canadian Government will be only a matter of a few days, the Secretary said.

SEARCH FAILS TO FIND GIRL'S BODY

Parties Look Vainly Along Harmony Creek For Body of Helen Wright.

The search being carried on at Harmony Creek by friends, police, and Highway Department men, for the body of Miss Helen Wright, has so far failed to reveal any clue of the whereabouts of the body. Not even a piece of the girl's clothing has rewarded the ardent search.

The opinion is maintained among residents of the neighborhood that the body has been caught beneath the debris of the broken bridge. However, dynamite has been used and every piece of the cement has been broken up.

GOVERNMENT'S ELECTION STAND BEING AWAITED BY ALL CLASSES

Usual Side Issues Are Expected To Figure in Battle at the Polls.

SUNDAY THEATRES.

Scottish Nationalist Party Is Planning to Contest Seats.

LONDON, April 10.—(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—While the political prophets endeavor to forecast the government election program which Premier Stanley Balwin will unfold on April 18, advices indicate some unusual side issues will figure in the battle at the polls. The International Federation of Spiritualism would bring spiritualism into the fight. They want an amendment to the Witchcraft Act, passed 193 years ago, in which it is virtually claimed there are no spirits and that anyone claiming communication with the spirit world is merely pretending; and this pretence under the act involves a penalty.

Others talk of Sunday theatres for London as a local sideline in the campaign.

Undeterred by their lack of success in the north Midlothian by-election some weeks ago members of the Scottish Nationalist party are planning to contest a number of Scottish seats on the issue of Home Rule for Scotland.

And again there will be Communist candidates. Four are expected to run in the various divisions of Lanarkshire, Scotland. A woman Communist candidate has been adopted in the Mansfield division of Nottinghamshire one of the two seats vacant at present. F. H. Varley, labor member, having died recently.

Thirteen Large Swans Seen On Stoney Lake

Thirteen large white swans spent last night on Chemong Lake just north of the floating bridge near the village of Bridgenorth. Several hours before sundown the swans were seen to light on the lake and many interested villagers went down to get a clear view of them.

Several persons approached within a distance of fifty feet of them. They were the large variety of white swans usually seen in zoological gardens. It is declared to be the first time in the memory of residents that swans have been seen in Chemong Lake.

Wild geese have been seen flying over the village daily in big squadrons, but rarely do they alight on the lake.

POLICE RECEIVE HURRIED CALL TO RESCUE "BODY" OF WOMAN

After Frantic Efforts Rescuers Find "Body" Is Only Plaster of Paris Bust.

TAKEN FROM RIVER.

Great Excitement Prevails Along Banks of the Otonabee.

The bust of a beautiful woman was rescued from the icy waters of the river at noon to-day.

The body, it is said, was first seen by some boys as it floated in the current near the Belmont club house. The news spread like wildfire among the residents of the district. Hurried calls were rushed through to the police station.

Such frantic messages as "A woman is drowning in the river", Orval Shaw is here" and "Come quick" rattled over the wire breathlessly into the ear of the sergeant on the desk.

The police car bearing policemen and a detective was immediately dispatched to the scene.

No boat was in sight in which to retrieve the body which could be plainly seen some twenty-five feet from the shore. But a daring youth made an heroic salvage of the body. Paddling a home-made dugout he reached the body and dragged it to the shore.

It could be plainly seen as that of a very beautiful woman. Her cheeks were rosy; her complexion pink and white; her hair a lustrous black.

Only Plaster-of-Paris Bust

Gunboat In Great Lakes Questioned By Member

OTTAWA, Ont., April 10. — (Canadian Press). —Questions regarding the approach to the Canadian shore in one of the great lakes recently of a United States gunboat, have been placed on the order paper of the House of Commons by Gen. Ross requests information as to whether there is an agreement between the two countries for the use of gun boats on the Great Lakes and if Canada has any armed boats thereon.

Post Office Janitor Confesses He Planted "Scare" Bomb In Order To Gain Promotion

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 10 (Canadian Press). — Postal inspectors announced last night that Thomas J. Calleg, porter of the New York General Post Office, had confessed that he constructed the "scare" bomb found in the post office addressed to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt "to win promotion by discovering it before it was delivered."

Calleg, according to the inspectors who arrested him at his home at 215 Jefferson Street, Hoboken, N.J., said he had read of a case in Chicago where a porter had found a bomb and had been promoted because he had reported it before it had caused any damage.

"I was tired of sweeping floors," the postal authorities said Calleg told them, "and thought my discovery would result in quick promotion."

Small Boy Escapes With Minor Injury After Sixty-Foot Drop Into Open Well

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORHAM, April 10. — To fall down a sixty foot well, and be dragged out by the aid of a rope, luckily suffering only a sprained ankle as a result, was the experience of Reggie McCann.

The lad had jumped a fence and landed on the defective covering of a sixty foot well, which immediately gave way. The boy fell through and into the well.

Fortunately a little girl saw the lad just as he disappeared over the rim and she ran to the boy's father. Mr. McCann threw a rope down the well, to which the lad clung until neighbors arrived, and through their combined strength he was hauled out of the deep well.

The lad is limping around with a sprained ankle, but ... is none the worse for his harrowing experience.

No Word in Over 18 Hours

Colonel Charles Lindbergh Left Mexico City Early Yesterday Afternoon.

GAS FOR 12 HOURS.

Contradictory Reports Are Received From Various Points On Border.

BULLETIN

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, (Canadian Press). — Colonel Charles A. Lindberg landed here at 9:30 a.m., to-day.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 10 (C.P.) —At 7.20 a.m. eastern standard time, there had been no definite reports of sighting of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh since his departure from Mexico City for an unannounced destination in the United States at 1.20 p.m., eastern standard time, yesterday, more than eighteen hours before.

Optimism which persisted throughout the night was fast shading into anxiety as hour after hour passed without his having been heard from. At his departure he is believed to have had gasoline for only 12 hours of flying to cover a distance of about 1,200 miles.

A check of northern border points by the Mexican government brought reports from Piedras Negras, across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, Texas, that a plane believed to have been Colonel Lindbergh's passed over the city at 7 p.m., 8 p.m. eastern standard time, yesterday. A Mexico City newspaper even published a report he had stopped there, rested and refueled, and gone on to an unannounced destination.

A check failed to confirm either report, however, and at Eagle Pass, city officials and residents denied that a plane had passed over the city or alighted nearby.

The terrain over which Col. Lindbergh had to fly en route to the Texas border, no matter which route he chose, was one of high mountains and rough desert plateau.

A landing in much of this area would have been dangerous under even the most favorable circumstances, due to the high altitude and the roughness of the country. Texas weather bureaus reported good weather yesterday in both Mexico and South Texas, although over much of Mexico at this time of the year blowy, dusty weather with sandstorms and whirlwinds is apt to prevail.

Much of the country between Mexico City and the Texas border is sparsely settled with poor communication facilities, and in the event of a landing days might even elapse before the news reached telegraph points.

MEXICO CITY, April 10. — (C.P.) —Though confronted with reports that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was missing and could not be located the American embassy officials this morning refused to believe him the victim of a mishap.

"He is doing his usual stuff," it was said at the embassy, implying a belief that the aviator had landed quietly somewhere and re-fueled, continuing toward New York without rest or further ado.

The last seen of Colonel Lindbergh here was at 12.30 yesterday, ten minutes after his hop-off at Valbuena Field, when he appeared over the American Embassy and zoomed low three times in his usual farewell to his fiancee, Anne Morrow, daughter of the ambassador.

He straightened his plane out and headed to the north in the direction, it was believed, of Brownsville, Texas, 485 miles away. But many hours after he should have arrived at Brownsville or some other border airport, none reported having sighted him, and aside from the expressions of optimism at the embassy, there was some concern for his safety.

The Mexican government was frankly puzzled. Immediately that it was ascertained Colonel Lindbergh was overdue the government made a check of all border points and other air fields in Northern Mexico without result.

CANADA PRESENTS HER PROTEST AGAINST SINKING OF 'I'M ALONE' TO SECRETARY OF STATE STIMSON

Note Contends Pursuit Must Start Within Three Mile Limit.

ACCEPT STATEMENT.

Government Is Asked To Define Its Policy In Regards Sinking Rum Runners.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—(Canadian Press).—In protesting the recent sinking in the Gulf of Mexico of the rum-runner I'm Alone, the Canadian government, in a note to the state department yesterday, deplores such violent methods of enforcing prohibition on the broad humanitarian grounds that the offence does not justify such extreme measures.

"Canada does not concede," its note furthermore sets forth, "the right of the American patrol service to sink a ship, either within or without the 12-mile limit."

The Canadian contention on the I'm Alone case is that it accepts the statement of the rum-runner's captain that he ship was not within the limit set by the treaty when he was hailed by the coastguard. The dominion, contends, moreover, that under the treaty the pursuit of a suspected vessel must start within he three-mile limit or at a point where the vessel can be shown to be in communication with the shore.

Hon. Vincent Massey of Canada yesterday presented his government's note of protest to Secretary of State Stimson, who immediately thereafter went to the White House for a conference with the president.

The Canadian note of protest asks the United States government to define its interpretation of the treaty and to advise her if the policy of the country is to follow the precedend of the I'm Alone chase and sinking.

Mr. Mackay had been out in the drive-shed working when the lantern which he was carrying exploded.

Practically all the live stock was saved, but the hay and grain was totally destroyed. It is understood that the building, stock and farm implements, were partly covered by insurance.

JURY NAMES BOY AS SLAYER

Inquest is Held into Death of Mrs. Hilliard Hickson and William Challins.

NO NEW EVIDENCE.

LINDSAY, Ont., April 10.—(Examiner Correspondence)—That William Challins, the 20 year old English farm hand came to his death on Sunday, March 31 as a result of a gunshot wound inflicted by himself was the verdict of the coroner's jury at the inquest held here last evening.

They further declared that the deceased had received nothing but the kindest treatment during the period of his employment with Mrs. Hilliard Hickson.

The second verdict declared that Mrs. Hilliard Hickson came to her death as a result of the discharge of a rifle in the hands of William Challins, no evidence being adduced to assign cause for the deed.

A number of witnesses including Hilliard Hickson were heard during the evening but there were no new developments, the story told being similar to that which has already appeared in The Examiner.

It was brought out in the evidence that Challins had a bank account amounting to $60 and life insurance totalling $1,000. The cancellation of the policy follows as a result of his having taken his life.

LAKE LEVELS ARE LOWER THIS SEASON

At Buckhorn Water is Eighteen Inches Below 1928 Mark.

OVER GEORGE ST. WHARF.

Dredging of River Below Nassau Disorganized Canal Department's System of Measuring.

Although Little Lake has risen until it is now washing over the George areet wharf, the present high level is considerably lower than last year's top figure for the spring freshet in the Otonabee river.

At Buckhorn yesterday the water was eighteen inches under the 1928 mark; the level of Stoney Lake was one foot and three inches down the scale as compared with a year ago, but Lindsay reports the Scugog level at just one-half an inch lower than 1928.

System Disorganized.

It was learned recently that the dredging of the river below the Nassau dam, for the purpose of increasing the head of water at the power house, has disorganized the canal department's system of measuring the flow of the river. With the change in the depth of the river below the power house, the usefulness of a nearby guage and the records of years which were based upon its reading were at an end. The old records of the flow at that point were invalidated by the altered condition of the bed of the river caused by the dredging and consequently by the lowered normal level of the stream. A comparative graph of the Otonabee's flow below Nassau as recorded for years by the Superintendent of the canal, showing the freshet peaks and the drought depressions, in fact tracing the flow of the whole year round, and for year after year, an accurate, authentic record built up by daily readings of several guages, has been suddenly terminated. Probably only A. L. Killaly realizes the value of the chart to which may now be written "finis."

TWELLS CASE IS REMANDED

Prince Edward County Man Appears in Court Before Mr. Justice Meredith.

WIFE HEAVILY VEILED.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 10. — (C. P.) — Dr. Charles T. Twells, charged with the murder of his two children near Consecon, on January 2 last, and with shooting with intent to commit murder, of Arthur Corfield, appeared before Mr. Justice Meredith yesterday at Picton. The court room was crowded with spectators, many of the audience being from the district where the crime was committed.

His wife, who was heavily veiled, sat near the prisoner's dock. After the indictments were read F. L. Ward, counsel for Dr. Twells, presented an order from Osgoode Hall, granting the right of a commission to proceed to England to take evidence on the early life of the accused. The crown prosecutor, presented no argument and Justice Meredith remanded Dr. Twells in custody until the fall sittings of the Supreme Court. The proceedings did not take more than ten minutes and the accused was soon whisked from the room by heavily armed guards.

HIGH WATERS.

BAILIEBORO, April 10 (Examiner Correspondence).—The floods in this district caused by the thunder storm on Friday night did a great deal of damages. Bridges were washed away and cellars were flooded.

Fall wheat and clover are looking much better since the rain, however.

The ice is disappearing very fast on Rice Lake, and the water is beginning to rise around the shores. Very little damage was done this year by moving ice, although a couple of boat houses around the shore were broken down.

KIWANIS KAPERS TO TAKE FORM OF LARGE REVUE

Seventy People Are Included in Production of the Big Show.

SCENES FOLLOW CLOSELY.

Plenty of Snappy Dancers and Gorgeous Costuming Are to be Seen.

The "Kiwanis Kapers" of this year promises to be something very worth while in the line of entertainment and amusement. The method carried out heretofore, of having a Minstrel Show as the main dish of the evening's menue, has been scrapped and the entire production will be along the line of a Revue. This is a type of entertainment which is exceptionally popular just now, and gives plenty of scope for snappy dances, gorgeous costuming, pretty stage setting of varied sorts, and plenty of laughs in the gags and humorous mixups which are used as foundations for the bright skits.

There are seventy people included in the production, with the best of the city's amusement-getters in the cast, and also dozens of the pretty girls of the city. An idea of the program may be gleaned from a bird's eye view of the production.

Scenes Follow Closely

The scenes which form the make-up follow one another in rapid succession, with no waits except a brief intermission half way through the evening.

The first number is an introduction entitled "We Have No Opening Chorus," and this is followed by a very sensational act that has never been tried here before, in a presentation of the interior of a broadcasting station, featuring Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland and Jack Primeau, and called "Listening In."

"A Sensible Conversation" then takes place, between Verne Morphet and George Richmond, and the audience gets a glimpse of how things will be carried out in half a century hence, between young people, if the present trend continues, in a skit called "To-day and Fifty Years from To-day."

"Doing the New Low Down" is a girls' dance number and is followed by a bit called "The Silent Prompter" featuring Miss Alice Donley, Lloyd Bath and Dick Lush.

"Taking Your Girl Home" (in three parts) and "Climbing the Ladder of Love" another dancing number by the girls, is followed by a one-man act by Joseph Wearing, called "A Few Dramatic Moments," and by another high-powered bit, in "We're Andy Purman's Girls."

Electrical Novelty Act

Lntile Orval Wainman and small Barbara Miller have a hit in "We Moderns" the girls come on again in "They Call it Dancing," and there is an electrical novelty act in "It Happens in every Well-Regulated Home."

"Pickin' Cotton Low Down" is a Southern dance with the girls and Verne Morphet, followed by a dainty thing called "Fairy Tales" and a song and dance act. "I Want to be Loved."

"Poor Mr. Smith" is a "nut" act that is a scream and the closing is typical, in "Running Away from the Blues."

Music that will add much to the attraction of the piece is the inclusion of Stewart Widdess' Silver Slipper orchestra, both on and off the stage, in various sections of the performance.

The box office exchange sale opens on Wednesday morning and the production itself is scheduled to start at 8.15 sharp. The director, Andy Purman, is a live wire who believes in having everything whipped into shape for a lively and worthwhile show. Mr. Purman is late of the Harford Producing Company of Chicago but is at present organizing a Canadian company, with headquarters in Toronto, so that the "Kiwanis Kapers" will be a real Canadian production this year.

How to avoid a Fuel Bill next Fall...

IF you were about to incur some new financial obligation, and you were privileged to make the annual payment involved at the time of the year you preferred, would you choose the Spring or the Fall?

Having in mind your present peak of fixed expense at the latter part of the year, you would, in all probability, express a preference for the Spring.

If you put it off until you actually need heat, then the cost of the coal will become a Fall expense—coming when important other expenses have to be borne. But if you buy your coal in advance, in the Spring, you shift that obligation to a time when it can be more easily met.

As a further advantage, Old Company dealers make a lower seasonal price on coal bought during the Spring.

Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite is a notably high-grade hard coal, slow and even-burning, flexible under draft-control, and requires but minimum attention. The experience of a century endorses it to the householder as the ideal home-heating fuel.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 10.—There was no change in the price of butter on the wholesale produce market yesterday, and dealers reported small shipments of New Zealand stock arriving on track here. Montreal buyers are still in the market for immediate supplies and prices look steady at the present levels. The temporary shortage is not expected to improve until the distribution of the large shipment of 25,000 cases, which is reported to be in Halifax at the present time.

Wholesale dealers were quoting No. 1 finest creamery at 45c per lb. Sales to the retail trade were made at 47c per lb. for No. 1 finest creamery.

Egg Receipts Normal.

Receipts of eggs were fairly heavy yesterday and prices held steady. Reports from the country are to the effect that there were many shipments held back on account of the condition of the roads and the uncertainty of shipping by rail. This would indicate an accumulated supply throughout the Province as production is increasing daily.

Dealers expect large shipments to reach the market during the balance of the week, which may also have the effect of reducing prices. There is an easier feeling in the market in Eastern Canada and dealers are not storing heavily at present prices.

Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, were as follows: Fresh extras, 27c per dozen; firsts, 25c, and seconds 23c per dozen. There was no change in the prices to the retail trade.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 10.—The cattle trade at the Union Stock Yards opened slowly yesterday with prices steady at Monday's advance of 25 cents a cwt., for steers, heifers and cows. Only a medium offering was on hand during the first hours of trading. Heavy steers, rough to choice, sold at 9 to 10¼ cents, and handyweight steers, good to choice, brought 9½ to 10 cents a pound. Good butcher cows were worth 7¼ to 8 cents, and choice kind from 8¼ to an extreme 8½ cents a pound.

The baby beef supply is beginning to show a decrease and the market was a little firmer at 9½ to an extreme of 1 cents. Milkers and springers were slow with prices steady at $100 to $120 for the best.

The calf market, recovering from Monday's slight decline, was firm to a shade stronger. Choice veal calves brought 15 to 16 cents a pound, primes selling at 16½ cents.

Hogs were firm to strong at the opening with bids at 12 cents f.o.b. and 13 cents w.o.c. Prospects were good for a settlement at 12¼ and 13¼ cents as the supply was light and outside demand strong.

Sheep and lambs were scarce, the few included in the offering being insufficient to form a market. Spring lambs and yearlings, arriving by truck, were expected to sell steady with yesterday's price range.

Receipts: cattle, 1,106; calves, 367; hogs, 446; sheep and lambs, 5.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 10.—An advance of ⅞c in the first hour of trading on the wheat market yesterday was quickly wiped out and values dropped lower, closing the day ¼c to ½c lower. Heavy offerings were responsible for the weaker tendency.

Small volume of trading was done on the cash wheat market, although a fair demand was shown for the lower grades. Prices were generally unchanged.

Barley was in good demand at firmer prices, but oats and rye were inactive. Flax moved forward fractionally.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 10.—Notwithstanding a sudden transient setback, caused by bearish reports about farm relief plans, wheat prices finished higher. Big European taxings of wheat from North America did much to rally the market, and so, too, did evening-up transactions to prepare for any surprise in the Government crop report due after the close. The Government crop figures, however, turned out to be practically identical with recent estimates, made by unofficial authorities.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at ½c to ⅝c net advance. Corn finished unchanged at ⅝c higher; oats, ¼c off to ¼c up, and provisions, 5c to 45c down.

Export business in North American wheat for the last two days, was asserted to have reached a total of 4,00,000 bushels. The temporary sinking spell which values underwent followed circulation of messages yesterday quoting a member of the House Agricultural Committee as saying that the Farm relief Bill would not provide Government finances to buy, sell or store commodities. The name of the member, though, was not given, and his supposed assertions lacked verification other than that the bill is yet to come before the House Agricultural Committee as a whole.

Liverpool Quotations Higher

Late upturns yesterday in wheat values here were due to the fact that Liverpool quotations were higher than looked for. In this connection advices were current that wheat crops in Europe give promise of only a moderate yield this season, and that transatlantic import requirements of all grain hereafter are expected to be large. Meanwhile yesterday centred to an increasing extent on July and September contracts, with less doing in the day delivery. World stocks of wheat showed 2,085,000 bushels decrease for the week.

For the most part, corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Wet weather, unfavorable for field work, prevailed over good sized sections of corn and oats territory. Clearances of grain via the Lakes from here are expected before the close of the week.

PLANT MANAGER ADDRESSES CLUB

Campbellford Rotarians Hear Interesting Address On Manufacture of Pulp.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 10 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Elie Brunelle was the speaker at the local Rotary luncheon in the St. Lawrence Hotel dining-room Monday. Mr. Brunelle is the manager of the Pulp Mills here, and his address was chiefly on the actual manufacture of mechanical pulp, although he touched also on the wood cutting and barking and also the marketing of the product. One item of his address was of special interest to the local Rotarians and citizens generally. The Campbellford Mill, he said, had received an order for three cars of pulp. This was a trail order and there was a possibility of much larger orders as the result.

"The manufacture of mechanical pulp," said Mr. Brunelle, "was first carried on in Central Europe during the middle of the nineteenth century. On this continent, it was first made at Valleyfield, Quebec, and at Curtisville, Mass. This was as early as 1867. At that time, mechanical pulp was used as a filler and since it was cheaper than chemical pulp, rapidly replaced it. There was much difference in the present pulp machinery from that of the early days. The early machines were of the vertical type driven by water wheels. The wheels were in a pit directly under the grinder. The wood was pressed against the stone by a mechanism of gears. The most familiar of the present-day grinders is capable of turning out from seven to nine tons daily. The stone is twenty-seven by fifty-four inches and is driven at speeds of from two hundred to two hundred and sixty revolutions per minute. Each stone requires from three to five hundred horse power. The wood used is two feet long and is fed to the stone by three pockets on each machine where a hydraulic ram forces the material against the grinding surface.

As delivered from the grinders, the pulp is in the form of a wet mash which is carried to the wet machines and rolled into layers which are removed by the operators and delivered to the hydraulic presses. These presses are vertical and remove the major portion of the water from the product. In spite of this when the pulp is shipped it contains a certain percentage of water. The exact amount is determined by a simple process. A sample of each lot is taken and weighed. It is then dried in an electric oven and weighed again. The difference in weights represents the water content.

Various methods of preparing the wood and delivering it have been used in the past, but most of them have been considered wasteful. The wood used to be floated down the rivers and cut and barked at the mill where it was to be made into pulp. The method now generally employed has cut down the amount of waste material to approximately one-quarter of what it had formerly been. The wood is placed in a large steel drum cylinder which is lined with U-shaped iron and has openings left for the bark to be removed. This drum revolves and the wood rubs against itself and against the iron channels and the bark is removed with a minimum of loss.

Referring to the local plant, Mr. Brunelle set its capacity at from thirty to forty tons daily, according to the grade of the product. The mill, when running at full capacity, required more than two thousand horse power. Present indications were that the plant would be running full time for several months at least and the future of it was very bright.

ANNUAL AT HOME.

Social Affair Held Under Auspices of Campbellford Tennis Club.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 10 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — In spite of the fact that the orchestra failed to appear, the tennis dance given by the local Tennis Club was a decided success. The auditorium of the High School was filled with dancers, and the executive of the club was becoming worried about the non-appearance of the orchestra they had engaged. It was finally learned that the musicians were stuck in the mud somewhere between here and Wooler and would not be able to keep their engagement. Herb. Leonard and his orchestra were located and the dance went on. Cafeteria lunch was served by A. G. Morgan and his assistants in the domestic science room of the school.

Among the guests were: Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. McCall, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Greig, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. CHECKING RUM-RUNNING.

The new system by which the Canadian Government will permit United States Federal agents to be stationed on liquor export docks along the Detroit River to check up the operations of rum-runners has been hailed as a death-blow to the illicit trade into the United States.

It may not prove to be quite as effective as that, for the rum-running fraternity is ingenius and enterprising in its operations, but it should be a very material factor in reducing the cross-river traffic of Canadian liquor.

There are many Canadians who feel that Ottawa, having decided to assist in making liquor smuggling difficult, might have gone further and made it practically impossible by prohibiting the clearance of vessels carrying intoxicating liquors.

Our attitude toward this question is not impressive when regarded from the angle of neighborly duty.

The present concession may do something to straighten out a most undesirable situation, but is far from clearing up the whole problem.

Our share in the traffic is not a matter likely to inspire a feeling of pride among Canadians who consider all aspects of the question.

WHERE DEMOCRACY WEAKENS.

When it comes to settling arguments as to now places at official dinners should be alloted, the constitution of the United States, which says that all American citizens are born "free and equal," would seem to be decidedly lacking.

The controversy over just where Mrs. Gann, sister of Vice-President Curtis, should sit at such functions, which threatens to divide official Washington into two camps, serves at least to provide an opportunity for a quiet smile over the brand of democracy that can get excited over a matter of such doubtful importance.

True, down at Ottawa we frequently have the same kind of trouble, and in spite of the fact that we have turned our backs upon titles and that kind of thing, there is still a vast amount of significance attached to social ranking.

As a matter of fact, while on both sides of the line great emphasis is placed on the democratic nature of the people of the two countries, boasting in this direction will not stand a very critical examination.

It only requires a point of etiquette such as has been raised in regard to the status of the Vice-President's sister to upset the theory and to justify Lord Balfour's remark that there are no democrats at an official dinner table.

A SIMPLE TEST.

The argument as to whether or not left turning should be permitted at Charlotte and George streets lends itself to a simple test.

Will the restoration of the left turn, as asked for by a number of citizens, contribute to the general safety at this corner?

If the answer is in the affirmative, the City Council's duty is simple—the regulation should be rescinded without delay.

If the question has to be answered in the negative, the Council's course is equally clear—the rule should be allowed to stand.

Chief Constable Newhall, who is responsible for the enforcement of traffic regulations, and to that extent responsible for the safety of the public, says that to permit left turning would be to take a step backward.

That is an opinion that cannot be lightly set aside; it is stronger evidence than has been offered by any advocate of the restoration of the old system, who confine their arguments to statements that the traffic is not heavy enough to require such a regulation, and that the present practice is inconvenient and interferes with business.

The interference with business is to be regretted, but the inconvenience complained of is trifling, and business considerations cannot be placed ahead of safety.

THE OLD HOME WEEK PARADE.

The Parade Committee of Old Home Week announce plans for what promises to be one of the most remarkable parades in the history of Peterborough.

Already numerous features have been arranged for, and when the plans are completed it is expected that the result will be a revelation to citizens and visitors alike.

It is to be hoped that an effort will be made to have the parade reminiscent as well as spectacular.

It should, if possible, link the Peterborough of today with the Peterborough of yesterday.

The Dominion Jubilee procession showed what could be accomplished in that direction, and the early history of Peterborough and of this district is rich in material that might be used to advantage in imparting a historic aspect to this feature of the Old Home Week celebration.

The parade was the outstanding event of the Jubilee demonstration, largely because it so impressively and effectively illustrated many outstanding events in the history of Canada.

There is no reason why that success cannot be duplicated by a similar stressing of Peterborough's early history.

THAT TAX ON GASOLINE.

It is a simple matter for any civic statesman to convince himself that the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec should share with municipalities the proceeds of the five-cent gasoline tax. He has no difficulty whatever in making out a prima facie case.

Ottawa, for example, spends a good deal of money each year on street construction and maintenance. These streets, paid for by the ratepayers of Ottawa, are free not only to the citizens of the Capital but to visiting motorists from all parts of Ontario and from any part of the world. For each mile he travels on these city streets the motorist pays a tax to the provincial government in his gasoline bill of about one-quarter of a cent—and he pays nothing whatever to the civic treasury. Similarly the whole of the license fees imposed on Ontario cars and the permit fees collected from Ontario drivers goes into the spacious vaults of Queen's Park.

It makes, as we have said, a good prima facie case, but the provincial treasury is getting the money and is no more anxious than any other government to share a lucrative source of revenue. If Ottawa and other major centres send a deputation to see Premier Ferguson he is likely to remind them that his administration is spending on provincial highways even more than will be collected from motorists under the new gasoline levy and to assure them that the cities benefit tremendously, even if indirectly through enlargement of their commercial spheres and enhancement of their attractions for tourists as provincial highways are improved. Premier Taschereau might add, in his reply to a deputation from Hull, that the motorists of that city use the streets of Montreal or Quebec without contributing anything to their upkeep and that this might be regarded as a quid pro quo.

That also as an argument is perfectly sound, and it is backed by possession of the assets in dispute; therefore it is likely to prevail.—Ottawa Journal.

IN A HEALTHY CONDITION.

Business emerges from the winter season in a generally healthy condition, says the monthly commercial letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The most outstanding features of the last few months have been record exports of Western grains and industrial activity on a scale never equalled before in this country, as attested by the most recent monthly report on iron and steel production, showing the output of the former product to be 45 per cent. and of the latter 19 per cent. larger than in the corresponding period of last year.

This unprecedented industrial activity is partly attributable to the branch line extension and replacement plans of the two major railway companies, but it reflects also the large orders placed by these organizations for rolling stock and other equipment, the requirements of manufacturers of farm implements, automobiles and industrial machinery (particularly that needed for mining) and the increased quantity of steel required for general construction purposes.

Other industries operating at a high level are those allied with general construction and the manufacture of automobiles, and those which make house furnishings, food products and certain popular lines of wearing apparel.

The cotton mills are more actively employed than for some time past; the woollen goods industry is still depressed, but may later be in a slightly improved position because of the lower price of its raw material and the outlook for stable values; a strong demand continues for silk goods.

A number of shoe factories are working full time.

The recently announced agreement of the pulp and paper producers is one of the most encouraging factors in the business situation, for, while the uniform net price of about $55 per ton will not permit of large earnings, and the pro rata distribution of orders, together with newly-installed machines, provides for production at not more than 75 per cent. of capacity, the danger of price-cutting to a level that would cause a permanent shut-down of some mills and extreme hardship for many of those dependent upon the cutting of pulp wood has been averted. The industry now has the opportunity to advance toward that pre-eminent place in the world pulp and paper manufacture to which, in view of its great natural advantages, it is entitled.

Attention is now focused on the opening of the agricultural season.

Live stock has come through the winter in a condition better than average, and fall-sown grains and fruit trees are healthier than at this time last year; the spring movement of wheat on the Great Lakes will shortly commence with a fairly strong market.

It is reported that the land prepared for crops in the Prairie Provinces exceeds that of 1928 by from 1,000,000 to 1,700,000 acres, mainly because of the favorable conditions for ploughing last autumn.

The state of the soil-bed cannot be determined until planting is well under way, but less than normal precipitation last fall has caused some apprehension.

Ample rainfall in the autumn is usually regarded as a good sign, but excessive moisture in the closing seasons of 1926 and 1927 prevented the planting of wheat and caused a rank growth of weeds in many districts.

The wheat crop most to be desired this year would be one of fairly large proportions and high quality, which is probable if sufficient rain falls during the spring and if planting and growing conditions are at least average.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

April has so far produced twice the average amount of rain. And most people are satisfied to have the record stop at that.

Hamilton expects a population of 140,000 by the end of the year. It is presumed this estimate includes recruits for the Tiger football club.

General Chang Tsung-Chang, Chinese war lord, in preparing for hostilities, has confiscated bank reserves. The movie rights, we understand, have not yet been disposed of.

The Budget debate demonstrates that the estimate of two sides to a story is far too conservative.

A democratic country might be defined as one where they quarrel over the question of status at social functions.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

This is rather an uncertain day in planetary direction, according to astrology. It is a time for cautious conduct in matters of importance.

The rule is most promising to engineers and all who engage in ambitious constructive projects.

Bigness is to characterize all the plans for public improvements in every part of the country, it is foretold.

Under the planetary government that has power at this time the human mind will recognize few limitations, and great things will be accomplished in the world of progress.

Beauty is to be the watchword, and Americans are to grasp true ideals that affect even the most insignificant matters.

Women will seek natural charm and more and more discard what is artificial, the seers prophesy. Many will attain great intellectual development.

Writers again are subject to the most stimulating planetary influences. Every one will turn out poems and books, if the stars are rightly read.

While authors multiply, literature will languish, astrologers predict, although they foretell the recognition of new geniuses in America.

New tin and copper mines will cause excitement next summer, it is forecast. More millionaires will be numbered in the income tax lists, it is foretold.

Far-reaching trade agreements are prognosticated for the United States by foreign astrologers.

In Congress a woman will gain much praise and will achieve certain reform legislation, the seers prophesy.

Many false rumors regarding the status of this country in regard to world problems and strained international relations in certain quarters are forecast.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of great good fortune. Success is indicated and intellectual progress.

Children born on this day are likely to rise to high places. The subjects of this sign are usually dignified and reliable. They generally attain honors as well as wealth.

Edward Everett, statesman, was born on this day, 1794. Henry Villard, 1835, and Samuel B. Ruggles, 1800, claimed this as their birthday.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE CALL CERTAIN MOODS MELANCHOLY

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Melancholy means literally black bile, indicating that the liver is out of order. We feel grumpy and are very unpleasant to ourselves and to those around us. Hence the moods we experience when the liver is out of order we call melancholy.

The term melancholy, however, has come to have a wider use. It is applied to all moods resembling the one produced by a bad liver. Any form of blues in which a person feels out of sorts and downhearted is called a melancholy mood.

Some people are more moody than others, but all human beings are subject to fluctuations of mental and emotional attitudes we call moods. When the melancholy moods prevail we are less interested in life. We see the dark side of every experience and are easily discouraged. At such moments a person is not really himself. He does not see the facts as they are. He exaggerates their importance. The momentary mood is rather strong. It blinds one to the true worth of experience and one is likely to think that life is not worth living. Not infrequently people commit suicide for no other reason than a strong dose of melancholia.

The rhythmic change from a happy, carefree, buoyant frame of mind to the opposite type is natural enough. The extreme form of shifting moods is illustrated by the type of mental disorder known as manic-depression. This is a serious form of insanity in which the patient experiences the blackest type of melancholy for a period, and suddenly shifts to the exact opposite state of mind in which everything becomes rosy.

We are inclined to laugh at the ignorance of the ancients who associated every mood and temperament with some internal organ, but they weren't so far off after all. They associated courage with the heart, anger with the spleen, fear with the liver, melancholy with bile, etc. The modern psychologists recognizes the influence of the glands on moods and temperament and the whole of the emotional life. The chief difference is that, whereas the ancients held the large internal organs responsible, the modern biologists and psychologists are more discriminating and select the smaller organs, called glands of internal secretion or the ductless glands.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson, write him care of this paper, enclosing a self addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

"It's all your fault," she accused Anthony, as they drove away. "I've never seen you so dull. If you think anything has happened to Ana——"

"I think Mahon was a damned fool, the way he took that message."

"Ana's only got herself to thank."

He made no answer; he kept hoping against hope that when they got back to the cottage they would find Ana there, but it was all silent and in darkness.

"Well, I shan't wait up," Mollie said. She was always ready and able to sleep when there was nothing more exciting to be done.

"Somebody must wait," Hambledon said.

"Well, you can if you feel like it, though I don't see any occasion—Ana's old enough to look after herself."

She went off to bed, and Anthony waited downstairs and tried to read. But the page of the book was a jumbled blur and conveyed no sense, and all the time his ears were strained to hear the sound of footsteps or of a car down the road.

He had never known it so silent—as if everything were dead. When a tinpot clock in the kitchen struck twelve, he gave up all pretence of reading and went outside.

The rain had stopped and the clouds were scudding away, now and then showing glimpses of a pale-scared-looking moon.

Once Anthony was sure he heard footsteps and a voice that was Ana's: once he could have sworn a car turned into the street, but when he went to the gate there was no sign of anything.

He stood there looking up at the moon and trying to steady himself. Absurd for a man of his age to be so shaken a man nearing middle age and married.

It must be just imagination that if he never saw Ana again there would be nothing left in life it must be a form of hysteria that made him want to rush out into the road and call her name frantically into the silence.

If only he had gone to the 'phone himself—if only—— God! the whole of life seemed made up of one great "if only——" Then a car turned the corner of the street, slowed down, and stopped at the gate.

"Ana!"

He thought he cried her name aloud, but no sound passed his lips. Then he heard her voice.

"Have you waited up for me? Oh, but you shouldn't have done! Didn't you get the message? We rang through to Mr. Mahon."

"Yes, but it was all so indistinct." His voice was hoarse with the effort he made to control it. He looked past her to the car. "Where's Drake?"

"He's in hospital at Honiton? Didn't they tell you?" Ana sounded upset and shaken herself now. "We had an accident—they promised to explain to you. The car skidded and turned over. I wasn't hurt—at least, only bruised, but poor Tom has broken his arm and shoulder. I had to wait and see he was all right. I am so sorry if you have been worried. Where is Mollie?"

"Gone to bed."

"Oh!"

There was a little silence, then Ana turned to the man who had driven her.

"Thank you so much. I shall be coming into Honiton to-morrow and I will see you again. Goodnight, and thank you again."

"Good-night, miss."

The man turned away, and Ana followed Hambledon into the cottage.

"Who is that man?" Anthony asked. He was not in the least interested, but it was something ordinary and commonplace to say.

"A man from a garage who drove me a——"

"He ought to have been paid."

"I have paid him."

"I could have offered him a drink."

Ana laughed. She was tired and unstrung and on the verge of tears.

"I am sure he was a teetotaler," she said almost hysterically. "All the way home he's been telling me about his old mother, and how she brought him up on cocoa and texts."

"Where are you going?" Anthony asked sharply, for she had turned at once to the stairs.

"To bed, of course—it must be nearly time to get up."

"Wait a minute. I want to make sure you are all right."

"Of course I'm all right."

She would have gone on, but he took her arm and led her into the sitting room.

"Have you had any food? Let me get you some brandy?"

"I've had everything I want. They were very kind to us at the hospital."

"Why didn't you send for me?"

"What was the need? You couldn't have done any good. I told them particularly not to let you know where we were."

"You didn't care how worried I was."

Ana shrugged her shoulders, then winced.

"Ugh! I forgot my bruises."

"You are badly hurt."

"Of course I'm not. I shall be all right in a day or two, but it was a narrow shave—I thought it was all up."

"Drake must be a damned fool."

"Don't be absurd! It wasn't his fault. Nobody could have helped a skid on those roads. They were like black grease."

"If you had been hurt——"

"Well, I'm not, but I'm tired. Goodnight—thank you for waiting up for me. I hope we shan't wake Mollie."

"She sleeps through everything," Hambledon said impatiently. "Ana—wait a minute—I want——" He caught her arm with a not too gentle hand, and she cried out——

"Oh! you hurt me!"

"I'm so sorry, my dear—let me see. Why, you're all bandaged—and they've cut your sleeve away."

"They had to—you see——" Suddenly her tears overflowed. "It's silly to cry. It doesn't hurt much now, but I'm tired." She groped for a handkerchief in her coat pocket. "I haven't got one. It's Tom's coat, anyway. I didn't take mine." She looked up at him with a trembling smile. "I know I'm an awful fool," she apologized in a broken whisper. "But it was all rather—dreadful—they took so long getting him out from under the car, and I thought he was dead."

She began to sob. "I never cried or gave them any trouble at the time"—she defended herself tremulously. "But now it's all over—oh, don't look at me like that."

"Ana!"

Hambledon was not conscious of having spoken her name, was not conscious of making any movement toward her, and yet somehow she was in his arms, her face buried in his shoulder, his cheek against her hair.

And then, for a moment, time and everything was forgotten, and the one flashing thought in Hambledon's mind was:

"I must kiss her now even if I die for it—I must kiss her, whatever happens, I must——"

And he turned her tear-wet face up to his and their lips met.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

REGENERATION

No plummet ever fell
As swift as falls a soul:
One virtue that we sell,
One hour that we enroll
In folly's train, may lose
The joy that we have won,
The good we used to choose
By one dark sin undone.

But this I find as true,
And this I find as sure,
That we who lose it, too,
As quickly may secure.
We do not lose life's all
Who lose it for a time—
The souls that swiftly fall
May just as quickly climb.

We need but put aside
The thing by which we sin,
And God will open wide
His arms, and ask us in.
For God loves men so well,
Poor children in his eyes,
The soul that swiftly fell
May just as quickly rise.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND TADDY.

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping across the fields near the Duck Pond, he saw, on the bank, an old and empty tomato can.

"Oh, ho!" said Uncle Wiggily to himself, "that old tomato can is just what I want. I'll take it to my bungalow and plant a dandelion flower in it for my wife. I'll dig up a dandelion plant somewhere in the fields and then I'll fill this old can with earth and the dandelion will grow and blossom the same as if it were in a meadow."

The rabbit gentleman hopped over to where the old can sat on the bank at the edge of the Duck Pond and, as he took it up he saw that it had in it a little water.

"Well, water won't do any harm," thought Mr. Longears. "It will only wash the can. And, besides, when I plant the dandelion it will need some water, so I will leave this in the can."

So the rabbit gentleman picked up the tomato can which was empty, as far as he knew, except for about two inches of water covering the bottom. At the same time Uncle Wiggily looked along the edge of the Duck Pond where the mud was soft and he saw the marks of many feet.

"Some of my animal boy friends have been playing here," thought the rabbit gentleman. "One of them may have left this can. Well, I guess they played here before school and when the last bell rang they hurried off so they wouldn't be late and left the can. They don't want it, so I'll take it."

Holding the can carefully, so he would not spill the water in it, Uncle Wiggily hopped here and there over the field looking for a new dandelion plant which he might dig up so his wife would have a pretty yellow blossom.

But, somehow or other, Uncle Wiggily could find no dandelion plant that morning. It was rather early in spring for the dandelions to begin growing. But Uncle Wiggily said:

"I'll just hop over in the next field. I may have better luck there. I hope I can find a dandelion to plant in this can. My wife is so fond of flowers!"

But there were no green dandelion leaves growing in the next field and Uncle Wiggily thought perhaps he had better hop home, leave the tin can there and hunt for dandelions another day.

It did not take the rabbit gentleman long to reach his hollow stump bungalow and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy saw him coming with the tin can.

"What have you there?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Is it milk for a rice pudding?"

"I have an empty tin can," explained Uncle Wiggily. "That is it's empty except for a little water. I'm going to plant a dandelion in it for my wife. I'll just leave the can here on the steps and go to another field to hunt for a flower."

"Very well," squeaked Nurse Jane, and she went on taking buttons off one shoe and sewing them on another to keep herself busy.

But no sooner had Uncle Wiggily started to hop to another field than, all of a sudden, he heard the bell on the Hollow Stump School ringing very hard. "Ding! Dong! Dang!" it rang.

"Dear me! I hope the school isn't on fire!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I had better go see about it."

As he reached the school he saw the Lady Mouse Teacher standing in the doorway.

"Is the school on fire?" asked the bunny gentleman.

"Oh, no," squeaked Miss Mouse. "But Bully and Bawly No Tail have lost their little brother Taddy, and I rang the bell to call the Police Dog to help find him."

"Dear me!" said Uncle Wiggily! "So those frog boys have lost their little brother, have they? What did you say his name was?"

"Taddy," answered Miss Mouse. "He is a little tadpole, you see, and they call him Taddy for short. A tadpole is a baby frog, without legs. But he had a tail and a big head."

"Oh, yes, I know what a tadpole is," said Uncle Wiggily. "Now that it is spring I often see the little black chaps wiggling around in puddles. So Bully and Bawly have lost Taddy, have they?"

"Yes, and I'm ringing the bell to call the Police Dog," went on Miss Mouse. "He can find Taddy." Then out came hopping Bully and Bawly.

"Oh, we have lost our little brother!" they croaked.

"Ding! Dong! Dang!" Miss Mouse rang the bell.

"Don't ring it any more!" said Uncle Wiggily.

"But I want to get help to find Taddy!" squeaked the teacher.

"I will find Taddy!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "Leave it to me!"

"Oh, thank you, Uncle Wiggily!" croaked Bully and Bawly. "We'll go with you and help find Taddy, for it's our fault he is lost."

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Noranda Mines, Limited, has mailed circulars to its shareholders, setting forth clearly all details in connection with the new stock issue which is being offered to stockholders as rights. Subscription warrants will be mailed as soon as possible after April 12, entitling every shareholder to subscribe for one share of new stock at $45, in the proportion of one new one for every $30 held. The money for the new stock may be paid in full or in three equal instalments of $15 each, the first payment to be made not later than May 22, 1929, the second payment not later than June 22, 1929, and the third and final payment not later than July 22, 1929.

The vein on the 1,000-foot level of the Lake Shore near the Wright-Hargreaves boundary is now said to have widened to 50 feet. This is considered important in the north not only to the Lake Shore but also to Wright Hargreaves. It is understood that a new hoist has been ordered from the winze on the 1,600-foot level. The new head frame at the No. 3 shaft will be almost 150 feet high.

Diamond drilling has, or is, being done on four different properties by the Sudbury Nickel and Copper Mines, Limited. Drilling was first done on the property adjoining the Murray Mines (Mining Corporation) in Quebec. Four holes have been put down on the Bowell Township property. Extensive diamond drilling is said to be underway at the recently acquired Strathcona Mine. A drill was said to have been shipped to the Durkee claims in Creighton Township recently. Sudbury Basin Mines controls Sudbury Nickel and Copper.

Advice from London, England, is to the effect that what appears to be unusually high grade ore has just been revealed in a deep drill hole put down by the Rhodesian Congo Border Company (Africa) to test the extension into its property on the N'Changa ore body. The drill entered the ore at a depth of 795 feet and the core recovered over the following 65 feet to 860-foot depth averaged 6.61 per cent copper and the sludge 8.58 per cent copper. Below 860 feet only a small portion of the core was recovered, but such as was indicated the following values (taken in 5-foot section to a depth of 890 feet); 5.4 per cent; 30.4 per cent; 37.6 per cent; 6.4 per cent, and 1.15 per cent. This hole is being drilled still deeper. Following the report of this discovery Rhodesian Congo Border stock sold above 8 pounds, the highest price on record. There are, however, less than 500,000 shares outstanding.

At the Dome Mines, according to advice from Timmins, cross-cutting to the north is being continued on the 1,200 and 1,600-foot horizons. The work is being prosecuted in the igneous formation where two large tonnage ore bodies have already been located. The fact that four veins were found in the long northerly crosscut on the level immediately below is also regarded as a favorable indication that this drive will encounter ore.

SOFTER TONE PREVAILS ON MINE MARKET

Few of Curb Leaders Register Gains in Morning Session.

NORANDA UNCHANGED.

Wainwell Oil and Manitoba Basin Suffer Setbacks in Active Trading.

TORONTO, Ont., April 10 (Canadian Press).—Practically all stocks participated in an easier movement on the Standard Mining Exchange today. Declines were not significant and a couple of the morning's active leaders showed a slight advance. Noranda held unchanged at 51.00, after dipping to 50.25. Teck Hughes held at the morning's high of 9.30 for an appreciation of 30 cents, while Hudson Bay improved 40 to 16.50, and Falconbridge Nickel moved up 30 cents to 10.90.

Wainwell Oil was again active and eased off 3½ to 44½, while Manitoba Basin dropped 6 to 46. Malartic weakened 5 to 47, as did Howey to 1.24, Mining Corporation to 4.55, Abana to 1.60, and Associated Oil to 3.70.

Sudbury Basin followed its loss of yesterday with an additional decline of 15 to 9.10, while Ventures sold off 25 to 10.25 and Pend Oreille 20 to 8.00.

POULTRY EXPERT WILL VISIT HERE

Peterborough Association Discusses Plans Holding Membership Campaign.

With a full attendance of members, the regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held in the Chamber of Commerce Council Room last night, F. D. Dawson presiding.

Discussion of ways and means of increasing the membership held the attention of the meeting for some time, it being decided to sell membership tickets which will be printed and ready for issue by Saturday, April 13. A number of team captains were chosen in this regard, with power to add to their team numbers.

Preparations for the regular meeting to be held on the second Tuesday in May were considered, it being decided to ask a government poultry expert to address the association on the subject of developing of the baby chick.

WOULD ORGANIZE AMBULANCE BRANCH

Discuss Plans For Formation of Trained First Aid Corps.

A small group of former St. John's Ambulance Corps men met in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening for the purpose of organizing a division of this service in Peterborough. It was stated that there are several qualified ambulance men in the city, who could serve as a nucleus in forming a local division.

A doctor has been secured to lecture on first aid and the trained men will give demonstration on bandaging and other important details of the work.

The main purposes in view is to have an organized band of trained men in first aid at hand for Old Home Week and in any case of emergency that may arise in the future.

Letters are being sent out to factories asking their support of this movement and it is likely that in a very short time an organization meeting will be held.

LIST PRICES STEADIER AT NOON SESSION

Marked Changes Isolated in Quiet Trading On Queen City Market.

OIL GROUP UNEVEN.

F. N. Burt, Loblaw and Dominion Power Preferred Among Issues To Drop.

TORONTO, Ont., April 10 (C.P.).—After many of the active leaders had shown a disposition to soften, prices grew steadier around the noon-hour on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Marked changes were isolated and fractional losses about equalled similar advances. International Nickel was a typical example of the morning performance, when after breaking to a low of 44¾, the price recovered to 46, unchanged.

The oil group was uneven, with Imperial strengthening ¾ to 108¼, while British American was slightly off at 47½, and Foothills lost 50 cents to 7.00, and Home 25 to 20.25.

F. N. Burt dropped three points to 64, while Loblaw came out 2 points lower at 88. Dominion Power Preferred weakened 1½ to 105. Three shares of Canada Steamship Lines sold at 48, an increase of six points, while Canners Second Preferred improved a point to 23½. Weston's at 42, and Page Hersey at 126 were both one point stronger.

Pavement Pounders On Eleventh Lap

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 10. — (Canadian Press)—With the toughest grind of the route behind them until they cross the desert, C. C. Pyle's Plodding Pilgrims started from Uniontown at 9 o'clock this morning headingn for Waynesburg, Pa., on the 11th leg of their 3,400 mile trek. The runners have covered 437 miles.

To-day's jaunt is 33 miles and the Pavement pounders were sent on their way two hours later than usual. The long hills forced Nels Neilson, Chicago, out of the race yesterday.

Philip Granville of Hamilton, Ont., the single Canadian remaining in the race, finished yesterday's run in a tie with Peter Gavuzzi, of England, for second place in 11:16:15. Granville's elapsed time places him seventh.

ISSUES RALLY LATE SESSION

Heavy Buying in Oil Group Turns Market After Early Setback.

CALL MONEY UP ONE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 10 (C.P.) —Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment in to-day's stock market testified to the nervousness prevailing in professional trading circles. Prices moved upward at the opening, broke sharply after mid-day when acute weakness developed in Radio shares and a few specialties, and then rallied again when heavy buying was resumed in the oil group.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent. but advanced to 8 as banks continued to call loans in.

The New York Clearing House Association to-day approved a change in the rules, whereby a charge of not less than ½ of 1 per cent. per annum shall be paid on loans placed for the account on out of town banks. Similar action on loans placed for the account of private individuals and corporations was taken last Saturday.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 10.—(C. P.)—Foreign exchange steady, demand rates (in cents): Great Britain 484¾; Canadian Dolalrs at 25-32 of one per cent. discount.

AGED RESIDENT IS VICTIMIZED

Provincial Police Are Searching Kingsville District For "Eye Specialists."

SECURED $500.

KINGSVILLE, Ont., April 10. — (Canadian Press).—Provincial police are searching for two men who on Monday victimized Robert Lannin, 70, of this district, of $500. The men arrived at the Lannin residence Monday noon and told Mr. Lannin they were eye specialists from Montreal who had come to change his glasses. After an "examination" the self-termed specialists told Lannin he would go blind unless an operation was performed immediately.

Lannin became alarmed and at once agreed to undergo the necessary treatment. He claims the men cut his eyelashes and bathed his eyes in water and some other fluid and then demanded $600 for their services. The victim argued with them and they finally agreed to accept $500. After receiving a cheque for this amount they hastened to the bank and cashed it.

Meat Prices High On Local Markets

The price of meat in this city has been affected by the poor condition of the roads it was stated this morning by a local butcher. Beef has gone up 50 cents a hundred in the last week, and this merchant thought that the advance was directly due to the impassable condition of the roads keeping farmers from bringing in their cattle.

throng. When the wet and dripping body was hoisted from the river it was found to be a plaster-of-paris dummy—just a bust.

However it was brought to the police station and it was seen in the corner with the paint from its stately face partly washed off; its left eye badly battered; and its hair matted with weeds and twigs.

It is the opinion of the police that the bust had been thrown on the city dump. Later having been found by some boys it was tossed into the river. Then floated down to cause the great excitement that prevailed at noon to-day.

CHURCH SOCIETY HEARS ADDRESS

Mrs. George Dibble Speaks At Meeting of St. James' W. M. S.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. James' United Church held their regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon presiding. The reports covering the work of the first quarter year were all very encouraging, especially that of the treasurer, which showed that 27 per cent. of the allocation had been reached. Mrs. Rose reported on temperance education, and Mrs. Armstrong on Christian stewardship.

The Auxiliary was very fortunate indeed to have Mrs. George Dibble, who addressed the society and the many visitors representing the sister churches of the city.

Mrs. Dibble left no doubt in the minds of her hearers of her attitude toward "Missions." She said that it was only when she had adopted for her very own, a missionary to represent her on the mission field that she felt she had met the conditions demanded of her as a Christian. The beautiful part is, that though we cannot go ourselves, we can become responsible for a substitute. God has made it possible for each and every one of us to do our part in carrying out "the Great Commission." It is unbelievable that women, saved by the power Divine, can deny the need and necessity for this greatest of all work.

It was because God had never taken His eyes off the world and its need, that He gave His only Son to save that world. In turn, it is our duty to go and tell of His great love and sacrifice, to those who have never heard the wonderful story.

The saving power of Jesus, she maintained, is the first and only requisite to winning the heathen mind, and it has been proven that even the wild men of the African jungle, when they have once heard and grasped the story, desire to go at once and tell their brothers who have not heard.

She closed with a plea that our hearts might be opened to the needs of the world. That we help with our life, our prayers, our money. Missionaries are being forced to leave the field because of lack of funds. Let us awake to this great need. Let us catch the vision. Pray for the indifferent Christians. Jesus was willing to leave all and come to us that we might live. Now He is gone, but He has left to us the wonderful privilege of carrying on His work. If we fail, it means in a sense that God fails. So, we dare not fail.

On that last day the disciples saw His wounds and scars, but Jesus was not thinking of these. His whole thought was on something else. "Ye are my witnesses," He said. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." "Go ye—to the uttermost parts of the earth." "Go ye" were His last words just before being caught up into heaven. How can we disregard this last command given to us if we claim to be Christ's?" Prayer closed this wonderful heart-to-heart talk with women who are working for other women who have not yet heard.

All joined in softly singing the last hymn, "O Master let me walk with Thee," and Miss Kidd closed the meeting with prayer. Mr. Dibble in his tender rendering of the beautiful sacred solo, sung to the air of one of Caruso's greatest songs, "O Sole Mio," brought the audience into perfect harmony with the splendid address given by Mrs. Dibble.

On Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, Mrs. Dibble will address a women's meeting in St. James' auditorium, and would invite all mothers and daughters of St. James' and of all the churches in the city, to be present. Her subject will be "Mothers Eve and her Daughters."

TO A WHOOPEE POND

'Twas over in East City, and word got noised about
That all the beer a man could drink was coming out a spout
Just fit behind the brewery, ah, so wonderful to see—
They caught up jugs and buckets full and hurried home with glee.

And 'tis said, on Monday evening that a hundred men or more
Heard the call of opportunity, as she knoccked upon the door.
They gathered round the Whoopee pond, and stayed till late at night
To drink, and sing, and celebrate—or finally, to fight.

Somehow it makes no difference that the beer they drank was bad,
And every thirst, e'en to the worst, was quenched, and all were glad
That through a brewer's error, twenty thousand barrels or more
Were poured into the gutter, to run out beneath the floor.

x But good things to an end must come, the piper must be paid.
Against four happy revellers were informations laid.
And all four pleaded guilty, what else were they to do—
The total cost was ten bucks lost to each who drank the brew.

—W.J.E.

OPEN MEETING MISSION CIRCLE

Miss Jean L. Burnham Presides at Meeting of Millbrook Church Society.

MILLBROOK, April 10—(Examiner Correspondence).—The open meeting of Golden Links Mission Circle was held in the basement of the United Church on Friday evening, the president, Miss Jean L. Burnham, being in the chair.

The Bible lesson from John 3 was read by Miss L. Crocker, and the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, led in the opening prayer. Miss Francis Jones presided at the piano throughout the evening.

The president read a letter from Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary teacher at Wahstao, Alberta, expressing her thanks to the Circle for the gift sent her at Christmas, and apologizing for the late date of her acknowledgment, the heavy duties devolving upon her in the school home having delayed letter-writing until the Easter holiday season.

At present the school is filled, twenty girls and seven boys being included among the boarders. It requires ninety loaves of bread each week, with potatoes, apples, and other supplies in proportion; Miss Hawken mentioned particularly the fondness of the Ruthenians for sauerkraut and cottage cheese, also onions; "we do not give them garlic, though they love it; but we get enough of the flavor with the many callers we have from the homes each week."

"The Ukrainian Easter is on May fifth, and is their biggest holiday of the year. They are a very religious people, but it is mostly form and ceremony and does not really affect their everyday conduct at all. We have lately had a little three-year-old lad left at the home, and it is amazing how quickly he is picking up English words; he is a great pet in the school."

"How the Call Came" was the title of a reading by Miss Marian O'Brian, and Miss Beatric Jones followed with a recitation, "Patchwork". A piano duet, "Shower of Stars", by Misses Francis and Beatrice Jones, drew forth hearty applause, and so also did the recitation by little Ruth Richards, "I Carry One to Jesus." Mrs. Lambert gave a most impressive recitation, "The Little Lad", and the final number, a pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross", was the concluding number on the program.

Miss Margaret Luxon took the part of "Evangel," who sends forth a challenge to any who would take up their cross and follow the Saviour. The response came a number of girls, typifying various types of which are to be found in almost any church, and to each of these Evangel gave the cross which 'the Master says it is your peculiar privilege to bear for Him.'

True to their several characters the girls, in practically ever case, refused the cross offered, desiring to choose their own, or making a wrong use of the one given them, and so suffering a gentle rebuke from the one who lovingly renewed the call to whole-hearted, willing service.

Finally Miss Beatrice Jones knelt at the large cross given to her, and slowly each girl returned, took her cross, large, small, smooth, rough, or of bright silver, and forming a semi-circle round the kneeling figure sang softly, "I Am Coming to the Cross."

Among those taking part were: Misses Jean Stinson, Wilma Faills, Helen Mitchell, Dorothy McDowell, Sadie Rowland, and Beatrice Jones. A choir of Mission Circle members, seated to one side of the platform, sang appropriate hymns while the pageant was in progress.

Life looks rosy for him

Health worth more than fortune

THE baby to be envied is the one who is born with an inheritance of perfect health, to begin with. And who's lucky enough to have a mother who knows how to build up this fortune.

"Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," she'll say to the doctor who pronounces her child physically 100% at a baby show, "but this health certificate means more to me than all the stock certificates in the world. If my baby grows up strong and well, I'm willing to leave it to him to make a career and fortune for himself.

"Already I'm teaching him the value of regular habits. Regular sleep, regular meals, regular functions. He's never once been off schedule, not even when he was cutting teeth or traveling to the country. I make sure of that by giving him Nujol regularly."

Nujol works so easily and naturally that it won't upset a baby under any conditions. It keeps everything functioning properly. It not only prevents any excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming but aids in their removal. It is safe and sure. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York.

Heir to millions

Just try Nujol for your baby. Give it to him regularly for the next three months. See if it doesn't make things much easier for both of you. Certainly it could do no harm — for Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. Your druggist carries it. Be sure you get the genuine. Sold only in sealed packages.

SIR CHARLES GORDON, UNCLE OF MISSING MONTREAL GIRL, TAKES PART IN BIG SEARCH

Police Authorities Claim Disappearance Is Most Baffling Mystery.

MANY CLUES INVESTIGATED.

McGill Authorities Frown Upon Rumor That Girl Is Held By Vice Ring.

MONTREAL, April 10 (Special to The Examiner).—Like the clue which suggested the possibility of Miss Barbara Pitcher, missing Montreal girl and student in the first year of the Arts Department at McGill University being in the neighborhood of Peterborough, which has now definitely been discarded by the detective department of the Montreal police, despatches from New York, Boston and Syracuse have so far failed to receiving confirmation.

Upon inquiry at the office yesterday The Examiner was informed that a telegram received early in the morning from Detective McCoy definitely disposed of a rumor that the girl was being transported to Mobile, Alabama after being drugged by abductors, who were endeavoring to ship her out of the country. Captain of Detectives O'Donnell, who has been assigned to take charge of the case, states that several fresh clues have come to headquarters but that, as has been the case since the search started, they had all led to blind alleys. Although the many reports similar to that from Peterborough that have come to the office add immeasurably to the task, authorities are anxious to avoid saying anything to discourage anyone who might have valuable information from communicating with them. It is realized that it is only by public co-operation from all who desire to have the mystery cleared up, that the fate of the girl will become known and every suggestion, however unlikely is carefully tested and followed up where possible.

Reported in Montreal

Most startling was a Montreal story that the girl was seen in the McGill grounds in a roadster by a fellow student, who, believing he recognized her, took a second look, whereupon the occupant of the car stooped so that she could not be seen. On top of this incident comes the announcement that a big placard containng the notice and picture of the girl has been removed from the Arts Building of the University. While in the busy minds of the public the girl is being seen in numerous places, the family are said to be of the opinion that she is no longer in the land of the living.

Relatives of Miss Pitcher are satisfied that police and press publicity have done all in their power to help to clear up the strange case. Police authorities declare the disappearance is one of the most baffling mysteries which Montreal has ever known. In few cases have the police had such general public assistance, since thousands have thrown their energies into the case in the hope of earning the reward of $5,000, which has been offered by an uncle of the girl; the uncle in question being, The Examiner has learned, no less a personage than Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank of Montreal.

Sir Charles has personally taken part in the search. Yesterday The Examiner was informed by the occupant of the apartment, Sir Charles visited 2028 Victoria street, Montreal, rented by a party of McGill students, in investigation of a rumor that a girl answering the description broadcasted of Miss Pitcher was seen entering the apartment. This clue, like the others, was valueless.

Frown Upon Rumor

McGill authorities are inclined to frown upon sensational rumors that the girl is in the hands of a vice ring in the city. It is pointed out that the fact that she carried no books with her on the day of her disappearance seems to suggest that she did not intend to attend the German class for which she ostensibly left home. It is considered possible that she merely went to the Arts Building as a blind, got out of the car there and waiting till the family chaffeur drove away, hurried out of the college. A member of a very brilliant family, Miss Pitcher's scholastic record was hardly equal to that of her relatives, and it is thought that her failure to attain to a higher standard of achievement may have something to do with her disappearance.

Following a request from one of Miss Pitcher's relatives, the sewers on Sherbrooke street, which faces the university, are being examined by city employes. It has become known that at the time of her disappearance, the manholes were being examined, as is usually the case in the spring. While the holes are usually guarded by a red-painted railing three quarters of the way, it is thought possible that the girl in a state of absent-mindedness may have falled into the sewer-opening. This suggestion was broached as a result of the recollection of the fate of a young girl named Manning, who some years ago while crossing a street leading to the St. Antoine market, in one of the most populous districts of the city dropped from sight into an open manhole. Her body was found some weeks later at an outlet on Delorimer avenue, more than two miles to the northeast of the spot she was crossing. Workmen will enter the manhole in Sherbrook near the university and will use a small boat which will be allowed to drift with the water to the same outlet.

Capt. John W. Abray, secretary of the St. Catharines Flying Club, was killed at Camp Borden Saturday, April 6.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Richard L. D. Taylor Loses Life in Motor Accident West of Montreal.

Richard L. D. Taylor, of East River Road, Oswego, N.Y., was killed recently on the Lakeshore road west of Montreal, when his car left the road and ripped its way through a fence. It then plunged down a steep six foot bank on the other side.

A plank struck Taylor in the face, killing him instantly. He was identified by his motor license in his pocket.

Mr. Taylor was well known in Peterborough and in the Madoc district. He had an big interest in the developing of the Fleurspar property on Moira Lake.

Inspiring Address Heard at Services Conducted in St. James' Church.

The revival services were continued last evening, opening as usual with a half-hour of singing, led by Rev. Mr. Dibble, and entered into whole-heartedly by the very large congregation which crowded the church. Both Junior and Senior choirs assisted with the music and Mr. Dibble sang in his splendid voice several solos, "Beautiful Valley of Peace," and "Did you Think to Pray?"

Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, led in choir, after which Mrs. Dibble took charge of the service, taking her text from the last chapter of Galatians: "From henceforth let no man trouble me for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus," and speaking on the subject: "The Marks of a Christian."

"The words of the text are the bold confession of Paul, who believed not only in the profession of Christ but in possession by Him. Paul bore the true marks of a Christian—physically, as well as spiritually—he was a God-marked man. So we, too, should be living epistles of Christ. Every life bears a stamp of some kind—either the ugly one of the world, sin and Satan, or the glorious one of Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit.

Paul, in his burning words, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that we present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service," presents another high ideal or mark of a life in Christ, that of self denial.

If we search our Bibles we will find that surrender—of all wordly things—is a third characteristic of a true Christian, for there can be no compromise. We must pray, read our Bibles, and win others to Christ, or our souls will become stunted and will be a sorrow to our Heavenly Father.

The last mark is that of a victorious life over sin and temptation, in Jesus Christ. Do you bear the marks of Jesus Christ?"

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, bringing to a close another service of great spritual help and inspiration. To-morrow night, Mrs. Dibble will take for her subject: "Open Blind Eyes."

via Lindsay and Peterborough, left Toronto on its regular time. Then, on Monday night the International Limited went through on its lakefront route after three days of detouring from Belleville by way of Peterborough to Toronto.

With the C.N.R. lakeshore road open the C.P.R. at once availed itself of this parallel relief between Port Hope and Toronto. East of Port Hope it used its own rails, but west of that point it switched to the C.N.R.

The first of the International Limited trains over the Peterborough C. N.R. line Friday night, was preceded by a pilot engine which was sent out in advance to make sure the railway was safe for the crack train. All the trains which were transferred to this division took on two extra C.N.R. employees, an engineer and conductor, who acted as guides for the crews to whom this division was a strange route. The extra men were from freights or passenger trains operating through Peterborough and Lindsay between Toronto and Belleville.

Sheaves of Telegrams.

Week-end passengers filed stacks of telegrams from the C.N.R. station to relatives and friends, telling them where they were and assuring them that they were safe and comfortable, but would be hours late in arriving at their destinations.

A Montreal business man Saturday morning weighed his chances of reaching Detroit in time for some business affairs and return to Montreal for a meeting on Monday morning. From the information he received at the station he decided it couldn't be done; so he stayed here for the next east-bound train, and called off the Detroit trip.

STONEY LAKE IS EXTOLLED BY TRAPPERS

Dan Whetung, Jr., Arrives in City With First Catch of Rat Pelts.

CLAIMS SUPPORTED.

Tom Curvin Claims Rats Found in This District Are Easily Distinguished.

Dan Whetung, Jr., of the Curve Lake Reserve, arrived in the city shortly after the noon hour on Monday with his first catch of muskrat pelts, and hungry as a hunter. For Dan had laboured five hours on the short road to Peterborough shouldering his faithful Ford through seas of mud and miles of wrecked and wretched roads. He had four husky companions with him, who certainly earned their ride by reinforcing the usually ample and effective horse power which threatened frequently to surrender to the ooze, especially in stretches of several Ennismore roads. He was mud to his boot tops and willing to argue that if Peterborough roads were bad two weeks ago they were infinitely worse yesterday.

Extols Stoney Lake Rat.

Dan also contends, and in this he is supported by Tom Curvin, the local fur dealer, that the Stoney Lake rat belongs to the Rice Lake rodent aristocracy, has the same heavy leather, and thick fur, and at present, because he is not so keenly sought, is a better rat than its Rice Lake cousins. The Stoney Lake rat has an abundance of his natural food, deep water for exercise, and he is not trapped so "close" as at Rice Lake, in other words he gets a chance to grow up and see a bit of life before landing in a trap. The reputation of the Rice Lake rat is beyond question, but because of the demand for his hide the marshes and bays around Rice Lake, and also the river above and below it, are strewn with traps.

Are Easily Distinguished.

Tom Curvin says the rats found in the local waters, all the way up to Stoney and Chemong Lakes, but excluding Pigeon and Emily Creeks, possess the same qualities as the Rice Lake rat. This quality is so marked, and so distinguishable, that Mr. Curvin easily picked out a Stoney Lake pelt from a group of Port Hope and farther west skins.

It is the under fur that makes the "seal" for the popular and serviceable Hudson seal coats, and it is the thickness of the Rice Lake rat's fur that gives it an appreciable preference for "sealing." They also have a heavier leather when tanned, other rats being dubbed as "paper leathered."

Dan Whetung reports that the ice is getting ready to disappear from Chemong Lake. The trapping season has been later there than in the lower section of the Otonabee River, due to the fact that it is only lately the ice has receded far enough from the shores to let the rats run.

GOOD CRAFTMANSHIP IN MODEL DISPLAY

Elaborate Exhibits On Display At Montreal Boy Scouts' Exhibition.

MONTREAL, April 10.— (Special to The Examiner).—Boy Scouts can do things, there is no doubt about it; anyone uncertain would have all qualms removed by a visit to the Boy Scouts' Exhibition which was held in the Montreal High School, where eighty Scout Troops, fifty Wolf Cub packs and fifteen Rover Scout patrols have, in working out the many elaborate exhibits on display, accomplished many things their fathers could never have done, indeed there are lots of things to be seen at the exhibit that the fathers would never have thought of. Here is a proof when a 12 year old scout brought in his model camp made of match-sticks, cardboard, miniature figures and tiny linen tents, it was complete even to the flag pole with the Union Jack. An official who received the exhibit suggested that a touch of realism might be added to the display by putting a bit of red paper under the heap of broken matches to signify the camp fire. "I thought of that," answered the young hopeful, "but the fire would not be burning unless it were evening, and in that case it would be time to have the flag taken down. Now a flag-pole without a flag might be hard to recognize just for what it is—but a heap of sticks all piled up just right like that looks like the real thing. That is why I did not put the fire in". The official had to admit that there was something in that argument. The display includes every kind of work one might expect boys to do and a good deal that is nothing short of amazing. There is a collection of dolls that have been ruthlessly stripped of all their clothing to permit proper medical attentions and systems of bandaging are clearly shown upon these specimens. One of these patients has a broken head, a smashed jaw, a broken arm, a fractured hip, a broken thigh, a broken leg and a sprained elbow—no more and no less.

Another interesting section is that devoted to model airplanes. Many of these machines require only a sufficiently diminutive pilot to crank up and sail away. Most of them do fly but some are simply heavy models. One of these is the Z-6, a full fledged Zeppelin that stands moored to a tall mast in majesty and stillness.

Mechanical Exhibits

In the realm of the mechanical, strictly speaking, there has been surprisingly competent work done even with such tools as the forge and the hammer. Chains and hooks have been wrought out of steel bars with efficiency and skill. There are several telegraph sets, every piece of them made by the Scouts. A surprising exhibit is a complete phonograph in miniature which plays several small records.

Steam-boats and even electric boats that really go, as well as all sorts of sail-boats with complicated riggings that their skilled designers would have to name, occupy an important table. A fourteen year old designer has built formidable submarines, the keels of which are properly weighted so that they will sink. Another throws his sympathy with Steinmetz and Edison. His ship, and it is a big one, runs by an electric motor, fed by two diminutive storage batteries. A still younger shipbuilder has found a way of getting clear of the smoke and soot of using steam. His craft is driven by a mysterious looking power unit that sits bodily amidships and looks as if it were very important and powerful—but it resembles no known motor device. One suspects that a square shaft that extends through the roof of the engine house may need winding, but one cannot be sure in the midst of so many new and strange contraptions. The ingenuity of the modern boy, his resourcefulness and instinct to create seem more than equal to that of other generations, if the Montreal show is an indication of the Scout movement all over the land.

MRS. DAVID MILLER ELECTED DELEGATE

Women's Missionary Convention to be Held in Kingston First Week in May.

WARSAW, April 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. David Miller was elected delegate to the W.M.S. Convention to be held in Kingston on May 1, 2 and 3, at the joint meeting of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid, held in the United Church on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. George Taylor, president of the W.M.S. was in charge of the meeting. An effort will be made to secure Mrs. Haddow to give an address at the special W.M.S. Sunday service. The thankoffering envelopes were distributed at this meeting.

Rev. H. B. Herrington gave a most interesting talk to the ladies and Mrs. David Miller gave a few words on the Resurrection. Mrs. Herrington pleased her listeners with a solo, "Rest Thee" and Mrs. John Moore read "Easter Morning." The Church W.M.S. Easter service was used and led by Mrs. Herrington. Mrs. Robert Matthews led the reading of the Easter lesson in Luke and Mrs. Arthur Edwards read the Psalm.

Bean Supper Held.

The members of the Anglican Church held their bean social in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening. Euchre was enjoyed for a time and those who contributed toward the program were Ralph Selby who sang a solo; Tom Davis who contributed a violin solo and Miss Jean Munro who presided at the piano.

Attends Lecture.

On Tuesday evening, Rev. H. B. Herrington attended a lecture in Massey Hall, Toronto, delivered by the eminent archaeologist, C. Leonard Wolley, who, in conjunction with the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania, has been excavating for the last seven seasons at the home of Abraham Ur of the Chaldees. The lecture was on Babylonia and its relationship to the Bible.

Mr. Herrington also attended the luncheon given in honor of Mr Woolley at Hart House on Tuesday afternoon. After lunch, Mr. Woolley gave an informal talk on his work at Ur, mentioning among other things, that the house he occupies while at Ur was built by his men from the material which lay at hand. The latest brick used in the structure bears the name of Nebuchadenezzar, who captured Jerusalem. The court of the house is paved with brickmade by Ur Engur, the founder of the third dynasty of Ur, who lived some two or three hundred years before Abraham.

Mr. Herrington is to give a paper on this subject before a gathering in Peterborough, in the near future. While in Toronto, Mr. Herrington was the guest of his father.

Grader Used.

The grader was used on the main streets in Warsaw and for a short distance out of the village on the leading roads, making some improvement to them.

WHEAT POOL FOR CONTINENT IS SUGGESTED

Suggestion Meets With Very Little Response in United States.

CANADA NOT ANXIOUS.

American Farmer Would Like Foreign Market Pooled, But Not Home Consumption.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 10.—(By Francis G. Aldham, Staff Correspondent of The Canadian Press).—The suggestion that wheat pools in Canada and the United States get together to regulate the marketing of all the wheat grown on the North American continent is not taken seriously in Washington. The idea has been introduced from time to time in the discussions of marketing problems. But the Department of Agriculture and Washington politicians who are actively interested in the farm problems of the United States, have generally pointed out that the exportable surplus of United States wheat reached the world market through different channels than Canada's export wheat. The American farmer would like to find a ready market through Liverpool for all his surplus wheat.

The principal problem to be solved in this year's special session of congress will be the maintenance of wheat prices at home while the American farmer is competing in the world market for the disposal of this surplus crop. The American farmer has always resented the advantage which the Canadian farmer has in the export market. Lower freight rates and a closer affiliation with European retailers gave the Canadian farmer an advantage. The American farmer would like to share in the advantage. But he is not willing to open the United States home market for Canadian wheat.

The American tariff on wheat is now forty-two cents a bushel. The Farm Association in this country demands that the tariff remain the same on ordinary grades and suggests a slight increase in the duty of special grades. The reason why the idea of a common pool between Canada and the United States has not been more vigorously advocated here is that there is probably very little hope of getting the Canadian farmer to agree to such an arrangements while there is an impassable tariff barrier against Canadian wheat entering the United States.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 9.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—William Jordan, one of the oldest residents of the town, was suddenly stricken with a heart attack while calling at Edward Henson's shoe shop yesterday afternoon. Medical aid was summoned and the aged man removed to his home, Sebastapol Street. He is reported as being much improved and able to be about the house.

When the High School opened yesterday morning, E. H. Greig, B.A., principal of the school, presented Malcolm Hutcheon with the bronze medal from the Toronto Star for having won third place in the district oratorical contests in Cobourg recently.

Since the roads were absolutely impassable, Archie Hatfield had to turn back after he had got a little past Myersburg on the road to Brighton. He reported that the road past William Ross's farm was absolutely impassable and that there was another car already mired before he arrived.

BAILIEBORO, April 10.— While returning from the church service on Sunday afternoon in the severe thunderstorm, Mrs. James Johnston received a severe shock from a bolt of lightning which struck a tree a short distance from where she was walking on the sidewalk.

Suffered From Fall.

Little Marion Moncrief, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Moncrief is recovering after suffering from concussion of the brain. The accident occurred when, with her little sister, she was playing with a swing attached to a high limb. Apparently Marion had been standing on the swing when the rope broke, throwing her heavily to the ground.

She was rushed to Dr. Turner's private hospital where medical attention was rendered and the patient is now progressing favorably.

Crops Greatly Improved.

The spring weather conditions so far are greatly favouring the farmers of this district. The fall wheat and clover are looking exceptionally good, and the frequent showers are giving everything that fresh spring appearance.

The ice has compeltely disappeared on Rice Lake owing to the recent warm weather and wind. The water level is rising rapidly and once more the deep-throated spring songs of the frogs can be heard.

FINED $25 AND COSTS.

HAVELOCK, April 10 (Examiner Correspondence).—Wallace Kelsh of Cordova Mines appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley at Havelock on Monday afternoon, charged with assaulting Carman Parcels, also of Cordova Mines, and was fined $25.00 and costs, amounting in all to about $51.

Mr. Langley dismissed the charge of assault for boldly harm to one of assault. The assault occurred on the plaintiff's property on March 23 last. The argument started over a disagreement which dated some years back. Parcels lost two teeth from the blow. Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton conducted the case for the Crown.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

CANKERS OR FEVER BLISTERS

Perhaps you are a sufferer from those mean little sores in the mouth called "cankers."

It begins as a small red spot, becomes a little pimple, the pimple breaks down and becomes a little shallow ulcer.

The surface of this little ulcer is sore and almost everything you take into the mouth irritates it.

This constant irritation "gets on your nerves," and so a little simple canker makes life almost a burden.

The canker may come in cheeks, lips, tongue, gums, palate, and last about a week.

That these cankers come from the stomach or rather from digestive disturbances has been admitted.

I spoke recently of how emotional disturbances brought cankers on certain nervous individuals.

Now just how and why these cankers come on some folks and not on others eating the same food is more or less of a mystery, but Dr. Wm. L. Beecher, Chicago, gives a history of some interesting cases that may help to throw some light on the matter.

He reports a case where the individual had a sort of continuous head cold and hay fever. The skin test showed a slight reaction to cocoa. It was found that stopping all forms of chocolate was sufficient to clear up the canker sores which had been present for practically two years. Attempting to eat chocolates brought on another attack in a few hours.

Complete relief was had by avoiding cocoa.

Thus we see that cocoa which is one of our best and most nourishing foods both for sick and well folks, did not agree with this particular individual and caused cankers.

A second case showed an ulcer on the hard palate for two years. Dr. Beecher had the patient cut out one item of food at a time, and it was found that when wheat was removed the ulcer cleared up promptly. Resuming wheat the ulcer appeared again. Avoiding the wheat and the ulcer again disappeared.

Now wheat is the world's food, eaten by everybody, and yet in this particular case it caused cankers.

The third case showed reactions to cocoa, wheat, and cabbage. Cutting out these three foods stopped the attacks. Resuming these foods brought on the cankers.

Now these are only a few cases presented by Dr. Beecher, but they certainly tell their own story. If you are bothered with canker sores it will certainly be worth your while to try to find out what articles of food may be causing it.

A MEATLESS LUNCHEON.

The following tested recipes solve the problem of a tasty luncheon without meat:

Tomato Chowder.

2 cupfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk
1 pint hot water
2½ cupfuls canned tomatoes
1 medium sized onion sliced thin
1 tablespoonful butter or butter substitute
9 tablespoonfuls flour.
4 teaspoonfuls sugar
2 teaspoonfuls salt
3¾ teaspoonfu pepper
¼ teaspoon soda
water crackers split

Melt the butter in the top part of the double boiler, add the onion, and cook it gently till yellowed, about five to eight minutes. Pour in the milk and water, set over the lower part of the double boiler and scald. Mix the flour, salt and pepper with enough cold water to make a smooth cream; stir it into the milk, and cook about fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Heat the tomato with the sugar; when boiling, add the soda and combine it with the thickened milk. For serving, put a split cracker which has been dipped in warm water in each plate.

Escalloped Macaroni with Cheese.

1½ cupfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk
3 cupfuls cooked, drained macaroni cut in two-inch lengths
1¾ cupfuls grated American cheese
1½ tablespoonfuls flour
1½ tablespoonfuls butter or butter substitute
½ teaspoonful salt, scant
X teaspoonful pepper
Few grains paprika

Make a white sauce of the flour, butter, seasonings and the milk undiluted. Stir in the macaroni. Thoroughly oil a rather shallow baking dish, put in a layer of the macaroni, then one of the cheese, continuing in this way until all is used and making the last layer one of cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until browned, about thirty-five minutes.

Spanish Cream.

1¼ cupfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk diluted with 1¾ cupfuls water
X teaspoonful salt
½ cupful sugar
3 eggs
1½ tablespoonfuls granulated gelatine
1 tablespoonful vanilla

Let the gelatine stand in the milk for five minutes, then scald the mixture. Combine the egg-yolks, sugar and salt with the scalded milk, and cook until slightly thickened like a custard. Then stir the mixture into the egg whites beaten stiff; add the vanilla. Turn into individual moulds which have been dipped in cold water and when set unmould and serve with light cream, or any preserved fruit.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Accidents will happen, they say, in the best regulated families. Real accidents. Cuts, bruises, burns and even broken bones may occur despite our most carefully thought-out precautions. But there is much that can be done to reduce the chance of such accidents materially.

One of the worst accidents that can occur in any family is the accidental taking of some poisonous or harmful drug. To reduce the chances of such accidents to a minimum we can make a rule never to keep any real poisons on hand. Where there are children about even such drugs as quinine or asperin should certainly be kept out of reach. Then make a rule always to read the label on any bottle before using it, and never take any medicine—not even a soda mint tablet—in the dark. Various substances like washing soda are not actually poison but may do harm when handled by children. It is a good plan to buy some poison labels and, having explained their meaning to the children in the family, to paste one of these labels on every box or bottle or can, the contents of which might prove injurious.

Burns and cuts often occur in the kitchen through the use of defective tools and utensils. A saucepan or tea kettle with a loose handle may be responsible for a serious scalding. A loose-handled knife in the hands of one not accustomed to it may inflict a very unpleasant sort of cut.

IT'S very interesting, especially in an industrial centre like Peterborough, to learn what is being done throughout Ontario to make working conditions in factories and workshops more pleasant.

Information is given in a report just issued by the Department of Labor, and to-day I intend telling you some of the plans adopted by three hundred of the Ontario factories, employing 185,187 persons.

* * *

Women will be particularly interested because 42,813 of these employes are women. And, too, the working conditions of her husband react powerfully on every woman's home life.

* * *

The better the working conditions, the happier the man—and the more pleasant his relations with his family.

* * *

It may be well to note that housekeeping is being introduced into manufacturing plants of all kinds. I have several times written urging home managers to bring into the home some of the system so essential to efficient factory management—now it appears the factories are taking a lesson from the housewife!

* * *

That's fair exchange.

* * *

It has been found that clean floors, tables and windows help toward efficiency and prevention of accidents. In a test of eyesight it was found that efficiency was increased thirty per cent by having the windows regularly cleaned.

* * *

Splendid work is being done in most plants in the interests of accident prevention, and in providing first aid rooms doctors and nurses to give ready assistance in the event of safety rules not proving sufficient

* * *

Closely allied with general accident prevention is the improvement in general health conditions in plants. Many firms go outside the plant, and provide visiting nurses who call on employes absent more than a day and a half. Many chronic ailments of the teeth, tonsils, and more serious diseases affecting the lungs stomach, etc., have been discovered and corrected through this system

As an extension of even this advanced idea, some firms allow the visiting nurse to assist members of the employe's family. 'We take the view," says one report, that the worker himself would not be efficient if he brings to his work the knowledge that his wife or his children are suffering."

* * *

Other firms have salaried doctors who spend certain hours every day in the plant first-aid room. They prescribe for employes and conduct examinations to ascertain that no woman or man is given a task for which not physically fit.

* * *

Much more might be told of the splendid work being done in preserving the health of employes in large factories, but there are so many other phases of industrial welfare work that I must hurry on.

* * *

Eighty-nine of the three hundred firms, employing fifty per cent of the workers, have cafeterias at which hot full-course dinners may be obtained at cost, and twenty other firms have lunch rooms where tea, coffee, and milk are served free or at a nominal charge.

* * *

'Deficits up to several thousand dollars annually are being met by some firms in connection with their cafeterias," says the report, 'but even in such cases the opinion is that the cafeteria is an asset of considerable value in its contribution to the welfare of employes. The cost to employes for a hot dinne. varies from 17 to 35 cents, and food and drink to supplement the home lunch are usually procurable at a low price."

* * *

In a few cases vendors go through the plant in the middle of the morning and afternoon with sandwiches, chocolate bars, bottles of milk and other drinks, or workers are allowed fifteen minutes twice daily to go to the cafeteria to get such refreshment. "The result," continues the report, 'is said to be most beneficial as regards the relief of fatigue."

* * *

In Peterborough several of the factories have recreation grounds, and it is interesting to note that 41 per cent of the firms reporting, employing three-quarters of the workers, have made some provision for the recreation of their employes.

* * *

The majority have athletic associations, with membership fees, and the firms often make an annual contribution to the funds, or undertake the responsibility of equipment, or of any deficit which may occur.

* * *

In many firms where numbers of young people are employed, dancing in the noon hour during the winter is encouraged, and a piano or victrola is supplied in the recreation room. Employes' orchestras are sometimes organized. Glee clubs and dramatic clubs flourish in some firms.

* * *

A Christmas party for employes and their families, with a Christmas tree for the children is a common custom, as is the annual picnic outing. Some firms bear the whole expense of such outing, others a considerable portion, and some pay in addition the employes' wages for the day or half-day. Of this activity the report says: These occasions no doubt foster a friendly spirit among employes and between employes and management."

* * *

There are, of course, some firms which do not believe in the desirability of undertaking any responsibility whatever in connection with the recreational and social life of employes, or encouraging them to develop these activities within the plant.

* * *

The growing number of firms supporting or assisting recreation among employes however, indicates an increasing appreciation of the definite value both to employers and employed. One firm reports that 'the sports have been found to be productive of good will between various departments, and are considered well worth while in promoting contentment and morale."

* * *

Just to sum up the findings of the report, I will give you the proportion of reporting firms following each of the welfare plans: hospitals, 45 per cent· plant nurse, 30 per cent· visiting nurse, 15 per cent· plant doctor, 26 per cent· cafeteria, 36 per cent· recreation, 41 per cent.

*

Twenty firms out of the 109 with lunch rooms supply free milk and tea, while 59 of the 135 firms included in the 45 per cent having hospital facilities, intend to indicate first aid service only.

* *

All in all, the report shows up Ontario industry in a very favorable light, and the knowledge that the menfolk are being so well cared for in their places of employment will make life that much easier for women.

THE BABY—WHAT IS IT?

(Contributed by "Virgie.")

A collection of definitions that I hope will make all mothers think and smile.

A tiny feather from the wing of love love dropped into the sacred lap of motherhood.

The morning caller, noonday crawler, midnight brawler.

A little stranger, with unspeakable cheek, that enters a house without a stitch to its back and is received with open arms by every one.

The latest edition of humanity of which every couple think they possess the finest copy.

A thing we are expected to kiss and look as if we enjoyed it.

A native of all countries who speaks the language of none.

A little stranger with a free pass to the heart's best affections.

A soft bundle of love and trouble which we cannot do without.

It's a sweet and tiny treasure,
A torment and a tease,
It's an autocrate, an anarchist,
Two awful things to please,
It's a rest and peace disturber,
With little laughing ways,
It's a wailing human night alarm
And terror of your days.

The sweetest thing that God ever made and forgot to give wings to.

A pleasure to two, a nuisance to every other body, and a necessity to the world.

That which makes home happier, love stronger, patience greater, hands busier, nights longer, days shorter, purses lighter.

As I have no babies of my own, Marion, that is no reason why I should not like babies; for I do love them when they're very very good, but I cannot say I like them when they're very very bad. Sincerely.

JESSE JAMES.

(Contributed by J. H. R.)

Living in Missouri, was a bold, bad man,
He was known from Seattle, down to Birmingham.
From Boston, Massachusetts, right across the states
To Denver, Colorado, and the Golden Gates.
The people will forget a lot of famous names,
But every nook and corner knows of Jesse James.

Chorus:

Jesse James we used to read about him,
Jesse James, in our home at night.
Jesse James, we used to read about him
When the wind blew down the chimney we would shake with fright.

Jesse said one evening, "Boys, some coin we need";
He polished up his rifle, got his trusty steed.
Then he galloped over to his brother Frank,
Says, "We've got to get some money from the Pittsfield bank."

Jesse James said, "We've got to get some money,"
Jesse James to his brother Frank.
Jesse James said, "We got to get some money,
Yes, we got to get some money from the Pittsfield bank."

They got in town next morning, it was ten o'clock;
The cashier at the bank, he got an awful shock,
While Jesse had him covered, with his forty-four,
His pals took out a half a million bones or more.

Jesse James he had the cashier covered,
Jesse James with his forty-four,
Jesse James had the cashier covered
While his pals took out a half a million bones or more.

Jesse was in his cabin one day all alone,
His wife had left him there to straighten up the home.
He was scrubbing out the kitchen when the doorbell rang,
And in walked Ford, a member of the outlaw gang.

A photograph of Jesse's wife was on the wall
When Jesse said to Ford, "To-night
At ten o'clock the western mail will come through town,
He turned to get his rifle, knocked the picture down.

Jesse said, "I'll hang the picture back up there,"
He stooped and picked it up and stood upon a chair.
Ford then aimed his .44 at Jesse's head
And news spread round the country, Jesse James was dead.

Jesse James tried to hang the picture
Jesse James' picture of his wife,
Jesse James tried to hang the picture,
Yes, he tried to hang the picture and he lost his life.

Later on his tombstone were some words that ran,
"If you want to be a bandit stay a single man,"
For we know Jesse never would have lost his life
If it wasn't for that darn old picture of his wife.

HOW OFTEN DO YOU BATHE?

YOUR body is constantly giving off perspiration—from one to two pints every 24 hours. This moisture dries so quickly that sometimes you do not realize its presence.

Health authorities everywhere say that, to preserve your own good health and self respect and out of consideration for others, this film of dried moisture should be washed off daily.

Gently, soothingly, Lifebuoy's creamy antiseptic lather washes away this film. It penetrates and cleanses the countless tiny pores of the skin—opens them up—lets them breathe—relaxes tired, tensed nerves and muscles, makes the world look brighter.

And more—Lifebuoy's antiseptic ingredient will stand guard as an invisible shield against infection.

Every day let Lifebuoy purify the pores of your skin and keep them clean—antiseptically clean—and sweet.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

A scarf of heavy white crepe de chine with picot edge is chosen to wear with checked red and white silk frock as indicated above. At the left above is a long scarf of three shades with different colored ends, the cape scarf at the right is made from different printed silks. Below at the left a small fur scarf of stone marten worn with a two-piece suit. The collar scarf at the right is in orange, brown and white.

There is no one particular type of scarf that is supremely smart at the moment. If you like a square or triangular scarf don't choose a long narrow one instead on the supposition that the long and narrow one is in newer fashion, and if you like a simply shaped scarf don't let anyone persuade you that the shaped scarfs are at all better.

The square or triangular scarfs are usually more appropriate for the sports type of frock than the cravat or collar type of scarf. And in every woman's wardrobe there is place for quite a number of scarfs of this simpler sort. A square of white crepe de chine with picot edge was chosen to go with a red and white checked silk frock—of the spectator sports sort. Some of the new squares are edged with a narrow fringe of the material others are picoted and others are finished with the hand-sewn rolled hem. The square or triangular scarf may be knotted at one shoulder or the other, it may be worn bib fashion with ends tied at the back of the neck, it may be loosely knotted at the front—like the white crepe de chine scarf in the sketch. Or it may be drawn up closer round the neck and knotted nearer one end than the other in a large knot at one side of the neck.

There are kerchief scarfs made of summer ermine sometimes attached to a summer wrap and sometimes detachable. For evening wear there are squares much too small to be called shawls though they are sometimes worn shawl fashion. Victorian waist shaw s is the name that has been applied to these revivals.

TUCKED FLOUNCE

A brown and yellow flowered chiffon frock for evening wear has a hip-length tucked flounce that points downwards in front, on both sides and in the back is so long it touches.

SHIRRING APPEARS

Touches of shirring make many a frock Frenchy this year. A black chiffon evening dolman has an eight-inch shirring around the hips and its skirt is composed entirely of chiffon petals.

THE WAY TO WEALTH.

(Contributed by Lucinda.)

The way to wealth is as plain as the way to market. It depends chiefly on two words, industry and frugality; that is, waste neither time nor money, but make the best use of both. Without industry and frugality nothing will do, and with them everything.

One way to save time is to camouflage one dessert to serve two occasions. To do this it is very necessary to plan the desserts for each meal rather more carefully and then work out a number of recipes that can be made to do double duty; that is to prepare two desserts at once.

It is all very well to try to have variety in our meal planning, but it surely should not be a crime to serve the same dessert two days in succession and really it need not be served in exactly the same way.

The more delicately flavored and simpler desserts will not grow monotonous and may be served oftener than rich, highly seasoned ones. Therefore plan the rich desserts, for special occasions and on other days plan double desserts.

Desserts that can be made double are those of rice, tapioca, sago, junket and corn starch; they are quite acceptable two days in succession, by serving plain one day and with fruit or jelly the next.

Delicious specials: To vary rice, sago, tapioca or corn starch pudding, serve with canned or fresh fruit or jelly and whipped cream, or meringue over the top. A soft custard, when cold, may be served in glasses, with whipped cream and a cherry for color, and will be relished by old and young.

Pie is another dessert which may be used as a double dessert. When making a covered pie for one meal, make a shell also. This can be filled with some cooked filling and either meringue or whipped cream placed on top for the next day's dessert.

Still another plan is to make a plain loaf cake or perhaps gingerbread, which can be served one day as a cake and the next steamed and served with sauce.

I find that these desserts will save on an average of twenty minutes every second day, as they shorten the time of preparation and lessen the amount of dishwashing. This means about an hour a week saved to do anything else which we may consider of more importance and yet provide our families with what they wish to eat.

Gingerbread Recipe: To be served hot one day and the next day the remainder served steamed with foamy sauce.

One cup flour, one teaspoonful soda, one and one-quarter teaspoonful baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful ginger, one egg, one-half teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful cloves, one-half cup sugar, one cup molasses, one cup sour milk, one-quarter cup shortening. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Mix the milk and molasses. Add the sugar, the melted shortening and the egg. Stir in the flour mixture. Bake in a shallow pan in a moderate oven.

Foamy Sauce: One-quarter cup butter, three-quarters cup powdered sugar, one egg white, one-quarter cup hot water, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one egg yolk. Cream the butter. Add the sugar, then the hot water, stir until thickened. Remove from the stove and add vanilla; just before serving, add the beaten white of egg.

THREE-QUARTERS

Evening coats talk at going the whole way with longer evening gowns. The very newest wraps for night wear are three-quarters length and have even hems. Dolmans and capes have the edge on coats.

Chemist Tells How to End Dandruff and Stop Falling Hair

That dandruff is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair is a well-known fact. We appreciate, therefore, the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. For this reason it is a pleasure to give herewith the prescription which a famous scalp specialist states he has found after repeated tests will completely end dandruff in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair growth after years of partial baldness. This prescription can be made at home, or any druggist will put it up for you—6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavon de Composee, one-half dracam Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly and after standing an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume—you'll be delighted!

TRACKS FLOODED WHEN VALLEY INUNDATED

An unusual view of the railway approach to Toronto along the Don river. The recent rains caused the river to burst its banks and the whole valley was inundated, flooding the tracks to several feet in depth and carrying all wooden structures in the valley before it.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I am going to come for a few minutes. Must say I enjoy the page very much. I would like very much if you or some of the neighbors would help me out in regard to my kitchen furniture. I would like to paint it this spring. My chairs are the high back kind, dark oak, while my cabinet is light oak and in a real good condition. Now, what color could I do chairs and table to match the cabinet or should I paint the cabinet also? If any one has done hers over I would like to hear from her. I like to see the Irish neighbors come in once in a while. I lived there until a few years ago and our parlors are quite nice, minus the pig. I believe you are a little bit Irish yourself, Marion, or else you must have a pair of good broad shoulders. I think the knickers are very smart and modest on the girls now. Just yesterday my 5-year-old came in demanding me to make her a pair of 'pants' she called them, the same as she saw so and so wear. I said when she got a little older I may and will, too. I am enclosing money for pattern and book.

I like the recipes fine. I have tried quite a few and have had good luck with them. I am sorry I have none to give, only I could tell the neighbors how to make Irish soda scons on the griddle. I make them quite a bit and the kids enjoy them fried in the pan, so if you like I will come again and bring them along. I will sign myself what my Canadian hubby calls me—

Pat."

You're a lifesaver, "Pat"—or will be when you send that recipe. Didn't the Irish people call them "Soda farls?" Maybe I'm wrong about the name, but I surely have longed for them, whatever they are—since a trip to the Emerald Isle several years ago.

I hope some neighbor tells you about the furniture. I saw one kitchen outfit done in two tones of brown, and it looked very nice. If no one responds, remind me again, please.

And, "Pat," please don't forget that recipe!

"Dear Marion:

I am sending for another pattern. I got one and it went together the easiest and best of any pattern I ever used. I still enjoy the neighbors' letters, and the Whatnot. It will soon be time to use some of the garden hints we have been reading about. I never have any luck growing petunias in the house, that is to lift roots out of the garden. They always get lousy and die, but I have a wall ower that I lifted last fall and it is a mass of bloom of dark red velvet flowers. Wishing all the neighbors the best flower gardens they ever grew, I remain one that is surely going to try,

Nanette."

That wallflower must be wonderful, "Nanette." Write and tell us how your garden grows—we're all interested.

FAVORITE SPORTS TYPE

THE STYLE No. 2735 is something quite different in the way of sports dress, inasmuch as it simulates the tuck-in type through belted normal waistline. It is a copy from a French model in light navy blue faille silk crepe showing effective colour scheme in chartreuse silk crepe used for collar and tab cuffs, which colour also appears in suede belt. The pointed treatment of bodice, that just pretends a closing, has an inserted plaited frill of matching blue georgette crepe.

THE PATTERN is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust and has a Picture Chart with complete instructions as to how it is made. It is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the new Spring styles is 15 cents but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Something Different in Chesterfield Suites Now On Display.

COMSTOCK'S WINDOW.

In passing Comstock's big furniture store, 300 George Street (just below the Capitol Theatre), pedestrians are arrested by the surpassingly lovely 2-piece chesterfield suite in the north window. Custom-made for Comstock's, there is an unconventionalism about this suite which is fascinatingly distinctive. All-over upholstered and down-filled, this chesterfield and arm chair are covered with rich silk shadow cloth in rose floral face design on a delicate autumn woodland background, relieved here and there by a touch of leaf green. The effect is quietly colorful and refinedly elegant.

As for comfort, the soft, yielding cushions and generously padded roll arms and back of the roomy chesterfield are irresistibly inviting, and give promise of the very utmost in restful slumber. Then the unusually large arm chair with its adjust-to-the-body design entices one to comfortably lounge in its capacious depths, blissfully forgetful of the world and its worries.

Yes, if you want to see something different, something seductively lovely in living-room furnishing, just take a look at this custom-built suite with drapes that match. It will be on display till Saturday night.

This week Comstock's are making a special showing of exquisite drapes, curtains and rugs at reduced prices. Their comparatively new house furnishings department is overflowing with house-cleaning replenishments—top grade qualities and out-of-the-ordinary values.

SO T COLLAR

A raspberry moire evening wrap has a double fold of its fabric shirred to stand high and crush to make a very soft feminine collar.

STAR MESH

New spring hosiery has a tiny star dotting it until it looks like a fine mesh stocking entirely composed of little stars.

LUE HOES

Blue and white sports shoes stand a fair chance of running a race with black and white. One pair of golf shoes are white buck with triangular tips and fancy saddles of navy blue calf.

SKIRTS WILL BE OF KNEE LENGTH

Garment Retailers of America Hold Big Style Promenade in New York.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 10.—(C.P.)— Skirts of knee length will continue fashionable this summer it was indicated last night at the style promenade of the garment retailers of America. The popular silhouette for daytime wear, it was indicated, will be slim and straight, while the bouffant and princess style will predominate for formal wear. The ensemble was the outstanding style for both street and evening wear. The popular colors were peach, nile green and sky blue.

Bathing suits were featured in flared and fancy styles with open backs to permit ample sunburn. There were many exhibits of beach pajamas.

KNITTED ENSEMBLES

Frocks and long coats of knitted wool or silk are very good. The frocks are usually designed in colored embroidery but the coats are plain colored, often lined with the color. They are warm for spring and the coat can be used as a top coat with other frocks.

In Sapphire And Gold

By LAURA REID MONTGOMERY.

Anne chewed her pencil-end meditatively: Can't see that I've forgotten to allow for anything. Four yards of the wide transparent velvet" joyously she regarded the sample of silky fabric that was the true sapphire shade, the girdle of flat gold—golden slippers and gold-colored stockings. Stunning, that is what my outfit will be."

Aren't you glad now that you made the plunge and bought that little electric sewing machine, Anne? You've saved a lot by making some of your frocks."

I just guess so. Tom admired that little chiffon of printed stuff immensely. I got four yards for a dollar a yard and the rose-satin slip is just as good for my rose voile as it is for the grey chiffon."

And, when you're married, you can sew up lots of darling little gowns. Think of the time you'll have all day while the rest of us slave in the office," contributed Maizie wistfully.

Tom hasn't asked me yet," Anne blushed; so many of the girls are after him that I'm afraid he's enjoying life almost too much to be in a hurry to settle down. Tom likes a girl to look as though she'd just stepped out of a Good Coast home and Miss Jennings has been acting up to him lately."

Yes. Miss Jennings has her eye on him and she's the person who can afford really dolly clothes. She sprang a Paris model yesterday, May saw the label. Fancy down in an insurance office. Tom took notice, too, Anne, you must look just right for the dance," advised the 'oyal Maizie.

When she'd gone Anne looked at her list again and put her rooms to rights. She'd start early in the morning, for work and do her shopping in her noon hour. She had just enough money and none over for Anne hadn't been able to save anything since she'd been going to dances with the jazz-loving Tom who, so Anne feared, thought more of a girl's smartness than of her mental attributes.

Through the thin wall of the boarding-house room came the sound of muffled sobs. Anne stood listening. A new boarder occupied that room and she knew the woman had been having trouble with the landlady. After listening Anne ran to the hall. The door was not locked and she turned the knob and entered.

Mrs. Jones, red-haired and thin to the point of emaciation, turned a haggard face towards the intruder. Did I disturb you, Miss Anne? I'm very sorry."

Tell me about it," begged Anne.

In a shaking voice, punctuated with breath-taking sobs, the widow poured out her story. She worked in a plumbing shop and someone was stealing from the cash drawer. Forty-five dollars had been taken and Mrs. Jones was suspected.

Mr Gleason said he'd fire both clerks unless the money was replaced by tomorrow morning. I know it must have been Tony because he's the only one beside myself who has had a chance at the money. I'm behind now with my board and the landlady has threatened to rent my room unless I pay up, and I can't if I lose my job. If I could just put this money in the drawer I could keep my job."

But," objected Anne, if Tony is stealing he'd just go on and steal that."

The widow shook her head. "No. Mr. Gleason has a plan about fingerprints. He's put graphite all around the drawer-front so that anyone touching the drawer will leave finger-prints. So, if Tony touches it he'll be traced. If I could get hold of forty-five dollars I'd put it in an envelope and mail it to Mr. Gleason. I know Tony will be shown up if I only have time. If I'm discharged under suspicion I can't get another job and I'm paying my son's way at college."

Rapidly Anne made her decision. Not only the widow's good name was at stake but there was the danger of a taint on the boy's character. If Mrs. Jones could prove her innocence the sum of money would be well spent. After all, a sapphire-and-gold dance frock although eminently desirable was not actually essential to her.

I cannot thank you properly," cried the widow, tucking away the precious banknotes that Anne generously unpinned from her little red purse.

But, when Anne somewhat timidly informed Tom that she'd changed her mind about her new velvet frock for the dance his manner sent a poignant pain to her heart. You won't do me the compliment of looking your best?"

It isn't that, Tom. I've just changed my mind. I don't think I'd better go. Will you ask someone else?"

I'll think about it," he sulked.

But, when the night of the dance arrived, he telephoned her. I don't understand you, Anne," he said, his young voice thickened with embarrassment, but you're my girl and I'll take you in any old rag. I'll be there in half an hour. I've found out that there's something more to you than pretty clothes, Anne. Wear what you like."

And, right then Anne felt that her sacrifice had brought her something very precious.

Oh, Miss Anne," cried the widow, stopping Anne and Tom as she met them at the front door, here's the forty-five dollars you so generously gave me. I'm cleared, too. Tony put the money back in the cash drawer and left his finger-prints."

So that," remarked Tom, as they sat in the taxi, explains why you didn't wear sapphire-and-gold tonight."

Players Are Released By Toronto Baseball Club

PILOT O'NEILL REDUCES SQUAD

Pitcher Thompson and Infielders Martin and Syze Are Released.

WILL RETAIN MADSEN.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, April 10.—Instead of indulging in a diamond conflict with Springfield, the Leafs left Joe Dunn's burg early in the afternoon, a series of showers, with some snow thrown in for good measure, making it impossible to play the exhibition game carded with the Ponies.

It was a tough break for the Leafs to have to remain in idleness at this time, with the opening of the season only a week or so away.

It would be a harder blow financially if wet weather interfered with the issues booked here and at Detroit, as Business Manager O'Hara is counting on these contracts to recoup the club's exchequer, which is sadly in need of bolstering at this stage.

The stay at Louisville was profitable, the Toronto club's share in the two games running to $1,400, which was more than was taken in at Birmingham, Atlanta and Chattanooga altogether.

The business of spring training is a costly undertaking, especially when something like forty players are in the party. They must eat and sleep, and nothing but the best will do for the pampered athletes of to-day. It was different in the old days, when any old hotel would do and the player was not so hard.

Thompson Gets Release

Quite a surprise was sprung on the troupers to-day, when it was announced that "Lefty" Thompson had been given his walking papers. He is the big southpaw, who came to the club late last season, and showed good form in the few games that he pitched, especially in the exhibition contest with the Yankees. It was thought he would be a winning performer this year.

But Thompson reported forty pound over weight, and looked like a second edition of Jess Willard at Albany. He hustled with much vigor at the camp, and also on the trip, but seemed unable to get into condition, and when his arm failed him somewhat, Manager O'Neill came to the conclusion that he would not be of much help, and to-day saw him take the train for Tampa, some hours before the main portion of the squad left for Toledo.

Lowell Syze and S. H. Martin, infielders, were also let out unconditionally. The former, who is only a boy, was handicapped by a sore leg most of the trip, and, although he has plenty of promise, he is a long way from being ripe for International league company. He make his home in Flint, Mich.

Martin, who is a Detrioter, has the making of a first-class second-baseman, but with Burke and Whitehouse around there was no place for him this year, at least. He is a much better player than his work this spring would probably indicate, as he suffered a grievous affliction two weeks before reporting, losing his wife and a year-old baby.

Madsen to Be Kept

Scout Knotty Lee will make an effort to place both rookies, Martin especially, as the latter is anxious to get away from his surroundings in Detroit, with its poignant reminders of his former happiness.

There is little or no chance that Claude Madsen will be sidetracked. Joe Dunn made a bid for the sturdy outfielder, but on the say-so of Knotty Lee the Chicagoan will be kept for a while, at least. His hitting for the Yannigans was forceful, and he may yet make the regular team. McHenry is another who will get a thorough inspection.

Weigold, who is anything but a rookie, having had trials with several clubs, including Newark, will not be parted with in a hurry.

Claset is likely to be sent on his way shortly. He is not in Coleman's class as a southpaw. Harry Davey apparently earned the third-string catching job for his excellent backstopping in the eleven innings' victory at Louisville. He was with Springville last year, and Joe Dunn predicts that he will be a star some day.

CHICAGO TEAM WILL VISIT HERE

Attractive Playing Schedule Planned Out By Local Cricket Club.

BUSINESS MEETING.

An enjoyable social evening was spent last night by the members of the Peterborough Cricket Club, in which the early part of the evening was spent in discussing the club's business. The secretary reported a splendid future list for the coming season. A match has been arranged for July 17 with the touring Chicago Cricket Club. This game indeed should be a big boost to cricketers in the city. It is to be played on a Wednesday, which is a half holiday, and a good number of the citizen should avail themselves of the opportunity to see a first-class team from across the border. Arrangements are being made to entertain the visitors, and it is hoped that they will carry away pleasant memories of our city.

It was decided to hold a general meeting at an early date inviting all interested to attend.

One of the most versatile players in junior hockey is Charles Conacher of the Toronto Marlboros team which defeated the Winnipeg Elmwoods to win the junior championship of Canada.

Charlie is a younger brother of the famous Lionel Conacher, one of the best rugby players ever produced in Canada and at present a member of the New York Americans hockey team.

When Charlie scored a goal past Holmes of the Elmwoods, putting his team two goals up on the western team, he immediately became the idol of thousands of hockey fans. His playing is such that it should not be long before this speedy junior will be performing in the professional ranks as well as his older brother.

FOUR TEAMS IN NATIONAL League Race Will Be Bitter Struggle Between First Division Clubs.

STRONGER LINE-UPS.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 10 (C.P.).—Unless the unexpected happens in baseball there will be no drastic upheaval when all the 1929 returns are in for the National league Spring indications point to four clubs in a fight for the first division places, and the favored quartet is made up of those finishing in the first four places last year.

Pittsburgh is conducting an infield experiment and has been retarded in its outfield arrangements by the absence of the Waners. The signing of one of the poisonous brothers relieved the tension in part, but the Pirates will not be happy until they have the elder as well. Jess Petty supplies a touch the pitching department has long needed. Pittsburgh has not had an experienced southpaw in many season.

The Cardinals will take the field with a rearranged infield, including the sensational international league recruit, Gelbert, at short stop. He has given every indication of being as good as he was touted and should develop into one of the stars of the game. Cary Selph, another recruit infielder, barring a slowness on double plays, has also lived up to his press notices. The return of Walter Rosetger to physical fitness will add batting strength to the outfield.

Cincinnati has uncovered some promising young outfielders, giving Manager Jack Hendrick food for thought. The gray pilot of the Reds must decide if any or all of them are ready for promotion to the baseball heights. Silas Johnson, a young pitcher, may be helpful.

After a bad fright over the condition of the arm of Glenn Wright, his new short stop, Manager Wilbert Robinson has been able to turn his attention to his outfield where he has a difficult problem in working out an arrangement that will be satisfactory both from a defensive and offensive standpoint. He may introduce a new face.

The outlook for the clubs who finished in the second division last year is not promising in view of the improved condition of their rivals who were more fortunate last season. The Phillies, chronic tail-enders, have taken the longest strides, and with a break in luck should get out of the cellar.

A majority of baseball's close observers forecast a long and bitter struggle with the competition continuing to the stretch. Each of the four first division clubs of last year has made a definite addition to its strength. The Cubs have Rogers Hornsby and his devastating bat, the Giants expect Fred Leach to strengthen their outfield, the Pirates have Jess Petty, a star left hander, and the Cardinals infield has been braced by the acquisition of Charlie Gelbert, a great young shortstop.

Supporters of the Cubs believe that the addition of Hornsby has made the club. The batting leader of the league will add a punch and his strong offensive is expected to carry his mates with him. If Manager Joe McCarthy gets satisfactory results from his pitching staff his club should play a prominent part in the indicated finish fight. His infield reserves have not been strengthened, but an already strong catching staff has been bolstered by a hard hitter in Tom Angley, the former Cracker and Georgia Tech star.

Reese is Great Performer

The New York Giants have been gratified to find Andy Reese, a greatly improved performer at second base and if he carries his terrific spring hitting streak into the regular campaign it will be difficult to oust him from the infield. Carl Hubbell, who showed himself a capable lefthander on his first appearance is better now, and Leach and Ed Roush, apparently recovered from his indisposition of last year, will form a stronger outfield combination. There is no suggestion that he has found a pitcher in the new crop to replace Petty, but Dazzy Vance will continue to throw them by the opposition batters.

The Phillies for the first time in years will be able to present a tight infield combination in Don Hurst, Presco Thompson, Tommy Thevenow and Red Whitney. There is a woeful lack of reserve strength but the first stringers will rank high. In spite of the loss of Leach the outfield seems to have held its own, and with fair pitching, Burt Shotton should improve his position.

The Boston Braves will be an experiment from the manager to the trainer. President - Manager Emil Fuchs will direct play from the bench, a new field of endeavor for the former judge. A new training system has also been introduced along very modern lines. The Braves have drawn on champion clubs for new players, Joe Dugan and Pat Collins from the Yanks and George Harper and Rabbit Maranville from the Cardinals. Lance Richbourg, an outstanding outfielder, will continue to run his hits out.

LAKEFIELD CURLERS GATHER AT THE ANNUAL CLUB BANQUET

Clearing of Season's Business and Election of Officers Features Meeting.

PRESENTATIONS MADE.

Amendment Carried Regarding Rules in President-Vice-President Games.

LAKEFIELD, April 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual banquet of the Lakefield Curling Club was held on Monday evening, April 8, at the Lakefield Inn. Shortly after seven o'clock about forty sat down to a sumptuous banquet served by Mine Host Lawless and his corps of assistants. When theinner man was satisfied the company resolved itself into the annual business meeting of the club, with Preident J. W. Ridpath in the chair. Mr. Ridpath, in an eloquent speech reviewed the past season, which had been the shortest in the history of the club, and drew special attention to the fact that no games were defaulted in the local competition for the Fitz Gerald Cup. This Mr. Ridpath regarded as an outstanding feature of the season. The early spring, which came with unexpected rapidity, broke up the ice before the local bonspiel for the Casement and Tanner Cups could be completed.

The report of the treasurer, Mr. P. Spence, showed a balance on hand of $88.45. On motion of D. H. Charlton and W. G. Morrison, the report was adopted.

The election of officers for 1929-30 was the next order of business, and resulted as follows:

President—G. H. Spence.

Vice-President—T. Crawford.

Executive Committee—Dr. F. H. Lingwood, N. Payne, B. Q. Dench, J. E. Galvin, and Rev. S. A. Kemp.

The officers-elect all spoke briefly, promising to have straight ice next season if united and concerted effort could accomplish it. The Fitz Gerald Cup for the winner in the local competition was presented to E. Pearson, H. Miles, Dr. Gibson, and P. Spence, skip. In the absence of the donor, Mr. Fitz Gerald, Mr. Ridpath made the presentation. The prizes accompanying the cup were sweaters. To the runners-up, T. W. Chaplin, G. T. Welbourne, R. J. Jory, J. W. Ridpath, skip, the prizes were shirts.

The Douro Cup, which, though a unique tin trophy, is not eagerly sought, was won by A. E. Webster, Rev. T. M. Wesley, S. Wannamaker, H. R. Wagar, skip, and was accompanied by boxes of Pep, which should present an encore performance. B. Q. Dench made the presentation with impressive solemnity. The winners of the prizes spoke briefly, thanking the club for their trophies.

Dr. Lingwood proposed that in the President-Vice-President games that a win should count one point, a tie half a point to each side, and in the event of a tie at the end of the series that the president and vice-president should play it off in a sudden death game. Dr. Lingwood put this in the form of a motion, which was seconded by Rev. W. J. Creighton, and carried.

On the motion of Messrs. Ridpath and Crawford, it was arranged that the executive should meet the Rink Company and see what best can be done to ensure straight ice next season. The executive are to be empowered to offer financial aid from the club.

About ten o'clock the party broke up with repeated praises of the bountiful and delicious repast.

Among those present were: T. W. Chaplin, D. H. Charlton, G. A. Charlton, S. J. Charlton, T. Crawford, Rev. W. J. Creighton, F. H. Dawson, S. Darling, B. Q. Dench, J. E. Galvin, Dr. S. J. Gibson, J. R. Hill, M. Holland, C. H. Hunter, R. J. Jory, Rev. S. A. Kemp, Dr. F. H. Lingwood, W. W. Leonard, W. G. Morrison, H. Miles, E. H. Northey, R. E. Nevison, J. H. Payne, N. Payne, E. Pearson, J. W. Ridpath, P. Spence, G. H. Spence, C. C. Stenner, C. Waldon, F Wannamaker, G. A. Welbourne, D. H. Webster, Rev. T. M. Wesley, H. Wannamaker, H. R. Wagar, P. Watson, W. Watson.

TORONTO ANGLERS TO GIVE EXHIBITION

Demonstration of Bait and Fly Casting Will Be Given in Armories To-night.

In many ways, one of the most unique exhibitions ever given locally, the bait and fly casting demonstration to be staged in the armories tonight by members of the Toronto Anglers' Association promises a wealth of instruction to the beginners—and something to aim at for the old timers who have, of late years, become converted to the rod and reel as a means of hunting the big fellows, in preference to the old faithful, but no so interesting troll.

To-night's event appears as a step in the right direction on the part of Peterborough's progressive Fish and Game Association which has been instrumental in bringing the Toronto Anglers here. The visitors will include such well-known bait and fly casters as Messrs. Jull, Ward, Galbraith, Cooper and possibly Gregory Clark, while local casters are invited to bring along the old pole for a try or two. There will be events for everbody.

HOCKEY PLAYERS RECEIVE HONOR

Trent Valley League Champions Given Banquet in Stirling Hall.

STIRLING, April 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The local hockey team, which was successful in winning the championship of the Trent Valley League was given a banquet on Thursday evening in the Community Hall. The supper was catered by members of the Stirling Women's Institute.

The Community Hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion with red and white, the team colors. Dr. C. F. Walt was toastmaster for the occasion and the following program was enjoyed: Toast to the King; solo, Miss Bessie Conley; toast, "Our hockey players and manager," proposed by Rev. E. W. Rowland and responded to by Jack Ackers and R. W. Meiklejohn; community singing; selection by orchestra; toast to "Our community", proposed by Father H. J. Farrell and responded to by L. Meiklejohn, E. Pyear and Thomas Montgomery; musical selection by Kenneth Smith; solo, Father H. J. Farrell; selection by orchestra; selection by Kenneth Smith; presentation of cups by Hon. J. R. Cooke M.P.P. The cups were accepted by W. J. Whitty on behalf of the team.

Reeve Montgomery presented each of the players with a wrist watch, except Don Morton, who received a signet ring, as he already owned a wrist watch.

The Community Hall proves to be a valuable asset to the village property and an ideal place to hold such functions as this banquet.

System in Operation.

On Friday the summer water system was put in operation and the streets of the business portion of the village thoroughly cleaned, under the supervision of Mr. Sprentall, electrician.

Detour Made.

On account of the dangerous condition of the railways to the south, a detour has been made by way of Peterborough to Belleville to overcome the difficulty of traffic by the usual route. The Marmora bus was unable to make its trip on Monday.

Good Prices Obtained.

The sale of household effects belonging to Mr. Fred McKee drew a large crowd on Saturday afternoon. Prices obtained were good.

To Hold Sale.

Thomas Cranston will have a sale of furniture at his poultry farm on Saturday, April 13.

Prepare Seeds

The executive of Stirling Horticultural Society met Friday afternoon and prepared a large quantity of garden and flower seeds for distribution to members of the Society.

Tooth brushes and handkerchiefs have figured among the tokens of valor presented by Chinese generals to the troops under their command.

ROBSON'S HOPE

Here is Charles Robson's lone hope for King's Plate this year. In looking over this fellow's record last season, we see him facing the gate four times, coming down on the front end of it twice and finishing fourth in his other two starts. His first break into the win column came at Blue Bonnets last August when he won over a cheap field that included Rose Flame, Kauri, and Wee Toddler. His next victory was scored at Dorval eleven days later, when he won over the same lot.

NEW YORK BOXING EXPERT CLASSES REAL PUNCHERS

Rates Braddock and Griffiths As Leaders in Their Class.

WILLS WILL TRY AGAIN.

Kid Chocolate Restores Interest in Bantams, Packs Wicked Wallop.

Wilbur Wood, whose boxing comment in the New York Sun is always interesting, has the following to say regarding the leading punchers of the various divisions:

What is the secret behind the amazing popularity of Kid Chocolate, the Cuban bantamweight, who is to box Bushy Graham at the New York Coliseum next Friday night, in the first of a series of elimination bouts to find a champion for that headless division?

Several factors have contributed to Chocolate's rise to fistic eminence. They may be summed up in one word color—used in the meaning that attaches to it in the world of sports. But probably the greatest single asset the Cuban has as a magnet for fandom is the punch cached in his mahogany knuckles.

Many Knockouts.

One of the Kid's distinctions is that four times he has scored two knockouts in one week. His first "double" was chalked up at the expense of Joey Ross and Frisco Grande. Jackie Schweitzer and Pinky May also fell in the space of a week. So did Emil Paluso and Pancho Dencio. Al Rackow and Johnny Vacea were the victims in Chocolate's most recent "double."

Since he came to the country the Cuban has scored 13 knockouts in 21 starts, for an average of .619. In Cuba he won all 21 of his professional starts by knockouts. As an amateur he is supposed to have scored 86 knockouts in 100 bouts. Putting them all together he has 120 flattenings in 142 bouts. There's a record that will take a lot of beating.

For a division to be in the big money it must be able to show some punchers. That always has been the rule. Fancy boxing is well enough in its way, but the customers like to see somebody on the floor once in a while.

Pladner Hits Hard.

The only genuine knockout puncher in the flyweight division at present is Emile (Spider) Pladner of France. Since he belted out Johnny Hill and Frankie Genaro, the flyweight sector has shown signs of life.

The advent of Chocolate promises to restore interest in Bantamweight doings. The Cuban is not the only hard hitter among the 118-pounders. Al. Brown, the lanky Panamian hits like a mule kicks. He at one time chalked up eight consecutive one-round knockouts. Joey Scarfaro, from up Harlem way, is a good puncher but not smart enough to catch manys boys on the button. At that he nearly flattened Chocolate one night in the Garden last winter. Fidel La Barba is a fair hitter.

Eddie Shea, Chicago Italian, is a standout in the featherweight division as a puncher. Benny Bass also packs dynamite. Harry Blitman bowls them over when he lands on the target. Irish Bobby Brady is a youngster who should make his mark as a knockout artist.

Al. Foreman, the Englishman, is the best walloper among the junior lightweights and Tony Canzoneri can put something on his punches when he takes time to set himself.

Many Hard Hitters.

The lightweight division boasts more and better punchers than any other, which is the chief reason it ranks next to the heavyweight class in public interest. Ray Miller, Billy Wallace, Billy Petrolle, Tommy Grogan and Pinky Kaufman are one-punch boys. Baby Sal, a Mexican, is creating considerable havoc with lightweight chins in California and may cut quite a figure in the division before long.

The Welterweight ranks are enriched by a dynamiter in the person of Jimmy McLarnin, who found his punch as a lightweight. Young Jack Thompson is a hard hitter. So is Nick Testo. Freddy Polo can hit but can't do anything else. Sammy Baker, now past his peak, still can sock.

George Courtney is the hardest puncher in the middleweight division. Phil Kaplan and Harry Ebbets also are soporific sockers.

James J. Braddock and Tuffy Griffith are the boys who tote the high explosive among the 175-pounders. Max Schmeling, Otto Von Porat, George Godfrey and Young Stribling are the kingpin punchers of the heavyweight division. However Stribling's undeniable punch seems to vanish when he is dropped in with a first-class opponent.

Among all those the four best, we should say, are Braddock, Courtney, McLarnin and Miller, rating them pound for pound and inch for inch. There may be others who will run up a higher knockout average, but those lads seem to have the most stuff on a single punch.

Wills To Try Again

Harry Wills wants to do a comeback. The big negro, who grew famous because Jack Dempsey never would fight him, dropped in at Humbert J. Fugazy's office yesterday to ask Dempsey to match him with somebody next summer. Dempsey was not on hand, but Fugazy assured Wills he would try to fix him up.

George Godfrey's offer to fight any two of the leading contenders in one night had Wills all steamed up.

"Where does that man Godfrey get off to be talking like that," growled Harry. "He's just big, that's all; just big. I can lick him myself, and I'll be ready to do it in a couple of months."

"What about the rest of them?" he was asked.

"Well, I don't want to say anything about 'em separately," replied Wills, "but taking 'em as a bunch they aren't much good. That's why I'm figuring on coming back, because I don't think much of them."

Wills went on to say that he had boxed several exhibitions while puttering around in the West Indies during the winter.

"One night while I was giving an exhibition a big boy challenged me from the crowd. He stood up and said he was Ira Kid, the champion of the West Indies and could lick me. So we had a fight and I knocked him out in two rounds. I guess that makes me champion of the West Indies."

WILL KINGSTON ENTER C.O.B.L.?

Whether Kingston will be in the Central League will be definitely settled at the meeting of the league planned for Belleville on Saturday, April 20. Kingston appears none too certain that there are sufficient ball players in that city to warrant playing in the C.O.B.L., while there are at least two clubs in the league that are definitely against the long trips to the Limestone City. Taking these two things into account it is almost certain that the Central League will be confined to a snug little four team group consisting of Oshawa, Belleville, Deloro and Peterborough.

BILL KAY MENTIONED AS CONVENOR.

Bill Kay has been suggested as the convenor of this district for the O.B.A.A. Bill has been to the front in baseball since coming to this city, and it was due to his exertions that the Raybestos ball team has had the success that it has earned. He was also active on the executive of the East Peterborough League. Bill would make a good man for the important duties of convener of this district.

LACROSSE TAKING PLACE OF BASEBALL

In yesterday's New York Times there was a two-column head on the sports page which read:—"Baseball giving way to lacrosse as leading activity at Rutgers." In the article which followed the writer stated that at the New Brunswick N.J. college one sees more lacrosse sticks than baseball bats and that the gutted stick game is much more popular than the American national pastime. The statistics of last year showed that on games that might be called equivalent, lacross was ahead in attendance by the ratio of 500 to 150 for baseball. How strong a hold the game has taken at Rutgers since its casual introduction in 1927 is reflected in the fact that Coach Harry Rockfeller of the football team has ordered all his squad except those participating in other sports, to report to Coach Fitch for lacrosse. Close to 300 students turn out for lacrosse practice on favorable days.

SLAYERS ARE UNKNOWN.

TORONTO, Ont., April 10.—(Canadian Press.)—James McGrath, Toronto, came to his death as a result of injuries at the hands of a person or persons unknown in a hotel somewhere in Toronto, or in a vicinity unknown, was the coroners jury verdict at the inquest here yesterday.

McGrath was found on Lawrence avenue, off the Don Mills Road on March 16, half submerged in water and with his skull crushed in. He died in hospital 24 hours later.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

Bowling alley gossip ... ...

The final battle in the A.Y.P.A. bowling league disclosed the fact that Senecas, captained by D. J. Bachelor, were the cream of this league, winning the championship from Vic Sedgwick's team.

Arnold Pammett of the Senecas holds the high three score in this league with a total of 718 pins, while Joe Grierson with 318 still holds the high single record.

Miss Helen Risko of the Dakotas whose heavy hitting style won her special mention among the ladies high single scores at the Duffus Alleys, has had things pretty much her own way in this league, high single 258, high three 657, and also ladies' high average for the second half of the schedule.

The executive of the A.Y.P.A. league is preparing for a gala night to be held on April 24, when the prizes for the high scores will be presented.

The Switchboard and Brass Department teams in the C.G.E. are having a rather difficult time deciding which is the better team. The first set of games was won by the quintette from the Brass department, but the next day the Switchboard gang challenged them to a return game. This battle was fought on Saturday last and the challengers carried the day. This gives each team a win, and a loss, so the Brass issued another challenge which will be played off on Saturday night.

Bert Duffus and his gang of supervisors are putting things in shape for one of the best bowling tournaments ever held in this city, which will take place at the Duffus Alley from April 19 to 29. The tournament is open to ladies and gentlemen with prizes for doubles, singles, and teams, and the number of entries will undoubtedly keep the pin boys on the jump for the whole week.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

JEAN McLEOD AND COMPANY, A CLEVER SCOTCH TROUPE OF SIX PEOPLE, AND THAT WONDERFUL PRODUCTION "SIMBA" BY MR. AND MRS. MARTIN JOHNSON, WILL BE AT THE CAPITOL THE LAST THREE DAYS OF THIS WEEK.

The feature attractions at the Capitol the last three days of this week, are ones that will attract many citizens who are not regular theatre patrons, as well as the large army of regulars.

For the stage entertainment, Manager Stewart is bringing a very clever Scotch troupe of six people, Jean McLeod and Company, this company have their own pipe band, and their performance will consist of Harry Lauder favorites, dancing singing and comedy.

To prove that their life in the interior of wildest Africa, where they retired for four years in order to secure a picture of the native game as it lives undisturbed by man, was by no means an uncivilized existence, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, whose latest picture, "Simba," comes to the Capitol Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Johnsons made their base camp at the edge of a beautiful lake in the crater of an extinct volcano, "Lake Paradise." Here they built their home; Mrs. Johnson laid out her gardens, and things were regulated much as they would be in a far more accessible spot.

A regular kitchen was one of the larger rooms of the house, and the stoves were built on the order of separate fireplaces. There was one head cook who was instructed in his duties by Mrs. Johnson, and several kitchen assistants, all native black boys, of course.

Had Fine Garden.

Mrs. Johnson's garden furnished the vegetables and greens. Meat was obtained from cattle bought from the natives, and Mrs. Johnson kept a considerable number of chickens so that there were more than enough eggs.

Here is Mrs. Johnson's account of an average day:—

"The cook and boys get up early and at six have breakfast ready for us. It is usually a hearty breakfast because we may have a long trip to make and there may be no opportunity for lunch. Our breakfast menu consists of ham, bacon, kippered herring, bloaters, porridge, or liver once a week.

"As the natives sell us cattle very reasonably we can afford good beef whenever we like, and all the fresh milk we want, we churn every third day—one of my favorite jobs.

"At six-thirty the boys are given their day's work—some to go after thatching grass several miles away, others for logs, and others for bush vines to use as rope which often has to take the place of nails for us.

"Any routine work, repairing, digging, washing, cooking, butchering, and other jobs are assigned to the other men. There is plenty of work for everybody. Two boys herd the cows and oxen; one herds the mules and donkeys; four work in the garden under my direction, and others work in the kitchen. There are overseers for every gang, the more intelligent blacks experienced in doing things in the white man's way.

Had Laundry Too.

"There is also a laundry in a special building where the washing is done in big tubs with clean boiling water. Real irons and ironing boards are used and thus we always have fresh clothes and linen.

"By eight o'clock Martin would have his laboratory work done and we would get an early start to whatever general neighborhood we had picked for the photographic work we wanted to do. We set out to get—and succeeded in getting pictures of big game at ease in its native haunts—pictures which are now on file in the archives of the Museum of Natural History, as well as showing thousands of people, many of whom have never seen any wild life in their lives. The picture, 'Simba' is the authentic record of our observations.

"Sometimes when on these treks we rode camels, sometimes mules, or we walked. Around noon we rested in any shade we could find, and then went on until a little before sunset, to make camp for the night.

HAS SUGGESTION FOR THE RE-UNION

To the Editor of The Examiner:

I have been quite interested in the news items concerning "Old Home Week." In looking backward over the past, I have wondered how many scholars could say "present" if the roll were called of those who attended the old public school on the southeast corner of Sheridan street, north side of Hunter street in the late 50's in the last century? I only know of Gus Sawyers and myself. Perhaps there may be others.

There will certainly be much gladness of heart, in welcoming back the old timers who have wandered off to pastures green and stranger scenes. And with it there will be a lot of frolic and gaiety, thinking of the past and present. I wonder in the midst of it all, how many will think of the future life; where, and with whom it will be spent? One class are looking forward to a fellowship of bliss and happiness, as expressed by a native-born Canadian, Rev. A. B. Simpson, the founder of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. This poem is too long for this space, but the chorus expresses the thought of a great many people. The poem is entitled:

"The Glad Home Coming"
Chorus)

"Oh, the glad home-coming. It is swiftly drawing nigh;
Oh, the sad home-longing will be over by and by.
Lo! the Bridegroom cometh, holy watchers soon will cry.
For the glad home-coming draweth nigh."

Yours, from one of the old-timers,
A. J. Johnston.

Let the reunion spirit prevail. Give the old boys and girls a real thrill by recalling old days.

Keep Thursday evening free for the General Committee meeting in the City Council Chamber

Citizens are invited to participate in the general discussion at the meeting on Thursday evening.

The last call for names will soon go out. Don't let anyone be missed!

Do It at Once!

THE ORGANIZATION that has been gathering names of old boys and girls to whom invitations should be sent is entering upon the last phase of its work.

Help is still needed if no one is to be missed.

Remember that not only persons born here, but those who have at any time resided in Peterborough city and county, are eligible. If this was "HOME" to anyone at any time, we wish to have him come back for Old Home Week.

Put on your thinking cap! Dig up those names of your old friends—don't take a chance on someone else's sending them in. If you know of anyone who ever lived here, send in the name so that the committee may send particulars of Old Home Week and a hearty invitation on behalf of the citizens.

And PLEASE DO IT NOW!

THERE IS STILL TIME!

There is still time to send invitations to old boys and girls not yet on the mailing list, if citizens will rush the names to Mr. Dobbin, at the city hall.

The next mailing will go out in a few days, and names should be on hand so that no one will be missed.

Please write down here and NOW, any names you can think of, that have not yet been printed in the paper. Invitations and particulars will be sent at once.

To the Old Home Week Committee,
City Hall.

The following are the names of former Peterborough city or county old boys and girls with their present address:—

BEAUTY LINGERS IN THEIR MEMORY

"You can't beat Peterborough for beauty," says Mrs. Cassidy, now of Bradwell, Sask., formerly Lillian B. Primeau, of 472 Driscoll terrace. Mrs. Cassidy' father and sister still reside at this address. She left Peterborough in 1911.

"Glad to Go Back

"Peterborough has many tender memories for us, and we are always glad to go back for a visit," declares Walter Howe, 4870 Fernwood avenue, Detroit, Mich. He left here in 1923. Mrs. Howe was formerly Miss Stinson.

"We Will Be There."

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gadona, formerly of 568 Romaine street, now reside at 559 Clarissa street, Rochester, N.Y., having left Peterborough in 1924. Mrs. Gadona was formerly Beryl Coursey, and relatives reside at 565 Romaine street and 584 Weller street.

"We will be there Old Home week," says Mrs. Gadona.

"Our Home Town"

"We always look on Peterborough as our home town, as it was our first home in Canada, so no place ever will seem so nice to us, and we shall be glad to visit it again this summer," say Mr. and Mrs. James Elliott, 26 Amy street, Brockville, who left here in 1915. They resided on Crescent street.

From Saskatchewan

Mrs. Samuel Hamill, Frobisher, Sask., was formerly Amy Ruth, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ruth, still reside at 450 George street south. She left here in 1918.

From Ottawa

Harry C. White, 14 Ivy avenue, Ottawa, left here in May, 1916, and is now a clerk in the Civil Service. He resided on London street, and his parents live at 592 Aylmer street.

From London

Mrs. W. R. Jarmin, 9 Horne street, London, Ont., was Lottie Green, Reid street, and left here in 1900.

Life will be very full during Old Home Week. It's something to look forward to.

FRUIT DEALER IS ACQUITTED

Hamilton Merchant Freed Following His Acquittal On Murder Charge.

VIOLENCE FEARED.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 10 (Canadian Press). — Frank Abramo, 42, Sillician fruit dealer, was acquitted last night on a charge of murder laid following the death of his wife in their home here on March 8.

Abramo in a statement to the police said the crime was committed between 6.30 and 11 a.m. while he was at the market. He said that he believed robbery was the motive. The jury deliberated two hours.

Spectators were prevented from leaving the court room for several minutes after the verdict while Abramo was hurried away. The police admitted that they feared an attempt on his life as the result of his acquittal.

H. B. Dunnett gave evidence during the trial reporting that he had witnessed two men lurking near the Abramo home on the morning of the murder while Abramo was absent. Evidence was introduced by the Crown to show that Abramo had threatened his wife.

6,000 WORKERS OUT ON STRIKE

Conditions in North Carolina Textile Mills Are Less Turbulent.

DEMANDS BEING MET.

CHARLOTTE, N.C., April 10.—(C.P.)— Strike conditions in North Carolina textile mills appeared less turbulent to-day while the situation in South Carolina remained at a standstill, approximately 6,000 mill operators in the two States continued idle.

At Forest City, N.C., where several hundred employees of the Florence Cotton Mills struck Monday, immediate peace seemed in prospect. The strike committee, after an all-day conference with officials, called a meeting of the workmen last night and told them all demands with one exception had been granted.

They said a 20 per cent. wage increase had been denied. Other demands were that an efficiency system be abandoned and that the efficiency expert employed by the mill be discharged.

STRIKERS WILL REMAIN OUT

By Overwhelming Majority Australian Workers Vote Against Returning.

SERIOUS RIOT OCCURRED.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 10 (Canadian Press).—An overwhelming majority against a proposal that work be resumed was registered by the striking timber workers of the Victoria and New South Wales branches of the Australian Timber Workers' Union through a secret ballot, the result of which was announced to-day. The ballot, which was secret, resulted in 732 votes in favor of resumption of work and 5,318 votes against.

Australian timber workers have been on strike for several months. The strikers have refused to accept the award of an arbitration court. A serious riot occurred at Sydney March 27, when strikers burned a number of secret ballot boxes issued by the Federal arbitration court for use in a referendum on the arbitration award. As an aid to the strikers the building workers have refused to use timber produced by volunteer labor.

FORMER GOVERNOR IS UNDER ARREST

Baptist Minister is Charged With Aiding Counterfeiting Ring.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 10.—(C.P.)—Signey J. Catts, Sr., former Governor of Florida and a Baptist minister, to-day faced arrest on charges of aiding and abetting an alleged million dollar counterfeiting ring.

Two Federal indictments linking the former Governor with financing a counterfeiting conspiracy were returned here yesterday. Others named in the indictments were Julian Diaz, Tampa attorney, arrested recently in Miami; Mateo Mir, Armando Domingues and Madeline Leah Burwell, Diaz' former secretary.

Catts is alleged to have furnished $5,000 to the ring to finance the purchase of printing presses and equipment, with the understanding that he was to receive $25,000 of the counterfeit money as his part in the investment, the indictments charge.

The plot was uncovered by Federal men working out of Atlanta, when numerous $100 notes were reported in circulation in Florida and New York.

BOYS' CLUB CLOSES YEAR

Members of R. G. C. Club Gather at Sumptuous Banquet.

GOOD PROGRAM.

The year's activities of the R. G. C. Boys' club closed with a sumptuous banquet at the Empress Hotel recently. The aim of this club is to promote sports among the boys of west end of the city.

Robert McWilliams presided as chairman at the banquet. After dinner Alfred F. McKee proposed the toast to the King and all rose and sang the National Anthem. Jack Paite, Jr., proposed the toast to the chairman hich was responded to by Mr. McWilliams.

Jack McWilliams very ably proposed the toast to the "Braves" a name applied to the rank and file members of the club, and James H. Turner, their "captain" replied and "Our Club" was proposed by Bob McWilliams and Donald, the vice-president, replied.

Warren F. Turner, on of the four founders, briefly outlined the history of the organization, stating that it had reached its peak in 1928. He hoped that rather than disband the club should continue to exist, but for the present, reduce its activities. George Barnes seconded this motion which was unanimously carried.

During the evening Joe Leith rendered a vocal selection in masterly style. The whole gathering supplied the rest of music with Don Best at the piano. Many popular songs were sung throughout the evening.

ICE MOVES OUT OF UPPER LAKE

Usually Near End of Month When Ice begins to Move.

ROADS IMPASSABLE.

The ice moved out of Clear and Stoney Lakes yesterday. This, it is said, is the earliest for many years that the ice has moved out of these lakes. It is usually nearer the end of April when the ice goes out.

Spring has hit the lake district and the birds are echoing their cheery notes from tree to tree, but as yet the roads are so impassable from the heavy rains as to effectually cut off nearly all transportation.

It is said that yesterday for the first time in over a week phone communication was possible with Young's Point.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS.

The office worker, the farmer and the mechanic are all liable to suffer from derangements of the kidneys. Backaches and headaches are one of the many symptoms, others suffer from high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries sets in. In order to check these alarming and sometimes fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are now recognized by the Doctors and Druggists as one of the most reliable kidney preparations on the market. They will correct acidity of the urine and by keeping the kidneys in a healthy condition they will remove the poison that remains in the blood, which is the cause of a great many rheumatic ailments. The numerous testimonials from individuals who have derived benefit from the use of these tablets, speak for themselves.

These pills are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store and have no hesitation in asking your druggist about the merits of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills.

McCORMICK-DEERING NEWS

"Good equipment makes a good farmer better"

Published by

W. BURNS
THE FARM EQUIPMENT MAN

Vol. 1, No. 3 Peterboro Wednesday, Apr. 10, 1929

Watch for the "News" each week. Suggestions and news items invited.
W. Burns, Editor.

Try It

Here's another limerick with the last line missing. If you can fill it in you are a better man than your long-suffering editor.
"There's one way, all drivers are told,
To keep from getting too old;
Just drive without chains
In snowstorms and rains—
. . . . . ."

The light-draft, easy-running McCormick-Deering Manure Spreader is fitted with roller bearings in the rear axle, upper and lower beater, and widespread spiral shaft.

Advice is something that a lawyer sells, a mother-in-law gives away, but which you cannot dispose of yourself.

Ease of operation, economy of fuel and oil, lots of power and high-class construction are some of the reasons for the popularity of McCormick-Deering Tractors.

Alcohol is excellent for preserving almost everything except secrets.

Every year International Harvester improves the McCormick-Deering line of farm machinery. Drop in soon and let us show you some of the latest features for saving money and increasing profits.

See the Tractor Parade next Saturday, this being our first Spring delivery. All sizes and kinds, 15-30, 10-20, and Farmall.

After explaining that a biped was anything that goes on two feet, the teacher asked Johnnie if he could name one. "Yes 'm," returned Johnnie, "a pair of stockings."

Do You Know That:

The connecting rod of a McCormick-Deering Tractor passes through twenty-one different machining operations and each one is carefully inspected for accuracy in machining as well as weight and balance, before reaching the assembly line?

So Long, See You Next Week.

W. BURNS—The Farm Equipment Man.

The Road to Health

Surely you are glad that after all there is a road to health open to you. Whether you believe in Chiropractic now or not, you should be glad that, if at any time your health or your life is despaired of by the method you now believe in, there is a health method that thousands of sick people have gone to in despair and lived to praise. They didn't believe in Chiropractic, but there was no other way left. They did not need faith.

CHIROPRACTIC

Most Lawn Failures Caused by Lack of Nourishment
A Condition Easily Corrected

GRASS, flowers, shrubs, trees—all plants—are like human beings. They are living things. They must be fed.

They need plenty of nourishing food for health and vigor. They require a "balanced diet," just as we do. Without it they become sickly and eventually die.

Yet most lawn failures are caused by actual starvation. The most elementary feeding needs have been neglected.

How can this condition be corrected, particularly in cities, where the best soils are none too good?

The easiest solution, thousands of home owners have found, is Vigoro.

Vigoro is a scientifically prepared, odorless plant food, originally formulated for gardeners and nurserymen. America's finest estates have used it for years with remarkable success. And thousands of small home owners have found it just as effective.

Properly balanced and complete, Vigoro supplies all the nourishment required for early, vigorous growth and full development of fruit, flowers and foliage.

It develops stronger root systems. It increases humus. It helps choke out weeds. Lawns become more heavily carpeted, greener. Flowers are perfect in color and kept blooming longer. Shrubs and trees take on a new vigor. And with Vigoro it is easier by far to have a successful home garden—crisp, flavory vegetables of all kinds.

* * *

Clean and odorless, Vigoro can be sown by hand, like grass seed.

Its cost of application is surprisingly low—only 10c to 20c for every 100 square feet. Full directions in every bag—100, 50, 25 lb. sizes and 5 lb. packages.

See your dealer. There's one close by. Get your Vigoro now—enough for everything you grow. And this year have results such as you've never before dreamed possible.

The Calendar of Plant Feeding THIS MONTH
1. LAWNS: As soon as grass shows green, or any time thereafter, apply plant food.
2. FLOWERS: Work plant food into soil before seeding; or for perennials, as soon as plants appear. For early large and richly colored blooms make later feedings.
3. VEGETABLES: Work plant food into the soil before seeding. Later feedings will hasten maturity, increase yields.
4. SHRUBS, TREES: Apply plant food any time after leaves appear.

Fast Boats Being Used

Detroit News Claims Launches Cross River in Two Minutes.

50 SECONDS TO UNLOAD.

Entire Procedure is Perfectly Timed and Little Difficulty is Experienced.

DETROIT, Mich., April 11 (C.P.).—The Detroit News to-day says rum runners in a speed boat capable of 40 to 60 miles an hour, and which literally "run rings" round the United States customs border patrols, are able to land liquor at docks within a few blocks of Detroit City Hall daily.

The News publishes a six column picture which was taken this morning showing rum runners landing their cargoes of liquor at the foot of Riopelle street, four blocks west of the customs border patrol headquarters.

The newspaper says its takes the boats only two minutes to cross the river in speedy boats and the landing and loading of the liquor into motor cars takes only 50 seconds. "The entire procedure as to men, automobile and boats is perfectly timed so that little difficulty is experienced in smuggling, that which the nation's laws and constitution say can neither be imported, sold nor transported," the newspaper says.

DOCTOR OF DIVINITY.

Potter, minister of the McVicar Memorial Presbyterian Church, Montreal, and former pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. The function last night was the sixtysecond annual convocation of the college. The Rev. Mr. Potter was invested with the doctor's hood by the Rev. Professor F. Scott Mackenzie, acting principal of the college, who eulogized Dr. Potter's work as a minister of the Gospel, giving many years of devoted service, and as a leader of the church, wise in counsel and giving wonderful service during perhaps the most trying period in the history of the Presbyterian Church in this Dominion. Dr. Potter, who was fourteen years in the pastorate of the church in Peterborough, proceeded from St. Andrew's to his present charge, where he has ministered with great acceptance for eighteen years. A few weeks ago, his brethren honored him by appointing him to the position of Moderator of the Montreal Presbytery.

Four students were graduated from the college last night and three honorary degrees were conferred in addition to that bestowed on Dr. Potter. Dr. Potter's brother was formerly The Examiner correspondent in Campbellford.

Major Martin's Objections To Canadian History Being Rectified In Second Edition Of Book

TORONTO, Ont., April 10 (Canadian Press). — Changes to Professor W. S. Wallace's new Canadian history in preparation for a second edition, are now being made, it is announced by the Department of Education. These changes are being made with the approval of Premier Ferguson, Minister of Education.

Chief among the alterations is the phrasing in referring to the Indians which was complained of by Major O. M. Martin, Mohawk Indian and teacher in Secord School, during the Ontario Education Association Convention. Other slight alterations are being made.

Major Martin's objection was to a sentence which read: "On the whole it is clear that the original inhabitants were savages of a very low order," the chief objection being to the last three

Unsuccessful Attempt Is Made To Assassinate General Calles, Commander Of Federal Armies

MEXICO CITY, April 11. — (C.P.) — The chief of the military garrison here to-day disclosed that an unsuccessful attempt had been made to bomb the special train of General Plutarco Elias Calles, and assassinate him, in the State of Jalisco, a few days ago.

A man and a woman, the principal conspirators, are being sought, and should be arrested soon, the garrison commander said, while certain residents of Torreon, Coahuila, were implicated and will be arrested soon.

The plot was made with the cognizance of the rebel generals, Escobar, Manzo, Cruz and Caraveo, who sent a man named Santiago Peree, and an unnamed woman, to Mexico City to secure explosives, which were to be sent to the insurgents in Jalisco, who were to arrange the dynamiting of the train.

CANADIANS WORKING IN STATES WILL HAVE TO PAY HEAD TAX ACCORDING TO NEW COURT RULING

Assistant Secretary Claims Status of Immigrants Will Have To Be Established.

$10 CONSULAR VISA FEE.

2,000 Residents of Windsor Are Regularly Employed in Detroit Industries.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 11 (C.P.).—The recent ruling of the Supreme Court withholding border crossing privileges from foreign born citizens of Canada is construed by immigration service officials to have also a considerable effect on native-born Canadians.

Robert Carl White, first assistant secretary of Labor, said to-day, that while the court's ruling confirmed the admitted right of native-born Canadians to cross the international border at will, in so doing they would have to establish the status of immigrants under United States law.

$8 Head Tax

The chief effect of that will be to require a Canadian to pay the $8.00 head tax as an immigrant, and the $10 Consular visa fee," Mr. White explained. "The difficulties have been occasions by the practice of Canadian residents along the border in obtaining employment in the United States and going to and from their foreign home to work and back daily. The native Canadian, if he intends to continue such employment in the United States, will have to pay the fees and undergo medical examination; but once that is done he will have a practically unlimited right to border crossing.

Mr. White estimated that about 2,000 residents of Windsor, Ont., were regularly employed in the Detroit industrial districts, and that a somewhat smaller number across from Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N.Y., were also affected. At the same time more or less of the daily border crossing is encountered at all other settled points along the Canadian boundary. By the court's decision the foreign-born citizens of Canada cannot obtain similar privileges unless qualified with an immigration visa from the country of nativity.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 11. — (C.P.) — The statement of Robert C. White, First Assistant Secretary of Labor at Washington, that the United States Supreme Court decision will affect about 2000 native-born Canadians here, is not borne out by the United States Consulate here.

Officials of the consulate stated possibly one or at least two native Canadians, will be affected by the Supreme Court judgment. Native-born Canadians living in Canada and working across the border, who began their "commuting" since enactment of the United States Immigration Act of 1924, have been required for more than a year to provide themselves with consular visas and to pay head tax, and to-day's statement by Mr. White does not convey any information that is not already known to officials and persons interested.

Those who started "commuting" prior to 1924 are not required to pay head tax or obtain a visa.

Non-native Canadians who are under supreme court judgment are subject to the quota of their native country are the only ones who will be seriously affected by the judgment.

MAN KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

HOBOKEN, N.J., April 11.—(C.P.) —One man was killed and five seriously burned, police reported, in an explosion to-day aboard the United States liner President Roosevelt, docked at Hoboken.

PRINCE NOT ON BOARD.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 11. (C.P.) — Reports from Cape Town that a Danish prince was rumored to be aboard the missing cadet training ship Kjoepenhagen were denied in Copenhagen to-day.

Police Are Checking Up On Motor Car Brakes

While police in other centres throughout Ontario have been making close check-ups of motor car brakes, the Peterborough force has not been idle in this regard, and during the past two weeks, nearly two dozen motorists have been asked to give police officers "lifts" while they inspect the car brakes. Chief Newhall has, so far been well satisfied with the findings of his men, only a few of the cars having defective brakes and these not sufficiently faulty to merit convictions. The tests will be continued as two members of the force have been given this assignment.

KRESGE'S CALL FOR TENDERS

Old Kingan Building Part of Richard Hall Store Will Be Demolished.

WESTCLOX PLANS READY.

T. C. Ephgrave is Building An Addition To Brinton Carpet Plant.

Tenders for the Kresge building at the Kingan corner of George and Simcoe streets are to be submitted by April 17 to L. T. Bishop, the company's resident engineer. Some of the local contractors are reported to be working on the plans, as well as several others in Toronto and elsewhere.

The old Kingan building, part of the Richard Hall store and the two smaller shops on Simcoe will be completely demolished, from George street to the lane on Simcoe street, where the cellar for the new Kingan Hardware store is being excavated. The Kresge Co. will use most of their basement as a storeroom, the ground floor will comprise their business area and the second story will provide for a central rest room and dining room for the employes. Facing on George and Simcoe streets will be a number of office rooms which will be offered for rent. The old Simcoe street corner will present a radical change to the Old Home week visitors.

Other Work Planned

The plans for the proposed extension to the Western Clock Company's factory are reported ready for contractors to study and prepare estimates, and it is also understood that the De Laval company contemplates enlarging one of their shops. The Peterborough Lock company has employed a number of carpenters and bricklayers throughout the winter, and its improvements are not yet completed.

T. C. Ephgrave is engaged at the Brinton Carpet Company's factory in building another storey to one of the buildings of the plant. This addition is about fourteen feet high and 150 by 75 feet and will cost about $28,000. It will be used as a new finishing room and will be completed in six or eight weeks. Mr. Ephgrave has about completed the preliminary preparations, and the work will be well under way this week.

The extension of the Brinton Carpet Company's factory is another evidence of the steady growth of Peterborough's industrial units.

WRIT AGAINST PETER SMITH.

TORONTO, Ont., April 11 (Canadian Press).—A writ was issued at Osgoode Hall to-day in which Peter Smith, ex-Provincial Treasurer, is sued by R. A. Whitely for $15,883, balance alleged to be due on a note dated September 2, 1927.

3,000 ACRES OF LOW LAND IN KENT COUNTY IS IN DANGER OF BEING FLOODED BY LAKE ERIE

Farmers Fear Large Onion Farms Near Erieau Will Be Destroyed.

DYKES ARE SOFTENING.

Water Level Is Twelve Inches Above Last Year's High Level Mark.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 11.—(Canadian Press). — More than 3,000 acres of low lying land in the vicinity of Erieau, devoted to the growing of onions, is today in danger of being flooded by the rising waters of Lake Erie. The water is 12 inches higher than last year's high mark.

Farmers and local residents now fear the giving way of the "earthworks" which are being pounded by the monstrous waves sweeping well back to the roads. The Erieau-Erie road is inundated and it is feared that the dyke of the drainage system may be swept away.

"If this wind from the south prevails I fear the dyke will go" said M. J. Wilson, Reeve of Harwich.

Farmers and helpers have been piling sandbags around the dyke to protect it from the main force of the floods, but these have proved useless.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 11.—(Canadian Press).—Lake St. Clair continued to flood a narrow strip along the shores of Riverside today, with the water level now between four and five feet above normal. It is estimated that the water rose from six to eight inches in the past 24 hours. So far only summer homes along a narrow, marshy strip on the lake shore are surrounded. The water is starting to reach the level of their floors.

At Puce, 15 miles up the lake east of Windsor, a strip of low lying farm lands about 1,000 feet long and 500 feet deep, is about one foot under water. There are no buildings on the land.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE PLANS SCHOOL CLASS MEETINGS

Central and St. Peter's School Will Be Used During Old Home Week.

PROGRAM APPROVED.

Parade Saturday Night, June 29, Will Include the Militia Units.

Held in the City Hall this week, the meeting of the Old Home Week Entertainment committee was productive of general progress, attended as it was by Mrs. Lynch, Mrs. Edwards, A. Mowatt, F. H. Dobbin, E. S. Martin and J. J. Turner, chairman. Discussion of old school class meetings and of various sporting events held the attention of all and many valuable suggestions were forthcoming.

One of the first items of business was the matter of school classes, Mr. Mowat reporting on the program for the session on Tuesday, July 2, to be held in both Public and Separate schools at the hour of 9.30. The The Central school will be used as this was the school at which many of the old boys and girls received their early instruction. St. Peter's school will be the other school, the teachers for both to be arranged by the different boards of education. The matter of re-uniting the Normal students was left over for further discussion.

Program Approved.

With the reading of a tentative program for Old Home Week, the clause dealing with registration was approved, and it was understood that the parade on Saturday night would include the Toronto Scottish, Lindsay Regiment and Peterborough Rangers. The clause dealing with Sunday was approved as was the program for Monday, July 1.

The program pertaining to Tuesday, July 2 was approved with such suggestions as that golf be added to the attractions for entertainment of the visitors. There was considerable discussion about water sports on the river and lake and it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that the morning would be the best time for these sports to be held.

PRINCESS WILL NOT WED KING

Religious Obstacles Prevent King Boris and Princess Giovanna From Marrying.

PROBABLY GRAND DUCHESS

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 11 (C.P.).—Youthful King Boris, who seems bent on marrying, may have to take a Grand Duchess for a bride, instead of a Princess.

Religious obstacles to-day seemed destined to prevent his proposed wedding with Princess Giovanna of Italy and talk arose of a possible alliance with the Grand Duchess Kira Vladimirovitch, 19-year-old daughter of Grand Duke Cyril, recognized as head of the Romanoff family by many Russion royalists.

Information in diplomatic circles here was that both the Vatican and the Bulgarian Church declined to yield sufficient ground to make the alliance with Princess Giovanna possible. It was said the Pope refused the Italian Princess a dispensation to Marry King Boris unless offspring to the union were reared in the Roman Catholic faith.

Five Lives Are Lost In Airplane Accident

MEXICO CITY, April 11 (Canadian Press). — Five lives were counted as the cost to-day of the worst accident in Mexican aviation history. Four of those dead were Americans, and the fifth a Mexican, resident of this capital. None of those aboard the plane survived.

The accident occurred yesterday at Tampico, when a Mexican aviation company plane bound from Mexico City to Brownsville, Texas, crashed as it took off for the Texas border. The plane's single motor failed when it was not more than 100 feet in the air, and the pilot was unable to regain control.

THREE INJURED IN COLLISION

Two Cars Collide Head-on On Guelph Provincial Highway.

GIRL UNCONSCIOUS.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 11. — (C.P.)—Three persons were injured, one seriously, as the result of a head-on collision between two motor cars on the Guelph highway near Freelon about 1.45 o'clock this morning.

George Pringle, of Guelph, was driving toward Hamilton when his car collided with another motor containing Miss Vernon Campbell and Glenn Siesser of 258 Woolwich street, Guelph. A passing car carried the injured persons to the Hamilton hospital, where it was found that Mr. Pringle had suffered a fractured leg, and Mr. Siesser was badly bruised and shaken up. Miss Campbell, the most seriously injured, is unconscious and a fracture of the skull is feared.

Daylight Saving and Money By-Laws To Be Given to People

City Council At Special Meeting Proposes To Submit Three By-laws to the Qualified Voters of Peterborough On Friday, May 3.

WEST END PAVING PROGRAM APPROVED. TRAFFIC BY-LAW AMENDED BY ALDERMEN

Ratepayers Will Be Asked To Approve of a $10,000 Expenditure On Inverlea Park So That It Can Be Made Intot First Class Bathing Beach.

Ratepayers and citizens of the city of Peterborough will have three by-laws submitted to them on Friday, May 3. The Protestant ratepayers will vote on the issue of debentures for $300,000 for an addition to and the re-modelling of Nicholls Hospital; all ratepayers will be asked to approve of issuing debentures for $10,000 to improve the bathing beach at Inverlea Park; and those who are fortunate enough to have their names on last year's assessment roll will be given an opportunity to express their approval of daylight saving in the city of Peterborough from June 15 until Labor Day.

A special meeting of the council was called by Mayor Denne last night to deal with the submitting of the various by-laws to a vote of the ratepayers. A deputation from the Gilmour Street Residents' Association petitioned the council for the paving of that street this year, with the result that the council incorporated in its paving plan the west section of the city which was approved by last year's council.

For several years there has been a demand for improvements at the Inverlea bathing beach, and when the estimates were struck this year the $10,000 put in by the Parks Committee was struck out, but only on condition that the ratepayers would be given an opportunity of expressing themselves on the proposed bathing facilities. Mayor Denne, in outlining the plan which he heartily endorsed, claimed that the city needed an up-to-date bathing beach, especially for the working man and his family, who could not afford to purchase a car and go to some of the summer resorts. The plan includes repairing the beach, erecting a suitable lavatory, and also a wading pool for the smaller children.

The left hand turn rule at the corner of George and Charlotte Streets was adopted by the council, but this cannot come into effect until the Highway Department has expressed its approval to the amended by-law. Certain other streets in the city were included in the stop street by-law and these will not become law until the Department has approved of them.

Given to Board of Works

A letter from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, stating that prices were being sought from the Warren Paving Company for the paving of the station lot and what that company expected the council to do in fixing up Wolfe street, was referred to the Board of Works.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission notified the council that the surplus which had been asked for at the April meeting had been turned over to the local Utilities Commission, and in regard to the revision of rates, the Hydro accounting department was already considering rate changes for the City of Peterborough.

V. J. McElderry, K.C., protested to the council in behalf of his client, George N. Graham, to erection of a women's rest room on the market square in front of the Empress Hotel property. The Mayor informed Mr. McElderry that when the position of the rest rooms was being considered by the committee, Chris. Graham had been shown the plans and he had put forth no objection, but it was not the intention of the council to try and put something over on any ratepayer, for he believed all the members were acting in the interests of a bigger and better Peterborough. He also stated that the hotel men had complained to him of the public using their lavatories in the city.

NEW REVOLVER IS SHOWN GIRL

John Ivanchuk Being Tried For Murder of Harry Constable in Cochrane.

COMMITTED IN 1926.

COCHRANE, Ont., April 11—(Canadian Press).—A new Mauser revolver produced in court this morning by A. B. Cunningham, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, was said by Sophia Dincorn to be similar to that handed her by John Ivanchuk on the night of October 15, 1926, when License Inspector Harry Constable was murdered, according to the story told by the girl to-day.

Ivanchuk is charged with the murder of Constable. The weapon with which the crime was committed has never been found, Mr. Cunningham told Mr. Justice Wright.

Witness said that, about midnight on October 15, she had met Ivanchuk on Fourth avenue and he had handed her the revolver and kept on his way. About a week later Ivanchuk had asked her to return the gun, which she did.

Would "Get Even"

The girl, who is not 18 years of age, said Ivanchuk had told her on different occasions he would "get even" with Constable, and subsequently he had stated he was glad he had shot him.

The girl said she had not told her story to anyone until called on by the police last November, and said, in explanation of the two years of silence, that she had been threatened by the prisoner if she should divulge any information. Cross-examined by Harry Fine, for the defence, the girl admitted she had been living at Schumacher since March of last year as the wife of a man to whom she was not married, that she had a child, and that when she was only 15 years old Ivanchuk had told her he was going to marry her.

General Williams Recalls Inspector Stringer To Toronto From Hunt For Orval Shaw

TORONTO, April 11. — (C.P.) — General V. Williams, Provincial Police Commissioner, has instructed Inspector William Stringer, who has been in charge of the search for Orval Shaw in Western Ontario, to return to Toronto.

"We are not slacking up our hunt for Shaw," General Williams said. "He is a jailbreaker and a fugitive from justice, and he will be caught. But Inspector Stringer is needed at headquarters at present to complete some criminal investigation work, on which he was engaged when I sent him after Shaw. Once he is through that work, he wil give further time to locating Shaw. The responsibility for catching the fellow is still his," he said.

SIR HENRY THORNTON REPORTS BANNER YEAR IN HISTORY OF CANADA'S RAILWAY SYSTEM

C. N. R. Earning Set Record For All Time, Report To Parliament Says.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC HEAVY.

Advance in Telegraph Business Is Described As Phenomenal.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 11 (Canadian Press).—With increased earnings in all departments, the Canadian National Railways enjoyed in 1928 "a banner year," according to Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president of the system, whose annual report was tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals. Efficiency in operation lead to a decrease in expenses in ratio to business done, with the result that the net earnings for the calendar year 1928 reached a new record. Total returns from traffic increased 11.2 per cent. over 1927, and net earnings, exclusive of eastern lines, totalled $58,000,000. When eastern lines are included (these being kept separate in the report for purposes of the Maritime Freight Rate Act), the combined system had a net revenue of $54,859,573.

$5,257,922 Paid In Taxes.

Taxes paid amounted to $5,257,922, and the interest due the public on the $977,889,032 of securities which they hold was met, this amounting to $41,810,879.

Total traffic receipts of the system for the year reached the new high figure of $304,591,268, being exceeded only by the Pennsylvania and the New York Central systems. There was an increase in passenger revenue, but the largest increase was from freight traffic, this increase amounting to $24,594,813. The average number of employees on the system rose from 103,540 to 107,602, the total payroll from $159,249,627 to $168,728,004, owing to increased business.

The report says: "The directors desire to place themselves on record as appreciating the fine spirit shown and the excellent work done by the officers and employes all over the Canadian National Railway System, without which the present satisfactory position in regard to the general standing of the system, as well as the gross and net earnings could not have been reached."

Week's Holiday With Pay

During the year there were a number of wage agreement adjustments affecting working conditions. In connection with the co-operative plan, a week's holiday per year with pay was granted to employes working under relative wage agreements and having two or more years of continuous service. Requests for extensions of the plan to other employes are under consideration. Throughout the year the relations between employes and the management were harmonious.

"The construction forces of the railway were busy during 1928, 177 miles of new branch lines being placed in operation and considerable work done on about 190 miles of other new lines. Rehabilitation and new construction was carried out on the Hudson Bay Railway. The line from the Hudson Bay Railway to the Flin Flon Mines was built under contract in almost record time and an additional branch of 41 miles to the Sherrit-Gordon property will, it is expected, be ready for operation before the end of the present year.

"A start was made on the construction of the C.N.R. hotel at Vancouver, the name of which will be 'The British Columbia.' Substantial progress was made on the construction of the hotel at Halifax, the name of which will be 'The Nova Scotian.' A site for a hotel in Saskatoon was acquired and additional facilities were constructed at Jasper Park Lodge and Pictou Lodge.

More Farm Land Sold

There was an increase in the amount of farm land sold during the year by the National Railways, also in the price received per acre, 85,230 acres being sold at an average of $14.46 per acre, compared with 74,267 acres sold in 1927 at $13.39. During the year 40,120 immigrants, excluding British harvesters, came to Canada under C.N.R. auspices via allied steamship companies, as compared with 38,685 in 1927.

"The total placements of immigrants has steadily increased from 3,526 in 1925, to 33,292 last year, which latter number includes 2,763 families settled adjacent to C.N.R. lines.

Lived For 93 Years Only Had 22 Birthdays

TORONTO, Ont., April 11 (Canadian Press). — Elizabeth Block Sharp, Port Credit, died yesterday in her 93rd year. She was a respected pioneer of the district where she settled with her husband, Captain Daniel Sharp, for many years customs officer at Port Credit. Mrs. Sharp had had but 22 birthdays, having been born on February 29 in a leap year. She had kept abreast of modern inventions until recent years, but had maintained up to her death that radio was "too uncanny" and that flying was a "defiance of the Almighty."

INQUEST IS ADJOURNED.

CHATHAM, April 11 (Canadian Press). — The inquest into the death of Jerome Flanagan, 18, and Miss Jean Murphy, 14, both of London, Ont., was adjourned yesterday for two weeks. Harry Taylor, London, is still in the hospital suffering from injuries sustained in a fall from his motor truck last week, and consequently could not attend the inquest. Taylor is a material witness.

Flanagan and Miss Murphy were killed when the truck in which they were driving plunged into a ditch near Louisville, Ont.

APPEALS AGAINST FLOODS

TORONTO, Ont., April 11. — (Canadian Press).—Appeals are being made to civic authorities for immediate protection from the flooding of lowlying land along the eastern city lake-front as a result of renewed floods yesterday. Several residences in the section have been undermined by the recent storms and the action of the water from the lake.

200 MINERS FOR ONTARIO

Government Will Place These Men On Farms in Province, Minister Declares.

PARTIES OF 50 EACH.

TORONTO, Ont., April 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Two hundred Welsh miners will be brought to Ontario this summer and placed on farms as a result of negotiations now virtually completed between the Province of Ontario and the British Government, according to announcement last night by Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture. The British Government, he said, has agreed to pay the man's transportation costs and the province will assume the responsibility of finding them positions. The men will come in parties of 50 each between now and July 15.

Mr. Martin received a cable yesterday from W. C. Noxon, Agent-General for Ontario in London, informing him that the men were waiting to come to Canada and preferred to settle in Ontario. Mr. Martin conferred with officials of his department and was told that even though the men were inexperienced, places could be found for them.

WHEAT POOL PAYS TEN CENTS TO FARMERS

Interim Payment Is Made On All Grades of Wheat, Barley and Oats.

FINAL MAY 31.

Signers Have Already Received 1.07 Per Bushel on Wheat.

W. R. Shields who helped organize the Ontario Grain Pool in this district last year, reports that interim payment cheques at the rate of ten cents a bushel on all grades of wheat, oats and barley delivered by pool members were mailed last week. Those who have not yet sent in the top half of the triplicate copy of the cash ticket given to them at the time of delivery will receive their cheques without delay when these tickets reach head office.

This payment of ten cents a bushel brings the wheat price on top grades delivered since September 15th last, to $1.13, from which must be deducted the local handling charge which cannot exceed six cents a bushel with full elevator service on deliveries to suit the growers' convenience. Those who made arrangements to deliver a car load within a period of two days, or who track-loaded with weight and grade guaranteed by the operator or loader, had a deduction of only 2½ cents, while those who track-loaded and took weights and grades as allowed at destination saved another cent a bushel.

Have $1.07 Already

On the basis of maximum deduction and complete service at the shipping station, contract signers who delivered wheat since September 15th now have $1.07 for wheat that graded No. 4 or better. Those who delivered prior to September 15th have $1.05, the two cents a bushel difference being a storage allowance to those who co-operated with the Pool management in holding back their wheat during the early rush following the harvest.

Quoting from a recent statement of the Pool executive, Mr. Shield said that this co-operation helped to avoid forced sales at a time when low prices were being offered in Ontario on the plea that the bumper crop in Western Canada did not justify quotations on a par with those that prevailed a year ago.

This payment recommended by the Central Selling Agency which handles the grain for the pools of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta as well as for the Ontario Grain Pool was approved by the Executive Board representing Ontario growers and passed by the directors of the United Farmers Co-Operative Co., Limited.

Final Payment May 31

Mr. Shield points out that a final payment remains to be distributed as promptly as possible after the close of the Pool year, May 31st payments already made are higher than total prices paid in some districts last fall; and the Pool has stabilized Ontario prices on a much higher level than they would have been with so much "big crop" talk in Western Canada.

More Storage Needed

The Ontario Grain executive recently considered the question of providing greater storage accommodation for grain, at central points in Pool territory, before the 1929 crop is threshed.

Mr. Shield further quotes: "If the Pool were to cease operations where would price levels go? Would they return to price levels existing prior to 1927—based on export quo-

BIG SMELTER FOR ONTARIO

Boston Interests Plan To Locate Some Place in Ontario, Maguire Announces.

FREE FROM POLITICS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 11—(Canadian Press).—Boston interests may establish a large smelter in Ontario Alfred Maguire a member of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission announced here last night. Mr. Maguire said that recently a Boston organization asked the commission concerning power possibilities. The Boston interests, he added have not yet selected a site but the Ontario Commission had given them a "fifty percent better offer for their requirements" than they received in Quebec.

Mr. Maguire's speech was largely devoted to the affairs of the commission. He re-iterated that there was no thought of putting the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in politics.

"The prime minister," he said, "has given the commission an absolutely free hand. I say that because I think I ought to say it when we have unfair criticism levelled at us."

He forecast distribution of power to the mining districts of Northern Ontario as a result of a recent hook-up.

Walker, St. Catharines, Chaplain of the Lincoln Regiment.

FORTY BELIEVED DEAD IN STORM

Sixteen Bodies Have Been Found At Alicia, Arkansas.

BIG PROPERTY DAMAGE.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 11 (C.P.).—The Altman Mercantile Company, an undertaking establishment at Swifton, Ark., reported by telephone at 10.30 o'clock last night that possibly 40 persons were killed by the deadly tornado that swept an area between Swifton and Alicia early last night.

It was stated an all-night effort would be necessary to care for the victims, and an accurate check would be impossible before morning.

Other reports of damage reached here via the Missouri Pacific despatcher's office, where it was reported two negroes were killed when a stave mill was demolished at Parkin, and communication was cut out between Parkin and Wynne.

The storm apparently wrought greatest havoc near Swifton, north of Newport, where sixteen bodies had been recovered before midnight. Alicia, a few miles north of Swifton, was also reported to have had several deaths but telepehone and telegraph lines were down, and the reports could not be verified.

At Swifton the rapidity with which the death toll was increased caused predictions that it would reach forty or fifty when all communities in that section had been heard from.

All buildings in the little communities of Newhome and Possum Crop, with a few score inhabitants, were reported demolished, and no information was available as to the number of dead or injured.

The Missouri Pacific agent at Aurora, Mo., last night reported that the Town of Guion, Ark., about 21 miles north of Batesville, was virtually destroyed with no loss of life. Between 15 and 20 were injured, however, most of whom were taken by a freight train to Batesville.

Truckloads of men left Swifton last night to aid in relief work and search for bodies. Doctors and nurses were sent from Newport, the centre of relief work.

BUDGET DEBATE FAILS TO CLOSE

W. A. Boys Comment On Recent Speech of Minister of Justice.

QUEBEC RESOLUTION.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 11 (Canadian Press). — The House of Commons failed once more yesterday to reach a division on the Budget and amendments. General expectation, until late in the afternoon, was that the House would dispose of at least one of the amendments yesterday, but speakers multiplied, and six o'clock found the debate still in progress. Conservative ranks furnished the majority of yesterday's speeches. Unless the debate, for some reason, takes on a new lease of life, the vote will come to-day.

The recent speech of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, in which he declared against tariff increases, came in for some comment from the Conservative benches. W. A. Boys, K.C., member for North Simcoe, quoted from a resolution, which he said had been passed unanimously by the Quebec Legislature shortly before prorogation, stressing the necessity for protection of farmers in that province. This resolution, said Mr. Boys, asked the Government to use its influence to protect Quebec farmers against farm produce imported from other countries.

CANADIANS HAVE NOTHING TO FEAR

Residents of United States Are Advised To Get Their Visas Before July 1.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 11 (Canadian Press). — "Canadian residents here have no reason for alarm if they are native-born Canadians," said Harry Hull, Commissioner-General of Immigration, here yesterday. The commissioner discounted reports that 200,000 Canadians resident in the United States, might be deported after July 1 when the new deportation statute becomes effective.

Mr. Hull advised native-born Canadians here who have not complied with the border-crossing regulations to return to the Dominion and get their visas, pay their head taxes, and make a strictly legal entry thus assuring their "continued residence in the United States."

He made it plain, however, Canadians who entered without inspection and who fail to make the advised reentry will be subject to deportation when found after July 1, and if deported, they can never return to the United States. Nor can this class of Cnadian citizen ever visit their former homes with the hope of returning to the United States.

Home Cooking Sale Conducted Under Auspices of Girls' Auxiliary.

LAKEFIELD NEWS.

LAKEFIELD, April 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Girls' Auxiliary of St. John's Church, under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Creighton, Mrs. S. E. White and Mrs. Marling, held a very successful afternoon tea and sale of home cooking and candy in the Parish Hall on Saturday afternoon. The girls realized nearly $17 and were much gratified with the returns. Among the assistants were Jean Blewett, Alice and Barbara Dench, Colleen Junkin, Bella Hamblin, Aileen Peacock, Lillian Mason, Constance Stuart, Kathleen and Patricia Wanamaker and Mary Webdale.

In Bad Condition.

The roads are in a terrible condition, both in and around Lakefield, at the present time, owing in a large measure to the excessive rainfall, which has hindered the roads committees in making repairs. There are several very bad spots on the Peterborough road which could be remedied by crushed stone which would make a firm bottom.

A volume might be filled with the tales told by motorists who have ventured from the village within the past fortnight. Some have found adventures in the soft spots on the village streets and more than one car has been mired this spring.

To Hold Dance.

An old-time dance will be held in the near future under the auspices of the Lakefield Agricultural Society, and promises to be an outstanding social event of the Spring season. The program will contain waltzes, two-steps, Schottisches, barn dances and the square dances which are enjoying a revival of popularity.

Do You Buy Your Grease Blindfolded?

TOO many drivers "just leave the car in to have the transmission and differential greased." It sounds simple enough—but very few of them have any idea what quality or quantity of grease they actually get. They go back to the station—pay the bill—and drive away in complete ignorance of what has happened. That is buying "blindfolded."

"WHIZ" dealers are equipped with the "WHIZ" METERED GREASE dispensing unit—a meter attached to the grease dispenser which shows exactly how much grease has actually been put into the transmission and differential. And of course, the fact that it is "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE assures you of getting the best quality of grease.

Your dealer sells and recommends "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE. Drop in to-morrow and have him flush out the old Winter grease and replace it with "WHIZ" summer grease.

"One pound of fresh grease added to four pounds of worn grease means five pounds of old grease."

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 11.—Cattle, held back by bad roads and the uncertain track conditions on the railways, began to arrive during Tuesday night, and the offering at the opening of the market at the Union stock yards was fairly heavy yesterday. Fourteen cars of stock still remained to be unloaded at 11 o'clock. Trade at the opening was slow, but choice stock sold at steady prices in the early trading. Trading in the poorer qualities was easier. Some choice heavyweight steers sold up to 10 cents a pound, with odd fancy steers and heifers at a top of 10¼ cents. Good to choice cows were steady at 7½ to 8¾ cents a pound.

The prices on calves were $1 a cwt. lower, good to choice veal bringing 14 to 15 cents a pound. Medium sold at eight to 12 cents and plain calves downward to 7½ cents a pound. Though the run was fairly heavy the quality of the bulk was not too good.

The sheep and lamb supply was very light. The best lambs were quoted at 14 to 14½ cents a pound, with culls at 10 to 11 cents. Spring lambs sold at $11 to $17 each. The best sheep were steady at eight to nine cents, while heavy sheep and bucks brought six to seven cents. Culls were a shade easier at 3½ to four cents.

With few settlements made up to 11 o'clock, prospects for hogs looked a quarter lower. Prices of 12¼ cents f.o.b. and 13¼ cents w.o.c. were realized yesterday, but it did not look as though more than 12 cents f.o.b. and 13 cents w.o.c. would be realized yesterday. The run of hogs was fairly heavy.

Receipts: Cattle, 1,315; calves, 763; hogs, 1,400; sheep and lambs, 57.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 11.—Owing to the high prices prevailing for all grades of butter, the demand was confined to small lots to meet immediate wants. Receipts were 634 boxes. The cheese trade was dull, but the tone of the market was steady. Receipts were 81 boxes.

Prices for all grades of eggs were well maintained under a limited inquiry. Receipts were 2,713 cases.

The potato market was steady, with New Brunswick Green Mountains selling at 50c per 90 lbs., in bulk, and Prince Edward Island whites at 60c to 65c, and Green Mountains at 65c to 70c per 90 lbs., in bags.

Quotations: Cheese — Westerns, 22½c. Butter—No. 1 pasteurized, 46c to 47c. Eggs—Fresh extras 34c; fresh firsts 32c.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, April 11.— Heavy receipts of eggs arrived on the local wholesale produce market yesterday, and prices were reduced another cent per dozen. Dealers report increasing accumulation of supplies throughout country, and large shipments are expected during the balance of the week.

Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, were 26 cents per dozen for fresh extras, 24 cents for firsts, with seconds at 21 cents.

There was very little activity in the local butter market, and prices were unchanged at 45 cents for No. 1 finest creamery, delivered in Toronto. Dealers stated that they have been able to look after the requirements of the retail trade during the present "squeeze," and also help to relieve the shortage of supplies existing in the Montreal market. No large shipments arrived, and none are expected within the next week.

The cheese market remained dull, and prices were unchanged at 21½ cents a pound for No. 1 Government graded, large, colored, paraffined supplies.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 11.— Early advances were quickly wiped out on yesterday's wheat market and final quotations revealed the market 1-8c to 1-4c lower for the day. Heavy selling by continental houses caused the break in prices.

Demand for cash wheat showed some improvement and grades Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 6 scored advances of 1-4c to 1-2c over the previous close. Other grades were unchanged.

Oats and barley were well bought at fractionally higher prices, but little demand was in evidence for rye, which eased slightly. Flax held firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 11. — Bright crop prospects outdid farm relief as a wheat market influence yesterday and prices finished lower. Crop news about wheat tended to induce enlarged selling whereas farm relief developments appeared to be insufficiently definite to avail as a counter-balance.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat market were reported in the final hour. Beneficial rains in Kansas and Nebraska, with some addition to the moisture supply in Canada, did much to emphasize favorable crop advices, and so too did a forecast that the rainfalls would spread last night throughout most of the Middling to be about as trade experts had monthly crop report, although provin gto be about as trade experts had expected, was construed in various quarters as bearish, especially at Liverpool, were yesterday's quotations on wheat were a good deal higher than looked for.

Rallies witnessed in wheat values yesterday, were due mainly to Washington reports about the progress of farm relief plans. In this connection much interest was shown regarding assertions that, notwithstanding the government itself might not buy or sell or store commodities, the government acting through a stabilization board would lend money to co-operative organizations whose purpose is exactly such buying and selling and storing, and that the effect on prices would be equally as great a stimulus.

Appearance of lessened activity yesterday in export call for wheat shipments of North America, was cited as a bearish influence. Right at the close, however estimates were circulated that wheat export business Tuesday and yesterday totalled large —about 3,000,000 bushels.

Corn future deliveries were on sale in liberal amount yesterday on hard spots in the market. Word was received that planting is progressing in the more southern sections of the corn belt and that some corn has been put into the ground in South-eastern Kansas. On the other hand weather conditions over much of the corn belt were unfavorable for field work and the shipping demand here was fairly good. Oats as well as corn was influenced to a large extent by the action of wheat.

Despite advances in hog values, the provision market weakened on account of selling on the part of scattered holders.

WHEAT POOL

tations— pounded down by talk of bumper crops elsewhere? How many Ontario farmers really want a return to the old conditions?

The Ontario Grain Pool, like sister pools in the western provinces, has evolved a fair market for grain. Those who are members and who study the achievements of the first two seasons as shown by results to date, are satisfied that their marketing organization has put money in their pockets. They know, as do most of the grain growers who are not yet members, that maximum in results can come only from a maximum in membership."

First Season Locally

Mr. Shields stated that the first season's operations in this county had been entirely satisfactory. Only one or two minor complaints had been received during the months when this co-operative enterprise was being introduced, organized and set in motion by grain growers of this district.

DISTRICT ROADS RAPIDLY DRYING

Highways North, East and West of Campbellford Become Passable.

HASTINGS ROAD OPEN.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 11—(Examiner Staff Correspondence). — All reports being true, the worst of bad spring roads is over as far as Campbellford is concerned. At the present time drivers are busy exchanging the latest information on road conditions in the district. Generally speaking the roads to the south are still in a bad condition. Those leading north and east and west are rapidly drying up and becoming passable. Yesterday, according to a farmer in the district, cars were travelling along the Campbellford-Hastings road all day. Although the road was not good, it was not a difficult matter to drive through without getting mired. In two places it was necessary to drive close to the fences, but another dry day is expected to remove these small detours. During the last few days it has been possible to drive to Havelock but not without some difficulty. Stirling has been accessible via a devious route. People desiring to motor between the two towns have found it necessary to go to Springbrook and then south on the Marmora gravel road. Last night a number of people who attended the informal dance in the community hall in Stirling, made the trip by the seventh concession of Seymour to the Marmora road and thence south to Stirling. The Campbellford-Brighton road is still impassable in places.

GRASS FIRE..

Campbellford Brigade Called To Residence of William Jordan.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLORD, April 11. — Just one ting of the bell and then the rope broke. This was the cause of the confusion that reigned for a moment on Monday afternoon a few minutes before two o'clock when the fire brigade was summoned to William Jordan's residence where a grass fire had become too strong for those who had set it. Two barns were immediately endangered by the spreading flames. A little chemical skilfully applied and plenty of beaters soon had the situation in hand.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 11—(Examiner Staff Correspondence)—Miss Mary Fowlds, Hastings, was a visitor in town yesterday afternoon and evening.

Among the people from Campbellford who attend the informal dance given in the Community Hall in Storling by the Entre Nous Club, were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cosby and Mrs. B. F. Brintnell.

Local merchants report a slight increase in the usual Wednesday business during the day although trade was less active during the open hours of the evening. Three weeks from last night, the first of the Wednesday half holidays will start. The following day, Thursday, will be the open night.

Wedding Bells

HUTT—RIEL.

LAKEFIELD, April 11.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— A quiet wedding was solemnized at ten o'clock on Wednesday morning, April 10, in St. John's church, Lakefield, when Mary Lelia, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Riel was united in marriage to Isaiah Sidney James Hutt, third son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hutt, of Kettleby, Ontario. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A.

The winsome bride wore a becoming frock of cocoa brown satin faced crepe, with touches of rose beige crepe and gold with hat and scarf to match, and wore parchment hued shoes and hose, and a coat of navy tricotine.

The young couple were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. George Hutt signed the register. The groom's gift to the bride was a wrist watch. Following the ceremony the wedding party drove to the bride's home, where luncheon was served. A reception was held in the evening when a large number of relatives and friends were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutt, who have a large circle of friends, enter their married life with hearty good wishes. They will reside in Douro.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM WOOD

Though not completed at the time his death was announced, arrangements have now been made for the funeral of the late William Wood, of Bailieboro to take place on Friday, April 12, at 2 o'clock, from Christ Church, Bailieboro, to St. Paul's Cemetery, Cavan.

MRS. JAMES FALLS.

BOBCAYGEON, April 11.—The death occurred recently of Mrs. James Falls, of Bobcaygeon, at the age of nearly ninety years. The late Mrs. Falls had been in poor health for a number of years.

The deceased lady, whose maiden name was Hannah Fairbairn, was born in Smith Township in 1839 the daughter of the late Andrew Fairbairn and Eliza Hagerman. She was united in marriage to James Falls in 1863 in Peterborough by the Rev. John M. Rogers and after their marriage settled a few miles from Peterborough where they farmed until 1888. Then they purchased a large farm in South Verulam, where they lived until a few years ago when they moved nearer the village.

The late Mrs. Falls was a Presbyterian and although she could not take any active part in Church work, she was a great reader of the Bible and other good literature, which made her an interesting conversationalist. She was of a kindly and sympathetic nature and was known for her untiring hospitality, always ready to extend the glad hand of welcome to one and all who came her way.

She leaves to mourn her loss beside her husband, three sons, Elmer on the homestead, Andrew of Bobcaygeon and William at home; also two daughters, Mrs. Spurgeon Cosh, of Bobcaygeon, and Mrs. George Cosh, Vancouver, B.C. and one brother Andrew, of Lakefield.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. S. H. Hill, of Bobcaygeon, and burial was made in Verulam Cemetery. The pall bearers were George and Richard Fairbairn, of Lakefield, Bruce Fairbairn of Lindsay, Joseph Millage and Alfred Higgens of Lakefield, and Wallace Falls.

AFTER RECKLESS DRIVERS.

Hamilton is staging a vigorous campaign against reckless driving—a campaign that goes to the extent of impounding the cars of all motorists convicted of driving in a manner dangerous to the public safety.

The Hamilton police magistrate has declared that the cars of all such drivers will be kept under lock and key for three months, if convictions are registered.

Already one motorist—a Buffalo resident whose car demolished a wagon—has run foul of the new regulation and has been fined $35 and had his car impounded until July.

The Hamilton authorities declare that fines alone are inadequate correctives, and the new penalty is to be used vigorously in an attempt to wipe out reckless driving in the Ambitious City.

At the same time drunken drivers are being given the maximum penalty.

One motorist who drove round a corner in an erratic manner and who was discovered to be intoxicated, was sentenced to a month in jail, although he had not been involved in an accident.

Hamilton is taking the right course; there is a certain class of motorist who can not be persuaded to drive carefully unless frightened into such a course through dread of penalties.

OUR POORLY PAID EXPERTS.

The Dominion Government is being attacked in some quarters because of its decision to call in a committee of businessmen to decide what salaries should be paid to technical and professional men in the public service.

Critics of the administration declare that the Government should implement the report of the Civil Service Commission which recommended increases of $750,000, and should take the responsibility of correcting the present situation without shelving the question by passing it over to an outside committee.

In any case it is to be hoped that action will shortly be secured in this most important matter.

It is a matter of common knowledge that technical experts in the Government service in Canada receive much smaller remuneration for their services than similar technical men employed by the United States receive, and still less than they might receive from industrial firms.

The result is, some of our best experts have left the Government service to accept positions elsewhere, the greater number of them being lost both to Canada and to the Government.

There is no reason why this condition should be allowed to continue.

Our national finances are in a healthy condition, and it should be possible to make it worth while for our trained experts to give their native land the benefit of their brains and ability.

MR. McCREA'S VISIT.

The annual dinner of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, always an important community event, gains added weight to-night because it provides an opportunity to hear Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, whose address is being looked forward to with much interest.

Mr. McCrea is recognized as one of the strong men in the Provincial Cabinet; his administration of his most important department has been marked by vision, ability and an intimate knowledge of mining conditions and mining problems.

As a result, Mr. McCrea enjoys the confidence of the mining world to a degree few Ministers have attained, and in Ontario's Northland his name is a household one.

Just now, when mining development is a question that interests everybody, the visit of the Minister to Peterborough is particularly timely, and his address to-night, which will undoubtedly deal to some degree at least with Northern Ontario in general and the mining industry in particular, should be full of interesting information.

The coming of Hon. Mr. McCrea should be marked by a record attendance at the Chamber of Commerce function.

INVESTIGATE FIRST.

According to the experience of a Peterborough citizen who is anxious that others should not be the victims of a similar scheme, there are some concerns promoting the sale of books that are using very doubtful methods.

He declares that after being informed that he had been selected to receive a complimentary set of books as an advertising feature on the condition that he should write a complimentary letter if he thought the volumes satisfactory, he shortly found himself billed repeatedly for the cost of the books, and it was not until he called upon the services of a lawyer that the company desisted in their efforts to secure payment.

There are doubtless legitimate firms who advertise through free gifts of books to certain individuals in each community, but from the trouble The Examiner's informant encountered it is evident that there are other book-selling organizations which use such offers merely in the hope that a certain percentage of those who are persuaded to accept the supposed gifts may be intimidated into paying for what they expect to get for nothing.

Citizens who are recipients of circular letters offering them books on a gratis basis would do well to investigate the firm making the offer before signing any forms.

Reputable firms will welcome such an investigation —and the others need it.

THE FINANCIAL HORIZON.

Followers of the stock exchanges and financial observers generally have been training their binoculars on the horizon to see if they can discover any indication of what the future has in store for the security markets and business in general. Various explanations of the break in the stock markets have been adduced, but in few if any quarters has there been any disposition to say that it indicated coming business reaction.

Many have attributed the decline to the scarcity of money and the action of the Federal Reserve Board, while others again have taken the ground that stock markets had got too high and that a downward adjustment was necessary to bring them in line with actual values. Neither of these groups, however, see any sign of a slackening in general business. The scarcity of money was a condition which might have resulted in retarding trade and industry, but this is now being corrected, while most of the barometers by which the trend of business is judged point to fair weather.

During the past months comparisons have frequently been made between the present situation and that existing in 1920 prior to the general break in stock and commodity markets. While the values of many have undoubtedly been inflated, commodity prices have not been regarded as at levels which were at all unsafe. In fact, in many the trend of values has been downward. At the same time merchants and others are not loaded up with large stocks of goods bought in advance Hand to mouth buying has been one of the developments of recent times in merchandising, which has resulted in putting the average distributor of goods in a much more liquid position than formerly, when the custom was to stock up heavily with such goods as might be needed for weeks ahead.

Moreover, the fact that business and industry has been requiring more money is a sign that they are expanding which in itself is an indication of prosperity. This expansion and the greater amount of money necessary to finance the operations of ordinary business is the result not of higher prices of commodities but of a larger turnover.

So far as can be seen at present, therefore, there is no reason to view the future with apprehension as far as business is concerned. The slump in stocks rather than being a forecast of business depression, is simply putting a brake on the security markets which had got out of step with the pace at which trade was advancing.—Monetary Times.

TIME FOR CLEANING-UP.

The advent of spring imposes certain definite responsibilities. It is pre-eminently the time for housecleaning, as the mere males of the household are already commencing to learn, and it is also that time when people begin to turn attention to the improvement of their surroundings, and to cast longing eyes in the direction of their gardens. There seems to be something almost instinctive about the desire, when the snow and ice of winter have disappeared and when green shoots have begun to penetrate the soil, to devote attention to cleaning, replacement and improvement. During the next few weeks there will be, indeed, no sight more familiar than that of the housewife busy with her broom and her mop; the man or boy pottering about his garden, however lifted its dimensions; the carpenter repairing that verandah or shed that has fallen into decay, building a fence or erecting some new and attractive addition to the dwelling, or the painter not only "saving the surface" but making the house or outbuilding a thing of greater charm and beauty. The neighborhood will hum with activity after its long and unwilling imprisonment, lawns and gardens will be raked, refuse accumulated for disposal and the seeds planted in preparation for the harvest, whether it be of smiling flowers or the humble lettuces and other garden products.

How often does it happen, however, that one dwelling with unkempt or ill-kept surroundings mars the appearance of an entire thoroughfare? How often does a rickety, tottering fence or a garden that has grown to weeds nullify all of the efforts which have been made by others to make the section pleasing to the eye? Generally speaking, the residential districts of Brockville are as attractive as those living in them can make them. They rejoice in a profusion of flowers, in well-kept lawns, in numerous shade trees and in many other attractions which prove beyond a doubt that the people are genuinely interested in community improvement and beautification and are anxious that, in this respect, Brockville shall not take second place to any other town or city in the Province. But here and there, intermingled with these well-kept premises, there are others which form distinct eye-sores and which betray an apathy and disinterestedness on the part of their proprietors or occupants towards the common good.

Can nothing be done to eliminate this ugliness that is occasionally to be found in the midst of beauty, this disorder in the midst of order, this apathy in the midst of enthusiasm towards community betterment and improvement? There can, of course, be no compulsion about it, unless a building that has long experienced neglect is a positive menace to safety, but surely some effort can be made to induce those whose premises are visibly out of harmony with their surroundings to place them in a better state of order and some assistance can be given them, through the Horticultural Society or other agent, to realize that object.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

University Students Arrested Following Riot

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 10 (Canadian Press). — Twenty-three University of Pennsylvania students were under arrest today to answer charges of inciting to riot in connection with a student row.

They were arrested late last night in a general fight at a street intersection near the dormitories diring which police used their night sticks in a short but exciting melee. The students met the charge with a barrage of stones and milk bottles, but were soon driven away, leaving 22 in the hands of the law.

A Thought

GREED.

When we live for the greed of this world we will find that only our earthly desires are satisfied accordingly to the flesh, and when we have the new awakening, must we pass into that great eternity, empty-handed through greed?

We must leave our wordly treasures behind, our life's small gathering and pass into that great promised land of blessedness, peace and hope —the home that Jehoval has prepared for them that love him and obey his commandments.

Greed is like the poisonous tongue of an evil man, darting to and fro, hither and thither waiting anxiously to pull some poor creature into the tangle with himself, by his sting.

I say again—must we meet that great Jehovah face to face empty-handed through our greed?

Let us try to crush those sins of the flesh, such as greed, power, pleasure and fame, and may the great bridge of prayer unite us with that promised land.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, APRIL 12, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Good and evil planetary influences contend today, according to astrology. It is a time to watch routine affairs and to work in established channels.

The morning is favorable to women who will find their domestic tasks more easily accomplished than in other rules of the stars.

This is a fairly lucky day for entering into engagements to marry, although there may be a tendency to deception in small things.

The date is fortunate for entertainments social and theatrical, but the public may be extremely critical.

Music now comes under a most stimulating sway making for a summer of much profit to orchestras.

Oil and oil interests today come under a planetary government that is more or less threatening. Stocks may be affected.

Explosive tendencies in the average disposition may be strongly apparent today. It is wise to control the temper.

Hasty words and unreasonable accusations are believed to be encouraged while this configuration prevails.

It is wise not to contemplate financial matters today unless one is a millionaire, for the stars will tend toward depression and dissatisfaction.

The evening of this day should be unusually good for theatres, and both the spoken drama and the "talkies" should profit.

Sports are subject to the best possible direction of the stars which seem to promise a summer of big profits to professional baseball players and promoters.

Japan again comes under the most unfortunate rule of the planet and may again sustain serious disasters.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of diverse experiences. Friends will be valuable outside social contacts.

Children born on this day probably will have careers that are eventful and interesting The subjects of this sign usually are great favorites and generally fortunate. They probably will be sincere, earnest and endowed with executive ability.

Henry Clay, famous American statesman, was born on this date, 1777. Eli Terru, 1772, noted clockmaker, also claimed this as his birthday.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

CONCESSION

Well, other people do these things,
You claim, although they're not so nice.
The world is getting less precise
In what it does, and says, and sings.
Men are less careful what they say,
And maids less careful what they hear.
Some vulgar word offends the ear,
And yet the rest all talk that way.

The styles are awful, you admit,
But that's the way that people dress.
It rather shock you, you confess,
But other folks are wearing it.
And things you wouldn't once allow
Are quite the custom when you ride.
It doesn't seem quite dignified,
But that's what all the rest do now.

Yes, people think that things don't hurt,
You say, so what are you to do?
The whitest lily often grow
Will find amid the blackest dirt.
Daughter, remember this tonight,
Whatever you may hear or see:
Whatever its surroundings be,
The lily keeps itself still white.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XI.

Ana went into Mollie's bedroom the following morning before she was dressed.

Anthony had gone down to bathe as usual, but for the first time he had not knocked at Ana's door or asked her to go with him. Ana had been wide awake and had heard him go out. The pain in her arm had kept her awake all night.

"Not that it's anything compared with the pain in my heart," she told herself grimly as she dressed with difficulty.

Mollie was lying in bed looking very picturesque, with a tea tray beside her.

"Hullo!" she said. She sat up, leaning on one elbow. "I hear you've tried to kill yourself. Oh, Ana, your poor arm, does it hurt very much?"

"It's a bit sore. Tom Drake got the worst of it—a broken arm and shoulder."

"So Tony said. I'm sorry I didn't wait up for you last night, but I was so tired."

"It didn't matter. Mr. Hambledon was very kind. He offered me brandy and all sorts of things."

Ana laughed a little hysterically. Last night seemed like a dream in the sane light of morning—a beautiful dream which could never come again.

"It's a mercy you were not killed," Mollie said.

"Yes." Ana sat down on the side of the bed. "Prepare for a blow!" she said with mock tragedy. "I'm going home. Really and truly, this time."

"What!"

"Yes, it's a true story. There was a letter from my aunt last night. I daresay you saw it."

"Yes."

"She's ill; she wants me back. Now it's no use making a fuss, Mollie. I don't want to go but I've got to. Perhaps when she's better I'll come back, but I must really go."

"When?"

"To-day."

Mollie flushed with annoyance.

"I call it mean of you," she protested.

"I'm sorry. I've had a perfectly lovely time, but——"

"You're tired of us—you've been bored."

"Bored!" Ana made a little grimace. "If you think I've been bored here, how bored do you imagine I shall be in Wimbledon?"

Mollie caught her hand.

"There's some other reason. You're hiding something from me."

"Of course I'm not."

"Ana, it's something to do with Mr. Drake?"

To Mollie's way of thinking all trouble was directly or indirectly to do with a love affair.

Ana laughed and shook her head.

"Silly! of course it's not. I hardly know the man."

"Where is he?"

"In hospital at Honiton. I shall go over this morning and see him, and then go home by the afternoon train."

"Does Tony know?"

Ana flushed. "Why on earth should he?" she demanded angrily. "What in the world has it got to do with him?"

"Nothing, only as I'm going away for the week-end, he'll hate being left here without anyone to talk to." As usual Mollie only thought of herself.

"I can't help that," Ana said bluntly, though she dared not meet Mollie's eyes. "There's breakfast!" she added with relief, as a bell tinkled through the house. She got up.

"I'm really awfully sorry I can't stay, Mollie," she said earnestly. "I would if I had only myself to consider." That was the truth anyway, she thought with a sort of savage pain.

"I think you're perfectly mean," Mollie said again. "You'll go on considering that old woman to your dying day, and then it will be too late for you to have a good time or enjoy yourself."

"That won't worry me very much," Ana said hardily. She hesitated a moment, then asked, "Mollie, will you be very cross with me if I say something—something rather personal?"

"Personal?" Mollie did not raise her eyes.

"Yes—it's about—about Mr. Mahon, Mollie."

"Well?"

Mollie looked up now, defiantly.

"Well?" she said again.

Ana's eyes were full of trouble.

"Do be careful, Mollie," she begged.

Mollie laughed.

"My dear soul! just because he gives me presents——"

"It's more than that, Mollie, you know it is."

Mollie flung over on her side angrily.

"I won't be preached at," she said. "I've never had a good time. I've been stuck out in that hateful country all these years with nobody to talk to but Anthony and a handful of farmers, and now because I want a little fun——"

"Nobody minds you having a little fun."

"I don't care if they do, I'm going to have it. I like Ralph Mahon."

"I don't; I hate him," Ana said bluntly.

Mollie turned over, her pretty eyes angry and suspicious.

"What do you mean? You've been talking about me to Anthony?"

"I never talk to him about you. You know I never should."

"I don't know what on earth you do talk to him about," Mollie said pettishly. "He never seems to have a word to say when he's with me."

Ana made no answer.

"Don't preach, there's a good soul," Mollie said coaxingly. "I'm awfully fond of you, you know that—I'd do anything to help you if you wanted me to, in any way."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean, with a love affair—this Mr. Drake, or anyone else."

"Oh, I see!" Ana laughed bitterly. "I don't think I'm at all likely to want that sort of help," she said. She stood looking at Mollie silently for a moment, then she turned away. "I'll go and give the General his breakfast," she said. She went slowly downstairs and into the tiny sitting room. Anthony had not come back from the sea, for which she was thankful. The memory of last night filled her with mingled joy and terror.

Anthony had said, "I love you—I have never loved any woman in my life but you."

All night she had seemed to feel the clasp of his arms around her, and the touch of his lips upon hers, and all the time her conscience had cried shame upon her.

A married man! Her friend's husband! The father of the General whom she adored.

"Well, I'm going away, and that will end it," she told herself, as she gave the General his porridge and listened to his incessant chatter.

The tide being low, so the General informed her, he was going to have a battle with his soldiers on the sands.

"My father is coming to play," he told Ana, his solemn eyes upon her preoccupied face.

Small boy as he was, the General always alluded to Anthony in the dignified terms of "my father."

"And you may come, too, if you like," he added kindly.

"Thank you, but I'm going somewhere else," Ana answered.

"To see the man who hurted your arm?" the General asked. He had been very concerned about Ana's accident—he told her she looked as if she had been wounded in battle—"Only, of course, you can't have been, as you're not a man," he added.

"I've been wounded in battle all right, only not the kind you mean," Ana said cynically, and she thought of last night. She had believed that her love for Anthony was going to bring them both such happiness, and instead she had already discovered that it could bring nothing but pain and separation.

"Running away may save things for Mollie," she thought, as she sat with her untouched breakfast before her. "But it won't save anything for me."

Then she heard Anthony's step in the little garden, and a moment later he was in the room.

He looked very fresh and bronzed, and his colour deepened as he met her eyes.

"Good-morning," he said. "How's the arm?"

"I hardly feel it, thank you," Ana answered untruthfully. "But I wasn't quite up to a swim."

"The water was a bit cold," he agreed 'Hullo, young man!"

The General had finished his meal, and was asking to be allowed to get down.

"There's a battle this morning," he said to his father.

"To be sure. Shall we let Auntie Ana play, too?"

"I've another engagement," Ana said swiftly. "I'm going to Honiton."

"Won't that do this afternoon?"

"No, I'm going home this afternoon." She dared not look at Hambledon as she spoke: she rattled on—"My only relative is not well, and needs my kind attention. It seems a pity, but there you are."

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MUD PUDDLE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily hopped along very quickly, with Bully and Bawly, the frog boys who had no tails, hopping beside him.

"I hope we find Taddy!" croaked Bully.

"So do I!" croaked Bawly. "It's terrible to lose your little brother, isn't it Uncle Wiggily?"

"Yes, it is very sad," said the rabbit gentleman. "But I'm sure we shall find Taddy. You show me where you left him and we'll begin to hunt from there."

As I told you in the story before this, Uncle Wiggily was hopping around, looking for adventures, when, near the Duck Pond, he found an old tomato can with some water in it. He took the can home to plant a dandelion flower in it for his wife when, all of a sudden, he heard the school bell ringing fast, as if there was a fire.

However, there was no fire. But Bully and Bawly, who were in school, just happened to remember that they had started out that morning with Taddy, their new little brother. And after playing on the way, all of a sudden the last bell rang and Bully and Bawly hurried to school.

"We forgot all about Taddy," explained Bully as he and Bawly hopped along with Uncle Wiggily.

"But after a while, in lass, we remembered we had left him some place," croaked Bawly. "So we told the teacher and she rang the bell to get the Police Dog."

"There's Taddy now!"

"And I happened to hop along and I said I would find Taddy, and here we are, now, out looking for him," went on Uncle Wiggily. "But tell me, boys, where did you leave your little brother?"

"Over by the Duck Pond, where we were throwing stones, in the water," explained Bully.

"Then we'll begin to look there—at the Duck Pond," decided the kind old rabbit gentleman.

So Bully and Bawly, who had been let out of school by Miss Mouse so they might find their little lost tadpole brother, hurried along with Uncle Wiggily. Soon they were at the Duck Pond.

"Hey, Taddy!" croaked Bawly.

"What's the good of yelling?" asked Bully. "Taddy is so small he can't croak yet. He can only go peep peep!"

"He isn't even doing that," said Uncle Wiggily, who knew that all baby frogs are first tadpoles, with a big body and a funny tail but no legs. After a while the tail drops off and they grow four legs, just like Bully and Bawly. "No," said the bunny gentleman. "Taddy isn't even peeping!"

"Oh, where can he be?" sighed Bully.

"We left him right here on the bank of the pond," said Bawly. "And when the bell rang we forgot all about him and ran to school, leaving him here."

"It's queer he isn't here now," said Uncle Wiggily. "Taddy is too small a chap to go off by himself. Let's look some more."

So all three looked around the Duck Pond but no little tadpole could they find and at last Uncle Wiggily said:

"We'll go to my hollow stump bungalow and get something to eat, boys. After that we'll hunt some more for Taddy."

So Bully and Bawly and Uncle Wiggily hopped to the bungalow, where the rabbit gentleman had left, on the back steps, an old tomato can with some water in it. And Bully no sooner saw that can than he croaked:

"There's Taddy now!"

"Where?" asked Mr. Longears in great surprise.

"In that tin can!" croaked Bawly. "We put a little water in the old can and carried Taddy around in that, for he has no legs to hop as we do."

"My goodness!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "And to think I was going to plant a dandelion blossom in the same can with Taddy! But are you sure he is in there, boys?"

"Look!" croaked Bully.

And when Uncle Wiggily looked, there, surely enough, swimming around in the water of the old tomato can was Taddy, the little lost tadpole.

"Peep! Peep!" he softly crooned. "Here I am!"

"Oh, how glad we are!" croaked Bully and Bawly. "Our little lost brother is found."

"Well, you hop back to school," said Uncle Wiggily, "and I'll make a mud puddle at the back steps for Taddy to play in until you come out and then you may take him home with you."

So away hopped the frog boys, Uncle Wiggily made a fine mud puddle for Taddy to play in and everybody was happy.

FAMINE AREAS RECEIVE RAIN

Conditions Among Bahuti Tribe In Belgian Congo Are Still Deplorable.

REFUSE TO KILL CATTLE.

KAMPALA, Uganda, British East Africa, April 11.—(C.P.)—The famine and drought-stricken Ruanda, area of Belgian Congo was visited by heavy rains to-day, making prospects for future crops excellent but leaving the immediate situation of the perishing Bahuti tribesmen still deplorable.

Conditions have improved with the organization of relief efforts. Government food distribution is working well and agricultural stations have given seeds with supervision to ensure that they are really planted.

Refuse To Kill Their Cattle.

The Congo government has been apparently unable to compel the rich Batusi dominant tribe to kill their cattle and feed the slave Bahutis during the famine.

Meanwhile, the skeletons of the natives, especially women and children who gave out in their desperate efforts to reach relief stations in Uganda, are scattered along the route of the terrible famine trek. Lions, leopards and hyenas in great numbers infest the area, bitter complaints have been voiced over the alleged ill treatment in some places of starving natives caught stealing from unguarded food dumps.

The Bahutis are a slave race subject to the Batusi under a feudal system of long standing. Thousands have already perished from hunger and disease as a result of a famine brought about by drought and ancient cultivation of land. Belgian food distributing centres had hitherto been unable to cope with the relief problem on account of transportation difficulties.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE BELIEVE IN MAGIC

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action

We believe in magic because we believe in luck. We believe in luck because we feel so insignificant and helpless in the clutches of powers and forces beyond our control.

The world is not altogether to our liking. There is too much pain and not enough happiness. We are not any less credulous than the savage. He believed in good and evil spirits as the forces which worked in his favor or against him. We believe in natural forces which may work for us or against us. But the mystery is none the less profound.

Magic is the art of ontrolling the environment to our advantage. So long as there are forces beyond our control and so long as we demand special privileges we shall continue to believe in magic and to practice magic.

Science has its appeal and its devotees but it can never replace magic entirely. Science is too cold blooded and methodical. Magic appeals to the romantic in us. Building an independent income through the laborious methods of sound business and hard labor and thrift is well enough, but it can never have the same appeal as the wildcat scheme which promises to make us rich over night.

We enjoy watching the magician perform wonders by a wave of the magic wand and his hocus pocus. The magician grows shrubs and trees in an instant, while it takes Nature years and years to mature the tree and months to ripen the fruit.

We practice magic because we are impatient. We want what we want when we want it. We don't want to wait, we don't want to labor and sweat for it. The promotors of wildcat schemes capitalize this human weakness. These business magicians collect a fee of over three billions of dollars annually.

Ignorance and magic are closely related. And yet the most enlightened is not wholly free of magic and superstition. There is a normal desire for mystery and wonder. We like to spin yarns and tell mystifying tales. What would life be worth without the element of mystery? The imagination would decay for want of exercise.

To the savage the art is the serious means of securing control over the forces of nature, to aid him in his struggle for food, shelter, and conquest. To civilized man, magic is a pastime and a thrill producer. We worship science. Science is our national religion. But we backslide into magic occasionally because it appeals to the primitive in us.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Action of Nova Scotia Trust Disallowed

Mr. Justice Paton has handed down in the Supreme Court a decision in the cause of the Nova Scotia Trust, Trustee of the property of the Yarmouth Light and Power Company Limited, authorized assignor, vs. Western Nova Scotia Electric Company Ltd. Defendant company purchased the property of the plaintiff at foreclosure sale for $250,000 being the only bidder. Some irregularity in connection with the advertising of the sale was claimed. The trustees brought action against defendant company asking an order to set aside the sale and deed, a declaration that foreclosure poceedings were irregular, declaration that no property passed by the sheriff's deed, and an injunction to restrain defendant from mortgaging or sale of the property.

His Lordship decides that the statement of claim discloses no cause of action and that the order confirming the sale precludes plaintiff from attacking the sale by means of this action.

Nova Scotia Light and Power Granted New Gas Rates

Approval of the application of the Nova Scotia Light and Power Company for a new rate for consumers of gas to be optional with the present rate, was granted by the Public Utilities Commission. The new rate, Company officials say, will mean reduction in cost for large users of gas.

The present rate for both domestic and commercial use is $1.90 per thousand cubic feet for the first 2,000 feet, $1.45 per thousand cubic feet for the next 98,000 cubic feet and $1.00 per thousand for consumption beyond that.

The new and optional rate is divided into two classifications, one for commercial and industrial use and one for domestic use. The domestic rate calls for a service charge of $2.50 monthly, with a commodity rate of $1.00 per 1,000 cubic feet. Customers with monthly bills of less than $6.00 will not benefit under the new optional rate. Company officials say, and they will probably prefer to adhere to the present rate but customers whose bills are over $6.00 will receive a material reduction if they elect to adopt the new rate. The idea back of the new system, company officials say, is that it will make possible increased use of gas at a much lower proportionate cost than before.

The commercial and industrial rate includes service charges based on the size of equipment installed. The rate is a service charge of $5.00 per month, per 100 cubic feet, rated demand of equipment installed, with a commodity charge of 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for all gas used. Here again, officials say long hour users of equipment will benefit by taking the optional rate. Customers using their equipment more than 60 to 90 hours per month now will benefit under the optional rate, they say, by an increased use. If they use less than between these hours, they benefit by the old rate.

Decreased Sales for Gould's Pumps

The annual report of the Gould's Pumps, Inc., just issued, shows a decrease in the sales of the company, due principally to the reduction in the volume of business received from the oil industry. Foreign shipments made a satisfactory increase, which it is expected, according to the words of N. J. Gould, president, "Will be continued through the current year."

Net earnings, amounting to $137,537 are somewhat less than those for the preceding year, but the finacial condition of the company if firm. Inventories were reduced and bank loans made unncessary last year, with reserves having been added to.

The net liquid assets at December 31, 1928, after deducting the reserves for doubtful accounts receivable and inventory shrinkage, amounted to $2,080,641, and the ratio of total liquid assets after deducting related reserves, to total liabilities, was 866% as compared with 808% at Dec. 31, 1927. During 1928, $121,000 of the company's first mortgage 6% sinking fund bonds were purchased in the open market. Of these $40,000 were retired in accordance with the sinking fund requirements of the mortgage indenture.

Improvements shown in Dominion Stores Ltd.

Sales of Dominion Stores Ltd., in March showed a substantial increase, commensurate with the growth shown in January and February of this year.

The company has opened over 10 stores this year to date in Toronto and other points in Ontario and in Montreal. Other constructive developments have been the removal of existing units to better business locations and in some cases to larger premises.

The installation of refrigerator counters at the stores of the company has been underway, following the products expansion policy outlined as in the last annual report. Among new lines carried are delicatssen and some meat products. These new products are serving to increase the volume of sales per unit, and should make for an important increase in profits per store, as the added expense is relatively small.

Rotogravure Business Proving Valuable to Photo Engravers

The fiscal year of hPoto Engravers and Electrotypers Ltd., closed Feb. 28 last. Officials state that the annual statement will be available in about two weeks time. It is estimated that profits for the period will approximate $4.25 to $5.50 per share.

While the purchase by Photo Engravers of Dominion Rotogravure Ltd., afforded the company much needed space, the business has grown to such a scale that a large addition to present premises is imperative. The land for doubling present structure has already been purchased at the back of the present building.

The rotogravure business is proving a valuable one for the company because of the rights to the process secured. Work of high excellence is being turned out, and the process is relatively so cheap that it can be used profitably, even on small runs

MARKET LIST FEATURELESS

Noranda Registers Net Gain Of 75 Cents At Noon Quotations.

TRADING INCREASES.

TORONTO, Ont., April 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Though trading was on a somewhat heavier scale and the list broadened out slightly, prices continued in an even tone on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. The list was featureless with only a few trivial price changes being shown. Noranda reached a high of 52.50, with the noon quotation of 52.00 showing a 75 cent gain, while Teck Hughes reacted 15 cents after its popularity yesterday. Lake Shore eased off 25 cents to 26.25, and Hollinger weakened 20 cents to 7.25.

Hudson Bay was inactive and improved 25 cents to 18.50, while Baltac sold up 30 cents to 3.05, Falconbridge Nickel held 5 cents higher at 10.30, at did Pend Oreille at 8.10.

NICKEL LEADS TORONTO CURB

General List Quiet With Prices Inclined to be Irregular in Morning Session.

IMPERIAL OIL GAINS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 11—(Canadian Press).—International Nickel occupied the limelight on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, and in a turnover of more than 13,000 shares, reached a high of 48¾. The general list was quiet with prices inclined to be slightly irregular, though at the noon hour, no market changes were shown. According to rumors, the heavy buying in Nickel was attributed to reports from New York that the quarterly earnings of the combined companies are exceedingly higher than previously estimated. The noon-hour price for nickel of 48½, showed a net increase of 1¾ points.

Massey-Harris, Brazilian, and Imperial Oil all advanced in fairly active trading, the latter holding at 108¾ for a net advance of 1¾ points. Massey-Harris sold up ¾ to 67 and Brazilian ¼ at 58.

Canada Steamship lines lost practically all of yesterday's gain, slumping 4 points to 44. Building Products dipped 3½ to 35½, while Cockshutt Plow lost 1¾ to 37 and Goodyear Tire felt back 5 points to 330.

CHICAGO WHEAT PRICES HIGHER

Report of Firmer Liverpool Quotations Tends To Strengthen Values.

PROVISIONS STEADY.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 11.—(Canadian Press). —Prices here turned upward to-day after an irregular start. An unexpected advance in wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with reports of more demand there and of drought in India, tended to strengthen values here. Opening at ¾ decline to ¼ gain, Chicago wheat later showed a rise all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer, with corn starting ⅛off to ½ up, and subsequently holding near initial figures.

FIFTY-FIVE CANDIDATES INITIATED

Loyal Order of Moose in Peterborough is Enjoying Remarkable Growth.

SECOND CLASS WAITING.

Norman G. Heyd, Past Supreme Dictator, Delivers Address On Moosedom.

With the initiation last night of a class of fifty-five candidates, and with a second class of fifty candidates awaiting admission, the Loyal Order of Moose in Peterborough is enjoying rapid growth. Another highly successful meeting of the local order was held in the Moose Hall last night when, in addition to the initiation ceremonies, Norman G. Heyd, Past Supreme Dictator and Associate Grand Regent, delivered an inspiring address on Moosedom, during which he outlined the establishment and maintenance of the Mooseheart Child home and Moosehaven, home for old folks.

Brother J. C. Poolman, Director of the Peterborough lodge, presided during the evening, while assisting him were officers and the degree team of Toronto Lodge Number 1600, as well as Past Dictator F. Jackson of Belleville.

Value of Membership

Norman G. Heyd, in addressing the large gathering, pointed out the value of membership in the Moose and stressed the many benefits each members received from his order. He stated that the Moose was a world wide organization with lodges in Canada, the United States, Europe and South Africa. The great ideal of the institution, he said, was loyalty and each Moose was true to his country, his flag and his King. The Moose united its brothers throughout the world in the great task of waging warfare against the separation of the family and the caring for the orphans. This was the keystone of the order, said the speaker.

He explained the system of child care at Mooseheart and said that the Moose could not and did not guarantee to take care of every member's children. "We do guarantee, however, to make up the difference between what the family has and what it should have." The Moose thinks every child should be thoroughly equipped to go into the country and earn a decent living wage, said the speaker, and we assure each child of that. In Mooseheart, he said, the children were trained and at the age of eighteen or nineteen, when they graduated, they were sent back to their home town or city, trained and capable of earning their own living.

This was accomplished with the aid of a "penny collection" which was taken up in Moose Lodges all over the continent after the nine o'clock ceremony and the pennies, nickels and dimes which were collected in this way amounted to a large sum which was devoted to child care at Mooseheart.

Aged Are Cared For

The speaker also told of the great work being done at Moosehaven, where the aged were cared for and sunshine was brought into their lives.

The old people were given a bungalow and not crowded into an institution. The old man's self respect was saved too, for the Moose gave him employment upon the great farm at Moosehaven and a small wage was paid which enabled him to carry money in his pocket and pay for tobacco, ice cream or whatever he wanted, himself. "That is another thing the little green ticket does," said the speaker. "It brings sunshine into the lives of the aged."

He also explained the Moose extension service which aided the family who for different reasons could not be permitted to go to Mooseheart or Moosehaven. Mr. Heyd also stated that, while the Moose was a nonsectarian organziation, all children of Mooseheart were given religious instruction in the religion of their father.

Past Dictator F. Jackson of Belleville, graphically described Mooseheart, the children's city and told of the great work being done there. Some were inclined to think the Moose an American organization, he said, but in the cornerstone of the main building were engraved the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes entwined and the two flags floated side by side at Mooseheart.

ENTERTAINMENT

Wednesday, July 3 program was approved with the suggestion that golf be added.

Thursday July 5 with a golf tournament and possibly an anglers' or casting competition, still has a morning blank which, the entertainment committee felt, should be filled, possibly with short addresses from old citizens, in the event of it being held in the exhibition grounds. The afternoon program appeared satisfactory with the exception of a rodeo performance, to be eliminated. For Friday, July 5 it was felt that possibly the excursion by boat and motor to Stoney Lake in the morning would be sufficient, along with vaudeville and horse racing in the afternoon and community dancing in the evening. Saturday's program was given complete approval, while the Sunday schedule was looked over and a suggestion made that Decoration Day be held jointly to Little Lake and St Peter's cemetery

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

GRASS FIRES ARE NUMEROUS

Chief Gimblett Issues Warning To All Citizens Lighting Bonfires.

MUST GET PERMISSION.

The Fire Department has had to cope with several grass fires that have spread, due to carelessness on the part of the persons who lighted them. Beginning on Tuesday evening with a fire at the corner lot on Hazlett and Ross Street, which was lighted by Quaker Oats employees, the series of grass fires commenced. Yesterday the brigade was called to stamp out a rubbish fire on the C.N.R. right-of-way north of Smith Street, and another on the property just south of 773 Aylmer Street.

Chief Gimblett has issued the warning that these fires must receive constant attention once lighted, and that before a citizen decides to light a bonfire he must get permission from the Fire Department.

The firemen lighted a precautionary fire on the Ashburnham Memorial Park at the request of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham yesterday. Last spring some of the trees were injured by a grass fire and to save this happening again the firemen burnt off the old grass yesterday.

At 2.04 yesterday there was a chimney fire at 293 Dalhousie Street.

CHURCH SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

W. M. S. of Murray Street Baptist Church Holds Annual Meeting.

Much regret was felt at the annual meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Murray Street Baptist Church held on Tuesday evening at the retirement of its esteemed president, Mrs. W. D. Scott, after an untiring and faithful service during the past twelve years.

Miss M. A. Nicholls, one of the eldest members of the Circle spoke on behalf of the members and expressed the profund appreciation of that body for the splendid service which Mrs. Scott had given during her tenure of office. In recognition of her faithful service a dozen American beauty roses were presented to the retiring president on behalf of the Circle.

Keen regret was also expressed by the members upon the retirement of Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle, the efficient secretary during the past six years. Mrs. Breyfogle was presented with a bouquet of tulips by Mrs. Webber, on behalf of the Circle, as a token of its appreciation of her splendid service.

Splendid financial reports were given; a total of $691.14 was raised during 1928, an excess of $158.11 over last year.

During the program Mrs. Alex Haddow sang most delightfully in Spanish and a reading by Miss Smith was much enjoyed. Preceding the program 67 ladies enjoyed a delightful banquet which was in charge of Mrs. P. S. White. The decorations were in mauve and yellow with daffodils. This was in charge of Miss Sexton.

TRAIN SCHEDULES BACK TO NORMAL

Railwaymen Concentrate Efforts in Moving Heavy Congestion of Freight Traffic.

LINDSAY, April 11 (Special to The Examiner).—Railway traffic on both the C.N.R. and C.P.R. in this region, which was badly demoralized owing to the recent heavy rains, is again back to normal. Passenger trains are again operating according to schedule and railway men are now concentrating their efforts with a view to moving the freight which was badly congested during the demoralization of railway traffic. Four local train crews were despatched to Belleville on Tuesday to assist in moving freight, and as a result traffic has become quite heavy on the C.N.R. Heavy meat trains have been rolling through town during the past forty-eight hours, five such trains steaming into the station Wednesday morning. Freight movements have been a little backward of late, but the situation arising out of the recent disastrous rainstorms is providing work for a great many railway employes who have not been employed steadily since last fall.

The same conditions exist on the C.P.R. Long freight trains are seen passing through town in goodly numbers each day, moving freight which had been held up owing to the damage to the system.

REGULAR MEETING OF ATHLETIC CLUB

Much Business Discussed By Members of C.G.E. Social Club.

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club was held in the Employment Bureau on Monday, April 8th, and a great deal of business was quickly disposed of. The Track and Field, Boxing and Soccer Clubs, were granted permission to carry on for another season, while the Bowling Club is to be assisted by the parent club in providing entertainment for the contingent of bowlers from the Davenport Works, Toronto, who will engage the local bowlers in a tournament on April 20 at the Duffus alleys.

The members present decided to hold a dance in the Canadian Legion hall the same night as the bowling tournament. This dance will be conducted along the same lines as the previous dances held by this club.

The picnic question, which was the most important item on the bill for this meeting, was not very thoroughly discussed, owing to the bulk of business, but suggestions from each individual present revealed the faet that only three places seemed suitable for the holding of the C.G.E. annual picnic, namely, Peterborough, Cobourg and Oshawa. The date set for the picnic is the second Saturday in June, and it is understood that the members of the Social and Athletic Club will be given a chance to vote on their choice of the three places.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Special Music Again Feature of Services in St. James' Church.

Special music was again a feature at the "singing revival" being held in St. James United Church, with both choirs again in attendance. Under the direction of Rev. George Dibble, the old familiar songs took on a deeper meaning and brought to each heart the significance of the "ministry of song."

Of especial beauty, was the solo by Mr. Dibble of Paul Rader's sacred words to the music of the popular ballad, "Mother Machree."

"Open Blind Eyes" was the subject taken by Mrs. Dibble, with such eloquent charm, dwelling upon the story of blind Bartimeus as related in the Gospel of St. Mark.

"Bartimeus was physically blind, but how infinitely worse it is to be spiritually blind to the light of Jesus. A sense of need is always the beginning of betterment, and when we feel this need we are taking the first step toward the light.

Since Bartimeus had always been blind, and his father, also, before him, how did he realize his conditions? It must have been by the testimony of others. In just the same way, those who are spiritually blind, will learn their need by our testimony. We must not give to others an outward application of religion instead of a glowing inward one. We must establish a personal relationship with Christ and build our lives on this worthwhile foundation.

The first question in the Bible, addressed to mankind, is regarding our responsibility to God: "Where art thou?" The second question refers to man's responsibility to his brother: "Where is Abel, thy brother?"

Christ's main purpose on earth was "to seek and to save that which is lost." Let us catch some of His passion for souls, and obtain a consciousness of the "lostness" of men and women without Christ, that will waken, stir and even break our hearts, to a personal responsibility."

This evening, Mr. Dibble will again bring the message on "The Lost Christ." Prayer services are being held each night at seven o'clock, with a growing attendance.

The Potentialities of Sound Pictures

SOUND pictures have caught the imagination of the public as has no other form of entertainment since the advent of radio broadcasting. And this latest development of the motion picture industry is only in its infancy. It has most interesting possibilities in the fields of entertainment and education.

Think of the pleasure which sound films will bring to millions, when (in the near future) all "movie" theatres, in small as well as large communities, may present drama, comedy and music as interpreted by the foremost artists of the world! Imagine the added interest and historical value of news and travel "sound" films!

—And bear in mind that most people in Canada who will see and hear this newest form of entertainment will do so in theatres operated by or affiliated with Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited.

In our opinion, Famous Players is an enterprise which has an unusually promising future. We offer and recommend its Common Stock Voting Trust Certificates, at $51 per share.

"PUTTING children through school is expensive and calls for greatest economy. Girls need the pretty things others have, and, thanks to Sunset Dyes, I was able to give my children more than they could have had without them.

"My daughter was getting ready to leave for her first teaching position. She had a white dress and took it to the dyers. He wanted eight dollars, so we decided to try it ourselves. We dyed it the loveliest shade of dark green and were delighted.

"If there is ever a time when Sunset Dyes are appreciated it is after death in the family. My son died just before my daughter left for her school work. I had a brown suit which I dyed black. Then I dyed my print dresses.

"I never wear anything shabby or the least faded now. Sunset Dye makes them bright and pretty again. I dyed old silk handkerchiefs for trimming a house coat I made. I quilted the trimming and it was the prettiest house coat I ever saw.

"We make slips from our worn silk dresses and dye them to match some dress. I could go on and on but it would just be repetition. Sunset Dyes are to me almost a bank account. They keep us well dressed." From a satisfied Sunset user.

HASTINGS, April 11.—(Examiner Correspondence). — At the Young People's meeting in Trinity United Church, held on Monday evening, the color contest was brought to a delightful conclusion. Brooks as convenor; the Khaki, with Grace Orr as convenor, and the White, with Iden Bond, Sr., as convenor. It was the latter group that presented a very exceptional program on Monday evening. From the announcement of the opening hymn until the pronouncement of the benediction, the interest of the large gathering was not allowed to lag. The chair was occupied by Mrs. (Dr.) J. H. Hess, and at the conclusion of the devotional period, the following numbers were given:

MADOC UNITED CHURCH

MADOC, April 11 (Examiner Correspondence).—Members of the congregation of Trinity United Church welcomed back their pastor, Rev. G. W. Rivers, on Sunday morning, after a long absence, due to quarantine.

The theme for the morning chosen by the pastor was "The human side of Gethsemane," and 'Thy will be done." By request, the choir sang the Easter music given on Easter Sunday. Communion services were also held.

The theme for the evening service was 'The valley of service."

There was an attendance of 131 at at the Sunday School service, as compared with 103 last year. A temperance program was given with the regular devotional exercises.

Roads Almost Impassable

The roads in this district are in a very bad condition. The road from Madoc to Moira Lake is almost impassable and the east and west roads to Tweed and Marmora are in a similar condition. Many washouts have occurred on the railroads and gravel trains were busy all day Sunday.

MILLBROOK UNITED CHURCH.

MILLBROOK, April 11—(Examiner Correspondence)—A deeply spiritual atmosphere was an outstanding feature of the quarterly observance of the Lord's Supper at morning worship in the United Church on Sunday, April 7, the pastor, Rev W.W. Jones, B.D., being assisted by Rev. Joseph Wilks, who is beloved by all denominations, in conducting the service.

The choir sang an appropriate anthem, "Lord, I Believe," immediately before the reception service which preceded the communitn. Over thirty were received in full connection with the church here, the ten elders having a part, with the pastor and Rev. Mr. Wilks, in the impressive ritual. Some of those who came to the altar on Sunday morning were received by letter from the church at their previous place of residence, but the fact that so large a number were uniting in church membership was an outcome of the special services conducted by Rev Mr. Jones during the Lenten season.

By request, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston sang the duet, "God Is Love," at the conclusion of the reception service. The pastor announced that the custom of issuing annual membership tickets to all those on the church roll, which has been discontinued for some years will now be revived on decision of the official board, the members of the Session giving out these for 1928-29 in the immediate future.

Rev. Mr. Jones was obliged to curtail his sermon owing to the ing's worship but dealt briefly with leg's worship but deal briefly with the several events which went into the keeping of the Passover, as observed by the Israelites after their crossing of the Jordan, when God miraculously made for them a path through its water, and their first entry into the promised Land.

"God's people have often been accused of doing foolish things, but He reveals His reasons in His own time. It would appear that the delay to observe the rite of circumcision the sign of God's covenant of grace with Abraham, which had been, indeed, unremembered for more than forty years, was a foolish move now Israel had entered Palestine. Apparently it was an inopportune time to wait, especially as they took time for the keeping of the Passover, which had also been neglected for thirty-years, since the enemy kings might fall upon these two and one-half millions of people just issued from their wilderness wanderings, and put them to utter rout.

From the sacred narrative we gather that the drying up of the waters of the Jordan before Israel brought a physical and moral paralysis upon the kings of the heathen nations on both the east and west sides of the river, and thus God watched His own while His commands were being obeyed.

In the observance of the Passover then would go the crossing of the Red Sea; the destruction of Pharaoh's host; the giving of the law upon Mt. Sinai; the provision of manna in the wilderness, and the water from the rock; the healing from the bites of the poisonous serpents as they looked to the one of brass which Moses caused to be raised aloft in the camp; the report of the spies from Canaan; the recent crossing of the Jordan, and other revelations of God's wonderful providence.

"What shall we say goes into the cup as we observe the Lord's Supper together? Personal experiences of our Saviour's love, power, grace, loveliness, courage, mighty faith, purity, sacrifice? The list might be extended, and dealt with in detail but time fails me. It is however a cup which God has blessed having furnished its contents; it is a cup of thanksgiving to the Lord for His saving mercies; and a cup of salvation purchased at a great price when the Saviour of men gave Himself for us, becoming obedient even unto the death of the cross."

Rev. Mr. Wilks offered the closing prayer. There was a large number of communicants, the elders assisting being, P. Stinson, T. H. Aiken, H. A. Earle, W. E. Ball, and J. Whitfield.

Some who had given their names were not able to present for the reception service on Sunday morning, and these will be received at an early date

IT IS NOT ARMANDE - By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Humoresque", "A President Is Born"

Suddenly, and as unconsciously as a child, Armande began to sing. It was as if a canary had suddenly eased its bursting little throat by releasing a flood of music.

Armande had a voice!

With all her heart, with all her soul, Stella tried to fight back the flood of incredible delight that assailed her.

WHEN Stella allowed herself to let depression get the better of her, she faced the fact that life had treated her badly. Of course there was always the thoroughly human consolation that she had much to be thankful for. At forty she was in beautiful, vigorous health, had a livable income and a lovely child. When you looked at it from that angle it was ungrateful and even wicked to hold the thought that fortune had slighted her.

Looked at, however, from the angle of what Stella might have been, there was something to be said in extenuation of the occasional fits of heartache that overpowered her into black spells of unhappiness.

At thirty Stella Mayrick (Elaine Marcelle) had been at the peak of one of the outstanding operatic careers of her generation. She occupied a major position in the major opera company of New York, had sang in England, on the continent and in Oriental countries before crowned heads and selected audiences, and was married to a tenor who occupied, in his way, a position equal in eminence to her own.

It was one of those marriages that had "come off", as the saying goes. From the start their temperaments, both difficult ones, had propitiously merged. Stella Mayrick (Elaine Marcelle) and Armand Notti were one of the really happy married couples of their world.

Their first and only child was born five years after their marriage.

THE tenth year, both of them in full vocal power, a jubilee tour was arranged that was to take them across America and around into Europe by way of Japan.

The very first lap of that journey, at Denver, Armand Notti, apparently in the pink of health, was stricken during their joint concert with what the doctors gruesomely described as clot on the brain. He died two hours later in the presence of his wife and little daughter in the concert hall dressing room.

Overnight, as it were, Stella had lost more than it seemed to her she was able to bear. But able to bear she was, and had to be, because destiny had evidently reserved another card up her sleeve. Three months later, valiantly trying to round out this catastrophic tour herself, and aided and abetted by a vast and sympathetic public, Stella, singing in Edinburgh, felt what she afterwards described as a string snapping in her throat.

Whether her description of the agony was correct or not, Stella never sang again. Her singing voice lay as thin and as cracked in her throat as if it had never poured forth in glory.

Those were the overwhelming blows that this woman, upon whom fortune had smiled for so long, was compelled to endure within the brief span of one operatic season.

AT forty, Stella Mayrick was living within her modest means in a tiny hotel apartment that ironically overlooked the very portals of the opera house where she had won her laurels and met the love of her life, Armand Notti.

It was a sort of flagellation in which Stella seemed to take a fierce and almost hysterical pride.

She began to develop a dramatic attitude of hatred toward all those stone portals stood for. To the walls of that opera house she owed wretchedness, loneliness, heartbreak.

She taught her child, Armande, a pretty blonde girl of fourteen, to regard those walls with the same distaste.

Armande was her life now. Her joy. Her all. She was what made life endurable. She was sweetness and life. She was the daughter of Armand.

Countless times, through her sleepless nights, Stella gave thanks for Armande. Gloried in the fact that her means permitted her to make this girl independent of the precariousness of a professional life.

Armande, since the day of her father's death, had never even set foot in the showy, tantalizing world of the opera. She knew not its jealousies, heart-aches, heart-breaks, disappointments. Her life fell along quiet and studious lines. Stella's dream for her was of a quiet, orderly life. One removed from the make-believe. One filled with the calm realizations of home-life, love and children.

And, strangely enough, Armande fitted into these dreams. She was a thoughtful, studious girl. Stella felt sure of her quality. Sure of her calm power to meet life. Sure of her ability to handle happiness.

Even the social connections she made were the conservative ones of a girl whose preferences lie in quiet places. In an age of sophisticated youth, post-war laxness and strange new ideals, Armande actually knew the obsolete art of needlework, enjoyed quite a knowledge of period furniture and was adept at arranging tasteful interiors.

WHEN Armande was what her mother considered far too young, she met the son of the president of a southern railroad. It was not that Stella regarded seventeen as too hopelessly immature, but that from the first hour that these two announced to her their love for one another, Stella had not been quite sure of Armande.

She was in love with love. She was in love with the idea of a colonial home in the lovely old city of Charleston. She was in love with young John Scully's drawl, which was a southern one and delightful to her.

Yet it was unthinkable to intercede. From the worldly point of view it was a highly desirable marriage. Young John Scully would come into millions. From the point of view of a love-match, there was nothing really that could be said against it. Certainly Scully was in love with Armande. So far as Stella was able to judge, aside from her gnawing apprehensions, Armande was in love with Scully.

It was all highly regular.

And in some way it was uncanny the manner in which Armande seemed ready to prepare herself for the environment of an ideal southern wife in an ideal southern town.

With Stella eager and able to buy her a trousseau of nice proportions, Armande chose instead to make hers, sitting at home hour after hour, with Scully really clamoring for her company, to stitch away at dainty delights of lingerie and frillings.

One afternoon, as Armande sat sewing, something happened that overpowered Stella more than anything that had ever happened to her in a lifetime of overpowering events.

SUDDENLY, and as unconsciously as a child, Armande began to sing. It was as if a canary had suddenly eased its bursting little throat by releasing a flood of music. Armande, who had never, so far as Stella knew, been known to even so much as hum, began trilling. No particular selection, just lovely, high flutings of voice that reminded Stella passionately of herself in those years before Armande was born.

Startled, the mother regarded her daughter; the daughter regarded her mother. Something had burst forth in Armande's throat. Miracle!

Armande had a voice!

With all her heart, with all her soul, Stella tried to fight back the flood of incredible delight. Armande was destined for the quiet places, for the peaceful aisles of domesticity. Stella was to spend her days with Armande and Scully in the lovely seclusion of a Charleston colonial home.

Stella tried to subdue her excitements. Armande tried to subdue hers. The engagement went on. And then one day, because she could endure it no longer after she had heard Armande's voice break forth time and time again over the sewing, Stella brought a master, one who had taught her, to overhear her daughter's singing.

SLY little Armande. She had already been to him. The master had been teaching her secretly for a week. The master was more excited over her than he had been over a pupil since a young Stella Mayrick had brought a voice to him twenty-five years before.

Armande is on the eve of an operatic success that her teachers declare will surpass her mother's.

There is a new Mrs. John Scully, Jr., who lives in a lovely old house in Charleston, South Carolina. But it is not Armande.

STATES WANT ACTION CLAIMS HON. G. N. GORDON

Power On Canadian Side of St. Lawrence Could Be Developed Independently, Says Speaker.

TRYING TO FORCE CANADA.

Pays Credit To King Cabinet For Way Problem Has Been Handled.

Dealing in a most comprehensive and fair-minded manner with that most momentuous question confronting Canadian statesmen and the people of this Dominion as a whole, "The St. Lawrence Waterway Development" the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., spoke before a meeting of the Men's Liberal Association in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening.

Mr. Gordon pointed out strongly that the immediate construction of the St. Lawrence was most necessary to the United States on two counts; to secure the electric power of which the States are very short, and to satisfy the farmers of middle west, who favour the waterway as a solution to the problem of wheat transportation. But the speaker showed that on the other hand Canada had no immediate need for the waterway, since the four million electric horsepower on the Canadian side can be developed independently of the project as a whole, without increasing the national debt, and since the Canadian western farmer is already getting freight rates on his grain much cheaper than the American farmer.

In beginning the speaker paid full credit to Premier King and his government for the expert manner in which they had met this ticklish problem to the best interests of every section of the country.

Trying to Force Canada

He stated that the United States were trying to force the hand of Canada on this great undertaking because it was of the utmost importance to that country. President Herbert Hoover had made this one of the important planks in his election platform and the speaker read extracts from one of Hoover's speeches on the subject. In this speech great stress was laid upon the economic need of this development to the United States and it was clearly stated that the only alternative if Canada did not enter into the undertaking was the digging of the Oswego to Alban route, but this could only be accomplished at a cost of $630,000,000 and no electrical power would be developed. Mr. Hoover pointed out the extreme difficulties and infeasibility of this program but states, "I would not say that the New York route is never to be contemplated."

That speech said the speaker was addressed to the farmers in the west. In drawing the comparison between the charges on the transportation of wheat in Canada and in the United States the speaker spoke of the great reduction in Canadian charges. This reduction was from 34½ cents per 100 lbs. to 18½ cents by which both systems had given up over two million dollars of revenue, but both were able to declare a big profit. Comparying the charges Mr. Gordon quoted the following to show the differences: Pennant, Sask., to Montreal, 1953 miles, rate 57½; Bainville, Mont. to New York, 1955 miles, rate, 65½ and many others. In each case these were the car load rates in cents per 100 pounds on wheat for export.

Project Is Impossible

The speaker stated that the Conservative party when they drew up their All-Canadian St. Lawrence scheme at their convention in Winnipeg must have forgotten their georgaphy since such a project was impossible.

In speaking of the power that is possible to be developed on the St. Lawrence the speaker pointed out that of six millions of horsepower available over four millions were within the Canadian boundary and could be developed when Canada saw the market open for it within her own boundaries. He further pointed out that by the Order in Council giving permission to the Beauharnois Power Company to decelop power on one section of the St. Lawrence the government was following through on the policy of having the power developed for the Canadian market as needed and at no cost to the Dominion. It was further pointed out that rather than increasing the national debt the revenue derived from the Beauharnois project could be used to decrease it and this whole system could be bought back by the government if public ownership was desired. Too, it was said Ontario's H.E.P.C. was finding it cheaper to buy from this privately owned enterprise than to develop their own resources in Ontario.

Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the Association, was chairman and he referred briefly to the budget speech of Premier King, which he had heard in Ottawa the day previous. "Old parliamentarians looked upon it as the greatest speech they had ever heard" remarked Dr. Craig.

W. J. Scollard, the treasurer, made his report which showed that the Association was on a sound financial footing.

Expressions of appreciation of Mr. Gordon's speech were voiced by R. R. Hall, K.C., F. R. J. MacPherson and many others.

W.M.S. MEETS.

Fenella Church Society To Present Play On April 15.

FENELLA, April 11. — (Examiner Correspondence).—The April meeting of the Fenella W.M.S. was held in Fenella Church on the afternoon of April 3. After much discussion regarding ways and means of raising money, it was decided to invite the Centreton Dramatic Club to present their play, "Mary's Castles in the Air," at Fenella on April 15, this matter to be arranged by the secretary, Mrs. Fred. Talling. Mrs. I. C. Montgomery then took charge of the program, which was as follows:

The Misses Mildred Barker, Donna Talling and Ruth Knox gave readings from chapter VII. in the Study Book, "Drums in the Darkness," dealing with the conditions of the women of Africa. Mrs. Howard Macklin and Miss Florence Macklin sang a duet, "Just for You," which was very much appreciated. Mrs. N. C. Leach read the devotional leaflet, which said in part: "He should work with his own hands in honest industry so that he may have something of which he can give a needy share. All life is a stewardship. Vital energy in whatever form, physical, mental, moral or spiritual, is a trust from God. As Christians we believe that we must give an accounting of our time, our influence, our personality and our prayers. One can be just as stingy and selfish with a handful of coppers as the miser with his hoard of gold. One can have the joy of a liberal heart over a small coin as well as over the millionaire's cheque. Money talks; what does it say to you?"

Mrs. Howard Macklin then read a report of kindergarten work in Japan by Miss Luella Rorke, a missionary of the United Church in Japan.

The Easter thank-offering to date amounted to $9.35, with many envelopes yet to be received. At the close of the meeting tea was served and a social half-hour enjoyed. The meeting for May will be held in the church when Fenella will entertain Roseneath and Centenary appointments.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Satisfactory Reports Read At Annual Meeting of Lily Lake Sunday School.

The annual meeting of Lily Lake Sunday School was held on Wednesday evening in the school house, when reports were given and the election of officers for 1929 was held The treasurer's report showed an excellent balance on hand at the beginning of the year. Although the Sunday School has only 62 members on the roll, including teachers, it has made a very creditable showing financially.

Following the reports of the secretary, treasurer, and superintendents of the Home Department, Temperance, Missionary, Cradle Roll and Flower Committees, the election of officers took place, resulting as follows:

Superintendent, William Saunders; secretary, Katheryn Rowland; treasurer, Clarence Hancock; superintendent Home Department, Mrs. C. J. Hancock; Temperance Superintendent, Harold Thompson; superintendent, Cradle Roll, Amy Thompson; Missionary superintendent, Mrs. C. Ferguson; organists, Eulah Hancock, Mary Middleton, and Dorothy Rowland; Flower Committee, Mrs. J. A. Middleton (convenor), Mrs. T. McIvor, and Miss E. Tully.

A song by Enid Hancock and Helen Rowland, with Dorothy Rowland at the piano, and a recitation by Helen Rowland were much enjoyed After the business part of the program a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

PETERBOROUGH BUS RESUMES SERVICE

Roads Are Rapidly Drying Up in the Lindsay District.

LINDSAY, April 11.—(Special to The Examiner).—Weather conditions of the past two or three days have made a marked difference in the condition of the highways in this district. The Lindsay-Peterborough highway has dried up sufficiently to permit the Peterborough bus to resume its service. It made its first trip yesterday and got through without any trouble. The other highways in the district are reported to be drying up fast, but a little rough in stretches. Drags are being used on several highways and are doing good work. Motorists are getting through from Toronto on the Lindsay-Whitby highway, but have experienced trouble at certain points where the Highways Department has teams of horses to assist in pulling the cars out of the bad holes. The bus service between Lindsay and Toronto is still cancelled, however.

The highway between Lindsay and points around Port Perry is completely blocked owing to flood water. It was reported to-day that water was running over two bridges on one highway to the depth of two feet.

FIRE GUTS HUGE GERMAN LINER

Here is shown a picture of the new German liner, Europa, in flames. While lying in dock the unfinished superstructure and decks took fire. The damage is estimated at about $3,500,000. Plans are under way to rebuild the liner.

SEASONABLE HORTICULTURAL HINTS

Seasonable horticultural hints

The season has approached when we should be thinking of planting our sweet peas.

This beautiful annual does best in a cool, moist soil, which should not, however, be naturally wet. The seed should therefore be planted in a well drained soil only, or one in which the excessive rains of spring will not cause the water to stand around the roots and start mildew. They endure little shade so plant in the open giving them all available light and air, although a little shade from the midday sun of June and July is beneficial.

The preparation of the soil is important. For those who have not prepared the soil last fall, the preparation should be started as soon as the ground can be worked. Fine flowers may be grown on soil prepared in the same manner as for vegetables, namely by deep ploughing or digging but the season of bloom will not last as long. For best results the earth should be trenched digging out to a depth of eighteen inches and about the same in width. Place the top soil to one side and the bottom or poor soil on the other. Loosen the bottom with a digging fork and place on it a thick layer of well rotted manure or matter from the compost heap, cover with part of the bottom soil and mix thoroughly. Then tramp down firmly. Another layer of manure and the balance of the subsoil, mixing as before. The top soil is returned to the trench and if you wish a small quantity of fine bone meal may be added and worked in. Firm this top soil so that it will be level with the surrounding ground. It might be well to add, however, that the ground should not be wet when dug as it would be apt to bake and so defeat the purpose for which you have been working.

For better germination it is advisable to soak the seed in luke-warm water for six or eight hours before planting. In planting make a drill about two inches deep and place the seed two or three inches apart and cover well. When the plants are about six inches in height thin to four or six inches apart and prepare supports. Brushwood, coarse twine or even wide meshed chicken wire may be used. Your plants should attain a height of five or six feet.

In dry weather water thoroughly, draw a drill a few inches deep and about four inches from the row on each side. pour or run water into these until the ground is thoroughly soaked. Watering in this way once every week or ten days is more beneficial than frequent light surface watering.

Keep all sprays of bloom picked every second day to prevent seed from forming and so cutting short the blooming season.

For exhibition bloom watering once a week with liquid manure after the plants have started to bloom will be found beneficial. This should, however, be done only when the ground is wet.

EARTHQUAKE SHAKES ITALY

Several Severe Shocks Are Felt in Northern Part of Kingdom.

LITTLE DAMAGE

ROME, April 11 (Canadian Press). — Earthquake shocks were felt throughout Northern Italy yesterday, but no casualties were reported.

Shocks were felt at Bologna at 6.44 a.m., at Florence at the same time, and at Parma six minutes later. Bologna experienced two distinct shocks, preceded by rumblings. A few chimneys fell, but there were no victims.

Florence experienced only one quake, and there was no damage, while Parma felt two undulatory tremors.

The Padua Observatory noted a violent shock at 6.43 a.m., the centre of which was estimated to be about 63 miles away. Modenar registered a slight shock at 6.45 a.m., but there was no damage.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

PARIS, April 11.—At Arcissac, a little French village, a novel sign has been placed as a warning to motorists. At the outskirts of town motorists are confronted with: "If you drive slowly, you will see our village. It is very pretty. If you drive fast you will see our jail. It is very damp."

OATMEAL BASE SUPERIOR FOR FEEDING CHICKS

In Selecting a Ration Too Much Care Cannot Be Exercised.

OATMEAL S. CORNMEAL.

Cockerels Are Found Ready For Market Two Weeks Earlier.

What a difference a single ingredient may make in a chick ration. In an experiment at the Liberty Villa Farm, Libertyville, Illinois, cornmeal was substituted for oatmeal. In every other respect, the rations were the same.

The chicks used in this experiment were single comb white leghorns from the same breeding stock, hatched in the same incubator, and of the same age. They were divided into two groups—one receiving the starter and growing mash with the oatmeal base and the other starter and growing mash with the cornmeal base.

Oatmeal vs. Cornmeal

For the first six weeks there was no difference in size and condition that could be readily observed. From then on, though, the oatmeal chicks noticeably grew the faster. The oatmeal cockerels were ready for the market as broilers almost two weeks earlier than the corn cockerels. The oatmeal pullets developed deeper bodies, bigger combs, and began to lay all of two weeks earlier. In the first two months after the pullets were put into the winter quarters and trap-nested the oatmeal pullets laid 1½ dozen more eggs per bird.

Not only was there a decided difference in the number of eggs laid but the eggs from the oatmeal birds were quite a bit larger in size. They averaged about 23 ounces to the dozen whereas the eggs produced by the corn pullets averaged 21 ounces to the dozen, a difference of 2 ounces to the dozen in favor of the oatmeal fed birds. Inasmuch as the dividing line of eggs that must be sold as pullet eggs and those sold as firsts is generally considered 22 ounces to the dozen, there was a radical difference in the value of the eggs from the two lots.

Oatmeal More Economical

Cornmeal, of course, is a much cheaper feed than oatmeal. Using it as the base in place of oatmeal would practically mean a reduction of ½c per pound in the cost of the feed. It takes from 12 to 15 pounds of starter and growing mash to raise a pullet to laying age, so that the difference in the cost of the ration would amount to 6 to 7½c per pullet. This is assuming that the mash consumption for both lots was the same. Actually the oatmeal pullets ate less mash because oatmeal is much more digestible than cornmeal. The greater return from the oatmeal pullets in the first two months' laying not only took care of the difference in cost of the feed, but practically paid for all of the starter and growing mash that the oatmeal birds ate up to laying age.

You cannot be too careful in selecting the ration you feed your baby chicks. A chick that is once stunted never fully recovers because of the unusually rapid growth it makes. Provide your chicks with the best that money can buy. In the long run it is the cheapest.

ICE BRIDGE BREAKS.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 11 (Canadian Press). — The new ice bridge, the second of the present season, broke up yesterday and floated down the river to the lake. The great mass of ice cracked, the two sections swinging into the banks until caught by the current Rivermen believe there is a possibility of a third bridge in spite of the lateness of the season Under certain weather conditions there is sufficient ice in Lake Erie for the formation of a new international ice link

FLOOD CONDITIONS IN GREAT LAKES

Levels Are Fully 15 Inches Higher Than Average in Past 10 Years.

WINDSOR, Ont. April 11 (Canadian Press) — With lake levels fully 15 inches higher than the average for the past ten years, a stiff northeast wind yesterday brought flood conditions at the east ends of Lake Erie and Lake St Clair doing thousands of dollars damage and inundating summer cottages

At Erieau in Kent County the damage was quite heavy, the waves breaking over the dykes, which serve to keep the lake water out of the reclaimed marshes in the Burke drainage scheme, and threatening to inundate some 1,500 acres of land valued at $400 an acre The land is being used for onion growing and market gardening

Lake Erie was the highest it has been for over half a century at Kingsville, Ont, it was reported The water was up to the level of the government dock, and fishermen's shacks along the shore were damaged.

Flood conditions in the lakes are due to the recent heavy rains.

Reid street from the north side of Charlotte to the northern boundary of the city; Park street from Lansdowne to Wolfe; Aylmer street from Charlotte to the south side of Wolfe; Park street from Sherbrooke to the south side of Charlotte; Reid street from Wolfe to Sherbrooke, and Park street from the north of Charlotte to McDonnel, was introduced by Alderman Macdonald and seconded by Alderman McNab and carried. In it was also incorporated a clause to do away with the "no left hand turn" rule at George and Charlotte streets.

By-law for the issue of $300,000 in debentures for the addition to Nicholls Hospital was given first and second reading, and the third will not be given until the Protestant ratepayers have given their approval of the expenditure. Another by-law fixing May 3rd as the day on which the by-law will be voted upon was put through the various readings.

By-law 2832, authorizing the agreement with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario in regard to purchase of the gas plant which the ratepayers endorsed at the last civic election, was passed by the council. In the second reading of the by-law Alderman McIntyre inquired if the terms of the agreement had been found satisfactory by the special committee appointed, and Mayor Denne replied that he and Mr. Armstrong and the City Solicitor had considered the terms and in several instances had them changed for the benefit of the citizens. As it now stands, he declared the agreement was all right.

Gilmour Street Residents Appear

A deputation from the Gilmour Street Residents' Association, headed by John Corkery and Webber Turner, appeared before the council and asked that Gilmour street be paved this year as at present it was in a deplorable condition. All those present, it was stated, were heavy taxpayers, and they thought the council ought to consider their request. Mayor Denne promised the deputation that the council would give the matter its earnest consideration, and the matter was referred to general business.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., offered to the council six feet of property on Louis street, free, if it would pave the street and widen it.

The by-law to take a vote on daylight saving was introduced by Alderman Cotton and Stocker and was given its several readings; the vote to take place at the same time as the Nicholls hospital by-law.

Inverlea Park By-law

A by-law looking after a much-needed want in the city, whereby Inverlea Park bathing beach would be equipped with a suitable bathing house, lavatory and wading pool for children, was given first and second readings. The cost is estimated at $10,000 and a vote of the people will be taken on these improvements along with the daylight saving and the Nicholls hospital by-law, on May 3rd.

Mayor Denne, in favoring the passing of the by-law, said that at present the city had no bathing beach, the man with a car could go to Chemong or other summer resorts, but the poor man had no place to go, and that if there was one thing the city needed it was a more suitable bathing beach and bathing accommodations. He said the money had been placed in the estimates of the Parks Committee, but had been struck out on the understanding that a vote of the people would be taken. Every alderman supported the bathing beech by-law as something he believed the city was in great need of.

When the by-law to amend the traffic law came up for discussion, several of the aldermen thought that the parking on George street should have been considered and some arrangement reached before the left hand turn was incorporated. Alderman Lowe asked what the council intended to do about the parking on George street, and he maintained with all the traffic going up that street, that the angle parking would be of little use. He suggested parking straight on both sides between Brock and King streets.

Should Be Some Change.

Mayor Denne declared there should be some change and he prophesied with all the traffic on George Street with angle parking there was sure to be some accidents.

Alderman McIntyre favored angle parking but was not so sure that with so much traffic, especially on Saturday nights, that it would work out right.

Finally the by-law was passed but the aldermen are to watch the traffic on George Street the next two Saturday nights and then at the May Council meeting it is expected that further amendments will be made to the parking by-law.

The only jar in the whole evening proceedings came when a by-law, sponsored by Alderman Huffman, for the ladies' rest rooms on the Market Square was introduced, and after a heated argument no action was reported, but before the next Council meeting the proposed plans will be shown Mr. McElderry.

Mayor Denne said the Council was not trying to sidestep the issue; it had no intention of hurting the Empress Hotel or any other business in the city, and he felt that if the plans were shown those who are opposed that their views would be changed.

Alderman Phelan thought the Market Square the wrong place to erect such a building, and on motion of the Mayor, seconded by Alderman Phelan, the chairman was named to discuss the plans with Mr. McElderry. The motion found supporters in Aldermen Cotton and McNabb. The other members opposed to referring the matter to the chairman and wanting to get the work completed on the building before Old Home Week saw that the by-law asking the City Trust to go ahead with the building would not secure the necessary two-thirds vote, so they let the matter drop.

Unable To Get Anything.

After the vote had been taken, Alderman McIntyre explained that it was too bad, for members of the Council had worked on this plan for two years. "It appears you cannot get anything with this Council," he declared. This drew forth Alderman McNabb's ire, who thought that the Council was doing what it saw best.

"You are following the opinion of some one else and you are not man enough to stand on your own feet." Alderman McIntyre retorted to Alderman McNabb.

Alderman Huffman said: "We asked the City Trust to employ an architect and secure plans which we have accepted, and now when it comes to us asking that the City Trust go ahead and complete the erection of the building we fall down."

The by-law will come up at the next meeting of the Council, when it will either be defeated or immediate action in erecting the building will be taken.

By-law 2736, authorizing an agreement with the Shell Gasoline Company for property near the city incinerator was given its three readings. The company intends to use this property as a supply station for this district.

Lower Rates Immediately.

A letter will be sent to the local Utilities Commission asking it what it intends to do with the $38,353 which it had as surplus last year. It was pointed out that this sum was an overcharge on the light and power users of Peterborough, and not a refund by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, for its refund had been covered in the thirteenth bill which had been credited to the next bill received by the local Commission for power and light.

Alderman Holland said that in other cities the Commission had made a refund and he could not see why the local Commission should not do the same.

Another motion will also be sent to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, asking that the rates be reduced immediately, to take effect from the first of the year.

The aldermen felt that with the surplus last year it was time something should be done in this city, and that they wanted immediate action.

Mrs. Frank Knox and F. H. Dobbin were recommended to the Government to fill the two vacant positions on the Mothers' Allowance Board. Mr. Dobbin and Mrs. Knox are the present members on the Board for the city.

When the petition of the Gilmour Street Residents' Association came up for discussion, it was soon dealt with. On motion of Aldermen Huffman and L. Lowe, the paving program which was drawn up last year will be included in this year's program, and the City Engineer will be asked if the Warren Paving Company has received the contract on Park Street for prices. The extra program will include Leslie Avenue, Gilmour Street, Homewood Avenue, Belmont and Walton Streets, Monaghan Road and St. Joseph Street. On Monaghan Road the pavement will be laid from Charlotte to Elm Streets.

Alderman McIntyre protested all the speed and thought the Council was going a little too fast.

Alderman Phelan was authorized to appoint a dog catcher.

The Ford, Durant and Chevrolet agents submitted prices on a new truck for the street commissioner, and on motion of Aldermen Lowe and Huffman, the tender of the Chevrolet agents was accepted. The prices quoted were: Ford, $765 and $125 for the two old cars; Durant, $945 and $145 for the old cars, and Chevrolet, $800 and $150 for the two old cars.

The Engineer was authorized to enter into an agreement for the year's cement supply for the city.

The Toronto Casualty Company will be given the insurance policy on the fire apparatus and Alderman Cotton was given power to enter into an agreement.

Those present were: Mayor Denne, Aldermen Phelan, Cotton, Stocker, Holland, McIntyre, Macdonald, McNabb, Huffman and Lowe.

CONGREGATION HONORS PASTOR

Purse Presented To Rev. Father McAuley By Ennismore Parishoners.

ADDRESS READ.

ENNISMORE, April 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Sunday, April 7, an event of an unusual nature took place when the members of St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, honored their pastor, Rev. Father McAuley, who left yesterday with His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, on a three months' trip to Europe.

A purse was presented to Rev. Father McAuley by Thomas Cavanagh and Charles Perdue read the following appropriate address:

"Dear Reverend Father:

"On this occasion of your departure for the Eternal City, we, your parishioners, wish to show you some slight token of the esteem and respect we have for you. Since your coming to our midst, twelve years ago, you have never had a vacation. Your time has been given up to both the spiritual and temporal advancement of this parish. Our hearts rejoice that you have been the one selected from the diocese of Peterborough by His Lordship the Bishop, to accompany him on this happy journey. For this honor done you, Dear Reverend Father, we are grateful to His Lordship.

"As we look back over the past twelve years we recall the many activities in which you were interested. Scarcely were you settled in the parish when we found a new school being erected. Your interest in the education of the children of the parish has been splendid. When misfortune overtook us some six years ago and we lost our parish church by fire, you immediately set to work to build a new church. We have today, thanks to your efforts, Dear Reverend Father, this present beautiful temple of God, not merely completed, but practically free of debt.

"Your solicitude for the spiritual interests of the parish has been manifested in your daily life amongst us. Your untiring zeal for our spiritual good and your special love of our sick have endeared you to us in a special manner. In a word, our interests, both temporal and spiritual, have been your interests. We feel that we would indeed be ungrateful if we did not give you some expression of our appreciation of you on this occasion. As a tangible mark of our love and esteem of you, Dear Reverend Father, we ask you to accept this small gift, and we beseech you to beg the blessings of Almighty God upon us when you kneel at the feet of the successor of St. Peter, Pope Pius XI.

"We will look forward, Dear Reverend Father, to your return to us again, and we will beseech Almighty God in our prayers to protect and bless you on your ocean voyage.

"Signed on behalf of the parish—Thomas Cavanagh, Arthur O'Reilly, Daniel Hickson, Herbert Hennessy, John D. Sullivan, Charles Perdue."

It is the first time in the history of the parish that such a signal honor was ever accorded to the pastor, and the fact that it meant such a prolonged absence caused many of the congregation to visibly express their sorrow.

Father McAuley thanked his parishioners for their thoughtfulness and assured them he would remember them in his prayers on his trip to the Holy City.

DATE IS SET FOR BANQUET

Plans Discussed at Meeting of Millbrook Young People's Society.

MILLBROOK, April 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People's Society held its regular meeting on Monday evening, the Missionary Committee being in charge, and the convenor, Mrs. Cecil Hubbard, in the chair.

Miss Elsie Spence gave a missionary reading, "Why the Painter Left Out Four Colors," and Miss Jean L. Burnham took up the topic, "The Life and Work of Mary Slessor of Calabar," in a most interesting and instructive manner.

Mrs. Lambert supplied an element of humor to the program as she recounted some African recipes, fables and proverbs, and with the smiles which these provoked the appeal, which the speaker intended, went home.

The president, B. B. Dawson, took charge of the business period, and made announcement that Monday, April 15, is the date definitely decided upon for the Young People's banquet. Rev. Mr. James has secured as speaker for the occasion G. H. Holton, of Belleville, president of the Young People's Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Members of the local Y.P.S. have been given the privilege of inviting their friends, and a general invitation to the young people of the congregation is heartily extended to attend the banquet and enjoy the address of the conference president, as well as the toasts proposed and replied to by local speakers. Invitations are being sent to the Young People's organizations at Carmel, Cavanville, Pontypool and Frazerville, and it is expected there will be well over one hundred guests gather around the tables at the hour appointed, 7 p.m.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the local church will cater for the banquet, and everything possible is being done to make the evening a memorable one in the history of the Young People's work here. It is very gratifying to know that an organization begun late last fall has functioned so successfully that it can branch out along such commendable lines thus early in its career.

A missionary contest was enjoyed at the close of Monday's meeting, and there was also a practice for the play which is now in course of preparation and which, it is hoped, to present early in May.

LETTERS READ AT COUNCIL MEETING

Routine Business Transacted At Meeting of North Monaghan Council.

The North Monaghan Council held its regular meeting on Monday April 8, with all members present, Reeve Rye presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

A notice was received from the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board concerning the petition of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company in regard to having a part of lot 12, concession 13, Township of North Monaghan, annexed to the City of Peterboro. This petition will be heard by the Board at 12 o'clock noon, 23rd day of April. A letter and circular was also read from the Fairview Chemical Company, Toronto and Regina, announcing a new remedy for exterminating weeds.

T. B. Henry, relief officer presented the following charity bills for payment: A. E. Saunders, provisions $12.73; A. E. Saunders, provisions, $3.39; A. E. Saunders, provisions, $17.27; A. Thompson, wood, $14; Albert Cheyne, milk, $7.35; Albert Cheyne, milk, $2.

Albert Cheyne, tax collector, made the regular report regarding the outstanding taxes to date. Mr. Cheyne reported a balance of taxes outstanding to present date of $1,676.24.

M. D. Letellier presented a bill for arrears of taxes of lots 73 and 74, plan 50, which he stated he paid when he purchased the property. The clerk reported that John Whitfield's tax roll showed said arrears of taxes paid in back of pay roll. A resolution was passed that said arrears of taxes on said above lots be removed from the books of the county of Peterborough.

Letters were read from J. S. R. McCann, of Ottawa notifying the council that he had paid taxes on these lots for these years. The lot being wrongly assessed to Mr. McCann instead of Mr. Howden. The matter was left in the hands of the clerk for settlement.

H. A. Morrow wrote asking the council to have Frederick street repaired as soon as possible as the street is impassable at the present time.

The clerk was instructed to order one 12-foot mould board and one 12-foot blade for power grader. E. J. Devlin wrote to the council asking them to try to have some roadwork done on the T.A.S. Clarke Line during the coming summer. A resolution was passed that the clerk write to Mr. Devlin saying that last summer was so wet that the road commission could not get there with stone and that there would be some stone on this road during the coming summer if the road gets dry enough. Ben Johnson came before the council and complained that there was arrears of taxes on lot 121, plan 48, owned by him. Upon investigation in the office of the county clerk and also township tax roll that Mr. Johnson was only assessed with lot 120, plan 48, for the year 1925 and that the Payne estate was wrongly assessed for the lot. A motion was passed that the council hereby apportion the taxes on lots 121-122-123-124, plan 48, for year 1925, as follows: Harry Jeffries, lots 122-123-124, plan 48, $15.79; Ben Johnson, lot 121, plan 48, $5.26, making total of $21.05.

The following bills were passed for payment: Brown's Hardware, shovels, $2.50; Archie Patterson, expenses to the Road Convention, $14.95.

The meeting adjourned, to meet for the next regular meeting on Monday, May 13, 1929, at 2 o'clock at the Court House, Peterborough.

PREMIER GRANTS GAS TAX REBATE

Commercial Vehicles Owned By Municipalities Do Not Come Under Law.

ORDERS ARE PASSED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 10 (Canadian Press). — Premier Ferguson's promised rebate of gasoline tax on commercial vehicles owned and operated by municipalities is effective from to-day.

Order-in-Council was passed by the Government yesterday authorizing Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, to rebate this tax in all proper cases. Corporations making application for rebates will have to prove to the Minister that gas they purchased has been used solely for motive power in vehicles with commercial licenses, operating entirely within the corporation limits of the municipalities.

Fire department trucks, street-cleaning vehicles, and civic ambulances are types of vehicles which will qualify for the rebates. All passenger cars are not, even though they may be police machines.

For severa years there has been a growing agitation for this form of tax rebate, with London deputations talking most determinedly to Queen's Park. At the commencement of the recent session of the Legislature Premier Ferguson announced that the appeal would be met.

PRESENTS PLAY.

"The Path Across the Hill" Presented in Omemee Coronation Hall.

OMEMEE, April 10.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Monday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the draamtic club of No. 9, Ops, gave the play, "The Path Across the Hill" in Coronation Hall. It was with great difficulty that they presented their parts. Just at the commencement of the first act, the lights went out. They soon returned only to be cut off shortly again. With the aid of a gas lantern they proceeded but the howling wind outside and the creaking of trees and with almost utter darkness in the hall, the play was not heard to good advantage. Between the acts, Jack Endicott of Reaboro, sang several Scotch songs to the pleasure of all.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Samuel Crawford — Wilbert F. Thorne.
Robert Pogue—Gordon McNevin.
Water Conral—Wend McNevin.
Dr. Jimmie Reid—Arthur Pogue.
Salamander Alexander John Henry Jones—Walter Reeds.
Mrs. Davis—Mrs. W. F. Thorne.
Ruth Conrad—Mamie Windrim.
Flo Gray—Mabel Thorne.
Lutie—Hazel Thorne.
Zu Zu—Olive Windrim.

Millbrook

MILLBROOK, April 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—At the meeting of the Council held last week, a communication was received from the Globe Indemnity Company, reporting a satisfactory settlement of Miss Needler's claim. J. N. McGill, secretary of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, addressed the council, asking a grant for the Winter horse show. A grant of $20 was made. G. F. Harrington, tax collector, presented his report, showing a balance of unpaid taxes of $168.20.

Mystery Surrounds Death Of Sportsman

LONDON, April 10.— (Canadian Press). — Sporting and military circles were mystified to-day at the strange death last night of Captain John Pitt Dening, international polo player. Not until the inquest Friday, it was believed, however, would all the circumstances explaining the tragedy be unravelled.

Captain Dening's body was found locked in a room at his hotel at Westminster where he had been staying while in Engniand on leave from the Indian army. There was a bullet wound in the head and a revolver by his side.

THE CAUSE OF STOMACH ULCER

You are hearing much these days about ulcer of stomach and ulcer of intestine.

You will remember the main symptom is pain in about two hours after a meal which persists until another meal is taken.

Some of your friends or acquaintances tell you that they are suffering from an ulcer and their pale and worn appearance naturally give you the impression that ulcer must be a very serious thing.

Now ulcer is serious enough, but it is not as serious as cancer or tuberculosis, and it can be healed in the majority of cases by co-operation between the patient and his doctor.

Dr. A. A. Diethelm emphasizes two points in the medical treatment of ulcer.

(1) The majority of ulcers heal quickly and break down just as quickly.

(2) There is a close relationship between infection in other parts of the body and ulcer.

A typical ulcer may form in a few (even three) weeks, and heal just as rapidly.

Now, although the ulcer heals temporarily the infection that is causing it continues to exist, and so the ulcer forms again.

Your doctor will tell you of a number of cases of ulcer that healed up and never formed again after the removal of infected teeth, tonsils, or gall bladder.

Other ulcers are kept active because of the nervous or emotional state of he patient. This nervous condition induces an extra supply of hydrochloric acid in the stomach juice. If the patient can be calmed the cure is more quickly affected.

Even after the removal of any and every infection there are other factors that help to cause ulcer or to prevent it healing.

These are fatigue, chills, exposure, bulky indigestible food, infections of nose and throat, too much alcohol, tobacco, pepper, salt, and spices. Treatment consists of complete rest for two to four weeks, no solid food for some time, and foods that are easily digested and readily enter into the blood stream. Milk and eggs are especially valuable.

IN WOMAN'S REALM.

By JEANETTE.

The true mystic:

"He can watch from dawn to gloom
The lake-reflected sun illume
The yellow bees in the ivy-bloom;
Nor heed, nor see, what things they be;
Yet from these, create he can
Forms more real than living man—
Nurslings of immortality."

On Thursday afternoon, the Young Women's Christian Association is holding a Camp shower and tea at the home of Miss Margaret Hamilton on Rubidge street. The articles derived from this affair will be used for the replenishing of the cupboards at the new summer home of the 'Y' girls at Stoney Lake. A name has not yet been chosen for this Camp on the lake, but it has been suggested that a contest be held among the members of the Association and a prize given for the best name for the establishment.

Anything in the way of linen or preserves, fruit, pickles or jam will be welcomed at the shower and it is hoped that a goodly number of articles will be donated. In the ordinary summer camp of this type, the girls are asked to bring their own bed-linen and blankets, but the local 'Y' wishes, if possible, to equip their building in such a way that this won't be necessary.

An official opening of the Camp is scheduled for July but if groups of girls wish to go up earlier, arrangements will be made, as a man and woman have already been engaged as caretaker and housekeeper. Both have had previous experience in work of this kind.

A special visit to the Camp is hoped for in Old Home Week, and motor boat service from McCracken's Landing has been arranged for. This type of service will be available at all times throughout the summer and it is hoped also to have a special speedy 'bus service from the city to the Landing for week end visitors, so as to bviate the necessity of a lengthy journey.

For those of a religious mind, two special religious services are being carried on during this month. At the Salvation Army Temple, Major and Mrs. H. C. Kendall of Toronto, Territorial Revivalists, are speaking every evening until Sunday next, inclusive.

And at St. James' United Church are Mr. and Mrs. George Dibble, Gospel Musical Evangelists, conducting a singing revival for the fortnight extending from April 7th to 21st, inclusive. Mrs. Dibble is the Gospel preacher and Mr. Dibble conducts the musical services.

"Kiwanis Kapers" is the name of the snappy Revue which makes the annual theatrical offering of the Kiwanis Club this year. As the funds of this organizations are used in great measure to forward the work for Underprivileged Children at the Jackson Park Camp, during the summer months, where the little boys and girls of the city have a wonderful time in the hot weather, playing under the pine trees, bathing in the creek and having their tonsils and teeth looked after carefully by attending physicians who give their services gratis, so the community at large, and especially the feminine element, are probably quite interested in their endeavors to augment their treasury chest by putting on a play, during Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

The Revue is in good hands as to direction and general presentation, and promises to be a fun-maker from start to finish.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

The separate jacket is of an off-white shade, chosen to be worn with a sleeveless morning frock of red, white and printed silk.

This is, forsooth, a season of little jackets. They appear in the most unexpected connections—unexpected, that is, until you realize that they are really appropriate as part of practically every sort of ensemble. There are little jackets to be worn with one's bathing costume, little negligee jackets that are direct descendants of the old-time "matinees"—there are bed jackets, house jackets, jackets for sports ensembles, jackets of linen to be worn with gingham frocks, little jackets of taffeta to be worn with summery tulle frocks. There are quilted jackets and cretonne jackets, lame jackets and pique jackets, cocktail jackets that never get a whiff of any beverage stronger than afternoon tea or after-dinner coffee and smoking jackets that are never sullied with the scent of tobacco smoke.

In some of the stores you may find little incidental jackets—a tempting array of them near the place where you find separate skirts and these little jackets suggest all sorts of interesting combinations and ensembles. There are separate jackets of linen—red or blue or green—that may be chosen to wear with gingham frocks of white and colored checks. There are jackets of corduroy or pique to be worn with cotton or linen frocks—and jackets of finely twilled silk that may be chosen to wear with the skirt of pleated crepe de chine. If you are expert enough to make a separate skirt but haven't quite the courage to attempt a jacket you may buy the jacket and then get a piece of harmonizing figured silk from which to make a pleated skirt and a scarf for the jacket.

OLD SONGS

IN THE HEART OF THE CITY THAT HAS NO HEART.

(Contributed by F. W. B.)

She wanted to roam,
So she left the old home,
The old people's hearts were sore.
She longed for the sights,
And the bright city lights,
Where hundreds had gone before.
She went to the heart of the city,
And mingled with strangers there,
'Cause nobody said:
"You are being misled."
For what did the stranger care.
Chorus.
In the heart of the city that has no heart,
That's where they meet, and that's where they part.
The current of life has proved too strong,
So the poor little girlie just drifted along.
Nobody cared if she lived or died;
Nobody cared if she laughed or cried.
She's just a lost sister,
And nobody missed her.
She's there in the city,
Where there's no pity,
In the city that has no heart.

THE MILLER AND THE MAID.

(Contributed by "Picanniny")

"Can't you stay one tiny moment?"
Said the miller to the maid
As they went among the shadows
In the twinkling alder shade;
"For I've so much to tell you
And you always say me nay
And with such a very pretty bonnet
Oh! you take my breath away;
For hey, dear, you are so pretty."
She turned and tried to go.
"That's just what cousin Doblin says
But brother Bob says no!"
Chorus.
"If you've nothing more to tell me,
O miller let me go,
For my mother's making griddle cakes,
And waits for me I know."
"Oh! but that's not it all," he said,
The miller to the maid,
And he tried to see her pretty face
Beneath her bonnet shade;
"For oh! I am so unhappy
Since that twenty-third of May
When you came here for my wheat best
And stole my heart away.
For I love you. Oh! so dearly!
"That's just what cousin Doblin says
To every girl I know."

"Bother Bob and cousin Doblin,"
Said the miller to the maid.
And he saw her pretty face at last,
Beneath her bonnet's shade.
"I am dying all for love of you.
And what am I to do
If I cannot get the marriage lines
And go to church with you?
And it's now you know it all," he said.
"So bless you, dear, and go."
"O miller, miller, wait a bit!
I need not hurry so;
If you've something more to tell me
You may tell me as you go."
Chorus.
But he'd nothing more to tell her
And he told it her I know,
For one's never tired of telling
"Oh! sweetheart, I love you so!"

TRAINING SHIP MISSING.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, April 10. (C.P.) — Search for the Danish training ship Kjoepenhagen, with 50 cadets and a full crew aboard, which has not reported since it left Montevideo December 14, for Australia, has been started from here.

It is feared that the training ship may have become disabled and may have drifted to one of the lonely islands in the South Atlantic.

MOST of us are interested in the prices of foods and other things that enter into the running of a house, and so I think you will be pleased to have this article telling comparative prices between Peterborough and elsewhere.

* *

It is nice to know, for instance, when so many are protesting the high price of meats, that all classes of beef except stewing were cheaper here than in the average Ontario city—sirloin steak was 1 cent cheaper here, round steak, half a cent, rib roast 1½ cents, and shoulder roast 1 cent. Stewing beef is reported 1½ cents dearer here than the Ontario average.

* *

Fresh leg roast of pork could also be obtained cheaper in Peterborough—it is shown 1 cent below the Ontario average—and breakfast bacon, sliced, is given as two cents cheaper, while breakfast bacon not sliced is two and a half cents cheaper here. Boiled ham cost two cents more in Peterborough.

* *

Fish varies greatly. Of seven varieties given, three are more expensive in Peterborough, and four are below the Ontario average. Cod steak is nearly 2 cents more here, but halibut is 5½ cents less; whitefish is 2½ cents more, but salt herring is 1 cent less; finnan haddie is shown ½ cents more, but salt cod is ½ cents less and canned salmon is 2 cents less.

* *

Lard seems to have cost the Peterborough housewife 2 cents more than the Ontario average. Fresh eggs, specials and extras, show at 3½ cents less in Peterborough, and cooking eggs 1½ cents less. Milk is 2½ cents below the Ontario average.

* *

Dairy butter shows little difference—Peterborough being less than a cent cheaper,—and creamery butter is a full cent cheaper here.

* *

Cheese has been bought by the Peterborough housewife half a cent cheaper than the average price for Ontario; bread is exactly average; soda biscuits are 1 cent cheaper here; flour is one tenth of a cent cheaper; rolled oats nearly one cent cheaper; rice, one tenth of a cent higher; tapioca, half a cent less.

* *

Canned vegetables are listed at from half a cent to one cent cheaper in Peterborough,—but canned peaches do not follow the same rule. They cost a cent more here.

* *

Onions and potatoes cost a trifle less in Peterborough. Apples are listed 2 cents cheaper here. Prunes are practically the same; raisins come a cent cheaper, and currant are exactly average. Jam, in four-pound tins, costs 5 cents more in Peterborough, while marmalade, in the same size tin, costs half a cent less than the average. A saving to Peterborough housewives of 2 cents is shown on corn syrup in five-pound lots.

* *

Sugar in dollar lots cost a fifth of a cent less a pound in Peterborough for the granulated kind, and one tenth of a cent a pound less for yellow. Coffee is half a cent more here, tea 2½ cents less, and cocoa one cent less than average.

* *

Vinegar cost half a cent more in Peterborough, salt a tenth of a cent a pound less (in bags), pepper 3 cents less a pound, cream of tartar 6½ cents less, laundry starch 1 cent less and laundry soap one tenth of a cent a bar less.

* *

Anthracite coal is listed ten cents a ton cheaper than the average, and coke a little more than ten cents a ton cheaper, but bituminous coal wins in this classification with a saving to the Peterborough user of $1.65. Hard wood slabs are listed $1.19 cheaper than average here in stove lengths, hard wood is $2.99 cheaper, soft wood slabs come $1.82 cheaper than average, and in stove lengths soft wood is $3.31 under the Ontario average. You get millwood here at $4.40 less than its average cost in Ontario. Coal oil cost 4 cents a gallon more in Peterborough, and matches, at the listed price of ten cents a box of 400 cost half a cent less than the average.

* *

All of this seems to indicate that prices are not so unreasonable in Peterborough as one would gather from conversations one hears. Take coal, for instance. Anthracite cost more than the Peterboroug price in seventeen cities in Ontario in February, and only twelve cities had cheaper coal.

* *

Taking another item at random—round steak—I find that eleven cities in Ontario reported cheaper than Peterborough, while eighteen were higher.

* *

Another interesting comparison of food prices may be made from these figures, compiled and issued by the Department of Labor. It is amazing how prices have dropped since the peak days of 1920.

* *

In these figures the average of sixty cities in Canada is taken. We find that the cost of all foods for a family of five has dropped from $15.77 a week to $11.15 a week. Of this, the housewife saves 56 cents on meats (including pork 33½ cents on lard alone) $1.23 on eggs, milk, butter and cheese 68 cents on bread, flour, rolled oats and rice 50 cents on sugar and 86½ cents on potatoes. It is noteworthy that the only commodities showing an increase since 1920 are tea, coffee, and vinegar.

* *

Not so great advantage is seen in other things which go into the home. Anthracite coal, which reached its peak in 1921, has not yet receded to below the 1920 price, but bituminous coal has. Average rent in these 60 cities didn't reach its peak until 1923, and it is still higher than in 1920.

* *

So far as food is concerned, Ontario is one of the most expensive provinces in which to live. Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia are all higher than Ontario, but Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec and Manitoba are lower. The average cost of staple foods in Ontario is $11.12 (for the family of 5 persons). Prince Edward Island is lowest, $9.97, and British Columbia is highest, $12.16.

Rendezvous

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

Marcia Carroll, finding herself downtown in the neighborhood of her fiance's office, decided to take advantage of the fact and ride home with him. She knew just where he parked his car and could sit in it and wait for him.

She still had about twenty minutes before closing time and sauntered leisurely down the busy street. As she had expected his car stood in its usual place. Had it not been there, she would hardly have known how to find it out of a dozen others exactly like it.

She was about to climb into the back seat as a more comfortable place to rest until Bert's arrival, when she saw a white bit of paper tucked in between the body of the car and the front door.

Her first thought was that Bert had left a note, although why he should did not at the moment occur to her any more than it occurred to her that there might be anything of a private nature about the communication—if communication it were. She and Bert had been engaged for several months and good friends for many years. They had no secrets from one another.

After she had read the scribbled lines, however, she sat very still, biting her lip and staring straight ahead with eyes that saw nothing.

"Will be waiting for you at the library, sweetheart. Pick me up there.
B. R."

B.R.! B.R.! Marcia searched her brain for the name of any girl beginning with these initials whom Bert might know. Betty Rackham was the nearest she could come to it and it simply couldn't be Betty. Why, Betty had only been married to Tom Rackham a year and went about openly and shamelessly adoring him.
